THE LEAFLETS REALLY TURNED THE TRICK

How thousands of German soldiers in the North African campaign surrendered when they picked up leaflets dropped by Allied planes telling them that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel had abandoned them, was revealed recently. The leaflet urged the Germans to surrender and promised safe conduct and good food if they did so.

A copy of the leaflet was received by Ray Tucker, newspaper and magazine correspondent of Washington from his son, Sergeant Doon Tucker who is in North Africa. The letter was postmarked May 14 just before the final capitulation of Axis forces in Africa. The sergeant wrote that he obtained the leaflet from a captured German soldier. "Thousands of Germans came running in to surrender, all waving leaflets like this" he wrote.

One side of the leaflet in large German letters tells of Rommel's abandonment of German troops to their fate in the desert. The other side contains a drawing of a bewildered German soldier about to drown.

The leaflet promised the Germans safe conduct to American and British posts if they would surrender, bringing the leaflet with them as evidence they wished to give themselves up.

"Safe - conduct to American and British outposts.

"The German soldier who carries this safe - conduct is using it as a token of his genuine wish to give himself up. He is to be disarmed, to be well looked after, to receive food and medical attention as required, and to be removed from the danger-zone as soon as possible."

Since there were many Italian troops with the Germans in North Africa it was thought the leaflet would be written in that language. One official, asked about this point, commented drily that there never was difficulty about getting Italian prisoners to surrender, that writing the message in Italian would have been a "waste of ink and printing."

That the Germans believed the leaflet's information and had faith in the offer of safe conduct it contained was attested to by the fact that when they surrendered many still had plenty of ammunition and weapons, according to Sergeant Tucker's letter. The German troops were "sore" at Rommel's having left them in the lurch, the letter said.

Officials who saw the leaflet praised its effectiveness. The cartoon showing the soldier drowning got the idea over to the Germans that their commander had just really left them to "sink or swim" one spokesman said. The offer of food and medical attention to the Germans after months in the desert on the run must have been attractive, he said. It was, he added, the "most effective type of propaganda."

The leaflet had all the marks of a hurriedly-done printing job. It was undoubtedly printed near the scene of battle and on cheap paper.

TALE OF TWO CITIES

BY RUSSELL HILL

The disappearance of the land fronts in North Africa has left the Allied armies there pivoting once again from those well known war capitals — Algiers and Cairo. These are cities which may again be the bases for any operations that may take place in the Mediterranean theatre and are different from each other as they are far apart geographically. The distance from Algiers to Cairo is greater than that from Halifax to Winnipeg.

Although both American and British uniforms — and those of a dozen other United Nations — are to be seen in both cities, one may generalize by saying that Algiers has more of the American influence, Cairo is overwhelmingly a British one. If one were to stand on one of the main streets, of Algiers and count the uniforms the proportion of American to British probably would be found to be about 60 to 40. On the other hand the proportion in Cairo would be something like 90 to 10 on the British side, most of the American uniforms belonging to the air corps.

Of the two cities Algiers is smaller cleaner and more European-like. In Cairo one feels oneself already in the East. In this huge sprawling city Africa sprawling over the mud flats at the place where the desert and the Nile Delta meet, there are more than a million natives living in poverty and squalor, with that peculiar attitude of fatalism that is traditionally associated with the East, even by those who have never seen it.

It is difficult to find a connection between this eternal background and the accidental phenomena associated with war which one feels will pass over and leave the city essentially unchanged. It may be because of this deeply ingrained oriental character that Cairo looks less like a city at war than Algiers, which has been a war capital for no more than seven months.

Cairo still is a crowded city. It is no easier to get a room at Shepheard's Hotel today than it was last winter when general headquarters was directing a battle at the approaches of the Nile Delta. And there are just about as many men in uniform to be seen in the streets now as then.

If anything, the atmosphere was more carefree and less warlike than it is now. War footages gradually are beginning to catch up with Cairo. The restaurants are forbidden to serve elaborate meals. Three courses is the limit — soup, meat or fish, dessert or fruit.

Various luxuries that used to be obtainable are disappearing from the shops. There are no more tennis balls. Whisky is getting hard to find. Compared with its former self, Cairo is a soberer and a more warlike city.

There is just one thing which

A NOTEWORTHY CHARACTERISTIC OF THE GERMANS

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Prime Minister Churchill's recent speech in the House of Commons painted a graphic picture of an Allied war-machine grinding through to success with gathering momentum but outstanding among its important statements was his declaration of confidence that "the U-boat war will not stand between the United Nations and their final victory."

Hitler's unrestricted submarine campaign has been one of the gravest menaces the Allies have had to face. He has crowded the Allies dangerously hard. Huge quantities of essential munitions have been sunk at a time when they needed every ounce of striking power they could muss on the hard-pressed battle fronts.

Now Mr. Churchill says that May was the most successful month the Allies have had in their warfare against the submersibles, and the first week of June "is the best ever." Last month the combined building exceeded our losses by more than three to one," and for the first time our killings of U-boats substantially outnumbered the U-boat output.

Now that's something to conjure with. The submarine destruction is particularly gratifying, because it would, in a measure, be love's labor lost if we increased the number of our cargo ships without at the same time whittling down the boche U-boat fleet.

The recent record may mean that at last the Allies have broken the back of the submarine menace, so it will pergult a great speeding up of United Nations operations in all theatres.

The increase in the Anglo-American fleet of cargo ships fits in with those "amphibious operations of a peculiar complexity and hazard on a large scale" which Mr. Churchill said "are approaching." Lack of transport has been one of the Allied problems, of course, huge numbers of ships are essential for any major water-borne invasion.

The Prime Minister remarked that "the Germans seem to be staking their hopes on the U-boat war." As a matter of fact, Nazi spokesmen in Berlin have been bolstering the courage of the German people with the promise that the submarine drive would bring the Allies to their knees. Continuing his comment Mr. Churchill made this interesting observation: "It should be made clear that this hope has failed, then they may be seriously disappointed and they are a people who, when seriously disappointed, do not always find resources to confront an approaching disaster once their reason tells them that this is inevitable. I make that observation in passing. Do not let us build on such deductions."

Of course it would be folly to bank on German morale collapsing, as it did in the First Great War. And there's no harm in reconizing that Mr. Churchill has pointed to a characteristic of the Germans. Six months ago Gen. Montgomery made a similar remark in the air as he was van in the Libyan desert at the height of his offensive against Rommel.

The German is a good soldier and will fight," said the famous general, "though I believe it is true that once you get him down he cracks up."

That had proof of this estimate in the Tunisian collapse. When the Germans found that they were going to be beaten in the long run, they gave up. In short, the German is essentially mindful and is inclined to sacrifice his life on a hopeless issue, as does his Japanese ally.

It strikes me that closely coupled with the question of German morale and Axis morale as a whole — are the reports that the Axis is getting "fed up" with the war. This danger has become so pronounced of late as to draw a warning from President Roosevelt that any such Axis move will bring "full and swift retaliation in kind" against military objectives.

If the Axis does resort to the use of this weapon, it's likely to be an act of desperation when morale is collapsing.

Treaty of Westphalia Disappears

The Germans have removed from The Hague Archives the original treaty of the 1648 Treaty of Westphalia, which formally recognized the Independence of the Netherlands from the German Reich.

The ancient document, bearing the signatures by only few living persons, had been locked in a special room as one of the proudest and most valuable possions of the Netherlands.

It represented de facto and de jure recognition of the Netherlands as a separate entity by the signers of the peace of Westphalia, which ended the thirty years' war between the Holy Roman Empire and France and Sweden.

Dr. Mathijs Bokhorst, Dutch professor of history, said that the document was removed shortly after Reichfuehrer Adolf Hitler had declared in a speech that "I will undo the peace of Westphalia."

It was recalled that the Nazi professor defiend at Kiel University had stated Holland's liberation by 1648 was "the beginning of the German tragedy" and "brought the rise of the House of Orange and led the Netherlands to great power and to great sea power."

"Can you tell me the way to the church?" asked the stranger in the village.

"Certainly, sir," replied the oldest inhabitant, obligingly. "Go up the down, keep straight along the long illness. Mr. Pyne was a visitor each summer with his sister, Mrs. Arthur Collings, and Mr. Collings.

Miss Edith Allison, of Ottawa, was a week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allison.

Mr. Herb Gallagher is able to be out again, after an illness of 10 weeks.

GIBBARDS LOSE TO BATTERY, 10-6

The local Gibbard squad played host to the 47th Battery on Monday evening, when the third game on the schedule of the Fastball League was played. The Napanee team came out on the short end of the score, 10-6, in a seven innings battle.

The game was a little late in starting, and, as a result, only seven frames were played. Gibbards had the game in the "bag" until the last of the fourth. They were leading 5-0 when the Gunners lowered their sights and piled 10 runs across the plate in three innings, holding the local team to a single counter.

A few errors were chalked up by both outfits. The Gunners were without the services of Brennan and Stinson, the former being injured in the previous game. The Battery enlisted the services of Yake, a local baseball boy, and he was given a big hand for his smart fielding on short.

Several arguments, as usual, on the decisions, held up the game somewhat and, at times, reminded us of the old feud of the long lost Napanee and District League games.

Umpires : Wilson, at plate; Smith on bases.

WORM MAY TURN WHEN ATTACKED

The Victory gardener is likely to improve his knowledge of entomology before the season is far advanced and learn that warfare must be waged against insects which attack his plants, if the fruits of his toil are to be realized and the food crops saved for human consumption.

As in land, sea and aerial conflict, the method of attack on the insect pests varies according to the defences of the enemy and his vulnerable points. The life history of insects generally is divided into four stages, namely: egg, larva, pupa and adult.

Biting and chewing insects, such as certain beetles, caterpillars, grasshoppers and slugs, can be controlled by stomach poisons which include arsenates of lead and lime, cryolite, Paris Green and nicotine, whereas sucking insects have to be attacked by contact poisons such as nicotine sulphate, derris, pyrethrum, oil sprays, lime sulphur and thiocyanates. These act on the respiratory system or by their caustic effect.

One of the most troublesome and elusive pests in the garden is the cutworm, a caterpillar that buries itself during the day and "cuts up" at night during warm weather. Given freedom of action, these insects may now down cabbage, corn, tomatoes and other young plants as fast as they come up or are set out, severance being usually at ground level.

Cutworms are plump, smooth-bodied, gray to brownish caterpillars, fully one and a half inches in length when full-grown. They usually hide in the soil by day and do their dirty work by night. When disturbed, they coil up into a semi-circular attitude, feigning innocence and demonstrating that even a worm may turn.

Cutworms can be destroyed most effectively by means of a poison bait prepared by mixing thoroughly one quart of bran with a teaspoonful of Paris Green or sodium fluosilicate and then adding about a pint of water sweetened with two tablespoonsful of syrup or molasses to make a moist but not sticky mixture. This should be scattered lightly around or near the plants shortly before the worms emerge to feed. Since these baits are poisonous, they should be used with due caution and stored beyond the reach of children, poultry (even your neighbour's) and domestic animals.

GIVES UP COUPONS SECURED FOR JAM

The woman came up the stairs. Her youngest child was trotting along beside her. She was Polish and spoke shyly and hesitantly. Her little boy had been killed recently, she told the secretary of the Local Raleigh Board, at Stratford, and she had come to turn in his ration book.

She opened her worn purse and shuffled through some papers. "Here it is," she said. "And I give you, too, his sugar for jam. We no want it. My boy is dead now. He killed by truck last week. Maybe some other little boy want it." Saying this, she tore off two ration coupons, each good for five pounds of sugar.

Facts About Dehydrated Apples And Their Use

The Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has tested many varieties of dehydrated apples; here are some of the things they have found out about them.

One pound of dehydrated apples measures about eight cups. In measuring, pack the cup well.

One cup of dehydrated apples soaked and cooked makes about two cups of apple sauce.

Two cups of the apples soaked and cooked will fill one nine inch pie shell.

Dehydrated apples require very little sweetening. With different varieties of apples the amount of sugar may vary a little, but usually two tablespoons sugar is ample for sauce made from one cup of apples, and one-third cup of sugar will sweeten a nine inch pie.

Dehydrated apples should be kept in a cool dry place, in a tin or glass container having a close-fitting cover. If they are stored in a paper bag or uncovered container, exposure to air may cause the apples to turn dark and also allows them to absorb moisture from the air.

Dehydrated apples must be soaked and given some cooking before used for pies and puddings.

To Prepare Dehydrated Apples

Measure apples, packing well into the measuring cup.

Allow two cups water to each cup of apples, allow to soak four hours or overnight, keeping them in refrigerator or other cool place. If the apples are fresh and very tender a little more water may have to be added before cooking.

Apple Sauce

Bring soaked apples to a boil, cook gently until soft — about 15 minutes, adding more water if necessary. Add sugar and cook in any way that fresh apple sauce is used.

Apple Pie

Bring soaked apples to a boil, cook gently until apples are soft but still hold their shape. Fill an uncooked pie shell, sprinkle with sugar. Add spices, lemon juice, if desired, dot with butter if desired. Cover with top crust and bake as for apple pie.

Apple Puddings

Soak and cook apples as for pie. Use for any apple pudding.

DEATHS

ROCKWELL — At Plainfield, Ont., on Thursday, June 10th, 1943, Orson Nelson Rockwell, beloved husband of Margaret Hogle, and dear father of Laura, Mrs. G. T. McKenzie.

PYBUS — At Napanee, on Monday, June 14th, 1943, Mary Ann Elwin, widow of the late William Kerr, in her 91st year. Funeral at 2:30 o'clock on Wednesday, June 16th, from the Tierney Funeral Home.

The Late Shore Loynes

The death occurred on Friday, June 11th, at his residence, Richard Street, Napanee, of Shore Loynes, well-known business man of the town. He was in his 87th year, and although he had failed noticeably for some months he was ill only a short time.

Mr. Loynes was born at Cape Vincent, N.Y., in 1857 of United Empire Loyalist stock, and moved to Adolphustown as a young boy with his parents, in 1865.

He was twice married. His first wife, the former Carrie Chalmers, of Adolphustown, died about fifty years ago. One son, Gerald, of Toronto, survives his father. Mr. Loynes later married Ruth Bird of Rossgrove, England, who survives her husband.

About forty years ago Mr. Loynes came to Napanee. He was employed by the Fenwick Hendry Co., Kingston. Some time later he decided to go into business for himself, and about twenty years ago formed a partnership with Mr. F. H. Carter as wholesale tobacconists and confectioners. Just recently, he disposed of his interests in the business to Mr. Carter.

The funeral was held at the residence on Richard Street, Napanee, on Monday afternoon, June 14th. The service was conducted by Rev. R. J. Dunville of St. Mary Magdalene Church, of which Mr. Loynes was a member. Burial took place at Riverside Cemetery. Pallbearers were Messrs. W. T. Mackenzie, W. V. Webster, W. J. Wagguns, W. R. Deceased was in his 77th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pybus. He was a carpenter by trade. As a young boy he learned his trade from his father, and together with his brother, Tom, he made it his lifetime work.

He was a member of Zion Church. The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon, June 10th, at his residence, Dundas Street. Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of Grace United Church conducted the service. Interment was made in Riverside cemetery.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Mrs. Glenn McKeown, Newburgh Road, entertained about thirty guests at her home on Friday evening, at a cun and saucer shower in honor of Miss Ruth Brown, a bride-elect of this month. The evening was spent in games and contests. Mr. Ralph Weese also contributed several guitar selections.

Later, a dainty lunch was served and white, with numerous paree's was drawn into the bringroom by little Douglas McKeown. After opening and displaying the lovely gifts, the guest of honor expressed her appreciation.

The guests were invited to the dintingroom, which was decorated with pink and white streamers suspended from a large white bell. The table, which was covered with a lace cloth, was attractive with spring flowers and white candles. Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by the Misses Phyllis and Peggy McKeown. Mrs. A. McKeown and Mrs. Oliver presided at the tea urn.

After an enjoyable evening the guests departed, wishing the bride-elect all the best for the future.

The evacuees were billeted on the top floor of a hotel. Coming out of their bedroom they searched everywhere for a staircase, but could find nothing but a dark lift shaft. The gate was open, so Liz stepped forward. Her friend peered out into the darkness.

"You all right, Liz?" she called. "Yes," came a feeble reply. "But mind the first step; it ain't 'alf a steep 'un!"

Ration Coupons Are Asked For at Summer Resorts

With the approach of the summer holiday season, the Prices Board reminds all those who may be contemplating a stay at summer hotels or other resorts where meals are provided that they should take their coupon ration books with them, as these will be required by the management in order to fulfill the rationing regulations.

Those regulations provide that wherever a guest stays for a week or longer at a resort, the management must, each week, detach two meat coupons and one butter coupon from the ration book of each guest. Every two weeks, moreover, one tea or coffee and one sugar coupon will be detached by the hotel operator.

As with other public eating places, summer hotels are required to observe "meatless Tuesday" and it may be added that the charges made by them are covered by the price ceiling. Diners specific authority has been granted, those rates must not be higher than the rates in force during the season of 1942.

MOST POPULAR MARCH— THE WEDDING MARCH

Hello Homemakers! Today's June bride-to-be still claims her traditional right to wedding march, bridesmaids and reception — in wartime style, of course.

Gone are the costly wedding feasts — menus are simple in tune with the times. Luncheons for war brides are gay, informal affairs and smaller of course, due to rationing. With careful planning, they can still be never-to-be-forgotten events that will live forever in the bride's memory.

A buffet luncheon is a happy choice for the military wedding. It can be made lovelier and more effective if you contrive some original centrepiece, perhaps with a military motif. The groom's regimental badge could be sketched in large size on both sides of a cardboard mounts, colored and cut out. Then set this upright on the table and bank it with flowers on both sides. You might strike a patriotic note with red carnations, white snapdragons and bible delphiniums.

In spite of wartime complications, you can manage a lovely wedding when you've schemed and saved your rations for a while and you'll be surprised to find how much friends will share with the bride-to-be.

Tea Biscuits with Creamed Chicken
Salad Rolls
Assorted Tea Cakes
Wedding Cake Punch

Fish in Patty Shells
Moulded Salad
Cheese Sticks
Strawberry Shortcake
Grape Juice or Ginger Ale

HELPS FOR PRECISION LAUNDERING

Hello Homemakers! Laundering is an important job in the homemaker's schedule. The experienced housewife — especially to - day — chooses new fabrics with an eye to their wearing qualities, but proper laundering also plays an important part in making fabrics wear longer. Cleanliness is a great morale builder which is worth thinking about as we survey the piles of family laundry that accumulate so quickly. However, washing can be taken in your stride if you use the proper method — the right preparation is half the battle, right washing the other half.

SORTING

Sorting comes first. To save back strain, sort clothes hamper on a bench at your own level — no need to stoop. Sorting clothes onto newspapers instead of floor prevents further soiling. Sort them according to soil, color, material, stain.

STAINS

SOFTENING WATER

Half the homemakers in Ontario struggle with the hard water problem. If water is soft, soap makes suds; if water is hard, soap makes curds.

To soften water, we use a fine, mild soap for silks and rayons. Less expensive softeners are used for the general wash. Too much softener yellows clothes and makes them hoky. Softeners are alkaline and of varying strength. Water varies in degree of harshness, making a test necessary to find amount of softener required. Fill a pail with warm water, add two tablespoons of softener and then dip out half a pailful; add soap and shake a little. If curd forms there is not enough softener; add another tablespoon and test.

Washing Soda is rather strong for fine fabrics, big good for the general wash.

Borax is very mild, but not so efficient. Use for fine laundry.

SOAPING THE WATER

Flakes, granules and chips come ready for work — bar soap should be shredded or shaved. To get economy's worth in cleansing power, always dissolve soap thoroughly before you put the clothes in. Don't try to economise by buying inferior brands of soap. For best results measure soap. Next Monday, try using a two-thirds cup soap to each tub of softened water and agitate for a minute or so — then stick a ruler in to see if there is a two-inch depth of suds. You may even need one and one-quarter cups of soap for a big washing machine — but measure.

SOAKING

Soak clothes in cool water, with or without soap, for fifteen minutes or longer — it saves time and wear.

Collar bands and childrens play suits need wash soaking. If soap is rubbed into the worst spots with a small brush while soaking. Tip for busy war workers—soak overalls in salt and water.

WASHING

Follow directions as to amount of clothes to put in your washing machine — the amount varies from 6 to 8 lbs. As a guide, 4 to 6 sheets or table cloths weigh 6 to 7 lbs. Never put in more clothes than will revolve easily.

Hot water (temperature 140 deg.) is an excellent bleach. Wash slightly soiled clothes 5 minutes; moderately soiled 10 minutes, and to remove stubborn dirt 18 minutes. Washing clothes too long defeats its purpose. It drives the dirt back in and makes clothes dingy — besides it wastes electricity.

RINSING

To speed up wringing, lap each succeeding article when part way through. Wring clothes right into a large tub filled with hot softened water for the first rinse.

We do stress a second rinse. Thoroughness at this point pays big dividends in soft, sweet clothes. Your second rinse water need not be softened. Some homemakers recommend blueing water or a third rinse.

Clothes well wrung and hung are half-ironed. And let's hope for a bright day so your clothes can be hung outdoors.

Bonus 4 Cents Pound Now Available For Ontario Wool

Details of the Ontario Wool bonus policy, announced to encourage greater care in the production and better preparation for the market of Ontario wool, have been announced by officials of the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture for Ontario. This provides that a bonus of four cents a pound will be paid by the Ontario Department on all wool which meets the requirements of the bonus with the federal department reimbursing the provincial treasury to the extent of two cents a pound. Wool from Ontario producers only, graded at a point of assembly registered warehouse during the season in which the wool is shorn, is eligible for bonus. All wool grading statements will be stamped as to whether the wool is or is not recommended for bonus, and on these recommendations payments will be made direct to the producer without application on his part. The bonus will be paid only on wool grading fine and fine medium, military style, felting style, soutchdown style, ordinary style, or special selection of very choice fleeces with other grades only as marketed in general good condition.

It is announced that bonus will not be paid on wool grading "reject," such as straw and burry, seedy and chaffy, grey and black, dead, kemp, musty, mouldy, damaged, cotted or tags. Washed wool, wool tied with binder twine, and wools arriving at a registered warehouse in generally poor condition will also not qualify for bonus payments.

In making the announcement, the Ontario Department says that all wool should be free of seeds, chaff, straw, burrs, and other foreign material, and all heavy tag locks should be removed at the time of shearing and not rolled in with the fleece. All short fibred, hary leg and face clippings should not be shipped at all, as they are of little value. Black fleeces or those containing dark fibres should be kept from contact with white fleeces, but should be shipped separately and all fleeces should be rolled and folded with the flesh or shorn side out.

Any enquiries regarding the wool bonus should be made to the Wool Bonus Division, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Agricultural Statistics Of Great Importance In War Effort

Working in co-operation with the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the Publications and Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is at present distributing cards to tens of thousands of Ontario farmers, asking for complete and accurate information on farm production. In view of the importance of food in the national war effort, this information is essential in order that the present and future food problems of the country can be studied and dealt with. Thus every farmer who fills in and returns the card will be serving his country in an important phase of its work tasks.

In sending out these cards, the publications and statistics branch points out that the individual returns made by farmers will not be divulged in any way, and an assurance is also given that they will not be used in any way for purposes of taxation. The co-operation of all farmers is sought because accurate information on crops acreages and livestock numbers will be beneficial to the farmer as well as to the government.

Farmers who have not received these cards by the middle of June are asked to apply for them either to the teacher of their local school, or to the county agricultural representative or direct to the Provincial Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

On your preserves and canned ... spoiling! A few hours of WALL... PRESERVING POWDER is ... for several quarts.

PLAN to spend half a day, a day, or several evenings a week on local farms during the haying and harvesting seasons this summer. Join the thousands of Farm Commandos who "close up shop" or lay down their tools to make "raids" into the country and help farmers take their crops from the land.

Farm Commando Brigades are springing up in Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Service Clubs, Churches and other men's organizations all over Ontario. Townsmen are getting together to make a direct, patriotic contribution to the War Effort by helping to save the crops.

Farm Commandos are paid a minimum of twenty-five cents an hour, and many Commandos contribute these earnings to favourite war charities.

If there is no Farm Commando Brigade forming in your locality, take it up with your own men's organization and get your local Brigade started at once.

Every possible man-hour must be put in during harvesting to prevent irreplaceable loss of food that is essential to the Allied War Effort and to Canada herself!

Your help is needed—NOW! Volunteer in a Farm Commando Brigade and be ready to help when harvest emergencies arise. For full information, forms, etc., write to Ontario Farm Service Force, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, at once.

OUR MEAT RATION

When buying meat, it is now necessary to consider not only the coupon value, but, what is more important, the relative food value and costs of the different cuts of meat.

The meats which will be more economical so far as cost and nutritive values are concerned will be found chiefly in Groups B and C, of which we are allowed from one and one-half to two pounds per person per week. While practically all meat has similar food value, naturally that with little bone, or no bone, will have, weight for weight, higher nutritive value; and the fresh cuts of meat are preferable to smoked and cooked varieties.

If your family is large enough, it may be possible to provide sufficient of the fresh cuts and have a coupon left for bacon. If it is a case of either smoked or cooked meats — or fresh roast or steak, choose the latter.

Group D includes many of the cheaper cuts, as well as the more expensive meats, and, due to the fact that more bone is present, the allowance is higher: two and one-half pounds per person per week; so, although they may be slightly more expensive as far as food value is concerned (since you pay for the bone as well), the actual food value of the meat itself will probably be about the same as in the other groups.

The allowance is quite sufficient for our needs, and it rests with the individual whether she wishes to have all the meat in the form of a roast or spread it over a longer period by using the smaller cuts, such as steaks and chops. If a roast is chosen, it should be made to last as long as possible; use it cold the second day; then make stew or shepherd's pie.

Remember, liver, heart, kidney — all so valuable — are not rationed; also poultry ,fish, tongue, spareribs, ox tail, and some cooked and smoked meats and sausages. So, with the amount of rationed meat allowed, and using fish once per week; poultry possibly once or twice a month; liver or other organ meat once per week; and the other unrationed meats and eggs occasionally, our families need notice little difference in their meat allowance, except for possibly smaller servings of the rationed meats, to make them go as far as possible.

VICTORY GARDENS

If Victory Garden crops were to be rated according to the quantity of vitamins they are likely to contribute to the family diet all season long, the carrot would probably be rated next to the tomato.

Carrots are definitely a health food. They say that pilots of the Royal Air Force are required to eat them nearly every day to keep their eyesight keen. But not everybody likes carrots.

If your family belongs to the anti-carrot faction, do not omit carrots from the schedule just because of that prejudice. If you have never eaten carrots fresh from your garden then you have no idea how delicious they can be. They make a pleasing and colorful addition when shredded into salads. Children often prefer carrots raw to cooked.

Let the carrots grow without thinning until they are as thick as lead pencils, then begin to thin out and cook the excess roots. You will be amazed at the flavor and tenderness of these tiny carrots, and from then on your prejudice will disappear.

While carrots are most delicious when they are young, they still remain tender and sweet after they have grown all summer. They will mature well standing so close in a row as to touch each other. But the best plan is to make successive sowings, and harvest them before they are full grown.

If you wish to can carrots, the smaller they are the more delicious you will find them next winter. It is a good plan to sow a special row for canning and harvest them when they reach the desired size.

When carrots are allowed to mature they should be pulled when the tops begin to turn yellow. If left in the ground they will lose quality.

W. C. T. U. 34TH CONVENTION HELD AT BELLEVILLE

The 34th W. C. T. U. convention of Hastings, Addington and Prince Edward Counties was held at Belleville, May 26th, with a good attendance of representatives. The convention will meet in Trenton next year.

President, Mrs. A. T. Fleming was in the chair. The following committees were appointed:

Resolution— Mrs. Dr. Baker, Mrs. W. Wartman, Miss Herrington.

Courtesy Committee — Mrs. A. H. Foster, Mrs. J. R. Pickering.

Belleville Union then led in a consecration service. Miss L. Gandier of Napanee gave a very inspiring talk based on the verses of John 21st.

The year in review given by Mrs. A. H. Foster, of Cherry Valley, showed much interest taken in the work. The keeping of records was stressed, also the study of the Report Book.

Mrs. N. Parley, Belleville, gave an interesting report of the work of the Citizenship. This is a very important part of the work and will be even more so if, as is likely, many people of other nations come to Canada after the war. "Our attitude towards our laws," she replied, will influence theirs, so we should all be interested in being good citizens.

Mrs. George Finley, superintendent of Law and Sabbath Observance felt that more interest should be taken in this department. Quiet Sabbaths are being gradually encroached on by entertainments, often in the name of patriotism. Emerson said "The Sabbath is the core of Civilization." "When so many standards are being lowered, is it not important that we save this ancient one? Would you be the man or woman you are, without the memory of your childhood Sabbath?" Mrs. Finley commented.

Mrs. (Dr.) Baker, superintendent of Scientific Temperance in Day Schools reported.

Napanee Collegiate took part in the scientific instruction in temperance. Many schools have taken part in the Foster Reference Book and the Health Book contests.

Mrs. F. Hooper, of Napanee, Peace and International Relationship superintendent reported for her department. It is both fascinating and necessary to study world problems. With radio and so many articles in magazines it is almost as hard to get away from knowledge as from the rain. Some things that may help are listening to speakers, group study and prayer for those who have the heavy task of world reorganization. At its close Mrs. (Rev.) E. Farnsworth spoke a few words of appreciation of Mrs. Hooper's splendid report.

The nominating committee brought in a report recommending that the officers of last year as in directory, be returned to office. Report adopted.

Miss E. Parks, Napanee, superintendent of Literature, reported $13.49 received for books and pamphlets.

The War Services superintendent, Mrs. Pringle, was absent, but sent her report of work done in conjunction with the Red Cross. One Union saves pennies for war work, and will knit and sew or help with dilty bags.

The review of the beginning of the Union is very salutory. As one studies the conditions under which the founders worked a sense of reverence is felt and a feeling that this is holy ground. It is for all to see that these pioneers have not lived in vain. Mrs. Letitia Youmans formed the first W.C.T.U. in 1874. In 1909 the first County Convention was held in Newburgh. They worked for the teaching of temperance in the schools also to fight the evil of cigarettes. At the fourth convention there were 472 members. Mrs. N. B. Miller was elected president and is still a member, being one of the honorary presidents.

Miss E. Parks then presented the Press report. There are ten L. T. C. Legions, with 31 members pledged to abstain from alcoholic beverages. They take the "Crusader" a temperance paper, and have held forty-five meetings and given fourteen posters and three health books. This work is growing and Miss Parks deserves credit for her efforts to encourage it. There are 243 members and 12 honorary members.

The installation of the officers and superintendents for the year 1943-1944 was conducted by Mrs. E. Farnsworth. They assembled at the front of the church as their names were called and in a prayer, Mrs. Farnsworth dedicated them to their work.

The treasurer, Miss M. Reeves, of Belleville, then presented her report. Total received, $794.85; expenses, $519.46; balance, $275.39.

The report of the Finance Committee recommended:

That local Unions adhere strictly to the constitutional rules for the disposition of funds.

That each local Union appoint a finance committee to devise means of raising additional funds.

That a definite effort to increase the membership is needed in every Union.

It was suggested that the work be done so that all would take part and that outside speakers be invited whenever possible.

After discussion it was decided by vote of the members to hold the usual W. Camp at Lake Consecon from July 14th to 23rd. The fee to be increased to $5.00 for board and $1.00 registration, and the girls to bring everything they can to help with the food.

In their plan of work many resolutions were adopted:

That whereas our Sabbath divinely set apart for rest and worship is being misused by the business, sport and pleasure seeking world, we renew our allegiance to the Sabbath law of our land and pledge ourselves to do all in our power to see that these laws are enforced.

That we commend the Prime Minister Hon. Mackenzie King, for his change of policy regarding the liquor problem and so on aid to our war effort we respectfully urge further curtailment of the output of liquor.

That we commend the effort of our Dominion, W.C.T.U. in erecting "Friendship Hut" at the Petawawa Camp.

Dr. C. A. Little, of Toronto was the guest speaker of the evening.

Dr. Little took all the theme of his address the words of Christ to His disciples, "Whatsoever sin ye shall retain shall be retained, and whatsoever sin ye shall remit, shall be remitted."

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Clayton Burr of the Temperance Federation to Dr. Little for his excellent and inspiring address.

Mrs. A. H. Foster then reported for the Courtesy Committee thanking the officials of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church for the use of the building, the ladies who had served and all who had taken part in the entertainment.

FARMERS Saving MONEY

Farmers and their families, today, are patriotically saving both money and materials—to provide for their continuing usefulness as suppliers of food to the United Nations, to provide for their own future financial independence AND to buy Victory Bonds and pay Income Taxes.

In common with other Canadians, farmers are carefully saving and salvaging EVERYTHING, because in this total "survival war" all things must be conserved, especially money. Determined, systematic saving by every citizen is part of the national price of VICTORY.

In the Garden

NOT TOO LATE YET

In a great deal of Canada this year the season has been very late, and in some sections not a single row had been planted in the Victory Garden before the end of May. But even with this delay, which was due to almost continuous rains, there is still time to produce a lot of vegetables unless the elements continue to be against man for the whole summer.

As a matter of fact, a great many plants do not make any real growth until weather and soil begin to warm up and throughout most of the Dominion this means early June, anyway. There are some exceptions, of course, but vegetables like beans, cabbage, cucumbers, tomatoes, corn, etc., planted out in early June will often catch up and may even pass those put in weeks before, especially if May has been cold and wet. This month, with its long hours of sunlight, growth is amazingly rapid, and of course rapid, unchecked growth is the real secret of tenderness in vegetables.

Moreover, even in those favored areas where first sowings were made week ago, there is still time, and the experts advise them for several more plantings of beans, beets, carrots, corn, lettuce, etc. to ensure a continuous, fresh supply through the late summer. And as for the hot weather plants, things like melons, cucumbers, celery, peppers, squash and such, this is about the ideal time to plant or set outside in most parts of Canada.

The Agricultural Supplies Board at Ottawa has put out an excellent and concise Pamphlet No. 75 on the wartime garden. This will be a great help to all beginners and even to those who have been growing some vegetables for years. A postcard or letter to the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa will bring anyone a copy. The pamphlet gives full directions covering such perplexing problems as distance between rows for various vegetables, time to plant, yields per 50 feet of row, and the treatment for the more common diseases. It will prove an invaluable ready reference.

Early summer care of the vegetable and flower garden largely consists of cultivation, elimination of weeds and spraying or dusting for any insect pests or diseases which may show up.

Regular cultivation has many advantages and is advisable in any season, wet or dry. In the former, it loosens up the soil, lets in the air, prevents sourness and checks weed growth. The soil, of course, should not be cultivated while still wet and muddy but it is advisable as soon as possible after every heavy rain to prevent drying out and baking. In dry weather weekly cultivations will help greatly in conserving the moisture and keeping the soil in healthy condition.

There are several sound reasons for keeping down weeds. In the first place weeds are disfiguring and there is little pride in the garden that is filled with them. Weeds rob the soil of moisture and fertility, which should be going into vegetables and flowers and they also harbor insect pests and plant diseases.

It Could be that the Sacrifice of the Greeks was the Real Turning Point of the War!

The Greeks have paid a terrible price for their gallantry. In cold, ruthless anger, the Nazis stripped their land of its food and supplies and left the population to starve. And starve they do.

— in a single day over 6000 dead have been picked up on the streets of Athens, victims of starvation.

— little Greek boys and girls with skull-like faces, bloated bellies and bony arms scavenge the garbage-bins for morsels of food.

— babies are abandoned in the streets because their mothers cannot bear to see them die slowly of hunger.

Yes, we can do something about it!

Regulations Governing Meat Ration Coupons

Recognizing the fact that it is quite impracticable for butchers to wipe their hands each time they handle meat before removing coupons from ration books, the Prices Board draws attention to the fact that butchers are not required, under the meat rationing regulations, to handle ration books at all.

A glance at the consumer ration books will show consumers that it is perfectly legal for them to tear coupons from the sheet in the presence of the storekeeper. Provided this is done, there is no necessity whatever for butchers handling these ration books and thus there need be no ground for complaints made in some instances that books have become smeared and greasy by such handling.

It is, of course, a violation of the regulations for any retailer to accept loose coupons or for a consumer to tender them unless they have been torn from the ration book by the storekeeper or his representative or in the presence of one of them.

The regulations do not forbid retailers of meat making deliveries of orders and accepting coupons from householders on delivery. Here as well, however, the coupons must be detached from ration books in the presence of the deliveryman, who is acting as a representative of the storekeeper.

NAPANEE COUNCIL MAKES ARRANGEMENTS TO PURCHASE WOOD

Council Asks Gov't to Assist in Cost of Repairing Streets

At a special meeting of the Napanee Town Council held on Monday evening, a resolution was passed by the Department of Highways Ontario be asked to assist the municipality in repairing the Dundas Street pavement from West to Centre Street, by making a grant for the purpose.

The centre portion of the Dundas Street pavement is in a bad state of repair and is rettling badly in places, largely due, it is considered, to the extremely heavy truck traffic which passes over the highway. The pavement was laid in 1921 as a seven-inch concrete base with a sheet asphalt surface.

Mr. Graham, the treasurer, who acted as clerk of the meeting during the absence of W. A. Orange, told Council that, while in Toronto last week, he consulted the Department of Highways on the matter of repairing the street, and learned that only a very small quantity of asphalt available for patching purposes, and that the asphalt available has been divided equally throughout the province. Under the circumstances the Streets Department is considering the advisability of patching the large holes in the pavement with cement and using the small quantity of asphalt allotted the town for patching the small holes.

The question of the town purchasing wood for use by citizens of the municipality during next winter, was discussed and the treasurer, Mr. P. Graham and Councillor Luffman were appointed a committee to negotiate the purchase of any available wood after a by-law, approved by the Ontario Municipal Board regarding the borrowing and storing of wood was unanimously carried by the Council. The by-law provided for the borrowing of $15,000 by the town from the Dominion Bank of Canada.

A letter from the Town Solicitor, S. Herrington, was read regarding the problem of swinging the Centre Street bridge to allow a pleasure cruiser to pass down the river. The matter was left with a special committee composed of M. B. Lufty, A. S. Kimmerly and Geo. Dobson to investigate and with power to act.

Action was taken by the Council regarding a requested by-law for the shop closing hours. The petition asking that the by-law be passed was presented by barbers of the town and was signed by seven of them.

Motion regarding the rental of Town Hall auditorium only to organizations doing recognized war work was rescinded after discussion and forming a refund to the V. O. N. who had recently used the hall for a dance. It was considered that the work of the V. O. N. is of a public nature as much as that of organizations doing war work. A refund of $10.00 was made to the V. O. N. to cover the rental paid by that organization for the use of the hall.

Charged With Abandoning Baby at Picton Road

Charged with abandoning a week-old infant, 17-year-old Walter Potter, of Ambrook, and 18-year-old Muriel Brown of Carrying Place were arrested over the weekend and are now in the county jail in Picton without bail. The apprehension came after a seven-day-old infant was found abandoned in the home of the owner on the Green Point road five miles east of Picton, on Friday.

The two were arrested by Provincial Constable James Lovelace, following an all night investigation.

Miss Brown and Potter are being held both on a charge of "abandoning a child under the age of two years therefore endangering the life of the infant." Mr. F. X. Ward, Picton barrister, has been requested to defend them.

Early on Friday night, Clarence Brown and Harry Hotston, Picton, discovered the week-old infant in the corner of a fence on the Green Point Road. The infant was badly bitten about the face by mosquitoes, ants and mouth being completely black as a result of the bites. The child was removed to the Picton Hospital where it is reported to be doing well.

House Destroyed By Fire, East of Cloyne

A dwelling owned by Joseph Perry Jr., located on the shore of Marble Lake, east of Cloyne, was completely destroyed by fire when it was struck by lightning on Tuesday night. During the height of the storm, the family rushed to their near-by sawmill which Mr. Perry has been operating and it was during their absence that the house was struck. So quickly did it burn that neighbours were of the opinion that something had exploded. It was impossible to do anything to save any of the contents, clothing or other household goods. A number of men employed by Mr. Perry had been quartered in the house and their belongings were destroyed as well. Had the family remained in the home, there is a strong possibility that they might have been killed or badly burned. Neighbours ran through the rain when the house was struck, but so quickly did the flames spread that it was impossible to remove much furniture. The property was a new frame structure located in a pine grove a few yards from Marble Lake.

Brown, of the same place, backed into Mr. Nolan's vehicle. The cab was partly torn off the Nolan truck, while very little damage was done to the Tyner vehicle.

SUCCESSFUL BLOOD DONORS' CLINIC

The largest and most successful Blood Donors' Clinic held in Napanee was operated last Thursday. Seventy volunteer donors were present to help in this needy cause.

The Napanee branch is now on its own as to the staff of doctors, nurses, dietists and all assistants who made up a successful clinic.

Arrangements are being made to speed up the handling of an ever-growing number, so that no delay will occur.

The need for more donors is urgent, and all should know that no amount of plasma is too much. At El Alamein, more transfusions were given than Canada supplies in five months.

Those who received a button for three donations are: Mrs. Kathleen Howell, Mr. Jas. Hagerman, B. C. Thompson, William Goodman, Mrs. K. L. Miller, Mrs. Jas. Aitin.

Thousands of our Canadian fighting men will never return if transfusions are not available. Bring them home THEN — with your BLOOD

NEW REGULATIONS REGARDING WHEY BUTTER

Announcement is made by the Local Ration Board of a change in the coupon value of whey butter when distributed to the regular patrons of cheese factories.

Whereas whey butter as distributed has required the surrender of two valid butter ration coupons per pound, as is the case with creamery or dairy butter.

It has now been decided that in order to prevent the accumulation of whey butter stocks in the hands of cheese factories, regular patrons of such factories may surrender one pound of whey butter per valid butter coupon for the consumption of persons in their own households.

The Ration Administration defines a "regular patron" as "one who ships fluid milk and cream regularly to the same cheese factory" and it specifically points out that this new arrangement does not apply to whey butter sold against any other ration document or for any purpose other than consumption in the patron's household.

The concession is contingent upon whey butter producers affected operating a ration bank account and making a report each month to the Ration Administration on Form RB-52.

RETAIL MERCHANTS HEAR REPRESENTATIVE WARTIME PRICES BD.

Speaker Offers Assistance In Solving Problems

Mr. M. Lapp, a representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board of Toronto, and two representatives of the board, from Kingston and Brockville, conducted a meeting in Napanee on Monday evening, in the interests of the Napanee and District Retail Merchants. The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint the retailers with some of the functions of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to impress the merchants with the gravity of the retailers' situation, and to assist him in solving his problems.

An address was given by Mr. Lapp, and later a discussion period followed in which many individual problems were brought forward.

The meeting was well attended and was held with the co-operation of the Napanee Retail Merchants' Association. In the absence of Mr. P. A. Dornan, president of the Retail Merchants' Association, the vice-president, P. U. Laidley, was chairman.

During the afternoon the Wartime Prices and Trade Board representatives met the liaison officers of the women's organizations of the district.

MR. LAPP'S ADDRESS

Appreciating the effect of its various production controls on the retail trade, Mr. Lapp said the Board formed a group known as Management Service, to study wartime retailing problems. With the increasing gravity of the retail situation, Management Service's work has assumed greater and greater proportions, until to-day it is a full-fledged division reporting directly to the chairman through the Secretary of the Board. In reality, Management Service acts as a liaison between the retailer and the Board, is in no way connected with the enforcement, that unpleasant, but nevertheless essential side of the Board's activity, and is first, last and always, with the retailer, anxious to aid him in his problems and get him relief when relief is possible.

The purpose of Monday night's meeting was two-fold. First, to impress upon retailers the necessity of altering their course of business, of progressive adjustment, if they desire to survive the national crisis in general, and a retail crisis in particular. The public is showing a growing intensity every day. The second, and more important reason for the meeting was to have an open discussion period. Ottawa tries to keep posted as to the retailers' problems but it is difficult sometimes to be fully conversant with local situations.

In many retail outlets, net profits for the past year have been fair, in spite of increased taxes, squeeze, lower margins, and so forth, but the favorable profit picture is mainly accounted for by an inflated sales volume and some forced economies such as delivery curtailment, lighting curtailment, etc., but, that higher sales volume cannot continue. Already there are shortages of merchandise. The potential sales are there but the merchandise is not. Therefore, with sales being reduced through no fault of the supplier, and no fault of the Government, retailers must look to other channels for relief in order to perpetuate their business when it is going, and in shape, for better times to come.

The merchant who is going to survive the war crisis is the one that can prove himself flexible, the one who can forget old notions, trade habits, etc. and run his business with only one thought in mind, survival, the speaker said.

Merchants should be extremely careful not to begin selling themselves out of business. Generally speaking, the picture for retailers was better during 1942, despite the many wartime restrictions. Lower operational costs aided in bringing about higher profits and comprised chiefly curtailments in lighting, deliveries, shorter hours, and also curtailment of certain services and elimination of waste. Because supply houses are tightening their credit to retailers, it is essential for retailers to be more firm with customers' charge accounts, he suggested.

It cannot be, however, overlooked that every retailer has a responsibility, a duty not only to himself, but to his customers with regard to merchandise: Sales are easy these days. Most merchants could, if they desired, dispose of their stock quickly and so forth in very short order, but most merchants, appreciating this responsibility will set up a definite allocation of rationing schemes, not only on coupon listed items, but on all short supply stock, and see that each merchandise is sold only in quantities in keeping with their regular trade in this way all their customers will be assured of a fair share of merchandise. Merchants should not be unfair to old customers who are known to be overbuying. It is their responsibility to exercise this right. Such a policy will serve to spread merchandise over a long period, and thus come closer to maintaining a consistent sales volume.

Concerning the more controllable side of the picture — the expense side, Mr. Lapp said: "I know most of you think you have that item at rock bottom, but have you. I believe the orders restricting delivery and lighting prove there is room still to be curtailed without affecting business at a time like this. I know many merchants have gone beyond the requirements of the order, all to their own advantage. I have no doubt that many suggestions should be made for reducing operation expense in business today, but here are some of the more important ones: (1) Elimination of Waste; (2) Simplification of Stocks; (3) Reduction or Credit Sales; (4) Conservation of Electricity; (5) Pool Deliveries; (6) Carry your own Parcels; (7) Reduction of Store Hours; (8) Installation of Self-Service; (9) the Analysation of Advertising Expenses; (10) Analization of Business Expense, keeping of adequate records."

He went on to say: "It is false economy for retailers to reduce their advertising costs. You should analyze these expenditures carefully so as to get the best returns from the most efficient advertising media. It is essential that retailers keep their names before the public."

Summing up, Mr. Lapp said a survival of business today is contingent on two things. First, reducing operation costs to a bare minimum and second, regulating sales to a volume sufficient to cover the reduced expenses. The merchant that goes beyond this mark will possibly put himself momentarily in the excess profit bracket but at the same time, will be endangering his services by selling himself out of business.

REDI-HEATS TRIM MOHAWK FLYERS

The first game of the newly-formed Fastball League, to be played in Deseronto, was easily a fan-thriller. The game from start to finish was a slug fest, both teams pounding the ball over the fence. In the finish the Flyers led the Deseronto lads 13 to 11 and a little end of the sixth the score read 7 to 3 for Deseronto. The Flyers levelled off and closed the score to 12-9 when five walks were issued to the Airporters. The last two innings, however, were semi-darkness and both teams gathered a run.

The game was late in starting and as a result the contest went considerably over the limit on account of darkness" period. The officials should see that these games start on time, or arrange for a 7-inning tilt before the play gets under way. Then there is room for the same old argument that spoils the game and might possibly injure players.

BENEFIT SOFTBALL GAME JULY 1ST

In a recent game between Deseronto and the 47th Battery, Hugh Brennan, of the Battery Club, had the misfortune to injure his ankle. Medical attention revealed a fractured sprain and Brennan was off his feet for nearly two weeks.

An effort is being made by the local Battery to raise sufficient funds to take care of the expenses of Brennan has been arranged to take place at the local Gibbard Park, on Thursday evening, July 1. The game will start at 7:15 sharp.

The opponents will be the Deseronto Redi-Heats and the 47th Battery. These two teams are as evenly matched as one would wish. In a previous encounter the Deseronto boys eased the Battery out 5 to 4, in a nine-inning tussle.

The price of admission will be the same as league games, 10c. Get your tickets from any player in the Fastball League.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Exley received word by cable that their son, Lieut. Douglas Exley had arrived safely overseas. He is the third member of the Exley family to be on active service in England.

Battery Lose to Flyers

After having the game practically sewed-up, the local Gunners failed to hold a 10 to 7 lead going into the eighth frame, and weakened long enough to allow the Mohawk Flyers five runs in the last two stanzas of the game while they were only able to garner a single counter, and the game ended 12-11.

The game was chuck full of arguments over decisions of the officials. Nearly every play had the managers and everybody else as well, disputing out the rule book. Things grew to such proportions that three Flyers were banished by the umps, for talking too much.

The matter of competent umpires is a serious one as far as this league is concerned and the executive, in the opinion of the softball fans as well as the players, should see that the games are properly handled and officials should not be picked from the stand. Each and every matter is quickly controlled the attendance at the games will in all probability drop to such an extent that the league will fold up.

NAPANEE CITIZENS ASKED TO ASSIST WITH FARM WORK

Volunteers Should Contact C. W. Buchanan

Over 50,000 people went out from the towns, cities and villages in Ontario to assig in harvesting the 1942 crop and more help will be needed this year. Naturally, many of these people were not fully experienced but they were most willing to help and anxious to do their part to the best of their ability.

Following the example of other towns and cities in Ontario, the Napanee Retail Merchants' Association is sponsoring a local Farm Committee Brigade, with the idea of enlisting the support of townspeople in giving assistance in harvesting of crops on farms in the County.

Realizing the extreme shortage of farm help and the great necessity for increased production of all food stuffs, the farmer will need all the help avai'able so that there will be no loss and that every load of hay, bushel of grain and all fruits and vegetables may be saved.

Strawberry picking and haying operations are now under way and extra help is needed on many farms. No doubt there are a number of people in Napanee who would be willing to spend an evening a half day, or a whole day, in assisting someone that they know where their services were most required.

The Agricultural Office, Napanee, has been selected as Commando Headquarters. Citizens who are willing and able to assist the farmers are asked to register so that a list will be available for the farmers who require help.

Anyone who can assist in any way — register to-day! The need is urgent.

THE PENDULUM SWING

Perhaps more insistently than most papers — certainly most weeklies — we have extolled the virtues of the Russian experiment. We did this in days when it was not quite so popular as it is now. We saw much in the Russian experiment which was worth studying and worth copying. We saw, too, much in it with which we could not agree. Time and time again we suggested that the Democracies must do more for the common man than Communism promised. We believed that given the proper spirit and the proper leadership, the Democracies could do this.

When Russia made her alliance with Germany, we still had faith that Russia would continue to design her policies with the interest of the common man in mind. Russia was looking at the international situation realistically. The U.S.S.R. had a rather unhappy experience with the Democracies, and was not sure how far to trust them.

Since Hitler attacked Russia the Russians have demonstrated to the world that they have everything it takes, brains, spirit, courage, loyalty, organizing ability and power. The Russians have withstood Hitler's mighty war machine. This they did, not to save the Democracies or the Democratic way of life, but to save themselves. But in saving themselves they became a mighty factor in saving us. To be sure they did not carry on alone. The great bulk of the war munitions which was produced in Great Britain, Canada and the United States in the early days of the struggle, were shipped to Russia. The machines from the Democracies, manned by Russians, were a mighty force in the success of the defense of Russia. This is not to take from the U.S.S.R. one bit of the credit due them. They have paid a terrible price in blood and tears and property, and in doing so gave us the precious time to organize, plan, train and arm ourselves.

Now, of course, praise of Russia is general. Indeed, it is almost fulsome in certain areas. It would appear to many that Russia can do no wrong, and erstwhile opponents of the Russian experiment are most loud in their praises. The hymn of praise is well nigh universal in the Democracies. The pendulum has swung away over to the other extreme.

A sense of balance is essential in times like this. Of course, it is easy enough to give that bit of advice. We know full well how difficult it is to keep that balance when we are at fever heat of emotional excitement due to war propaganda. We must, however, be on our guard against going off the deep end and in an unthinking or uncritical manner, accepting everything Russian as perfect. We are not eager to see a dictatorship of any kind set up in Canada. We still have faith in the Democratic processes. But Democracy must express itself in new and better ways than it has yet done, if it is to meet the challenge of the newer ideologies. We can learn much from Russia and we must learn it. We must learn that Democracy means not only freedom to vote, but freedom to work, freedom to play, and freedom to assimilate all the education of which we are capable.

Let us give Russia credit, full credit, for all she has done, emulate her in her care for the common people, and surpass her in the distribution of life's material, cultural and spiritual graces. This we must do if the Democracy we fight to uphold is to be worthy of all the sacrifices that are being made for it. This we can do without adopting either a dictatorship or the principles of communism.

A sense of proportion and of balance is essential if we are to reap the full fruits of the struggle and tragedy of these awful years.

WHEN PASSIONS FLARE

The news from Detroit is startling in its suddenness, and in the way it reveals the hidden power of race prejudice. The outrages should have a sobering effect on all of us. Perhaps they will help us the better to understand the delicate problems with which Europe is continually faced. There, in the one Continent, are scores of nationalities, with prejudices deep seated and based on a long history of feuds and conflicts. These little nations are close up to each other. The struggle for existence emphasizes the intensity with which each group watches the other. At any time they may flare up into a conflagration of sizeable proportions. At any time they may be fanned into a blaze by unscrupulous and self-seeking leaders go bezerk and lose all control of themselves, had much patience with this sort of thing. We believed it belonged to the past.

But human nature — unredeemed human nature — is the same everywhere, and the outbreak in Detroit merely illustrates that. That the White Folk should, in a northern city, and politicians, We, in this country, have never killing, burning and destroying, is a sad commentary on our civilization. That such outbreaks are rare and uncommon may indeed make them appear all the more heinous when they do happen.

Just what caused the White People to go on the rampage and wreak their violent anger on the Negro is not known. It may never be known. Indeed, it may have been a very simple and unpretentious incident, such as someone pushing or shoving someone else in a hot street car or on a crowded ferry. It really takes little to arouse the mob under certain conditions. The mob instinct gets in control and then it takes the harshest methods to check its operations. We can well imagine from what has taken place in Detroit, how easy it would have been for a ruthless and unprincipled government to stimulate that spirit and to support and help the offenders, in their attacks on the Negroes. That is exactly what happened in Germany with respect to the Jews. There was no attempt there to curb mob violence, rather, it was aided and abetted.

When Detroit wakes up it will regret the incident. It will grieve for the black mark which will be marked up against the city. But Detroit and all the other cities in the United States will have to face the question of this Black and White, some day. Speaking to a prominent Australian, recently, he said the United States should deport all the Negroes back to Africa. In that he saw the only solution of the problem. At the present state of world politics that is an impossible procedure, even if desirable. Somehow or other the United States will have to solve the problem of the two races.

In this there is a note of warning to us, in Canada, where two races are so nearly equally balanced, and where a whispering campaign against the Jews is not altogether unknown.

ILLUSTRATING THE SERMON

On Sunday we picked up a soldier who was hitch-hiking. He was an interesting fellow, as most of the soldiers whom we pick up turn out to be. He had been a victim of the depression. He had ridden the bumpers from Vancouver to Montreal, several times. He had tramped the Caribou and the Okanagan. He had done road work in the North and in Southern Ontario. He had hoofed it between Montreal and Toronto for months on end. Sleeping in the lock-up at all the towns which would permit him. He knew the comparative values for comfort of the lock-up at Napanee, Kingston, Cobourg and the other towns. He had eaten at soup kitchens and begged meals from half a hundred homes in Napanee, among other places. And now he is in the Army, well, contented, clothed, fed and paid regularly. He had little to complain of; did not rail at the past; accepted the present philosophically.

But there he was, one of the thousands of others like him, who were for years unemployed, hungry and ill-clad because nobody wanted him. He illustrated in a vivid way the sermon we heard in Trinity Church, Sunday morning. At that service the Minister, Mr. Chidley, gave an explanation of the resolution recently passed at the Bay of Quinte Conference of The United Church of Canada. The resolution said, in effect, that since private enterprise had failed, in the pre-war years, to provide full employment, and that only under the stress of war and government control was full employment now possible, therefore private enterprise should not be intrusted with the sole responsibility for the reconstruction which will have to take place when the war ends. Mr. Chidley, in a fearless way, explained the attitude of the Church on this subject.

Now if The Whig-Standard had been present, it would undoubtedly have been annoyed. It read the Conference quite a lecture after passing the resolution referred to, and there are others besides our Kingston contemporary who think the Church should stick to "preaching the gospel," by which they mean mouthing some vain and harmless platitudes which few people understand, but think they do. A plentiful use of vague ecclesiastical phrases which are as out of touch with modern life as the hoop-skirt, is what many delight in.

Only let "The Cloth" as some designate the representatives of the Church, deal with realities, work, food, clothes, those things which the Founder of the Church was so concerned about, and there is a great consternation.

The Church must meet men's needs today. It must give direction to men's thinking. It dares not sidestep the great issues that face the world in these trying times. If it does so, it will go the way of the Church in Russia. It is to the credit of the Church in Canada that it recognizes this, and that her prophetic voices are heard in pulpit and church courts.

BRITAIN'S NEW "FINEST HOUR" IS NEAR

BY WILLIAM W. WHITE

Three years ago May 31st, the Germans announced the "annihilation" of the British Army at Dunkirk. Four days later the British Admiralty was told by its Prime Minister, who had taken office just 29 days, that 335,000 British and French troops had been saved — a figure which from what he could only describe as "a colossal military defeat."

Today many of those "annihilated" troops who came back to England in the trawlers or Thames River tugs are backing and filling the spearhead on Southern edit erranean beaches from a superlative Punician campaign which humbled and harried the Germans and Italian armies from North Africa and the British nation once again is swapping a talk from its Prime Minister when he returns to England.

This speech may not compare in oratorical eloquence with that grim talk of three years ago when, knowing that England standing alone must fall if the German Army just across the Channel chose to invade, Mr. Churchill had the courage to say: "We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, on the landing grounds, in the field, in the streets and on the hills. We shall never surrender."

But this war summary which may be made now can be one of optimism, for in the last three years England and her "Grand Allies" have turned the tables completely, and Winston Churchill could—if he would—dramatize in detail the blueprint plans for the invasion of the continent which he and President Roosevelt have decided on in recent discussion in the United States.

In these three years — and with superlative help from the United States — British and Canadian factories have overcome the shattering losses of equipment left in France, their armed forces have repaid the debt to Dunkirk a thousand-fold in North Africa, have re-opened the Mediterranean to free, busy shipping, cut the Italian Empire, have achieved mastery over the hated Luftwaffe and the U-boats, and have, in fact, taken the first thunderous invasion steps with the 24-hour Anglo-Canadian-American bombing offensive.

Already, but quietly, Germans are the dark days when the Home Guard was armed with pitch forks, when the Hood went down, when the Repulse and the Prince of Wales were squandered, when Singapore fell and the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau swept through the English Channel.

But the balance has grown steadily in Britain's favor since "her finest hour" until now — although the exact time and place obviously won't be mentioned — Mr. Churchill can announce that the British Expeditionary Force and its Allies are ready to return to the Continent of Europe as a dual army of avengers and liberators. Hitler keeps that promise he made in that great speech three years ago, that "we shall not be content with a victory, we shall impose a duty to our Allies."

Meanwhile, succeeding Sir Robert Dowson of British United Press, a close student of the German scene reports that the first small crack in the Nazi home front, the collapse of which hastened the enemy defeat in the Great War, apparently is becoming discernible.

Because information from Germany comes by roundabout routes through neutral countries, the informants say that his comments should not be regarded as excessive optimism, but that there is no reason for any hinder-ist estimate their importance.

The "crack" which the observer sees seems to be developing among the lower ranks in the Nazi party and to be taking two exactly opposite forms. In some cases the men in question are now showing excessive brutality, and the others are showing excessive moderation.

Low ranking Nazis in areas of Germany where substantial numbers of suspected opposition elements live are showing the moderation. But in districts where the Nazi party has been left, the process of liquidation is being speeded up.

In the first instance the Nazis are showing moderation because of the fear that information which they have been compiled and deeds of brutality and corruption recorded will, after the collapse of Hitler full vengeance undoubtedly will be exacted.

In the second instance, the Nazis are trying to kill all those who might be a point to the finger at them when the day of reckoning comes, believing this method is practicable in places where few remain to be eliminated.

"Reliable" reports from Switzerland and elsewhere indicate that only a handful of men in the Nazi hierarchy still believe that military victory is possible," the informant says. "The others are merely hoping for some miracle, and are convinced that the only thing they can do is to continue the fight until a break comes one way or the other.

"But it takes more than gold braid to wage a war and keep the domestic front in line, and if defeat psychology is taking hold of the great army of Nazi underlings, Hitler is heading for real trouble. This may account for reports that operatives of the Gestapo, the secret police, are being diverted again to watch over the illused and attention in the days when the Nazi machine was grinding down the men, the small fry, who did not oil opposition."

PULL TOGETHER CANADA

An irritated father, who wanted to have an hour or so to himself, gave his little son a scrap book, to saw puzzle of the world to put together. "That will fix him," he said to himself, as he settled back in his arm chair. In a very short time, however, the boy arrived back and announced that it was all done. "How on earth did you do it so quickly?" asked his father, "Well, on the back," said the boy, "was a picture of a man, and when I put the man together, then the world came, right, too."

In this simple story lies a lesson for industry and our problem in every way of life. For the future of Democracy unquestionably lies in our ability to put the world, or our ordinary man, and the way industry does this today will determine whether Democracy can do it tomorrow.

Industry is in a very sheet time, however, the boy arrived back and announced that it was all done. "How on earth did you do it so quickly?" asked his father, "Well, on the back," said the boy, "was a picture of a man, and when I put the man together, then the world came, right, too."

1. That as well as planning for the conversion of their machines to peace-time industry, both management and labour need to plan as efficiently for each one of their personnel.

2. That management and labour, as well as planning for sound conditions in their own plants, must also plan to get these conditions right throughout the whole of industry.

By tackling these realistically industry can give a new meaning to Democracy. For as well as dealing with life all-absorbing tasks of switching from tanks to motor cars, carriages, or "blockbusters" to eggbeaters, industry must give the leadership that will make Democracy work.

In the working out of this lies the real destiny of industry.

A STATESMAN WITH A MISSION

An outstanding visitor to Canada recently has been George West, Bishop of Rangoon, Burma, highlight of whose brief Canadian visit was an address to a joint House of Commons audience in the Members Dining Room.

Bishop West may well be described as a statesman with a mission. "Burma wants a world that works," he said, "and the first thing to do is to help the old one die not work. For it is the duty of nations to be unprepared for peace as well as unprepared for war."

Illustrating from his own experience, the Bishop told how in spite of every precaution, both military and civil, "Burma attacked from without, collapsed within." Burma proved."

"Burma cannot build character by a crisis. Years of dishonesty, division and corruption, through every strata of Burmese life were the real causes of Burma's downfall." However, he pointed out that within the life of Burma itself there had been growing up an answer to all this. The tragedy was that it came too late to prevent disaster. And just as the problems revealed themselves in people so that answer was most evidently there.

He recalled as an instance the speech made by a woman on Burmese National Day, during which, instead of a violent nationalistic appeal, she said some very plain talk about the Burmese people themselves. "The answer is dishonesty," she said in part, "is an honest man. I am not interested in moderate honesty, just as no one is interested in an egg that is moderately good, or a house that keeps out most of the rain ,or a ship that floats most of the time." This woman, the Bishop pointed out, then she said, had taken an absolute moral standard and applied it down in the centre of her people, knowing that unless Burma could get back simple truths like those she would never have the foundations on which to build a strong united country.

In concluding Bishop West stated that the problems that faced Burma were the fundamental ones that will face the framers of the peace. "You said the peace on paper," he said ,"but you must build it out of the hearts of men. Now it may be that this country can give a lead. For a Canada that finds the answer to these problems within her own borders can give a much needed spiritual leadership to the whole Empire."

ETHIOPIANS READY TO STRIKE IN ITALY

BY HIRAM BLAVUELT

The announcement that Ethiopian soldiers are being trained to take part in the Allied invasion of Italy revives faith in poetic justice and historic retribution, for it was Mussolini's rape of Ethiopia that gave the coup de grace to the moribund League of Nations and constituted the first aggression of the Axis powers which led to the beginning of the current war.

It was Ethiopian irregulars operating as Commandos who first brought Emperor Haile Selassie back into his native land from Khartum and the Ethiopian "patriots", as they were called during the Italo-Ethiopian campaign, were one of the dominating factors in defeating the Italian Army of 250,000 to 300,000 trained soldiers. No finer fighting men exist. Racially the Amharas are akin to Kipling's famous Fuzzie Wuzzies. Some of the few native tribal warriors ever to break the equally famous "British square." The fierce Danakil Wumie haircuts is still fashionable.

Practically no preparation except schooling in the use of modern automatic arms will be necessary, for many Ethiopians have been under arms since 1935. The Italian conquest never was complete and fighting has been going on throughout Ethiopa all these years. Thousands of these men are expertly trained guerillas. They know all the tricks of living underground, hiding in the mountains, swooping down in night raids, swiftly retreating and disappearing into mountain hideouts. They have lived under threat of constant danger for years. Instant death at the hands of the Italians was the penalty of an incautious move or failure. Many are at the height of youthful daring and have been constantly in the saddle since childhood. I saw boys between the ages of twelve and fourteen carrying men's rifles and ammunition in bands of Ethiopian irregulars. Spears daggers and swords are still common weapons among the tribes. Most Greek men are expert in their use, which makes them fearless in facing cold steel and expert in bayonet work.

In many respects the Ethiopians are similar to American Indians. They move noiselessly over the most difficult terrain and are skilled mountaineers. They are at home at all manoeuvres, after which they disappear and lay up during the day. They can cover more ground on foot than the roughest country they travel barefoot and can march indefinitely without tiring. Bare feet increase their noiselessness at night, as the Italians have reason to know full well, for many of them were stabbed in their camps while asleep. I saw these guerrilla, with thirty-four notches on his gunstock, which included two Italian majors and one captain, who killed in this daring manner.

Such commandos landed on the coast of Italy could make their way into the Apennines, or the mountains of Sicily, terrorize and disrupt the entire surrounding countryside.

The toughness and endurance of these men is a tremendous advantage to the communities they serve. They have no shoes and little clothes, and no blankets, food or cooking utensils. They can live on practically nothing. According to tradition, a single Lione of Judah, like the Bear, they eat raw meat. Most of these excellent horsemen, horses and inveterate cattle raiders, will find their own mounts and cattle in Italy. They are skilled in tending sheep, burros, mules and camels, and as Italian food and livestock will be secure. With the exception of ammunition which they carry in huge bandoliers around their waists and shoulders, they practically live off the country.

THE GREEKS ARE REJOICING AND WAITING

It has seemed like Easter in Athens since the end of the Athens-Piraeus peign. Reports reaching London indicate that Greeks are celebrating each other with the Greek equivalent of "Happy Easter." The Greek word is Kalo Pascha. It has a double meaning. It shall be free.

Perhaps nowhere in Europe—with the fall of Tunisia is Europe—has so large a sum been received as in Greece. No other country has so large a percentage of its people ready to strike. And now the Greeks feel that Italy is in for it.

Their enthusiasm is undampened by the general conviction that the end is in for it, too. Since the first month the Germans have made it clear that they believe the Greeks will soon strike towards them, a concerted campaign has been under way aimed at so terrifying the Greeks that they'll be afraid to strike any Allied landings. Recently the Nazis staged a huge air show in Athens. Thousands of leaflets were dropped warning the Greeks of what happen to the capital which the Germans say they would treat as they had Crete house and street.

This open admission of jitters on the part of the Germans is probably the culmination of a long series of symptoms of fear. When the German Germany began in earnest last summer, many Nazis moved their families to seeming safety in Greece. Within the past few months most of these families have been sent back to the jlow more heavily bombed homeland. Months ago the Nazis started intensive fortification of Athens—Pyraeus and Salonika and the southern islands of Rhodes and Crete.

Starting last February the Germans ordered the conscription of Greek men between twenty and thirty. They are being transported inland away from invasion coast. But the German conscripts among people in Greece who have long been preparing for an Allied invasion. With pockets well-armed, they have never ceased assistance to the eastern Macedonian guerrillas; in central Greece and Mount Olympus and the mountains of Crete the roughest country they travel barefoot and can march indefinitely without tiring. Bare feet increase their noiselessness at night, as the Italians have reason to know full well, for many of them were stabbed in their camps while asleep. I saw these guerrilla, with thirty-four notches on his gunstock, which included two Italian majors and one captain, who killed in this daring manner.

JOHN'S COUNCIL TO CHRISTIANS

Lesson Text: 2 John 4: 1-11. 3 John 1: 5-12

"There was apparently some trouble in the Church to which John addresses this letter. There were members in the organization who were hurting its effectiveness. The tragedy of the situation was that these people'd had got into control of the organization. That was bad; for the Church was not only westered in its witness, but it was making a wrong impression on those outside the church. It must not be forgotten that the Church, at that time, was a minority movement. Each church was a Christian oasis in a pagan desert. All depended on the clarity of its stream of teaching and testimony.

Of course, not all in the church to whom John writes were hindering the "cause." There were those who were true to the faith as they knew it. To these the writer addresses himself first. He rejoices that he had found certain walking in the truth. What was needed in a divided congregation he said in effect, was not some new formula which all could agree, but the practice of the old formula—that they should love one another. The division seems to have arisen over the old question as to whether Jesus would come in the flesh. John suggests that they should lose sight of their spiritual inheritance. There are great scheme of events which have come down to Christians from the past. These are to be maintained at all costs. To top roots of our spiritual life. John uses strong language here and gives the members of the church some vigorous advice. He tells them to have nothing whatever to do with those who are hindering the work of the church and don't receive them into your house, give them no greeting. In a word, cut them off completely. As for those who "push onward," that is, becomes a leader and does not practice the fundamentals of the faith, is to be cut dead by the congregation. He is to be denied even the ordinary courtesies and given pretty drastic advice. And yet it may be that the modern church would have been to a much stronger position in the world if the members had exercised more discipline towards those who in their manner and attitude were departing from the faith.

In the next section John contrasts with those in the former passage he described as hindering the unity of the situation was that these people had got into control of the organization. DORLAND

Dorland, June 18. — The rain on Thursday was welcomed, but today[illegible] rain is not so much appreciated, as the ground was only dry on top.

Many farmers have run into difficulty in working land for corn, etc., as once the crust on top is broken it is still wet underneath and they are in deep before they know it.

Hay has come on very rapidly. Some have already started cutting, and everyone will be busy as soon as the weather dries again. Strawberries are ripening.

The Women's Association, under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Rombough, held a successful pot luck dinner in the school room of the church on Wednesday. The fee was one cent for each year of one's age. At least three of those present were past 80, and one past 90. As the only one present whose birthday is on June 16th, Mrs. E. M. Roblin had the honor of cutting the birthday cake. The regular business meeting was held in the afternoon.

The many friends of Mr. R. M. Roblin will be glad to learn that he is able to sit up and move about the house some, after several weeks in bed.

Mr. William Mogg is spending some time with his daughter, Mrs. Russel Cousins, and her family.

Inspector Birkin visited the local schools during the past week. There will be one change in the teachers in the area next term, as Mrs. R. Lasher has resigned from S. S. No. 1, Miss R. Hudson, S. S. No. 2, and Miss A. Downey of No. 3, have been re-engaged.

VIOLET

Violet, June 19. — The monthly meeting of the War Workers Unit was held at the home of Mrs. Ford Scouten on June 2nd, with a good attendance of members. A nice lot of work was done, mostly quilting. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Sharp, when boxes will be packed for the boys from this community who are serving overseas.

Miss Jean Martin, of Strathcona, and Mr. Cyril Flavelle, R.C.O.C., of Barrietield, Kingston, were tea guests of Mr. Ernest Lemmon and his mother, Mrs. Annie MacDonald.

Mr. E. McWilliams, of Bethel St., visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stevens recently.

Mrs. Alice Clancy, of Odessa, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lemmon.

Miss Leafa Hutcheson, of Enterprise, spent the week end at Mr. Ross Hogle's.

Mrs. Damon Martin, of Wilton; Miss Lottie Martin, of Wood-stock, and Miss Edith Martin, of Woodstock, spent last Sunday with Mrs. Martin's son, Mr. Stuart Martin, and Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. Annie MacDonald spent an evening recently with Mrs. William Sager, who has been quite ill, but is now improving.

Mrs. Jack Sharp is quite ill at time of writing.

Some of the boys who are serving overseas have sent letters expressing their thanks to the War Workers Unit for the lovely boxes that they received at Christmas time.

Prior to the departure of our teacher, Miss Davey, a presentation was made to her by the pupils of the school on Thursday, June 17th, and the following address was read:

Dear Miss Davey:

We, your pupils of this school, deeply regret that you are leaving our midst, and wish to show our appreciation for the splendid interest you have taken in us, knowing that our loss will be others' gain. We kindly ask you to accept this small token (a table) of the good times we have spent together. We all hope you will be able to spend some happy days with us in the future. Signed on behalf of the girls and boys of S.S. No. 17, Evelyn MacDonald.

A CZECH ARMY HACKS AT NAZIS IN THE UKRAINE

BY VOJTECH VOKUM

A recent communique of the Soviet High Command mentions the first combat unit of an Allied army to take part in the fighting on the Eastern front. It was a Czechoslovak unit that has beaten off a violent Nazi tank and infantry attack on a village on the River Kharkov front. A few days later, the Soviet news agency Tass reported that for the first time in history of the U.S.S.R. the title of "Hero of the Soviet Union" had been awarded to a non - citizen — the Czechoslovak Tass Lieutenant Jaros, killed defending a village which the Nazi command had ordered taken at any cost. . . . And which was not taken. Other members of the unit, men and women, received awards.

A fugitive from the German occupation forces in his country is the commander of the Czechoslovak forces. He is Colonel Ludvik Svoboda, recently decorated with the Order of Lenin. Svoboda tried to organize a Czechoslovak combat unit in Poland but did not succeed.

In the Soviet Union, Svoboda and other Czechoslovak patriots were well received, clad, fed and given all possibilities to prepare themselves for another, more active role. In the fight against Nazism. When a military convention was concluded between the Soviet and Czechoslovak governments, a Czechoslovak military mission, under Colonel Pika, began to work. And Colonel Svoboda (a name which is very familiar in Czechoslovakia, and means freedom) was appointed commander.

Soon a whole brigade of Czechoslovak soldiers were drilling somewhere near the Urals. These first soldiers were antifascist refugees, workers, soldiers, teachers, peasants, engineers, shepherds from Bohemia and Moravia, from the Carpathian mountains and from the Danube-Czechs, Slovaks, Carpathian Ukrainians, Sudeten Germans, Jews, Silesian Slonzachs. All nationalities and all religions of former Czechoslovakia were represented. Among the members of the "Cesko Slovenska Brigada Moc ve SSSR"—the Czechoslovak armed forces in the USSR."

An auxiliary women's detachment was organized, and the women composing it later displayed exceptional courage at the front. The unit was issued British made uniforms and Soviet arms. Experienced Soviet officers instructed the Czechoslovak commanders and troops in the tactics of "grinding down panzer attacks" and "going over to the counter-offensive." The Czechoslovak soldiers were entrusted to handle the anti-tank rifle "Ketushka", which no other foreigners have yet been allowed to take into their hands.

When the battle for Stalingrad reached its peak, the Czechoslovak soldiers petitioned Stalin to send them to the batatle front. But at that time they had not yet finished their special training.

During the period of preparation for battle, the Czechoslovak soldiers took part in the life of the Soviet unit. In the harvesting season, the whole Czechoslovak unit volunteered to help bring in the crops. The Czechoslovaks worked so well that the harvest was brought in three days ahead of schedule in that area. And the local Soviet press was full of praise for the brotherly behavior of the Czechoslovak Allies.

The Czechoslovak soldiers also contributed to the fund for the purchase of a squadron of tanks started in the local population. The unit was later on supported by tanks built with the money they had contributed.

Casualties of the Czechoslovak unit in the battle referred to in the Soviet communique of April 2 were heavy. But new units are already training, and a constant flow of new recruits arrive. Many come right out of the jaws of Hitler's Wermacht. Slovak soldiers who had been forced to fight alongside the Nazis desert their Quisling officers and their supervisors. The "Slovak Mobile Division," which was sent to reinforce the Nazi Kuban Army is no more. Part of it was killed and part was entombed and deserted. The Nazis had to dissolve four Slovak regiments as entirely "unreliable". Others were forced into German uniforms as inhabitants of Sudeten town are also deserting to the Soviet side.

In April the Soviet press reported the capture of a Polish kitchen with its whole complement of men with previous supplies which they had carefully hidden from the Nazis. These were Czechs who had cleverly managed to stay behind the retreating Nazi regiment to which they had belonged. On another occasion both Czech and Slovak deserters from the German Army brought with them a German lieutenant whom they had overpowered "in order not to come to our Russian brothers with empty hands."

Hitler Tries to Impress Nation It Will Repel Invaders

Stockholm.—With invasion threatening, Hitler and his military advisers have switched to the Maginot Line complex which they once scorned and held partly responsible for the fall of France.

The dramatic visit stretching from Northern Norway to Southern France is termed by German war reporters "the greatest defence wall of all time," superior in strength and depth to the West Wall which Hitler built opposite the Maginot Line.

Hitler is in constant touch with Prof. Albert Speer, Nazi Minister of Munitions, on the progress of construction still going on after three years. As fast as fortifications are completed, troops take up posts. They are constantly on the alert and engaged in anti-invasion drills.

"Pictures of the Atlantic Wall are being published by the Germans really for propaganda purposes in an effort to convince Germans of the impregnability of the European Fortress. In the main they reveal it has the same characteristics as the West Wall.

Swedish correspondents in Berlin recently said that Germans admitted that Britain is acquainted with their Western defence measures through reconnaissance and espionage by workers, especially foreigners who are employed by the dockyards.

"The Germans confend Hitler benefitted by the weakness of the Maginot Line in planning the flexible West Wall and now has incorporated the costly lessons which the Russians taught him in the East.

"Experiences gained in the East in street and house fighting have been exploited," one German war reporter wrote. "An enemy who has penetrated the defences must fight for every house, every street, and every objective."

Latest photographs would seem to verify that. The Germans, for example, have bricked in all openings on first and second storey levels of houses and stores in the evacuated Channel coast towns. Thus the invader is deprived of the protection of doorways and house interiors while the Germans have converted them to their own use as forts. In addition a maze of barbed wire runs through all the streets and promenades.

"One next to another, with overlapping fields of fire, nests of resistance stretch along the whole Atlantic front with their fast firing cannon, light and heavy machine-guns, grenade and flame throwers and mine fields." a German correspondent wrote.

"Behind them are army batteries and between them at carefully worked out distances are heavy coastal batteries. All weapons have been tested to the 'nth degree. Far behind this deeply co-ordinated advance defence system, reserves are waiting, armored troops and excellent infantry men to throw back the enemy again if he happens to penetrate.

That the German navy haven't too much confidence that the Atlantic Wall will be able to withstand the storm of United Nations troops despite the boasts, is seen in recent writings of military experts.

One in the Bruesseler Zeitung sternly warned Germans that if the Allies succeeded in smashing through the Atlantic defences and Germans have to withdraw to the West Wall, such general destruction and disaster would result for the population as the armies crushed that it would make little difference whether the Belgians were pro-Ally or pro-German.

It is assumed that the troops who spent months during 1939 and 1940 accustoming themselves to battle in a prepared fortified line, are the men now manning the Atlantic defences.

Sprinkled along the Atlantic are German naval bases, which Germans characterize as the most heavily defended keypoints in the Atlantic Wall. They are protected not only at sea by mines, nets and patrol boats, in the air by heavy concentrations of flak and fighters, but also in the rear against surprise from that direction although one German war reporter said that no attack was expected from the rear.

One weakness in the Maginot Line was vulnerability from behind. Germans haven't revealed how they avoided this flaw in the Atlantic Wall but it is presumably by equal fire power in all directions and an elastic rather than an "in line" placement of strongpoints.

NORWAY AFTER THREE YEARS OF OCCUPATION

June 7th marked the end of three years of complete German occupation of Norway. It was on the 7th of June, 1940, that King Haakon and the Norwegian Government left Norway for Great Britain. The fighting men of Norway laid down their arms temporarily after 62 days of fighting.

Since that day, while the Norwegian Government in London has been building up new fighting forces abroad, the Norwegian people have been carrying on a continuous unarmed struggle. But they have had to pay the price for their resistance. According to information carefully checked by the Norwegian Government and month obtained from official German sources, 171 Norwegian patriots have been executed by the Germans during the past three years.

During 17 months from January 1, 1942, to May 31, 1943, at least 67 Norwegians have died in German prison and concentration camps, either in Norway or in Germany.

The name of everyone of these Norwegians is known to the Norwegian Government. It is also known that the majority of them were in executed after having been brutally tortured by the Gestapo; have been denied proper medical attention and have been made to undertake long and arduous tasks on a totally inadequate diet. The conclusion that most of the 67 men and undoubtedly many others have died directly as a result of Nazi maltreatment, is inescapable.

Other Norwegians have been shot while attempting to elude their captors. Others again have been killed by German bombs or bullets when attempting to escape from Norway in small boats or on skis. Still others have been killed by German sentries who fired without warning.

Several hundred Norwegians have lost their lives in this constant unarmed struggle. Thousands more have lost their liberty. Between 11,000 and 12,000 Norwegians have been arrested. Of this number 1,500 have been sent to concentration camps or forced labor in Germany, the remainder being imprisoned in Norway.

There are now some 2,400 prisoners in the notorious concentration camp at Grini, another 1,000 have been evicted from their homes, deprived of their property, subjected to constant inquisition by the Gestapo or, as in the case of the Jewish men, women and children, deported to the living hell of the "Eastern Occupied Territories."

In addition to the whole Norwegian population has had to bear the burden of supporting, feeding, equipping and working for the occupation army which, in proportion to the population, is larger than in any other country in Europe. An average of 200,000 German troops have been quartered in Norway, together with about 100,000 German civilians, making in all more than 10 per cent of the Norwegian population.

Total occupation costs are mounting up at a rate of 210,000,000 crowns (50,000,000- a month, representing an average annual burden of about 804 crowns ($200) per person.

Nevertheless, and despite all sacrifices, the spirit of the Norwegian people is high. On the eve of the fourth year of occupation a Norwegian underground paper writes "amidst the steadily increasing trials which the Nazis in their desperate fear of defeat will impose upon us, we shall march forward proud and unbent until our fight for freedom is won."

THE QUISLINGS ARE SQUEALING

When Russia was invaded, Quisling called for volunteers to fight "the menace of Bolshevism." A handful of Quislings enlisted "for one year," after which they were told they could come home to reap their reward. But at the end of the year, still without leave or relief, they found it impossible to leave the forces. This has caused great discontent among these lackeys. It was not what they expected.

A copy of a letter written to Quisling by one of the soldiers of the Norwegian Legion when he returned to Norway on his first leave in two years, has reached the Norwegian Government in London. It typifies the kind of man who serves Quisling and how he squeals when the going is rough. This is what it says:

"I have just returned to Norway on leave after two years with the Waffen S.S., and one and a half years of which I have served in the front line in Russia, and I want to take this opportunity to clear things up.

"In May 1942 you visited us in Russia when many of us had been fighting for three months longer than the period for which we had enlisted. But we continued; we expected that plans had been made to relieve us. You asked us to continue because it was of great importance to Norway. You promised us relief in a few months.

"We resigned ourselves to another winter, and the fighting was even harder than before. When it quietened down, I thought we had had enough, and I decided to hand in my resignation. Just before I did so, I met a friend who told me that economy would put a stop to all resignations as National Socialism. I asked that we might continue to serve.

"Now, when I have really been home on leave, I am told that my application to be exempted from further service must go through the company in Russia. I am to be blocked in every direction, and bitter for a man who has fought for so long and won so many decorations (Iron Cross, Infantry Storm Badge, Krim Cross, Volunteer Service Medal, Winter Medal).

"I now take the liberty of asking: If you can get the leave which I have applied for extended to me or at least get me transferred permanently to Norway for the rest of my people. Hoping to get a reply before my leave is finished."

Memorial Service Held at Gretna

Paying respectful tribute to the memory of deceased members of the Women's Missionary Society and the Woman's Association connected with the Bay Pastoral Charge, a most impressive memorial service was held in Gretna United Church on Sunday evening. Following an brief devotional period in which the presidents of the two missionary societies and five Woman's Associations took part an appropriate memorial address was given by Mrs. W. B. Bell president of the Bay Weest W.M.S. in which fitting tribute was paid to the memory of those who have been called to their reward. As the names were read by Mrs. C. Snider, president of Gretna W.A., Mrs. W. Dillenbeck president of Sand Hill W. A. pinned white roses to a beautiful cross of green background. Meanwhile, softly white verses or other quotations were read, by members of the society. Thode taking part were Mrs. W. C. Joyce, president of Bay East W.M.S. Mrs. Ross Card, president of Anderson W. A., and Mrs. George Burton, president of Bethany W. A. Mrs. W. McCabe president of Hay Bay W. A. presided at the organ while the choir, comprising members of Hay Bay W. M. S. sang an appropriate anthem. Mrs. P. Brown and Mrs. Walter Silver rendered a duet which was much appreciated.

Mrs. D. Mcallan of Napanee was the guest speaker and brought a most appropriate message, basing her remarks on the present world crisis and urging her hearers to greater consecration. She felt that the Church had a great task to perform and he could only do it as each member accepted his or her responsibility. Mrs. E. Allenhrack expressed the thanks of the congregation to Mrs. McLellan for her timely message.

There was a plentiful attendance from the five congregations.

"I've been selfish all my life and would like to do a school girl. Realistically, it seems, breeds blindness if it doesn't breed contempt.

The Late Mrs. S. Correll

The death occurred early Monday morning, June 21st, at the residence of her son, P. A. Correll, Centre Street, Mrs. Correll, after a short illness.

Mrs. Correll, who was 85 years of age, had been in failing health for some months and her death was due to the infirmities of her advanced age.

Mrs. Correll, who was formerly Annie Atwood, was born in Australia but when a young girl went to Ireland, where she was educated and lived until she came to Canada.

Her husband, who was in business for many years in Carnew, County Wicklow, died in 1907. Six years after his death, Mrs. Correll came to Canada where she had since resided with her son, P. A. Correll, at Toronto, Peterborough, Belleville and Napanee.

She was an accomplished musician and for many years was organist in the Methodist Church at Carnew, in Ireland. Until her last illness she was active in church music and continued to play the piano, her age as her health permitted she was an active worker in the church, wherever she lived. While in Napanee she attended Grace United Church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. C. Ellery, Penelon Falls, and Mrs. Hilda Correll, Peterborough, and three sons, P. A. Correll, Napanee; Ernest, Peterborough, and Fred, Hamilton.

Her funeral was conducted Wednesday afternoon, June 23rd, at 2 o'clock by Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of Grace Church, and interment will follow in Crossett Cemetery, Toronto, later in the day.

The pallbearers were Messrs. F. B. Elliott, Goldwin Smith, Ryerson Hough, E. B. Edgarth, G. F. Smith and L. Spencer.

Free Danish Navy Formed In Britain

The creation of a free Danish Naval force has recently been announced in London by Vice-Admiral E. L. S. King, R.N., that Danish officers offered to the Allied Navies. He said: "The Danish Navy has been providing a number of small craft for harbor duties, but they have not hitherto been in a position to build a combatant force. They are now making a start. The baby is only a few days old, but I have no doubt it will grow into a fine healthy child."

It is understood in London that the free Danish Navy will fly the Danish and British ensigns together in the same manner as the Belgian and Dutch navies. Danish fishermen and seamen have long been eagerly asking for mission to man a British warship. The Danish naval force will comprise small units, such as minesweepers and light Danish officers and men.

WEDDING BELLS

GALE - BALLARD

Tall standards of pink and white peonies interspersed with orange blossom banked the altar of Trinity United Church, on Saturday afternoon, June 19th, for the marriage of Lilo Ballard, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ballard, of Writer, William F. Gale, son of Mrs. William Harris, Toronto, and the late W. G. Gale. Throughout the ceremony which was performed by Rev. C. D. McLellan, minister of the United Church, a background of quite organ music was provided by Miss Beatrice Baughan.

Given in marriage by her father, the winsome bride wore a graceful floor-length gown of forget-me-not blue sheer over taffeta, with matching shoulder-length veil. She carried an American Beauty rose.

Following the ceremony the bride's little nephew, Ronald William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Paul, was bastized by Rev. H. B. Herrington.

The bride's mother received, wearing a navy sheer with white accessories. The bride's table was beautiful with a four layer wedding cake and pink and white streamers. The guests, about forty, were seated at small tables.

Upon their return they will reside at Sorel, Que.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Doris Bartley, Miss Bessie Haggis, Miss Kaye Dearle, Mr. and Mrs. Wafford Price, Mr. Jim Fidler and Mrs. John Goddard, all of Sorel, Que.; Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Ian and Robert, of Chesterville; Miss Norberte Moody, Ottawa, and Miss Muriel Craig, Kingston.

GILPERT - McKEOWN

An interesting wedding ceremony was solemnized in Strathcona Unit-ed Church at 9:00 a.m., Saturday morning, June 19th, when the Rev. H. B. Herrington united in marriage Lois Mary McKeown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anson McKeown and Trooper Kenneth George Gilpert, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gilpert, of Newburgh, Ont.

The church was beautifully decorated for the ceremony with fern, peonies and orange blossoms. Mrs. Doris Wilson Strathcona, played the wedding music and during the signing of the register, Mrs Ralph Wightman, of Newburgh, sang delightfully "I Love You Truly" and "Until." To the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Wilson, the bride, given away by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white chiffon with interpolated lace, with sweetheart neckline and full sleeves. Her three-tip veil fell gracefully from a cap of lace. Carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations and fern, she entered the church. The bride was attended by Miss Jean Gilpert, sister of the groom, in

Hints Regarding Rubbers and Goloshes

With the spring and early summer rains giving some appearance of having subsided, the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is out with suggestions for the care of rubbers and galoshes which have been put to such excellent use during the past few weeks and which, because of their rubber content, must be made to last as long as possible under existing conditions.

1 Store rubbers and galoshes in a cool, dark place after stuffing them with paper.

2 Do not put rubber footwear near radiators, hot water pipes or other heating devices.

3 Keep rubber footwear clean with soap and water. Remove tar, oil and grass promptly. Do not use dry-cleaning fluids as they weaken rubber and may cause seams to pull apart.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. As the proprietor of a fur farm, do I need to hold a Wartime Prices and Trade Board License?

A. Not unless you purchase animals, skins or other goods for resale

Q. Will you tell me what ration coupons expire at the end of June 7

A. The coupons expiring on June 30 are butter coupons 12, 13, 14 and 15 and meat coupons 1, 2 and 3 (pairs). These coupons will be without value for the purchase of the rationed goods in question after that date.

Q. Please repeat what is required of producers of dairy butter who sell it on the market or elsewhere.

A. Every such producer must register with his Local Ration Board and cannot sell butter unless he has done so. At the end of each month he must deliver to his Local Ration Board all the coupons or other ration documents he has received for the butter he has sold.

Q. I have read about a simplified order issued by the Prices Board in such language that anybody can understand it. Don't you think it would be a good idea if all of the wartime orders were similarly prepared?

A. Yes, indeed, and the enthusiastic reception accorded this simplified order may have that result.

To settle an argument, is it permissible for a lunch-counter to serve "hot-dogs" on a meatless Tuesday?

A. No, since "hot-dogs" contain meat they cannot be sold in any public eating place between midnight on Monday and midnight on Tuesday.

Q. We are thinking of converting part of our house into an apartment for rental. How are we to determine what rent to charge?

A. When your alterations have been completed, you should apply to your Local Rental Committee for a fixation of rental.

A Patriot And His Seven Sons

This is the story of a Norwegian patriot who with nine others was shot at Trondheim on May 19. His name was Peder Morseth, and he died for his country at the age of 58. Peder Morseth was one of the most respected men in his village, where he was a farmer, teacher and parish sexton.

In May, 1942, a gang of Quisling Hirdmen from Trondheim selected his farm as the scene for punishing a group of villagers accused of being "hostile to the Nazis." Last February the Gestapo raided the home here in search of one of Morseth's seven sons. The young man got away. The family, apprehensive of what would happen to them if the youth were not arrested, set out in the night for Sweden. In the party were the father, mother and five sons. A snowstorm came up, the flight was discovered and the refugees overtaken by Germans who immediately began shooting. The Morseth boys returned the fire. The result was that one of the Morseth boys was mortally wounded, another was shot in the arm, and a third was taken prisoner along with his father and mother. The remaining two boys escaped. Hedge's arm was later amputated, and Mrs. Morseth had to be confined to an insane asylum.

The Quislings will not forget that Peder Morseth had seven sons.

SALAD DAYS ARE HERE WITH VICTORY GARDEN GREENS

Hello Homemakers! This year's late planting season left us with more determination than ever to dig and tend our Victory Garden. "Interest" on our ground investment will soon fall due, and cool, refreshing garden greens will be ready for use. Distinctly speaking, uncooked fruits and vegetables—straight from your own garden — bring to meals a supply of minerals, vitamins and bulk essential to good health.

Fresh, crisp salads tempt the appetite and are easily and economically prepared. If you are using cooked vegetables, cook them whole, then slice, season and serve them in your salad. Salad dressings fall into two main classes, mayonnaise and French dressing, but with dozens of variations. After selecting your dressing, add seasoning and flavouring.

Whole wheat bread, thin, dry toast, cheese pastry sticks and unsweetened biscuits are favourite breads to accompany salads.

RECIPES

Supper Salad

9-oz. package elbow macaroni, cooked
2 medium-sized onions, minced,
4 raw carrots grated,
1 bunch radishes sliced,
4 stalks celery, chopped,
1 head chicory.

Chill ingredients in electric refrigerator. Toss together macaroni, onion, carrots, radishes and celery. Line serving bowl with chicory and add vegetable mixture. Serve with Russian Dressing one cup mayonnaise, two tablespoons minced green pepper, one hard-cooked egg, chopped, one-quarter cup chili sauce.

Spinach Salad

One lb. raw spinach, one minced onion, three stalks celery chopped, six hard-cooked eggs.

Wash spinach thoroughly, remove tough stalks and chop. Add onion and celery. Arrange in serving bowl, slice or six slices from the centre of the eggs and use the white rings for garnish. Chop yolks with remainder of eggs. Place egg rings on centre of salad. Serve with Bacon Dressing: 6 slices bacon, cut in small pieces; half cup vinegar. Cook bacon slowly until crisp. Stir in the vinegar.

Beet and Kale Salad

Two cups Julienne beets cooked, half-cup green onions, chopped, one bunch kale, cleaned.

Marinate beets, onions and kale in French Dressing and arrange on lettuce with cheese; one-third cup salad oil, one and one-half tablespoons of lemon juice; half-teaspoon salt; one-quarter teaspoon paprika; few drops condiment sauce. Place ingredients in bottle, cork tightly and shake until well blended. Chill thoroughly in electric refrigerator before using.

TAKE A TIP

1 Do not use mineral oil too frequently in salad dressings — it prevents the utilization of vitamin A.

2 Many prefer salt and lemon juice or salt, sweetening and lemon juice for dressing. Rhubarb juice or grapefruit juice may often be used in place of lemon juice in a recipe.

3 Other greens available are flavouring and for variety are mint and sweet marjoram (found by creeks) beet tops, nasturtium leaves, tender dandelion leaves, etc.

4 Salad greens make meat coupon savers. With salad you can serve a creamed soup, hard-cooked egg (sliced or deviled), a piece of cheese or custard for dessert, or milk for a beverage to maintain a balanced meal.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. B. asks: Method of Canning Asparagus.

Answer: - Select tender stalks. Wash thoroughly, using a stiff brush to be sure that no soil is lodged under the scales. Stand upright in two inches of boiling water. Cook uncovered four to five minutes. Pack boiling hot into jars. Pack stalks tips up, except in centre of jar where two or three stalks may be packed tips down.

To each pint add half-teaspoon of salt. Add the boiling liquid in which asparagus was cooked, filling jars to within half-inch of top. Boiling water may be used to make up the amount of liquid required. Seal and process in water bath for three hours. Cool quickly.

To the many readers asking about Canning: watch for the Column to follow or write for Bulletin. We are not recommending saccharine for frequent use in any foods.

ANNE ALLAN invites you to write her in care of The Napanee Beaver. Send in your questions on homemaking problems and watch this column for replies.

ALL CANADIANS MUST REMAIN FATS-CONSCIOUS

Every country is puzzling its oil supplies about, trying to make them fit wartime needs. Oils that have a high glycerine content, such as cocoanut and palm, are being saved for processes from which a high percentage of glycerine is obtained and replaced with other oils in food production. In Germany fats which Canadians have not been accustomed to consider as edible are refined very thoroughly and used in food. In England margarine has been manufactured from whale oil; in Russia linseed oil has long been an important edible oil and now the United States is making linseed oil shortening for Lend Lease shipments. Canadians were forced to become fats-conscious when Japanese conquests cut off half of Canada's supplies of fats and oils (exclusive of lard). Flax, sunflower, soybean and rape seed are being grown and used to make up part of the import loss. Housewives must add their important contribution of salvaged fats.

To save fats they should be used economically. Housewives urged to save fats ask the question. "Does this mean that all dripping must be turned in for salvage?" The answer is No; as much dripping as is needed should go into cooking and the rest be sold to the butcher for salvage. When dripping is used for cooking it is not necessary to pay so much processed shortening.

Fat for salvage must be kept in a cool place and turned over to the butcher as soon as a pound is collected. This is important because it loses half its glycerine content when it goes rancid.

Nutritionists Urge Women To Defend Health Front

"How I wish I could do a real war job" — so many women utter that wish. Busy from morning till night —keeping house, planning meals, shopping and cooking, these women do not realize that they are doing a war job and a very important one at that.

The health and well being of the Canadian people lies very largely in the hands of the woman whose war job is the unglamorous one of "keeping house." The very basis of her job of feeding the family can help the enemy or help us.

If she neglects, through ignorance or carelessness, to give her household the proper foods, prepared and served so that they retain their maximum food value, she is helping the enemy by undermining the health of her family.

Today every Canadian must be at the peak of health and efficiency in order to be able to play his full part in the war effort.

Authorities at Nutrition Services realize that the housewife's job of planning and preparing highly nutritious meals day in and day out is not an easy one under present conditions. Knowledge of food values, skillful buying and imaginative cooking must be employed if wartime meals are to be both nutritious and appetizing.

Canada's Official Food Rules serve as a pattern by which the housewife can check her menus and see if they conform to the pattern, she has the satisfaction of knowing that her part in building the health and the morale of the nation through proper diet is being well done.

Consumers Urged To Familiarize Themselves With Value of Coupons

Bearing in mind the fact that ration clerks employed in retail establishments often appear under severe strain, the Ration Administration Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, is anxious that consumers familiarize themselves with the value of the different coupons in their ration books, so that the correct valid coupons remaining in them, the dates of validity and similar information so that the lot of these hard - working shop assistants may be eased.

It is pointed out that authoritative information concerning such matters as those mentioned is published constantly in the newspapers by means of advertisement as well as by means of "rationing calendars" and it is suggested that consumers cut out this information whenever it appears and carry it with their ration books so that it may be consulted when those books are used.

Ration clerks, the administration adds, are frequently called upon to answer numerous questions concerning simple rationing matters which consumers themselves are expected to know and when, as is often the case, there are queues of consumers awaiting purchases, with coupons, advance possession of this information by consumers will greatly facilitate the entire process besides enabling the clerks to concentrate upon their duties, which call for close attention.

HINT IS GIVEN ON RENEWAL OF SERGE

Serge with a shine on it can be sponged with a cloth moistened in Kate Aitken, national conservation supervisor of the Consumer Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. "Take four cups of hot water, two tablespoons of vinegar, one teaspoon of borax. Wring a flannelette or soft flannel cloth out of that solution and place it on your ironing board. Lay article to be pressed, right side down, over the damp cloth and press. Be sure to stop pressing before dampness rises through the garment, let it dry and then brush with a clothes brush. Wool revives itself just by hanging in a closet, too, she said.

STUDY CONTROL OF VEGETABLE PRICES

In a statement issued at Ottawa, the Prices Board said that it was continuing its study of the difficult question of regulating the prices of fresh fruits and vegetables now exempt from the price ceiling and that if prices should remain at abnormally high levels, an attempt will be made to establish control, even though it may cause radical changes in existing marketing methods.

Experts Say All Friuts Can Be Put Up Without The Use of Sugar

Less sugar available for canning this summer need not result in empty jars, vacant shelves and wasted fruit, for all fruit can be successfully canned without sugar.

Directions for sugarless canning as well as for canning by the usual methods are contained in the new bulletin published by the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Directions for making jam and jelly within the wartime sugar allowance are also included. Every woman who plans to can this summer, whether she be experienced or new at the job, should have a copy of this bulletin. It may be obtained by writing to Publicity and Extension, Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

In all cases where fruit is canned without sugar, five minutes extra sterilization time should be allowed. Strawberries, raspberries, cherries, blueberries, currants, plums and rhubarb can be packed into sterilized jars and crushed until the juice overflows. They are then partially sealed and sterilized. An alternative method, used for pears, peaches and apricots, is to pack the fruit into sterilized sealers, then fill the sealers with boiling water instead of syrup, partially seal and sterilize.

This fruit makes a wonderful pies and puddings and when you have to take sugar from the family ration to sweeten the fruit as you use it remember — you'd have had to use sugar anyway to make another dessert!

No Extra Rations For Summer Gatherings Of Any Type

There will be no special allowances of rationed goods for use in connection with summer picnics, field days, children's picnics and like events, it has been decided by the Ration Administration, unless catering in connection with them is handled by public caterers.

If the catering is organized by individuals, clubs, service clubs and so on, rationed commodities will have to be provided by members of these organizations from their own ration coupons.

Regulations Regarding Making Dairy Butter

In the belief that producers of dairy butter may be unwittingly ignoring the regulations which apply to them, under butter rationing, the Local Ration Board points out that such producers are under a definite obligation to register with their Local Ration Boards by sending them their names and addresses, together with an intimation that they are producing dairy butter. They are not allowed, moreover, to sell or offer for sale any dairy butter made by them unless they have so registered.

There is the further obligation resting upon producers of dairy butter at the end of each month to forward to their Local Ration Board all the butter coupons, special purchase permits, requisitions, replacement certificates, butter ration cheques or bank transfer vouchers which have been delivered to them by any other person in making purchases of their butter.

It is also provided under the butter rationing regulations that no producer who consumes in his own household butter made by him shall use butter coupons to acquire a supply from any other person except to the extent that the amount of butter so consumed is less than the amount that could have been lawfully acquired by himself and others in his household by use of their butter coupons. All of the butter coupons not so used by himself and his household must be forwarded by him to his Local Ration Board at the end of every month.

MUST SHOW PRICE AND SIZE ORANGES

Some retailers are said to be neglecting to observe the order of the Prices Board which requires them to show the size and price of oranges offered for sale. The order also requires that merchants selling oranges by the pound must have display cards stating the price per pound. Every person selling oranges at retail, whether by weight or otherwise, and Trade Board.

51,321 individual shareholders own Canada's Chartered Banks. The average holding is 28 shares. Most of these shareholders are Canadians.

The wide distribution of bank ownership is indicated by the fact that 36,574 individuals, living in all parts of Canada, hold shares in the Chartered Banks of Canada. Of the remaining shareholders, 8,987 live elsewhere in the British Empire.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

There are 4,369,740 savings deposit accounts in the Chartered Banks of Canada, averaging $391 each. Safeguarding the funds of depositors is a primary function of commercial banking. Banks keep themselves in such a position that anybody going to the bank to withdraw his savings can get his money. Banks, like any other business, exist because they provide service which a community needs and is willing to pay for at a rate which will yield a reasonable return.

Every day, bank loans are helping Canadians in all walks of life and in all parts of Canada to profit from their individual enterprise and industry.

COOKING VEGETABLES FOR VITAMIN PRESERVATION

HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA

We now know that the method of cooking vegetables is just as important as the choice, in obtaining a maximum amount of vitamins and minerals. Baking is the best method as the least amount of vitamins are lost, but not every vegetable can be baked satisfactorily. But we can steam practically all vegetables and as they are not IN the water, only the vitamins destroyed by heat (about 10 pc. B1) are lost. If we boil the vegetables and throw the water away as most of us do Vitamin C and members of the Vitamin B Complex are lost because they are water soluble. Mos of us cook vegetables in too much water but science tells us they need be JUST covered with water. In the case of leafy vegetables just the water that clings to the leaves after washing is necessary.

We should divide vegetables into two classes:

1 The leafy vegetables, chard, spinach, cabbage, broccoli and strong flavoured vegetables such as onions, turnips and Kohlrabi are COOKED WITHOUT A COVER.

2 The other ones, beets, carrots, corn, parsnips, peas, potatoes, salsify spuash, string beans are COOKED WITH A COVER.

If you follow these few rules in cooking you will be getting maximum food value from your vegetables.

1 Use raw vegetables.
2 Bake or steam them frequently.
3 Boil vegetables in skins if possible, in little water and only until they are done.
4 Wash, peel or cut vegetables just before cooking.
5 Use the cooking water for soups, sauces, etc.
6 Serve immediately.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Ottawa,
Ont.

I'm dull moment! I am just from a trip to the "Nation's Capital" — Ottawa — and, I must confess, not brimming over with importance. A shocking admission, my lipstick are soon pricked and come back to earth with a thud, so to speak, as soon as my shoulders. I cannot claim that was held on a secret mission, at least, in the official business capacity of "dub" reporter for the Canadian Women's Army Corps Military District No. 3. I visited the Wartime Hub. Of course, I went to Ottawa; and at the same time make my apologies. I realize that such flights of fancy try. A large C.W.A.C. parade had planned for the city and the visit was made that I should get a story of the parade. You can see how pleased I was with the assignment. I felt every inch a "dumbo."

I was in Ottawa, arriving on the stage was set at dusk, and lights outlined the city in the huge beam of a searchlight, impressively across the sky. Can you blame me if my heart did a trifle? Parliament Hill — the Nation's Capitol — lords of War! — Impressions like these were scampering across and like quicksilver. Naturally the part of it for me was the part to my C. W. A. C. uniform, a part of the picture.

Near the Cenotaph and the crowds — soldiers, C. A. airmen, sailors, staff officers, red bands on their caps, colourful kaleidoscope. Of every civilian wearing a Homburg, who passed with a walker his arm, was a possible Anthony Eden to me.

The practical things claimed attention (yes, I was hungry) registered at a hotel. Note hotel not a barracks. There dignified arrangement in the of covers trips such as this one is on the job at all and unable to keep to a set mind. If impractical to barracks. This arrangement is as "interesting on the other hand, additional pay is granted travelling expenses. I love life and nothing could pry from bunking with the girls but for a change, this stay at a hotel was sheer bliss. I spent a full half hour in the shower without anyone thumping on the door to hurry me up, then I turned on the radio and sank deep into a downy bed. Umuh!

The next morning, fortified by griddle cakes and coffee (now don't be aggravating; my bogion is not limited by food, as you once implied. I started out to make calls on officials responsible for the parade taking place that afternoon. In the course of the morning, I had a chat with a C. W. A. C. photographer who took pictures of the parade. We discussed our respective jobs and agreed that Army girls are individuals — the opportunities such as the ones that have come our way, for striking out into new and hitherto almost inaccessible lines of work. As a matter of fact after leaving her, I patted myself on the back all over again, for quitting the routine job I used to hold down at a civilian. You must think that all I do in the Army is pat myself on the back for one reason or another but, Babs, I am not as smug as I must sound. I have been so happy these last few months that I want to tell the world. Not that I want to give you the impression that life in the Canadian Women's Army Corps is one long, glorious picnic. All I say is that any girl who can take the rough with the smooth, has a wonderful opportunity of developing her latent ability, and if she has the right stuff, of making good.

Holy doodle! I am grasshopper-ing all over the lot. I started out to tell you about my "assignment." It was a big responsibility for one of my limited experience but apparently I got by for the newspapers came out with my story, whittled down here and there, but still my by-line would. Seeing it in print almost repaid me for the number of times I rewrote it.

After the parade, I was able to talk to some of the girls who had taken part and found them all very enthusiastic. C.S.M. Monica Foulbert, Ottawa, who was acting regimental sergeant major, expressed herself as being well satisfied with the results. Sergt. Winifred Quirk, Ottawa and Corpl Susan Thompson, Cornwall, spoke proudly of the fine showing their companies had made. With a rare compliment stationed at Ottawa, competition runs high for the smartest company.

My pass is now I din the C.W. A.C. into your ears. Perhaps it would be better for you if I were of a more romantic turn of mind and merely raved about a Mess Dress or a Mess — more common form of malady, but at the moment all my interests centre around the women in khaki. Oh, I daresay, if something dull, canned, and entertaining crossed my path, I would change my tune, but in the meantime —, it's a great life!

Adios for the moment,
Affectionately,
NICKEY.

Dear Babs:

Your news is really earthshaking. Do you mean it? Do you really want me to "stand up" with you? Who is Dave's best man? Where are you going for your honeymoon? There I go, flooding you with a flock of questions. All I can say here is one that I will not need to ask which would be on the tip of most women's tongues — what will I wear? Some time ago the Department of National Defence endorsed a natty little model in khaki for regulation wear by the members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps — remember? Well, that is what the well dressed C.W.A.C. personnel will wear. Much as my heart may yearn for organdy and a picture hat for this festive occasion, I will stand by my khaki uniform. Oh, I do not doubt that I could obtain special permission to wear "civvies" but my fellow servicewomen would denounce me for disloyalty.

I wish that I could be on hand to steer you through the giddy rush of pre-wedding showers. In any case, you are the one who thrives on parties, so what am I worrying about? I remember when you used to run me ragged and still be fresh as a daisy. Now that I am dedicated to regular hours and lots of sleep, I know that your social whirl would give me a nervous breakdown. However, when the time comes for you to take the fatal step, you can count on me being right at your elbow. I would like to add, Babs, that I am very pleased at being chosen for that honour.

Life is rolling along smoothly at "Quackville" (as the girls have dubbed our barracks) and I have very little to report. Perhaps I should mention my recreational outing last Saturday afternoon. They call it recreation; I have another name for it. It was an unforgettable experience. As a matter of fact, I blame the whole episode on you. I have been thinking about your news and then through association of ideas (I claim) I found myself galloping down a bridal path on a prancing steed. I can hear you exclaiming indignantly at this point but I still maintain that the association of ideas between your bridal plans and the riding academy's bridal path conspired to get me atop that beast. It happened this way. Only a block or two from our barracks there is a riding academy where my C.W.A.C. pals rent riding horses Saturday afternoons or Sundays. Catching some of their enthusiasm, I decided that I, too, would like to go for a canter. Little did I realize what I was letting myself in for. I was mounted on a quadruped tall as the Empire State Building with a lope like a rocking horse. Perched precariously on this monster, I gradually reached more or less perfect horsewomen sweep past. C.S.M. Jean Metcalfe, of Peterborough, Ont., led the group at a beautiful walk. She seemed born to the saddle and I envied the way she and her mount worked together. I could not avoid making comparisons with my wayward beastie which displayed a spiteful tendency to thwart me at every turn. Hard on the heels of the Sergeant Major came Sergeant Lois May of Frankford, Ont., another able horsewoman, who spends much of her recreation time in the saddle. I watched them thunder by, momentarily aware that all was not well between my mount and me. For one thing he kept craning his neck around to look at me, his ears flattened back unfriendly-like as though wondering what queer encumbrance he had in tow. Most disconcerting! From what happened later, I think he also was wondering how soon he could get rid of it. Sure 'nuff before the afternoon was over I had made a forced landing by sailing over my mount's head and flopping into a pleasant but it does not put a shine on my buttons, so perhaps I should close.

Ever,
NICKEY.

BETHEL

Bethel, June 21. — The farmers have about completed their seeding, except for low land and most of the planting is done. Owing to the very late spring and the heavy rains, it has been extra hard work. Hay and alfalfa hay crop is very heavy, but, with shortage of labor, it is doubtful if it can all be harvested.

The many friends of Mrs. Gerald Peters, of Switzerville, formerly Miss Vera Allen, of this neighborhood, have been very sorry to hear of her lingering illness, following the birth of her son on May 24th, at the Campbellford Nursing Home, Napanee. After returning to her home, when baby was twelve days old, she developed other complications, and had to be moved to the Kingston General Hospital, where she has been very seriously ill since and has had to have several transfusions of blood to sustain life. Her mother, Mrs. Jack Beattie has remained with her every day at the hospital since she was taken there, and both her mother and husband have given their blood for her transfusions. At this last report she was showing some improvement, which we sincerely hope continues.

Miss Ada Baker has been ill at the home of her parents for some time but is improving once again.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Allen have taken up residence in their home on their farm adjoining their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Allen.

BATH

Bath, June 19. — On Wednesday, June 16th, one of Bath's oldest ladies, if not the oldest, celebrated her 90th birthday, Miss Patience M. Williams. "Aunt Pate" as she is so well known to many friends. The dear old lady lives alone, the last surviving member of a family of 12 children, all born in Bath. She has had a wonderful life, useful in so many ways. She is a loyal friend, good neighbor, a staunch Conservative and a very active member of St. John's Anglican Church. She maintains a keen interest in all branches of its work. She is the only charter member of the Bath Branch of the W. A. The others who worked with her at the beginning of this organization in this parish have passed on. Her little home was a bower of flowers on Wednesday afternoon when she received many guests, who called to wish her happiness. Lunch was served, sandwiches and cake. A delicious birthday cake was made by Miss Williams herself. Mrs. L. G. O. Walker poured tea and assisted in serving. Several messages and cards were received, as well as many beautiful gifts. Bath is proud of this venerable old lady, and we wish her many more birthdays. She is working on a fourth Red Cross quilt and hopes to be able to complete it during the summer.

Nazis Now Sounding "Pity-Poor-Germany" As Defeat Insurance

BY HARRISON SALISBURY
British United Press Correspondent

Allied propaganda analysts believe Germany has started a "pity poor Germany" campaign as insurance in case the Nazis lose the war.

That long-term factor is thought to lie behind the current Nazi propaganda drive to stop the pulverizing Allied air bombardment. Allied quarters believe the Germans really have little hope of halting the air raids but want to get two results:

Create embarrassment for the British and Americans in their relations with occupied countries.

2. Set the stage for humane treatment of Germany if and when Hitler loses the final battle.

The Nazi propaganda drive follows two main channels—claims through third parties that civilians are being killed wantonly and statements that the Allies rather than Germany initiated air bombardment.

Joseph Goebbels is believed to remember well the last war when loud demands for revenge on Germany died out in a year or two and was replaced by general sympathy.

Naturally the halting of the air bombardment will not depend on Nazi desires. It is being intensified daily, limited only by the weather and the number of aircraft available.

Since that is true it is felt the Germans might be trying to rig up a situation to excuse particularly desperate reprisals. They have only a few possible ways to take reprisals that can be taken against civilians, a very unlikely event, or execution of Allied airmen, also very doubtful, and strong raids against British civilian targets.

The last named possibility is limited by the availability of Luftwaffe planes which may not have enough of a bomber force available for use in a big-military campaign.

The Germans are expected to continue to build up the anti-bombardment campaign, possibly by charging the propaganda by alleged examples of killing of women and children portrayed on the Smolensk massacre with used to embroil Russo-Polish relations.

The intensity of the entire effort, however, is taken only as a firm indication of the amount of damage being inflicted on the Nazi military machine by Allied air raids.

O.R.E.C. Convention Camden - Sheffield Townships

The Annual Convention of the Religious Education Council of Camden and Sheffield Townships was held at Strathcona United Church. The general theme for both morning and afternoon sessions was "They shall all be taught of God." There were representatives present from eleven of the thirteen Sunday schools in the council.

In the absence of the president, Mr. Scott Gilmore, the honorary president, Mr. Elgin Vanvet, Enterprise, acted as chairman. Mrs. James Wilson of Strathcona, in a few well chosen words welcomed us to our church and made us feel that we were all one in the great work of the Sunday school for we are all lovers of youth, of the church and Sunday school, of the Word of God, and of our common Lord and Master.

Worship services were conducted in the morning by Rev. H. B. Herrington of Newburgh and in the afternoon by Rev. A. W. Scott, of Tamsworth. Our principal speaker was Rev. C. A. Myers, D.D., of Toronto. He spoke briefly in the morning, but in an interesting discussion using as a basis a mimeographed sheet "Your Self-Rating Scale," of which each was given a copy. In the afternoon he gave us a very fine address. He said in part: "This convention is made up of Rural people from small Sunday schools and there is a danger that you may grow discouraged. It may encourage you to know that one-half of the Sunday Schools in Ontario are rural, with an average attendance of thirty to forty. We are a part of a great movement. Hundreds of conventions like this are being held up and down the country. You are a part of Ontario Religious Education Council and that is part of the Religious Education Council of Canada, and the International Council of Religious Education and widest of all, the World Sunday School Association. This does not mean that we can rest in our labors for a great deal of important work needs to be done. The United Christian Education Advance, fo which forty denominations on the North American Continent are committed, is beginning to make itself felt. But we are as yet, only reaching one half of the boys and girls and men and women with Christian teaching. We must not rest till all are reached and won to Christ. Our slogan is "Reach all you can. Teach all you reach. Win all you teach. The Sunday school throughout all its history has had two primary purposes, the evangelistic and the missionary. And we must ever retain both."

Mrs. H. B. Herrington gave a very fine demonstration and talk on how to conduct a Children's department in a Sunday school.

Musical selections were given by Mrs. Hugh Ramsay and Mr. Harold Hoare and his son, Douglas, which were greatly enjoyed by all.

The following were elected as officers for the coming year: Hon. President, Mr. Elgin Vanvet, Enterprise; President, Mr. Bert Amey, of Camden East; Vice-President, Mr. James Cowdy, Enterprise R.R. 1, Secretary, Mrs. Miles E. M. Jackson, Enterprise; Leadership Training Department, Rev. W. G Fletcher, Yarker.

NEW BOOKS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

This Is The Enemy—Oechsner

Planned by five seasoned reporters during their internment in Germany after Pearl Harbour, this compelling and revealing book contains much fresh information about the Nazis and will bring to its readers a bitter realization of the actual strength of our enemy in all its military, political, economic, social and personal ramifications.

Blood and Banquets—Fromm

For years Bella Fromm was one of the most prominent members of Berlin's social and diplomatic life. She knew all the important people in Germany, and kept a secret diary of their doings, intrigues, and conversations. This diary was dynamite so she sent it abroad by diplomatic pouch, and recovered it when she escaped from Germany. No other book gives such an intimate and graphic account of personalities, or such a detailed picture of the decadence and creeping terror which marked the transition of German society from a democratic regime to the new dark age of Hitlerism.

Friendship—Symons

A house in the country is the secret ambition of every city-dweller. Friendship tells how one such family made the dream a reality. This light - hearted volume is in the tradition of Beverley Nichols' Down the Garden Path. It will drive readers out of doors for a fresh look at the sky, the trees and other wonders of the countryside.

The People's Mouths—Cross

The People's Mouths is a report to the nation by an ardent and vigilant Canadian. In these perilous days it is the duty of every Canadian to be both vigilant and informed concerning his government. This book provides excellent basic material.

Firedrake—Divine

"She limped towards Europa Point in the grey and silver of the Gibraltar twilight— a little grey ship, listing slightly, a great hole in her side below the foremast funnel open and gaping to the sea. She looked forlorn. She was indomitable." Thus begins one of the most gallant records made by a destroyer in the present war.

A Treasury of British Humor—Bishop

More than eight hundred pages of smiles and laughter from the richest mine of wit and humor in the world.

This Great Journey—Lee

This is the story of a Scotswoman, Jennie Lee. It is the story of the working people of Scotland and England in their struggle for a life of freedom and security. Behind the story of a sensitive, intelligent and courageous woman, there is the story of a new land, a better land in birth.

Green Fire — Rainier

This is a man's book of true adventure, the quest for jewels and gold, exploration and derring-do in far places, in the Jungle and High Andes.

Ten Fighter Boys—Forbes & Allen

Whatever else this war may produce in the way of literature it is highly improbable that it will produce anything more vivid, exciting and real than the personal tales of these ten fighter pilots.

Ship's Doctor—Hooper

A story of a seafaring surgeon—at once dramatic and entertaining. Recently he was brought back wounded from Pearl Harbour and the Philippines, but the climax to his story comes when he tells how, aboard an unconvoyed ship with three submarines in sight, he decided to remain a "ship's doctor for the duration."

Celia's House—Stevensen

A tale of Scotland that will delight Miss Stevenson's readers in whichever of her many moods they have known her in the past.

Air Surgeon—Slaughter

The first book-length novel telling of life in the training camps. The plot itself has all the quick excitement of the times and rises to a powerful climax.

The Arm and The Darkness—Caldwell

Taylor Caldwell's unsurpassed talent as a story-teller has never been better revealed than in this thrilling novel of France in the time of Cardinal Richelieu. Across its pages march the great men and women of the time.

The Squad Goes Out—Greenwood

This is a novel of London at its deepest peril—the great blitz of 1940. Tenderness, humor, courage, touch every page of a fine book.

Alias the Dead—Coxe

Coxe has never devised a more ingenious or suspense - laden plot than this.

BICKNELL'S CORNERS

The Ruhr city of Wuppertal was given its second aerial bombardment and 1,500 tons of bombs were dropped in the city, wiping it practically off the map. Fleets of U. From now to five million citizens of the Ruhr were reported to have been evacuated to escape Allied bombing.

Announcement is made by the Local Ration Board that the distribution of the No. 3 Consumer Ration Books, replacing those now in service, will be made during the week of August 23, in good time to make them available for the purchase of rationed goods when the present books have expired.

It is understood that the method to be followed in the distribution of the new ration books will be largely patterned after that which proved so successful in the case of Ration Books No. 2 and that, in addition to distributing centres to be opened in schoolhouses and other public buildings, special distributing centres will be organized for large industrial establishments and other places where a considerable number of people, and their dependents, require ration books.

As was the case with the distribution of No. 2 ration books, the assistance of volunteers in effecting this distribution will be appreciated, and full details concerning the distribution and the contents of the books will be given well in advance of the week mentioned.

Driverless Car Backs Out of Garage

On Thursday afternoon, last week Mr. A. Wallace, of the firm of Putney & Son, was having a minor repair made to his car at the Central Garage, and Mr. Wallace was asked to start the motor to check the repair made. In doing so, he did not get in the car, but reached in and turned on the ignition and put the gears, as he thought, to neutral. The starter was pressed and the motor caught. The vehicle backed out the west doors of the garage, knocking Mr. Wallace to the floor and the front wheel passed over the lower part of his leg. The car continued on to the street and circed around, just missing the garage service truck on the opposite side of the street, and started in the east doors of the garage. The front bumper and the fender caught the gas pump and Mr. Robson managed to get in to shut off the motor. The door of the car was ripped off the hinges and broken.

Town Repairing Centre St. Bridge Over Napanee River

Extensive repairs are being made to the swing bridge over the Napanee River, on Centre Street. The bridge has not been swung for a number of years, as no boat is large enough to necessitate its being opened, have been quartered east of the bridge. This year, on account of the unusually high water, several boats which had been moored east of the bridge during the pas wnter, were unable to pass under the bridge.

Employees of the town, under the supervision of Councillors Kimmerly and Luffman, have been making the necessary repairs and the bridge will open again for traffic by the middle of this week and the boats will be able to pass down the river.

Councillor Luffman, reporting on the work at the Monday evening meeting of Council, stated that it will not be long before the town is faced with the necessity of replacing the bridge.

NAPANEE COUNCIL HAS PURCHASED 900 CORDS OF WOOD

Will Likely Secure 500 Cords More for Sale to Citizens

M. P. Graham, reporting for the special committee composed of himself and Councillor M. B. Luffman, appointed to purchase wood for relief in the Town of Napanee told the Council at its special meeting last Monday evening, that as the result of a trip into the northern parts of the county, a total of 900 cords of hardwood and slabs had been definitely contracted for, and would be delivered in Napanee during the summer and fall months. Mr. Graham also advised the Council that a further 500 cords of wood would possibly be secured before October 1st.

The question of purchasing more wood was left in the hands of Councillors Vanalstine and Luffman and the Treasurer, M. P. Graham. The committee was authorized to advertise the wood for resale and to urge citizens to place their orders as early as possible and take delivery of the wood as soon as it is available.

Councillor Kimmerly, to whom had been previously referred a complaint from the Napanee Iron Works that the garbage collector was not collecting garbage put out by the company, reported that he had made an investigation and was convinced that the refuse placed for collection by the Iron Works did not come under the terms of the contract with Mr. McCormick, the collector. Councillor Kimmerly stated that in his investigation he found about 15 cans of what appeared to be refuse from the molding room or furnace at the plant was being placed for collection twice a week. He stated he did not consider this material as garbage, and that the Iron Works should make itself responsible for its removal. Councillors Kimmerly and Chalk moved a motion that no action be taken in regard to removal of refuse from the Napanee Iron Works. The motion was endorsed by the Council.

Deputy Reeve Stratton, Chairman of Town Property, submitted the following recommendations from the committee with reference to the Town Hall, which were endorsed by the Council :

2. That any organization or person renting the Town Hall, auditorium or kitchen be required to pay the caretaker the sum of $2.00 for his services, and that any such person or organization be required to provide clean up the auditorium or kitchen to the satisfaction of the caretaker.

3. That the Red Cross, I. O. D. E. Y. M. C. A. be permitted to use the Town Hall auditorium and kitchen free of charge.

4. That any further organization whose main efforts and work are along patriotic lines, shall have the use of the auditorium and kitchen free of charge.

5. That the fee for rental of the Town Hall be in all other organizations and persons be $12.00 for each day and evening, including $2.00 for the caretaker.

Councillor Luffman stated that he had heard numerous complaints from residents of Water street, near the coal yards used by the Strathcona Paper Mills, concerning the smoke nuisance caused by the steam hoist used in moving the coal. Other Councillors spoke of the smoke from the trains used to bring in coal and the smoke issuing from the chimney of the Napanee Cleaners and Jamieson's cleaning establishment.

The Council instructed the Clerk to consult the Town Solicitor and write to the firms responsible for the smoke nuisance to take steps to remedy the situation.

Council passed a by-law, at the request of the barbers of the town, fixing the hours of closing barber shops at 12:00 noon on Wednesday, 10:00 p.m. on Saturdays, and 7:00 p.m. other days of the week.

Mr. L. E. Ludlow, Relief Inspector of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare, and Col. Perce, Relief Officer, of Kingston, addressed the Council in regard to instituting local relief in Napanee in place of the present system of vouchers. After hearing the talks from the two men the matter was referred to the Welfare Committee, with power to act.

Reeve Daly, reporting for the Finance Committee, recommended that a grant of $100.00 be made to the Lennox Agricultural Fair, which was endorsed by the Council.

THE WHIG-STANDARD AGAIN

The Kingston Whig-Standard, not content with attacking the pronouncements of The Bay of Quinte Conference on the need for controlled industry in the post-war world, has directed its barbs against Rev. G. M. Chidley, Rector of Trinity United Church, Napanee. Mr. Chidley, in two addresses, sought to amplify the statement made by The Bay of Quinte Conference, and justify that action to his congregation.

The Whig-Standard criticizes Mr. Chidley's interpretation of the term "Private Enterprise." It says :

"One would naturally suppose that any business enterprise, be it large or small, that is operated for private gain, is a private enterprise. According to the Rev. G. M. Chidley, of Napanee, however, that is not correct. Mr. Chidley, in a sermon delivered in Trinity United Cuhrch, on Sunday morning, stated that 'private enterprise' did not include retail distributors, such as grocers, butchers, etc; nor did it apply in the case of the largest stockholder managing a private concern." Now, of course, everybody knows that a private enterprise is one run for private profit. One does not need the specialized training of Mr. Chidley or the journalistic acumen of The Whig-Standard to know that. As a matter of fact, what Mr. Chidley said was quite different from what The Whig-Standard makes him say. What Mr. Chidley was dealing with was not "Private Enterprise" as such, but the current use of the term "Private Enterprise." Mr. Chidley was careful to point that out. He was not defining "private enterprise" but he was dealing with what the average newspaper reader has come to think of when the term "private enterprise" is used in its pages. This is quite a different matter.

The Whig-Standard then says: "We are afraid we cannot accept from him (Mr. Chidley) the general statement that privately controlled industries have failed." We protest that Mr. Chidley made no such "general statement." Mr. Chidley produced his evidence for statements he made. It was not a general statement; rather, it was carefully documented.

Then again, The Whig-Standard says: "We are just as anxious to find a cure for all the ills to which the world is heir, as is Mr. Chidley, but we are by no means persuaded that the cure is the abolition of private enterprise or the profit motive." Mr. Chidley, never for a moment, suggested the abolition of private enterprise. Mr. Chidley was very explicit that what was needed in the post-war world was control of industry and of business. Mr. Chidley was not pleading for the abolition of anything. He interpreted the Conference pronouncement correctly, when he urged that controls would be necessary in the post-war world.

Then The Whig-Standard concludes with this paragraph: "If we start socialism, communism, or totalitarianism in Canada, and they all have quite a lot in common, we are afraid we shall lose much of the freedom we now enjoy under the democratic form of government and the economic system based on private enterprise. Democracy is, admittedly, not perfect. Human beings are not perfect, and until they achieve that happy state neither democracy nor any other form of government will reach perfection nor will any economic system be free from flaws. Democracy is, however, a system of government best suited to the Canadian people. It gives us, among other blessings, a free pulpit and a free press, two great freedoms which might be denied to us under another form of government."

Probably with most of this Mr. Chidley would agree. The only point at which we would take issue here is, that The Whig-Standard only cites two freedoms—the Free Press and freedom of the Pulpit. President Roosevelt is on surer ground when he says we must have four freedoms. In addition to freedom of speech and of assembly, we must have, as the President puts it "freedom from fear, and freedom from want."

The laissez-faire economic theories which The Whig-Standard pleads for so pathetically, are as dead as the dodo. If there is to be freedom from fear and freedom from want in the world that is to be, there will need to be a reasonable measure of government control of industry, which is all The Bay of Quinte Conference urged, and all that Mr. Chidley suggested.

V

MAYBE THE TRUTH

A report that certain German U-Boat crews, officers and ratings have mutinied should be accepted with reserve. The wish may be father to the thought, and yet it might be true. Certainly the men who man the submarines have cause now to become jittery. Their's is a most difficult, risky and unnerving occupation. It was not too bad when they had a whole ocean to manoeuvre in and when the technique of the undersea craft was little known to the United Nations. But now that the technique is understood and effective controls are brought into play, the submarine is in a bad way. The crews have little or no opportunity of escape.

In the early part of 1914-1918, the first crack in the German armour appeared in the Navy, and it is conceivable that under present conditions the Navy may repeat the act. At any rate, it is a good omen from the point of view of the United Nations that, even a rumor of a revolt should find its way into the Press.

It might just be true.

V

A WONDERFUL DEMONSTRATION

We never really thought we would live to see the day when in conservative Toronto, a demonstration in favor of Russia could have been staged with the magnificence and emotional appeal which characterized the meeting, last week, in the Maple Leaf Gardens. It was a meeting which combined great dramatic appeal, marvellous organization, clock-like precision and a varied and balanced program. To have seventeen thousand people together for any cause, is a great audience. To have them meet to do honour to the U.S.S.R. is a rare achievement. Even the wildest dreamer, three or four years ago, could never have predicted such an event. It goes to show how rapid are the changes in public opinion, and how incalculable the trend of events in modern life.

The Prime Minister of Canada was present and introduced the guest of the evening, Hon. Joseph E. Davies. The Prime Minister was loud in his praises of Russia. Of course, Mr. Davies, who has just recently returned from delivering a letter from President Roosevelt to Premier Stalin, was the main attraction. He was visibly moved as he rose to speak, but once he got his hearing, his good radio voice enabled him to get his message over, well. He spoke with intimacy and with no attempt at rhetoric. His closing remarks, after he had laid aside his manuscript might just as well have been given in the intimacy of a private conversation. The appeal was irresistible.

At last the effort is being made on the part of the Government of Canada, and influential voluntary agencies to throw off the attitude of suspicion which has characterized every mention of Russia during the past twenty years. The meeting in Toronto was the inauguration of a movement designed to interpret Russia to Canada and Canada to Russia. This is the most significant thing in Canadian-Russian relation, that has taken place since the U.S.S.R. came into being. It compares strangely with the unseemly haste with which the nations of the world hastened to recognize the Argentina Government which came into power as a result of a recent revolution. The whole diplomatic business was over in a week.

But now, at long last, men in the Democracies are learning that we have to live in the same world with Russia, and even though we may not subscribe to her Socialist theories nevertheless we must do business with her, and live in the same world.

It will not be easy to create a sympathy for the people of Russia. Of course, we-are sympathetic for their war effort and their suffering, but it will take a long time for people to take, at face value, the sincerity and the honesty of those men in charge of public opinion which for years have given the worst possible view of Russia, and who now are becoming a bit more favorable to her. However, it is well to accept the new attitude in good faith and to hope that in the post-war world, the same goodwill and feeling which now prevails, will continue. Indeed, it must continue if the peace is to be more than another twenty-year armistice.

V

FEAT OF PRODUCTION

Speaking in London, England, on Monday, Minister of Labor, Ernest Beven, said that Great Britain is now producing more aircraft than Germany, He said that women workers had upset enemy calculations of British productive power. He said they had also upset his own calculations. He said that the number of women entering industry in Great Britain was more than thirty per cent above the original estimates and that total production was almost double what it was in 1940."

When the history of this war comes to be written, that part which the women have taken in it, will receive major recognition. Almost everyone who has been overseas comments on the rigorous self-sacrificing effort which has been made there by the women, who have taken their place beside the men in almost every sphere of operations.

The statement that Great Britain now—thanks to the women—is producing more aeroplanes, alone, than Germany, is good news for the United Nations, and must be proportionately disconcerting for Germany. For, if Great Britain, alone, is producing more than Germany, the preponderance of the United Nations' aeroplanes must be stupendous. Canada produces a considerable number of planes, though none for combat, as yet. But the United States will build, this year, one hundred and fifteen thousand planes of various kinds and sizes.

If, as has been recently demonstrated, the bomber and the fighter are to play an important part in defeating the Axis, then the end ought not to be too long delayed after actual invasion is undertaken.

Certainly the ability of the United Nations to get into the swing of their production, has surprised everybody, and in a mechanized war, a preponderance of mechanical equipment on the sea, on land and in the air, is a deciding factor.

GHOST OF GREECE IS HAUNTING THE AXIS

BY FRANK J. O'BRIEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Greece has secretly organized a nation-wide army and is fighting back at her conquerors without waiting for Allied support.

Axis forces, entrenched behind defensive ramparts from Crete to Greece's northern borders, watching constantly for the slips and planes of an Allied invasion army, are hampered, harried and haunted by the ghost of the little country they overran and cried killed in 1941.

Greece, with British aerial support, had repelled Italy's invading forces when Germany, with Bulgar help, knifed her in the back. Then she was subjected to a program of deliberate starvation for more than a year which has created a state approaching permanent collapse.

But, during the last year, the ghost of the Greece which defeated Italy has arisen. Andart (guerrilla) forces were organized at first in scattered localities, then on a regional basis. They specialized in annihilating blows at military convoys on the mountain roads, in blasting important railroad and highway bridges, and in attacking Axis munitions dumps, airfields and encampments.

Then, last May 20, Andart became a national movement. Its regional leaders met secretly and organized a high command which operates through five divisional commanders in Macedonia, Thrace, Central Greece the Peloponnese and Epirus. Crete's Andarts operate separately under General Mandakas.

With food conditions improved by monthly shipments of 20,000 tons of cereals, and Greek air and sea forces manned by the "governments in exile" in Egypt, guerrilla warfare is today the core of Greek life and is producing some amazing results.

The first big success came almost a year ago when they put the Corpotamos railroad bridge, on Greece's single full-scale north-south line out of action for three months. Despite an Italian guard, an estimated 350 Andarts wrecked the big steel structure at the base of Mount Parnassus.

Later 300 Andarts attacked the key Axis airport at Larissa and reported destruction of 50 German planes and a great quantity of equipment and gasoline.

A small band of andarts is reported to have climbed Mount Olimpus recently and planted a Greek flag on the summit.

These are some of their more sensational exploits, but the Axis feels them mostly in the incessant destruction of small motordrawn convoys carrying ammunition, gasoline and food along the winding mountain roads. No transports are safe and these attacks are seriously hampering Axis preparations for defense.

German threats early in May, of the "severest repressive measures" were followed by the burning of the village of Domenico in Thessaly and the execution of all men between the ages of 14 and 60 in an attempt to halt the growing andart effectiveness.

The latest and most reliable estimates place 20 divisions a third of them German and the rest Italian, in the Greek region. Reinforcements continue to arrive, the latest report being that the Athens regiment was being moved from Salonika to Patras.

The German high command in Greece is under Col. Gen. Alexander Loehr of the German air force. Germany now is in complete control of Greece. Macedonia, part of the Peloponnese and Athens, the coastic ports and airports and most of Crete are under direct German occupation. The Italians are mostly in the interior and hold no vital positions.

The defenses of Greece are strong and the German plan seems to be to defend Crete at all costs, try to prevent a landing on the Peloponese with Italian forces stiffened with German units and prepare for eventual retirement to a defence line running from Salonika west from Salonika at the top of the main Greek peninsula.

This line is strong and is being strengthened. Its centre is being held by a special mountaineer division and both wings have recently been reinforced. It is here that the Axis intends to make a last-ditch defence of southeast Europe, if necessary.

Scores of aircraft are in the sky over Athens daily and on constant searchlights work unceasingly. All along the Greek coast security measures are strengthened and especially in port areas, where boats are unable to enter after nightfall without any pretext. Large numbers of small boats patrol the ports and coastline.

The Government in Athens is composed of Greeks of little consequence. They are completely in the hands of the Germans and do not command the least respect from the people. Meanwhile the people wait with hope and faith — almost too much of both — for the day of deliverance which they are certain is near now.

EAT FEWER EGGS NEXT FEW WEEKS TO HELP BRITAIN

While egg production in Canada is now higher than ever before, the increasing dependence of Britain and other United Nations on Canada for essential food, requires an appeal to the people of Canada to reduce their consumption of eggs during the next few weeks, declared Hon. James A. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture.

While shipments of dried eggs to Britain to date had been up to schedule it is necessary during the remainder of the high producing season to acquire larger quantities for future drying, if the agreement with our Allies for 1943 is to be met.

Mr. Gardiner said that if Canadian consumption of eggs can be substantially reduced, it will be most helpful. The rate of such consumption is higher than ever recorded, due no doubt, to the substitution of eggs for meat. While this is to be commended, nevertheless it can be arranged would be appreciated.

Careful consideration had been given to compulsory procurement of eggs to meet the 1943 agreement with Britain but the difficulties involved in a practical application of such a measure aided by eggs had led to a decision against this approach. We feel sure, however, that the public will respond generously to the appeal to reduce the use of eggs to a very minimum during the next few weeks.

Producers will not be adversely affected by any reduction in domestic consumption because the Dried Egg Products Board, the egg buying agency for the British Ministry of Food, will continue to purchase all supplies available.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of
The Napanee Beaver.
Maplehurst Farm,
Moscow.

Dear Sir :

Indications point to an early Provincial election with the new Premier, Hon. Mr. Nixon, will endorsation at the hands of the electors of Ontario.

The two major parties and also the C. C. F. have already declared several candidates in the field and agitation is rife among the rank and file of the Progressive Conservative Party as to who will be their Standard-Bearer in the Riding of Prontenac-Addington.

Hon. W. D. Black, the sitting member, who has ably represented the Constituency in the Legislature at Toronto for the past thirty years, has given no intimation that he intends to retire and my considered opinion is that if he offers his services again, his candidature would be enthusiastically endorsed.

On the other hand, if Mr. Black decides to retire from active politics, the Party will be confronted with the problem of selecting a new candidate, and as I see it, the task in the Riding of the dimensions (geographically) of Frontenac-Addington, is a difficult one.

Let us look for a moment at the map and observe the territory covered by this particular Riding. All of the Eight Townships comprising the Riding, with the exception of Kitley is located on the west side of the Rideau Lakes, together with practically all the Municipalities of Prontenac, except the City of Kingston and the Islands.

During a period of thirty years, Addington has been a favorite political battle ground for all parties, and in every election, the Conservatives of Prontenac-Addington would be well advised to select their candidate for the coming Provincial Election, from the west side of the Riding, and since we are practically all farmers, this particular candidate should be one actively engaged in tilling the soil. Under this arrangement, the Federal candidate would be an elector from Prontenac and the Provincial from Addington, or vice versa. I might also say that a similar arrangement obtains in a number of Ridings throughout the Province and also in Prince Edward Lennox, our nearest neighbor.

In submitting the forgoing to the rank and file of our Party, I wish to say that Addington has a number of progressive farmers having the qualifications necessary for a candidate together with the education and mental calibre and I am pleased herewith to submit a few names which do not by any means exhaust the possibilities: Herb York, Wes Bradshaw, Wilfred Breault, Ace of Lewis, Edgar Drew, Carmon Patterson, Ed. Purcell, Arthur Baker, Fred Switzer, Edgar.

In conclusion let me say that personally, I have no axe to grind and hold no brief for any candidate and my only object is to encourage the Party along more constructive and progressive lines and to suggest a fair and equitable deal to every section of the Riding of Prontenac-Addington.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH FOSTER.

The Oxford Group

Focus of attention, one day last week, of men in Government, industrialists, labour leaders, active service men and workers at the coal face and the bench in more than a dozen countries, was one man.

It was the occasion of his sixty fifth birthday and messages of congratulations came from all over the world. "The wonderful work you have done through the years is bearing fruit, and is going to contribute more and more to our war effort," wired a high-ranking American admiral. Boeing workers from the West Coast sent the following message. "We labour to turn out flying fortresses to rule the sky, we want also to produce the spirit that will rule the hearts of men and build a sane new world."

These were just a few of the many messages that came from the Clyde-side, South Africa, Australia, China, Sweden and Switzerland and from Canadian labour leaders and industrialists. They were a fitting recognition of this man's consistent fight for a new world.

The man so honoured was Dr. Frank Buchman, founder and initiator of the Oxford Group and its offspring, Moral Re-Armament. All his life Frank Buchman has fought to put at the heart of Democracy those sound moral principles on which alone can any future permanent security be built.

The senior London Times representative in the House of Commons Press Gallery and the head of an Oxford College in the introduction to Dr. Buchman's recently published speeches, said of him: "Like his predecessors in the great spiritual succession Dr. Buchman has suffered much some of the misrepresentation and unreasoned hate reserved for those who challenge the sliding values of their age. Persecution is the fire that forges prophets. In spite of materialistic attacks and disruptive forces his message has remained unaltered. Events have confirmed and deepened his diagnosis and illumined the need not only for moral spirit, but for a revolutionary answer to revolutionary materialism, the leading ground for all 'isms'."

"In our search for security, in national unity, for a conquering philosophy, Dr. Buchman has pointed the way to the fundamentals that endure change, insanity and the only victory that is lasting."

"In these dark days he has kindled a light which, as men and nations turn again to the gigantic task of reconstruction, must eventually flood the world."

"MOTHER CHAO" — WARRIOR —

CHINESE WOMAN HAS KILLED HUNDREDS OF JAPS

Chungking, (B.U.P.)—The wife of old Chinese warrior took a Mauser pistol from her cotton dress, lifted the weapon and shot carefully. Two shots rang out and Japanese sentries guarding the eastern gate fell dead. The old woman slipped off the gun, turned to the astonished peasants watching her and said:

"You see, the Japs are not invincible."

Then she took to the hills, followed by more than 100 young farmers.

That was the start of the career of one of China's most famed guerrillas—Madame Chao, a 58-year-old mother of five children. Her home was in Peiping shortly after the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war in 1937. The guerrilla band then had only a few hundred strong.

To-day the woman they call "Mother Chao" has an army of 5,000. The Japanese have admitted fear of her a few days ago when they announced over the Peiping radio they would pay 40,000 Peiping dollars for her head.

Mother Chao has sworn to continue fighting "until the Japs are driven beyond the Yalu river" in Manchuria. Her three sons and two daughters are fighting with the guerrillas. Her husband died 20 years ago.

She began her fighting career in 1931 when the Japs took Manchuria. Mother Chao was impressed with her ability to shoot straight and with her great strength. She resented the attitude of the conquering Japs and how much and urged her eldest son to leave school and form a guerrilla band in the hills to harass the Japs. She sent food and weapons to him. Later, his brother, now General Chao, joined up and soon the two numbered 5,000. During the next few years they killed many Japs, captured 5,000 enemy rifles and several trains.

Several times the Japanese expected Mother Chao with aiding the guerrillas, and finally Mother Chao moved to Peiping—and lived there until the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war in 1937. Then she began restless. She sent her own sons to western hills where she and 23 others formed the Nucleus of a People's Army, but recruiting progressed slowly.

One morning Mother Chao, tiring of affairs in her own home, left Peiping and went to her son's headquarters where she asked for a job. Hiding it under her gown she promised to return before sunset with 100 recruits. She went to the city and gathered the farmers together, urging them to join up.

"But we have no rifles to shoot the Japs," one young farmer said. Mother Chao smiled at the farmers to accompany her to a nearby village occupied by one hundred Japanese soldiers. Peiping Radio announced the discovery of the Japanese and the background Mother Chao had a dozen young farmers with her in 100 yards of the Jap sentries and killed them both.

The farmers joined her but Since then her fighters have killed thousands of Japanese during Jap military trucks, and captured machine guns.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, JULY 4TH, 1943

"A PEOPLE IN DISTRESS"
Lesson Text: Exodus I: 6-14; 2: 23-25

There are lots of nations in distress today, so that the present lesson has a peculiar interest for all of us. Poland is in distress, Norway is in distress, Greece is in distress, China is in distress; so are a dozen other countries who have felt the heel of the invader and suffered from war and its ramifications. Of all those who have suffered most at the hands of the German official system are the Jews stand first; Never perhaps in history, certainly never in modern history, has there been such a systematic and scientific effort made to exterminate a race.

The Hebrews have always been the object of persecutors. Just why that should be so, no one can tell. Here, in to-day's lesson at the very beginning of their history as a nation, they are suffering. They are being persecuted, Joseph, 'it will be remembered, was sold into slavery by his brethren. His sheer ability was for him not only recognition, but a position of trust and responsibility in the land of Egypt, to which he had been sold. His brothers and sisters, indeed the whole family clan, were brought to Egypt in a time of drought and given preferential treatment. But in time, there arose in Egypt a king who knew not Joseph. The children of Israel had, by this time, grown in numbers; they constituted a problem for the king, or at least he thought they were a problem. Of course, there was some occasion for officialdom to worry, because the Egyptians were in trouble. The surrounding nations were beginning to crowd in on her. And the king feared that in case of an attack from the outside, the Jews would act as fifth columnists, and attach themselves to the forces of the enemy.

Now the methods which were used by the Egyptians to check the suspected alienation of the Hebrews' loyalty, was by no means new or very happy one. They set about to actually put the Hebrews to death, as the Germans have done in our day but they increased their tasks and made their work harder. The Hebrews were doing the labor for the state. The Egyptians appointed taskmasters over the Israelites, whose duty it was to treat the Hebrews like beasts of burden, beat them, and inflict physical pain when they did not produce enough.

The main job assigned to the Hebrews was digging Nile mud and mixing it with chopped straw and making bricks out of it. This was terrific back-breaking labor, and under a blazing sun to the tune of the taskmaster's whip. In one of the Egyptian tombs, the details of the irrigation ditch under these conditions. It is recorded that many lives were lost. Human life was cheap.

But the tasks imposed on the Hebrews only served to make them worse. They continued to grow in numbers in spite of the heavy death rate, and in heavier tasks and more cruel. When racial instincts are let loose, as they were in the case, they are unchecked, anything may happen. It seems almost incredible that a people should be treated as many Jews in Detroit during recent race riots, and yet, we could easily have had a Hitler duplicated in a dozen different localities. Given the right conditions and a demagogue to stir the people's passions, it is not unbelievable that a riot could be started against the Jews, in Canada, and certainly it would not be difficult to finance a drive against the French Canadians. Racial prejudice is hard. They need to be overcome by the Grace of God, in Christ. But no other way will it ever be possible to resolve our racial and social differences which are so fundamental human dynamite.

Will it seemed a strange thing and yet if so often happens that these Hebrews had not given their attention to their religion until everything happened. When they were in the sunshine of Joseph's favor they paid little heed to their God. Similarly to the Germans in our depression set in, when difficulties arose, when their cause failed to win point of view, seemed hopeless, they turned to God. They remembered that He had a covenant with His people, and they cried unto Him. "And God heard their groaning, and God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. And God saw the children of Israel, and took knowledge of them."

Subsequent lessons will show us what was done.

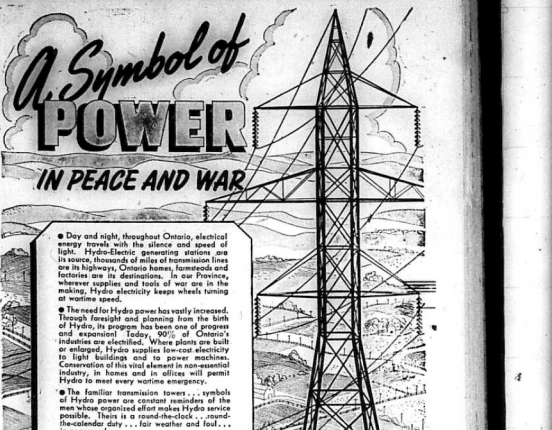
A Symbol of POWER IN PEACE AND WAR



- Day and night, throughout Ontario, electrical energy travels with the silence and speed of light. Hydro-Electric generating stations are its source, thousands of miles of transmission lines are its highways, Ontario homes, farmsteads and factories are its destinations. In our Province, wherever supplies and tools of war are in the making, Hydro electricity keeps wheels turning at wartime speed.
- The need for Hydro power has vastly increased. Though foresight and planning from the birth of Hydro, its progress has been one of progress and expansion! Today, 90% of Ontario's industries are electrified. Where plants are built or enlarged, Hydro supplies low-cost electricity to light buildings and to power machines. Conservation of this vital element is non-essential industry, in homes and in offices will permit Hydro to meet every wartime emergency.
- The familiar transmission towers . . . symbols of Hydro power are constant reminders of the men whose organized effort makes Hydro service possible. Theirs is a round-the-clock . . . round-the-calendar duty . . . fair weather and foul . . . in peace and war.
- Electricity is the tireless servant of mankind. After the war, in the city, on the farms and in industry, Hydro will be needed—and available — in increased measure to make human tasks lighter and lives brighter.

ELECTRICITY IS A WAR WEAPON

SALE ALLOWED MARKED GASOLINE FREE FROM TAX

The problems relating to the sale of marked gasoline and refund of the Ontario Gasoline Tax thereon, have been under investigation by the Department of Highways of the Province of Ontario for some time. Numerous requests have been received for some change in the present system of refunding the Ontario Gasoline Tax.

After studying the situation in all its aspects the Province has now decided to allow the sale of marked gasoline (i.e. gasoline marked purple in accordance with the regulations of Oil Controller of Canada) free from the Ontario Gasoline Tax to farmers, licensed commercial fishermen, licensed guides and licensed or other bona fide tourist outfitters, commencing July 1st, 1943.

The new system will eliminate the necessity of submitting claims for refund of the tax, as the Ontario Gasoline Tax will now be exempted at the time of purchase, on presentation by the purchaser of his purchase permit and a properly completed and signed "exemption statement." Purchase permits and exemption statements will be bound together in books and issued directly to the purchaser from the Department, on approval of his application.

The purchaser should ensure in his "Application for Purchase Permit" from this retail dealer in marked gasoline, any Division Office of the Department of Highways or the Gasoline Tax Branch of the Department of Highways at Toronto.

It is anticipated that if the cooperation of sellers and purchasers is received that this new procedure will be of considerable benefit to the persons involved.

Magistrate's Court

Magistrate Garvin imposed a fine of $100 and costs on Gerald Seale, Sharp's Corners, who was convicted in the Napanee Magistrate's Court last Thursday, of assaulting Leslie O Warren, a cattle dealer of Lindowne, on May 18th.

The assault took place when Warren got out of his truck on Highway No. 41 to find out what was causing a hold-up in the traffic on the highway. Seale's truck had been run into by another car and slight damage had been done to the truck. At the time Warren stopped, Seale was said to be beating up a soldier, after which he struck Warren, a much smaller man. Seale would have thrown him into a creek, after striking him, Warren stated and his father, Delmar Seale intervened.

Magistrate Garvin, in imposing the heavy fine, said that Seale needed to curb his temper or he would, some day, find himself faced with a murder or manslaughter charge.

On Thursday, George Denham, of Richmond Township, was fined $16 and costs for consuming liquor in a place other than his residence.

A charge against Kenneth Pybus of theft of $10 from the store of Emer Lapointe, Tamworth, was dismissed as there was not enough evidence to convict.

Wilfred McCracken of Richmond Township pleaded guilty to charges of driving without a proper sign on his truck and of failing to carry a red reflector on his truck and a fine of five dollars and costs was imposed on him.

On Monday, in the Magistrate's Court, presided over by Magistrate Garvin, of Deseronto, the following cases were heard:

C. Murphy, charged with being intoxicated while in charge of a vehicle, pleaded not guilty. The charge was changed to dangerous driving, of which he was convicted and assessed $75 and costs, or two months.

Cecil Mullin, of Kingston, had four charges against him, intoxicated while in charge of a vehicle, reckless driving, failure to remain at the scene of an accident and failure to figure in a place contrary to the act. Mullin was picked up by the police of Belleville, doing about 80 miles an hour and on investigation by the authorities was found to have struck a car near Napanee. On the first charge he received a seven-day jail sentence and car impounded for five months. On the second the second charge was assessed $50.00 or two months. The remaining charges were withdrawn and dismissed.

William Claude Brown, Marlbank, charged with driving without due care, was fined $5.00 and costs when convicted of the charge. The charge arose out of an accident on Centre Street, near Water, when Brown backed a truck into the right of way and driven by W. B. Nollin, injuring the latter about the head.

Egerton Hall was remanded in care of the Chief until called upon. He was charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

George Harris of Sheffield was charged under the Game and Fisheries Act with trapping and selling beaver. He was found guilty and fined $20 and costs. A similar charge against Harold Harris was dismissed. B. Morley, Game Overseer, laid the charges.

In honor of Miss Hawley, a tea given by Miss Florence Hall, Miss Elsie Parks and Miss E. Anderson, was held at the home of Miss Florence Hall, and was attended by members of the public school staff.

Miss Hall's spacious home was beautifully arranged with lovely bowls of early summer flowers and was delightfully cool and comfortable, despite the heat of the day.

Miss K. F. Docker, of the Victorian Order Nurse, who has been School Nurse during her five years' stay in Napanee, and who leaves at the end of July to assume a new position in Burlington, was also a guest of honor.

Mr. Albert Hill, the acting Principal of the Public Schools, in a short address, expressed the appreciation of the school staffs of the services rendered by Miss Hawley and Miss Docker; Miss Hawley in training the mind of the pupils and Miss Docker in taking care of their physical needs.

Miss Hawley, who has been a resident of Napanee nearly all her life, has devoted her time and talents to the training of her own girls and has taken an active part in community organizations and especially in Trinity Ch., where she was superintendent of the Sunday School teacher and a worker in young people's organizations and the women's societies of the church. She was an outstanding primary class teacher and the many pupils who passed through her classes were given a splendid start in life as a result of her instruction and example.

Miss Docker, during her five years' stay in Napanee, has rendered invaluable service in the schools and in connection with her home nursing work. Through her influence many advances have been made in the care of the young in particular and health standards have consequently been greatly raised.

Miss Anderson and Miss Parks, on behalf of the school staffs, presented Miss Hawley with a handsome side table. Miss M. Way presented Miss Docker with a pair of flower pictures.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses. Mrs. Albert Hill presided at the tea table and Miss Parks cut the cake. The guests were served by Miss Eleanor Aylesworth, Miss C Flinken and Miss M. Way.

Battery Nosed-out By Redi-Heats

In a regular schedule fixture on Wednesday last the Deseronto Redi-Heats were hosts to the 47th Battery as the High School diamond, and defeated the local team 9 to 3.

A large crowd of Napanee fans, as well as the Deseronto public were on hand for the game which was played in a little over an hour.

The visitors showed two runs across the plate in the first innings and "Curley" Gummers added three in the second. The game was a "1.23" affair until the ninth when the Gummers placed another counter and the Deseronto team came back with the extra in their half.

A feature of the game was the lack of errors. The game was very ably handled by Bowman at the plate and Richardson on the bases.

PROTECT PRODUCER CONSUMER WITH POTATO SUBSIDY

While the Prices Board has fixed a selling-price for new potatoes similar to that which has prevailed for Canada No. 1 grade of old potatoes, it does not follow, contrary to popular impression — that the price obtained by the producer will be the same. As a matter of fact the Kingston Office of the Board points out that under the subsidy which is to be payable by the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corporation, the position of both the grower and the consumer is protected.

This subsidy applies to Canada-grown new potatoes as well as to imported potatoes. In the case of the former, a subsidy will be paid to any person who buys new potatoes direct from a primary producer or his agent for re-sale, provided the purchase price does not exceed $2.75 per 100 lbs. f.o.b. original shipping point when shipped on or before July 31, $3.50 when shipped between August 1st to August 15th and $3 when shipped between August 16 and August 31.

This domestic subsidy paid through the wholesaler will be the difference between his laid-down cost to wholesale lots at his distributing point and the lawful wholesale ceiling for new potatoes at that point.

It is specified that the laid-down cost is to include the actual cost of transporting the new potatoes from the original shipping point in Canada to the wholesaler's or retailer's distributing point by common carrier but is not to include express charges. Transportation charges will not be recognized for potatoes grown within 15 miles of the consuming centre and the minimum quantity of new potatoes on which the subsidy will be paid will be 75 pounds.

Social Events Held For Bride at Violet

Mrs. Ross Hogle, Violet, held a miscellaneous tea for her only daughter, Eileen Georgia, Friday afternoon, June 11th, on the eve of her approaching wedding. Mrs. Wilfam Close showed the bride-to-be's gifts and linen tea towels, aunt, Mrs. Walter Lemmon showed the bride's trousseau.

It was chosen as an opportune time for her neighbors, friends of Pearth Line and relatives to show their warm feelings to the bride who has always taken her place in all the worthwhile things in the community, church welfare and war-group activities.

A hearty welcome address was read by Mrs. E. A. Wright and the girl friends of Eileen carried in two beautiful wicker baskets, covered with hand-carved end-table and a table lamp as a token of appreciation from her neighboring friends. Gifts of linen, china and crystal were presented from Fourth Line, also a handsome sum of money.

About fifty guests gathered to honor this very popular young woman. Miss Hogle replied in a few gracious words, thanking her friends for their gifts and extended a warm welcome to all to her new home.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and all wished the happy bride every good wish for the years that lie ahead.

RED CROSS SOCIETY AN. GARDEN PARTY

On Wednesday, June 23rd, an outstanding social event took place on the spacious lawns and gardens at the home of Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., when the annual garden party of the local Branch of the Red Cross Society was held.

Tea was served from 3:00 until 6:00 p.m. by the ladies who also are interested in the Red Cross. Those who poured tea were Mrs. L. Gandier, Mrs. H. Johnson, Mrs. Ed. Tuttle, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Reid Aylesstine of Marlbank, Mrs. Matthew Taylor and Mrs. A. S. Hudson. The hostesses were Mrs. E. J. Pollard, Mrs. W. A. Grange, Mrs. W. J. Wigle, Mrs. Geo. T. Walters, Mrs. H. Scott, Mrs. P. K. Ketcheson, Mrs. W. T. MacKenzie, and Mrs. Harry VanLieven.

The dining hall was decorated with a wealth of summer flowers, peonies, roses, etc. The serving were Mrs. Mervyn Owen, Mrs. L. Marriott, Mrs. E. Cook, Mrs. J. Mills, Mrs. L. Greenman. Mrs. Percy Asselstine, Mrs. Geo. Clyde, Mrs. S. Phippen, Miss Laura Vine, Miss Ellen Fox, Mrs. W. Roy, Mrs. P. Wolfe, and Mrs. Harry Moore.

Assisting Mrs. Herrington, the hostess were Mrs. C. D. McLellan, Mrs. Sneath, Mrs. Harold Ham, Mrs. G. M. Childley, Mrs. Wm. Baron, Mrs. P. Hearl, Miss Florence Hall, and Miss Georgia Daly.

The cooked food table on the lawn was in charge of Mrs. T. Goldsmith, Mrs. H. Beattie, Mrs. G. H. Challes, Mrs. H. Hamilton, Mrs. A. Hunter, Mrs. E. Fowler, and Mrs. George Mott.

Mr. W. S. Wilson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. J. C. Frazier, Chairman of the Morgan's Work Committee for Red Cross of Ontario.

Mrs. Frazier reminded those present that the Red Cross is doing its part to make the word service as our motto, and remarked it was through this organization that the articles are likely to make, when others were so much needed. Working under the auxiliary system we are asked to do the work needed most, and the unexpected happens. Mentioning the storehouses in England full of socks, scarves, and suits, she asked why have so much knitting these when time and shipping space are too valuable and wool too scarce to be wasted in making anything but what is asked for by the Red Cross and which is on quota a system."

Mrs. Frazier also reported on new work being prepared for the next quota, of belts for the Air Force made of strips of wool cloth 4½ inches, fastened together to make a light belt fitted closely to the body. She explained that she was very necessary for their comfort flying. Seeming to speak of the enemy fighting, she told of preparing articles which are labeled PF, "first front" and SF, "second front".

Also, now every ship that leaves Canada's shores have the needles for survivors on them so the sailors who pick up the survivors will not have to give all their own clothing away to those unfortunates.

Remarking on the beauty of the quilts sent in, she told of selecting the best and prettiest for convalescent hospitals for returned men throughout Canada. Mrs. Frazier made a plea for prayerful, careful work.

Mrs. James Hepburn, M.L.A., of Picton, who was present, was asked to preside at the drawing of lucky tickets for a basket of fruit and two boxes of candy. The fruit was donated by Mr. James Amodeo and the candy by Mrs. Challes and Mr. Prejean Carter. Mrs. C. I. Mayhee was the winner of the basket of fruit, Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Babcock the candy.

The Warden of the County, Mr. E. J. Courneya, who was present with the Honorary Head of the County Council, made the drawing for the oil painting and a model of the battleship, the Duke of York. The ship was donated by Mr. Percy Robinson of the Veterans' Guard, and was made by German prisoners of war at Fort Henry.

Mrs. S. Booth and Mrs. L. V. Cowling were in charge of a table of articles on display made by the local Branch of Red Cross, which consisted of seaman's vests, dresses, and underwear for Greek relief; baby clothing and other articles donated by the Junior Red Cross from the Ward and Centre.

Music was supplied by Mr. John Birkett.

The proceeds amounted to over $325.00.

HOGLE - HOGLE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hogle, Violet, was the scene of a lovely June wedding Saturday, June 19th, at 2:00 p.m., when their only daughter, Eileen Georgia, became the bride of James Lester Hogle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hogle, Ernestown. The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens and roses in the living-room by the Rev. W. R. Merrick, Selby, and Miss Joyce McPherson, Odessa, played the wedding music.

The dainty bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a radiant figure, in a lovely floor-length model of white sheer over white taffeta. The fitted bodice and square neckline was trimmed with Queen Valentine lace. Her long embroidered tulle veil was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade bouquet of white Killarney roses and white carnations. The bride's only attendant was her cousin, Miss Pauline Lemmon, who wore a floor-length gown of pale pink sheer over pink taffeta. She wore a rose and carnation corsage, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and pink carnations.

Mr. Fraser Hogle, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a gold necklace. The groom's gift to the best man was a white gold link necklace and to the best man a gold tie set.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to about thirty guests, and toasts were made to the happy couple.

In the dining room the bride's table was effectively arranged with the wedding cake, surrounded with silvery tulle and roses, white streamers and tall tapers, making a lovely picture.

Mrs. Hogle received her guests in a French model of navy blue sheer with white accessories and wore pink roses. Mrs. Henry Hogle, the groom's mother, chose a two piece, navy blue sheer, also with white accessories.

Upon their return they will reside in Ernestown, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. My father has recently passed away. What shall I do with his ration book ?

A. If the funeral director does not do it up (as he is sometimes empowered to do), please forward it without delay to your Local Ration Board with a suitable note of explanation.

A. Apply to your nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board or its to Consumer Branch, Arcade Building, 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

Q. I am having an awful time with my husband's socks which seem to wear out quickly. Has your conservationist any suggestions to offer ?

A. It is a good idea to buy woollen socks a size larger than recommended to allow for shrinkage. They should be washed in lukewarm water and put on stretchers to prevent shrinkage.

Q. Why is it that there is a ceiling on the selling-price of eggs but none on the feeds that are needed for poultry ?

A. You are quite mistaken in assuming that there is no ceiling on such feeds. If you suspect that this has been violated, please report the circumstances immediately to your nearest office of this Board.

Q. When will the new consumer ration books be issued ?

A. Full information will be given concerning this distribution in advance of the expiration of the present books. The new books will be distributed during the week of August 23rd.

Q. As a regular patron of a cheese factory, I have been offered only one-half pound of whey butter per butter ration coupon. Don't you consider this allowance should be altered ?

A. It has been. In order to prevent an accumulation of whey butter in cheese factories, dairy operators are now supposed to give regular patrons one pound of such butter per valid butter coupon.

YOU'RE ELECTED TO DO YOUR OWN CANNING

Hello Homemakers ! — To-day's knowledge of nutrition — particularly of the importance of vitamins and minerals in our daily diet—has made us realize the value of home-canned vegetables. Grocery store shelves are no longer plentifully stocked with canned goods. So nowadays canning for the family really comes under the heading of "duty," especially if you haven't adequate storage facilities.

Canning kitchens have been busy making thorough studies in search of a sure canning method. Water bath sterilization is the method we recommend, although the pressure cooker (not available at present) is best. For those who have pressure cookers, canning "bees" could be organized to help can our vegetables to the fullest possible extent.

STEPS IN CANNING VEGETABLES

1. In buying war - grade rubber rings, buy according to type of jar; read label on the box. If pre-war rubber rings spring back after being folded double, they may be used. Before using, your boiling water over rings and zinc tops and jars, and about one minute.
2. Pint jars are preferable for vegetables. Jars and glass tops must be free from nicks and cracks. Match the lids — do not let lids "rock" on jars.
3. Sterilizing equipment is important, and Thoroughly scrub every utensil and bowl to be used with a good brush in hot, soapy water. Then rinse and sterilize. For water sterilization, half fill each jar with clear water, place glass tops in position and stand jars in boiler or large kettle. Add spoons, knife, bowls and funnel. Bring water to boiling and let boil fifteen minutes. Take jars out when ready to fill, one at a time.
4. Preparation of Vegetables — (a) Use fresh vegetables. Can them an hour or so after gathering and meantime keep in cool place as barley heads begin to grow when they are in warm kitchen. (b) Sort according to size, discarding over-ripe bruised or blighted ones. (c) Wash vegetables in several changes of water, wash pods or vegetables thoroughly in two or three waters. Then pod, cut or trim and wash again. Lift out instead of draining and put in sterilized bowl. Don't wash too many at once. (d) Cut in uniform size, using scalded knife, and put in sterilized kettle.
5. Pre - cooking is recommended to complete quick and thorough heat penetration. Cover vegetables with with boiling water and boil for three or four minutes.
6. Prepare to fill jars. Place sterilized jar on scalded pie plate; put rubber ring on; insert funnel and have scalded utensils ready. (Keep utensils on stove or in unheated table.) Work quickly; pack fairly loosely to allow for expansion. Fill to within half-inch of top, or one inch in canning peas or corn. Pour in liquid, in which they were precooked, up to brim; slide sterilized knife down in jar to let out air; add half-teaspoon salt to each pint jar; place glass top on and partially seal. With screwtop sealers, screw tightly, then unscrew a half turn; with wire-clamp jars, adjust top clamp but do not spring down lower one.
7. Processing by Hot Water Bath. — Set filled jars on rack in wash boiler, large preserving kettle or a galvanized iron pail. The rack may be a wire rack, a shingle or a chopping board. You may have to improvise a lid to fit container. Pour hot water into processor or cooker above tops of jars. Count time from the time water boils. Keep water boiling. Have hot water ready to add to keep sealers covered—if they are not covered, it may cause seepage from jars.
8. REMOVE jars as soon as cooking time is up to avoid over-processing. Place jars, several inches apart, on table to cool. Do not turn upside down. Frequently during the first fifteen minutes after removal, keep a bended ear to the sealers. Imperfect seals may be detected by a slight hissing sound, or notice a collection of small bubbles at the rim. If this occurs, have sterilized knife and glass top within reach, open jar, remove any food particles on rubber or on edge of glass, reseal glass top in another position or change glass top; adjust screw top without adding liquid.

USE TOMATO JUICE TO CAN NON-ACID VEGETABLES

Even experienced homemakers have had some spoilage with peas, corn or string beans. These vegetables are difficult to home can (without pressure cooker) because they are non-acid. We can now recommend the following procedure to add acidity. Wash string beans, string top and tail, wash and cut in uniform sizes. Put into kettle, cover with water and boil three minutes. Pack to within one inch of top, fill in half full of canned tomato juice or hot, cooked strained tomatoes, then fill to top with liquid used in pre-cooking. Process in water bath for one and one-half hours. Remove, test and cool.

Product	Pre-Cook	Water-Bath
Beans ..... (in tomatoes)	2 mins.	1½ hrs.
Beans ..... (whole)	3 mins.	3 hrs.
Beets	15 mins.	1½ hrs.
Corn	3 min.	3 hrs.
Spinach. Steam	5 mins.	3 hrs.
Peas	2 mins.	3 hrs.

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs :

It was a beautiful wedding—not one discordant note to mar it. I felt quite misty-eyed. You looked so radiant.

You know, Babs, now that you are off my hands, I could concentrate my charity and Mary Cuthbert has got to be so wrapped up in her wireless course that I cannot get any sense out of her. Naturally, C.W.A.C. are taught to guard against talk and any military information they may have they keep to themselves. But Barty is an extremist. All she thinks of these days is the wireless and she expects to find a spy in every thicket. The other day she asked me if my mother was a British subject. Mrs. Canadian ancestry on both sides of the family, dating back three generations — pure English-Scotch stock ! I really cheered her fully smacked her. However, I showed my contempt and refused to accord myself with saying, "You are barking up the wrong tree, Mata Hari," and she had the grace to blush ! I will be glad when she finishes this course and comes back to earth.

A few days ago, I was at Fort Frontenac covering a story and suddenly myself of the opportunity of chatting with several of the girls posted there. Three of those, Pte. Theresa Crowe, of Peterborough, Pte. Doris Maynard of Belleville, and Pte. "Birdie" Healy, of Smith's Falls, invited me to tea with them at the C.W.A.C. Canteen.

It was the first time I had visited the Canteen and I was pleasantly surprised to find it delightfully cheery and attractive. In the large front room, a contrasting colour scheme of green and yellow makes a warm splash of co'our. Gay mats of daffodil yellow are spread on the small tables giving the room and the long drapes at the windows are a deep restful green. At one end of the room there is a good-sized stage which the girls have used for various entertainments and at the other is the nickelodeon which is usually very much in demand. The girls can obtain light snacks, or more substantial meals, as they choose, at an absurdly low price. This low price is made possible through the efforts of the ladies in charge who are members of the various clubs which pooled their funds in order to set up and operate the Canteen.

For those who like peace and quiet there is the writing room, a big comfortable room lined with shelves of books. Here the girls can use the writing desks which are supplied with C.W.A.C. stamped stationery, or they may sit in the big easy chairs and read.

On Saturdays the entertainment committee usually arranges a sing-song and we have had concerts invited to attend. Sometimes it is the Royal Canadian Navy, at others one of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps; or perhaps the Royal Canadian Engineers, or again members of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve. Whatever the group hailed may be, the boys can be sure of a warm welcome and a cheery evening. I hope that they return here and again, so that indicates how much they like it.

Now that I have found my way to the Canteen, I expect that I will spend a good portion of my spare time there. It is so homey and just what I have been missing — a comfortable place to write and read, and near at hand, coffee and cocoa with home-made cakes and cookies. This is living in clover.

I don't know why I bother to give you all this information. Probably all you want to know from me is my eulogy on how wonderful Dave looking at the wedding. Well, I will not give you the satisfaction.

I hear a heavy footstep in the hall. My conscience whispers, "this means you." You see, I am breaking a rule. It is long after "Lights Out" and sitting on my bed by the glow of my trusty flash light, I am writing. Worse I have my radio tuned on very softly and a marvellous orchestra is playing. After the final "Lights Out" peace and quiet is supposed to reign. Every time the door is opening and I think the prowler wears pips. Something tells me "I am Joe." More later.

Much Love,

NICKEY.

THE MINERALS IN OUR DIET

We hear a great deal about Vitamins in our diets these days but we must not forget the mineral content of our food. The minerals are important in the proper formation of our bones, teeth and body tissues. When we have an insufficient amount of minerals these parts of the body are weakened or diseased. Calcium is necessary for blood clotting and for strong bones and teeth. Phosphorus is responsible for a healthy nervous system. Iron is necessary for the formation of the red blood pigment and it protects us against nutritional anaemia. Copper aids in the utilization of iron.

MILK is our richest source of calcium and we should include three glasses of it in our daily diet. Cheese has a higher percentage of calcium than milk as it is a more concentrated food, so if we could add a small amount of cheese to our daily menus it would be to our advantage; cheese is an excellent meat substitute. Other foods we should eat for their calcium content are beets, turnips, cauliflower, carrots, celery, asparagus, and beans.

When we take milk daily for calcium we will also get a fair amount of phosphorus. Lean meats, fish, eggs, cheese, nuts and whole wheat cereals contain appreciable amounts of phosphorus.

Liver, pork or beef, is an excellent source of iron so we should be on the lookout for new appetizing recipes for cooking it. Other organ meats such as heart, kidneys, sweet breads are also high in iron. Dried peas and beans, eggs and molasses are good sources of iron.

We will get sufficient copper from many common foods.

The lack of iodine causes goitre which is found in the inland provinces. Nowadays it is possible to buy table salt which has iodine added to it so we should use iodized salt all the time especially when we have little or no salt water foods.

We should bake and steam vegetables not only for the vitamin preservation but also for the mineral content. Because a certain amount of the latter is lost in the cooking water we should cook vegetables in as little BOILING water as possible and for as SHORT a time as possible. Never throw the water away ! You can use it for making cream soups, gravies, and sauces. You should boil fresh vegetables about five to 10 minutes, root vegetables such as turnips, parsnips, carrots twenty to thirty minutes, beets as much as forty-five minutes depending on their size.

Tips For Meat Ration

Whether you get a few raw "poison chance" or purchase a full coupon's worth, sausages give good ration value. They are quickly and easily prepared and there are all sorts of different ways of using them. Waffles and sausage are always popular, especially with the men of the family. The Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture suggests Overnight Sausages with Apple Waffles. They are sure to make a hit. The syrup problem is neatly solved by serving a real old-fashioned cream gravy instead.

The sausages are pricked and parboiled for five minutes, then cooked in a moderate oven, 350 F., for 25 minutes. They should be turned several times during cooking to ensure even browning. When the sausages are cooked, remove from the pan and keep hot. Pour off all but two tablespoons of fat; blend in two tablespoons flour and stir in two cups of milk. Stir until thick and smooth, then season with salt and pepper. Apple waffles are made from a plain waffle recipe to which is added half-cup of grated, tart raw apples. A crisp salad is the perfect accompaniment to a very delicious dish.

FORCES BENEFIT BY CAREFUL PACKAGING

The Post Office still has to issue warnings about sending syrup or jam or jelly through the mails. To avoid disappointment over damaged parcels, Postal officials emphasize that if any of these is to be mailed at all, it must be packed in a leak-proof tin with the lid soldered on. The tin should be surrounded with absorbent material and enclosed in a strong container which will hold up in shipping.

SELBY W. M. S.

The June meeting of Selby W. M. S. was held in the Sunday School room with Mrs. A. Frisken in charge of the programme, assisted by the president, Miss A. Wood. The theme was Strangers, especially Japanese. Mrs. A. Wood read an interesting story on stewardship. The scripture lesson was responded to by several members.

What makes a nation great was read by Mrs. A. Frisken and this was followed by a reading by Mrs. E. Price. Mrs. P. Amey and Mrs. L. McCutcheon sang a very beautiful duet. Mrs. A. McLeod read the scripture lesson, after which Mrs. J. Tice offered a short prayer. Mrs. J. Henderson, Mrs. Albert Sexsmith and Miss L. Hudgin gave a very impressive discussion on How we should treat the Japanese in our midst who is striving to become a good Canadian citizen. Mrs. Merrick read the last chapter of the study book. Miss Marie Price took the offering after which Mrs. A. Frisken closed with prayer.

VICTORIA W. I.

Members and visitors enjoyed the hospitality extended by Mrs. William Bath at her home at the regular monthly meeting of the Victoria Women's Institute. The president, Mrs. Jack McFarland, presided and opened the meeting in the usual way by all joining in singing the ode and repeating the creed. The roll call was well responded to by the exchange of flower slips. The delegate to the district annual, Mrs. Wilbert Bush, gave a splendid report, showing much thought in the preparation. Home economics was the months topic and Miss Vera McFarland was the convener for this programme. Unusually interesting current events were given by Mrs. Ivan McFarland. A discussion on sugar saving experiences was well responded to and many new ideas were exchanged. A splendid paper was well given by Mrs. McCracken and clearly defined the duties of the average housewife of today's life. Her many duties every morning, especially Victory gardens, later than poultry raising in increased as well as helping with the grain crops, make her the woman in any problem as the most important. In addition to these extra tasks she is proud to the home nurse, cook, seamstress, harber and altogether maid of all work.

Mrs. Jack McFarland delighted with a humorous reading entitled and heartily applauded. Each readily gave a time-saving hint. A hint when requested to the Institute. An interesting beam contest was won by Mrs. Ivan McFarland.

The singing of the National Anthem brought a pleasant and enjoyable evening to a close after which lunch was served.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

A largely attended and inspirational meeting of the W. M. S. Napanee, was held on Friday of last week, in the Sunday School hall. The hall was decorated with profusion of beautiful summer flowers and presented an inviting appearance. Mrs. Geo. Sutter, president, opened the meeting with the devotional exercises, reading Isaiah 65. She stressed the importance of putting first things first. She said, "God's work is the only one that is never completed." Mrs. R. G. Gilbride, a former resident of Napanee was the guest speaker. Mrs. E. J. Cobill read the report from the Dominion Council meeting held in Toronto, and was given a hearty vote of thanks for the splendid report. Mrs. C. B. Creighton closed the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Ford, members present and visitors.

FOREST MILLS W. A.

The June meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Asselstine, with an attendance of fifteen members and six visitors. Mrs. John Benn conducted the devotional period which was followed by singing a hymn, and prayer by Mrs. Bell Maxwell, an original contributed by Mrs. Lewis Farnsworth. Mrs. Asselstine, Mrs. Mrs. George Brooks was followed by a vocal duet by Mrs. Fred Mills and Mrs. Moore Sandford. The rest of the meeting was closed by a hymn.

During the business session it was decided to give a thankoffering instead of the annual lawn tea. Mrs. George Brooks proved a delightful hostess for the afternoon and the sum of $2.67 was realized.

The social program was presided over by Misses June Benn and Mrs. Cook, and was as follows: National Anthem, a solo by Noreen Asselstine, readings by Mrs. Lewis Farnsworth and Mrs. Bert Asselstine, a flower test competition which Mrs. Benn was won by Mrs. A. C. Dafoe. The hostess and her assistants served a dainty lunch.

Roundup In Poland

Settlers returning to Sweden from Poland report that the Nazis have adopted drastic measures of late, while in a frenzied campaign to round up Polish workers.

Thousands (Lapanji, or forced - labor units, the Germans' drive covered all areas around the market places and streets cordoned off, and soldiers with automatic weapons leaped out and seize pedestrians and by-standers.

At Warsaw's Kercele, which is similar to the Caledonian Market in London, German troops marched in with a band playing spirited tunes. Poles who came out to listen were surrounded and forced into several overcrowded railroad cars for shipment to Germany. The market then was broken up and all goods were confiscated by the Nazis, despite their recent legalization of the Kercele, and a written agreement permitting Poles to sell goods there.

NAMES OF MEN ENLISTED FOR ACTIVE SERVICE FROM NAPANEE AND THE SURROUNDING DISTRICT

THE FAR EASTERN POWDER KEG

BY MAX HILL

News dispatches from Moscow and the short wave broadcasts from Tokio —virtually the only source of news we have from Japan now — would give one the impression that all was well between those two obviously antagonistic countries.

Such is not the case, emphatically. They have nothing in common, much to quarrel about.

It is interesting to note that it is Japan which is applying the "soft pedal" rather than the Russians, whose hatred for the Japanese is frequently expressed in no uncertain terms.

The Russians boldly describe the Siberian frontier between Manchukuo and Korea as the Far Eastern front, as they have done since 1938, and they have kept two well-equipped armies out in that area despite the trials of the war with Germany. Japan's hate and fear the Russians. A Japanese who was influential in the Government at that time — 1941 — once told me what it was. He said:

"Russia in America, protected from all sides, have never had a big bear on your back all of the time."

That hatred is shared by the Russians, but not the fear. The war with Germany has fortified their quiet confidence.

In the recent session of the Diet in Tokio, Russia was not even mentioned in the shortwave broadcasts although approval was given for a special bond issue of some 20,000,000,000 yen for special war purposes. For many years Japan has maintained an army of almost 1,000,000 men in Manchukuo and Chosen, waiting for the proper time to strike.

The war with the United States and Great Britain disrupted the plans of her army, a group of military masters who have an arbitrary and final say on all that goes on in Japan. They were forced to turn their attention from the north to the South Pacific. But they have not forgotten the Russians.

Just how powerful the Japanese really are on the subject of relations with Russia is indicated by the inspired statement from Tokio. No mention was made in the home service broadcasts of the recent dissolution of the Comintern. The Japanese Government would rather not have their people know of this development.

And spokesman Hori of the official board of information in Tokio tried to scoff at rumors that the soviets might lease bases to the United States. It was absurd, he said, to think the Allies might get air bases from Russia in the Far East, although he admitted such a development might have a serious affect on Japanese-Russia relations.

Japan has only one time to attack Russia — the present. Next year probably will be too late, because the full-force of the Allies will be mobilized against her. Hitler's Germany by this time, if not defeated, will be seriously weakened.

Russia has not the striking power in the Far East that the Japanese now have, but she has at least her normal strength, if not an emergency force.

One factor is definite on the side of the Japanese distance.

Vladivostok is a full eleven days journey by rail from Moscow, and the maritime provinces, valuable to Japan because of the fishing rights, are vulnerable. Perhaps Russia could not hold them long against a determined drive, but the new short-cut route via Canada, Alaska and Arctic Siberia is a potent factor the Japanese have not overlooked.

Russia is satisfied to maintain the present troubled but uncertain relations which prevail between her and Japan in the Far East—but this may not be true of Japan.

She has too much at stake to permit the United Nations a probable avenue of attack through Siberia, and she may decide to strike to the north also in an attempt to complete the circle of bases she has secured her home islands.

This is a factor in the war which has been neglected recently, due to developments in Africa and Europe, but just the same it is a powder keg which might be touched off at any time.

GENERAL ELECTION FOR PROV. OF ONTARIO WILL BE HELD AUG. 4

Expect Soldier's Proxies will be Returned by Election Date

Premier Nixon announced, last week that a general election will be held in Ontario, on August 4th.

Nomination Day is Wednesday, July 28th, and the courts of revision will be kept open until a day or two before polling, to permit late arriving proxies to be placed on the lists.

An Order-in-Council to dissolve the Legislature was passed at Tuesday's Cabinet session, and was forwarded to the Lieutenant - Governor for his signature.

Earlier the Premier was informed by Major Alex. Lewis, Chief Election Officer, that in his opinion sufficient time had been allowed for the proxies to be distributed, completed and made ready for return to Ontario.

The first completed proxy forms will be returning to Canada by air in the latter part of next week, Major Lewis said in a statement to the Cabinet. Planes will also be used to bring other batches of proxies to Ontario. An August 4 election means that a month, possibly less in the case of some of the proxies, is being allowed for the agents in Ontario to receive the proxies and have the names placed on the voting list.

STANDING AT DISSOLUTION

The standing at dissolution is as follows: Liberals, 61; Progressive Conservatives, 19; vacant 10. The unrepresented seats are Cochrane South, Huron-Bruce, Fort William, Kingston, Lincoln, Toronto High Park, Toronto Bellwoods, Toronto St. George, Hastings East and Ontario.

TWO ANNIVERSARIES CELEBRATED AT ANGLICAN CHURCH

70th Anniversary Laying of Corner Stone of Church and 50th Anniversary of Rector's Ordination

Two noteworthy anniversaries were celebrated last Sunday at St. Mary Magdalene's Anglican Church, at the morning service at 11:00 a.m. The occasion was the 70th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the church under Masonic auspices and also was the 50th anniversary of the ordination of the present rector, the Venerable Archdeacon, R. J. Dumbrille.

Members of Union Lodge No. 9 A.F.& A.M., Napanee, attended divine service at the church last Sunday and were privileged to hear a most inspiring sermon delivered by the Grand Chaplain for the Province of Ontario, Col. the Rev Canon W. E. Kidd, M.A., M.C., who was vicar of the church from 1911-1915.

The Ven. Archdeacon R. J. Dumbrille welcomed the Masons of Napanee and district to the service and expressed his own personal pleasure in having Col. Kidd present to deliver the address.

Col. Kidd, recalling with great pride, his days of active association with St. Mary Magdalene's, referred to the erecting of the church as the outcome of the desire for expansion when Christian folk worshipped together, and said that the Masonic Order had engaged in the laying of the corner stone, because of its close association with the ideals of the Church.

Archdeacon Dumbrille, who is the Chaplain of Union Lodge, was assisted in the service by three prominent officials of Grand Lodge, all of whom are members of Union Lodge: J. M. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain; Lew Reader; W. S. Herrington, Past Grand Master ,who read the first lesson; and W. S. Wilson, Past District Deputy, who read the second lesson. Russell F. Hunter, of Union Lodge, was soloist and the choir was under the direction of W. R. Eppes.

A special order of service was prepared for the occasion, the cover showing a picture of St. Mary Magdalene's Church and the new Masonic Temple, giving the names and the years of office of the church pastors and also the 1943 officers of Union Lodge.

Among the number from district lodges who were present were John A. Brown, D.G.M. from Tamworth, and G. W. Cuppage, P.G.S. from Bath.

The members met at the Temple before and after the service, under the superintendence of the Building Master, W. Bro. W. O. Coates. Canterbury bells in their loftiest summer bloom were arranged in the church chancel and in the lodge rooms, the gift of Bro. Harry F. Milling.

The present St. Mary Magdalene's Church replaced the original St. Mary Magdalene's Church which was erected in 1835 on the corner of Thomas Street and the Newburgh Road, just east of the Thomas St. C. N. R. crossing. The present church is one of the finest churches in the diocese of Ontario and is adorned with many handsome memorials.

Ministers in charge of the church since its erection in 1873 were Rev. J. J. Bogert, Archdeacon T. Bedford-Jones, Rev. Arthur Jarvis, Rev. F. T. Dibb, Rev. W. E. Kidd, Rev. J. H. Coleman ,and the present rector Archdeacon Dumbrille.

The Rector, Archdeacon Dumbrille has been in charge of St. Mary Magdalene's Church for about fifteen years. Up to the time of the death of the non-resident rector , Rev. Canon Arthur Jarvis, in 1936, Mr. Dumbrille was vicar, since that time he has been the rector.

Archdeacon Dumbrille was born in Grenville County, near Brockville, where he spent his boyhood. He attended Trinity College, Toronto, and in 1893 was ordained as a deacon and later was raised to the priesthood. His first charge was at Newington in Stormont. He has held charges at Chrysler, North Gower, Iroquois and Kemptville. He was made a Canon in 1922 and Archdeacon of Frontenac in 1934.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT BENEFIT SOFTBALL GAME

A fairly good crowd of fans was in attendance at Gibbard Memorial Park on Dominion Day, to see the Deseronto Redi-Heats and the 47th Battery Baseball teams tussle to an 11 to 10 victory for the Artillery boys.

The locals grabbed the lead in the second frame of the game only to strop to accept and in the third the score read 6 to 1 for the soldiers. In the fifth and the visitors piled the willow for four more and allowed the battery team a were two. Persistent hitting by the batters and errors on the part of the Deseronto lads allowed the team team to ease up to a 10-9 standing coming into the ninth. In this frame the locals came through with the necessary to win and held the Deseronto nine in their time at bat.

The sponsors of this game, which was played for the benefit of Hugh Brennan, who was injured early in the season, wish to convey their thanks to those who contributed by purchasing tickets and attending, also to the Deseronto Redi-Heat team for making the game possible.

Magistrate's Court

William Wade, Napanee, appeared before Magistrate Garvin in Napanee Police Court on Monday and was convicted of a charge of resisting a police officer while in execution of his duty. He was ordered to pay a fine of $15.00 and costs of $21.00, or serve two months in gaol. The charge was laid against Mr. Wade following an argument in the Grand Cafe over the price Mr. Wade was being charged for a meal. The proprietor called the Chief of Police ,who attempted to reason with Wade, but without success. The Chief stated that Wade became abusive and offered violence which resulted in the Chief sustaining a sprained finger and a cut lee. While the scuffle was in progress near the door of the restaurant a baby carriage belonging to Mrs. Milton Asselstine was damaged. The Magistrate allowed Mrs. Asselstine $3.50 damages and Chief Moore $5.00.

Hearing in the case of T. Brummel, charged with reckless driving, was postponed for one week.

Victory Garden Yields Lost Ring

When digging in his back garden on Havelock Street, Toronto, a few days ago, Mr. Alex Murray found a gold ring with three large whole pearls set across the top. It proved to be his mother's long lost engagement ring which she had exactly thirty-seven years ago this spring. The pearls were badly damaged, no doubt by the action of fertilizer in the soil. Mr. Primell had the ring restored to its former beauty and sent as a birthday gift to his mother, who with his father are at their summer home on Murray Bay, Kashabe Lake.

Mortal—Dig Victory Gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Primell have been annual summer residents of Kashabe Lake for the past twenty-three years. Mr. Primell was for over thirty years railway mail clerk on the Toronto - Montreal run and for two years was employed as the same, occupation from Toronto to North Bay, also Toronto to London.

THE PROVINCIAL ELECTION

The Provincial Election which is set for August 4th is not creating the general interest it would have done in normal times. There is a good deal of discussion as to whether Mr. Nixon should have called an election at this time or not. As for any clear-cut issue, calling for debate and public discussion it is not discoverable by anything the party leaders are saying or by newspaper comment.

We are not interested now that the election is set, as to whether it ought to have been held or not. It is to be held—that's settled. The best we can do about it is to cast our vote where, in our conscience, it will do the most good.

Certainly the Liberal Party has been discredited by the actions of Mr. Hepburn and by the political saw-off which landed Mr. Conant a good job, and Mr Nixon the leadership of the party. But the Liberal Party is pretty deeply entrenched in the life of the Province, not only so, but the temper of the people, ordinarily, is to refuse to swap horses while crossing the stream. In a time af war no government is usually sustained at the polls. The reaction comes later.

But there is another unknown factor in this election. The Canadian Commonwealth Federation is preparing to put a candidate in most of the ridings. This is something unprecidtable. For, while it is true that C. C. F. Candidates have entered the fray before, yet they never have done so on so widespread a character as they are now doing.

Whereas there is no difference whatever, between the two major parties in Ontario, the C. C. F. has a platform which is radically different from either or both the Liberal or the Progressive Conservative Parties. Thus the appearance of the C. C. F. candidates will give the voter a chance to register his vote against the old parties and in favor of a more advanced streamlined progressive group.

There can be no doubt but there is a growing disquiet in the minds of thinking people over the prospects of post-war boom and depression which is characteristic of our present economic set-up. This disquiet will be reflected in the vote for the C. C. F. candidates. With a candidate running in the majority of the ridings it is conceivable that this vote will succeed in returning a number of C. C. F. members. Few or many, their presence in the Ontario House will have a very salutary influence. If there should be elected a group of young, fearless, vigorous, idealistic men or women, their presence will influence, very profoundly, for good both the older parties.

In many ways this will be a most interesting election. It will tell which way the wind is blowing and reveal whether or not the dissatisfaction with the older parties is of such depth as to wean a considerable body of voters away from their old affiliations to the group that represents the more socialist sentiment.

NOT NICE

The newspapers are rubbing it in a bit too strenuously these days, when they are describing in glowing terms the opening of the Trans-Canada Highway. Of course, they are always careful to say it has not been officially opened yet, but the last leg has been completed so that a person can drive all the way across Canada without going off Canadian soil. Now, what good is that, we ask you? When we have no gas and our tires are so thin they look like the polished surface of a billiard ball. And anyway, even if we had tires and gas, how could anybody get time for such a trip across Canada, with all the work that has to be done.

We would not have minded a letter, news dispatch, but long descriptive articles with pictures of wide artistic bridges and stories of lakes with speckled trout just off to the side of the highway is— rubbing it in a bit too thick.

POOR GUESSERS

The Germans have proved themselves poor guessers on more than one occasion during the present war. Perhaps, therefore, we ought not to be surprised that they guessed wrong again when they proclaimed to all the world that the United Nations would invade Europe on July 3rd. Certainly the Axis would like to know just when the invasion is planned for. And perhaps they were fishing for news when they were so vociferous in their prophesies. They hoped perhaps they might get a denial from Premier Churchill or President Roosevelt. If that was their game ,it did not work.

The sum and substance of the whole matter is that the Germans are jittery and they would give anything to know just where and when the invasion will start. In the meantime the United Nations are saaying nothing. But they are not idle. The terrific bombing which is going on over Germany and Italy these days is beyond our ability to visualize. Whole cities and communities are being wiped out almost daily, and it may be that the process will go on for a long time yet. For if the United Nations can succeed in reducing production, and wrecking communications to any considerable degree, it will be bound to have a very serious effect on the morale of the Axis population. Perhaps this "softening up" process may continue for some time yet.

Of this, however, we are now sure, the initiative has been wrested from the hands of the Axis. In football parley, the United Nations have possession of the ball and can call the play. And that, as any follower of the sport knows, is of the greatest possible advantage.

THEY'RE HUNGRY—I'M NOT !

The heart of the Canadian people is sound. No human appeal in these days of awful tragedy and suffering, goes unanswered. We might almost have been justified in assuming that, after the recent war loan had been oversubscribed, the people would have been in no mood to reply to further patriotic and humanitarian pleas. But, not so ! The appeal for money with which to purchase food and clothing for the oppressed Greeks, has met with a most generous response. Our community has contributed loyally.

An interesting sidelight on the spirit and temper of our people is found in the way one man made his contribution. A farmer in the district sent in a generous donation to the fund. In a few days a similar amount was received for the same fund from the same man. Thinking there had been an error, and that the farmer had overlooked his earlier donation, he was asked what disposition should be made of the second cheque. Back came a postcard with a single sentence: "They're hungry—I'm not, apply as before".

The fund is still open; there is still an opportunity to share with those who are hungry some of our abundance. The committee will welcome further donations. Nothing is too much for us to do for those who, in Greece as in other countries, are in dire need of the barest necessities of life.

MR. BRACKEN AND MANPOWER

Mr. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader, addressed a large audience in Toronto on Friday night. It was his first political address in Toronto since he became Leader of the Party. Mr. Bracken is not a colourful speaker. He has little of the fireworks style of oratory. But he wins his audience by a clearly reasoned and pleasantly spoken manner of address. Mr Bracken had quite a lot of criticism of the present administration's manpower policy. He probed the weak spot in the Government's armour when he tackled this situation. For in spite of all the good things which the King Government has to its credit, the way in which the manpower situation has been bungled is a serious impediment to the national war effort. Mr. Bracken was on sure ground when he said: "My own observations reaffirm the view so widely held, that a great many conditions which obviously exist are a direct result of the failure of the Government to adopt an honest, efficient and equitable manpower policy. This chief source of so much distrust and suspicion can only be corrected by the adoption, even at this late date, of a rational system of compulsory selective service for our farms, factories and forces. Only in this way can be allocated fairly the remaining resources of man and womanpower so it can contribute in the fullest measure to the prosecution of the war effort."

Anyone who knows the farming situation in Ontario, knows that there is a desperate need of help. Boys of ten and twelve can be seen any of these days doing a man's work—driving team, running a tractor, a hay rake or a tedder. All this, while a trainee army, which is of little service to the nation. Why, asks Mr. Bracken, it it? (the trainee army). "Why", he asked, "is it not made available to the tasks of the farmer, the factory, the mine, if it is not being used where fighting must be done ? Can anyone conceive of enemy armies ever reaching Canada until we have lost the two oceans and until the forces of the United Nations are destroyed ? If that day comes the hand of fate will be against us. It is ridiculous to imagine the draftee Home Army meeting the crisis."

This is all too true. It is not yet too late for Mr. King to restore public confidence in his government, by adopting some realistic manpower policy.

Mr. Bracken is doing the country good service in laying bare these weaknesses of the present administration.

HITLER'S WRATH DEFIED BY GERMAN CHURCH

FROM REVIEW OF WORLD AFFAIRS

Perhaps the most interesting tendency in Germany is the slowly growing religious opposition to Nazism. There is the strange story of Col. Verner Moelders, a tough fundamentalist Nazi, who became a famous air ace, and was eventually murdered by the Gestapo following his sudden conversion to Christianity after experiences on the Russian front. Before his assassination, Moelders wrote a long confession to a Benedictine he had known in youthhood. A copy of it fell into the hands of the bishop of Breslau, and thousands are now secretly circulating it to hand in many parts of Germany. This is likely to have had an influence in the armed forces, where Moelders was regarded as a Nazi hero. The sudden change in his outlook and his subsequent violent death, have made a profound impression.

For some long time there has been growing organized opposition to Nazism from many of the churches. Nazism, they blindly see, is basically incompatible with Christianity. Nobody minds this being true when the Nazis themselves. They have introduced many repressive measures against the Church. It is worth glancing at some of those particularly directed against Roman Catholics. We mention these especially because representatives of Roman Catholic Latin Europe have particular international significance.

A large number of convents and monasteries have been seized. Roman Catholic congresses have been banned. The suppression of Diocesan Journals, the closing of Roman Catholic private schools, and the curtailment and exclusion of religious instruction in others are examples. In March, 1941, Archbishop Groberg of Freiburg bluntly stated that it was the deadly earnest intention of the Nazis to root out Christianity altogether as an enemy of German philosophy and the German people. He said that, faced with such a challenge, it would be sinful for Roman Catholics to remain merely passive. In December, 1941, Cardinal Faulhaber gave further proof of war between Church and State. He complained that no paper was being released for new editions of the catechism, prayer books for children, Bible histories, or prayer books. Moreover, evening classes for the instruction of young people in religion were forbidden by police or Party-ians connected with the blackout. Although young people were permitted to remain at cinemas and cabarets up to 9 p.m, they were not allowed to go to meetings for religious instruction. Also in December, 1941, the German bishops sent a memorandum to the Government protesting it with violating the principles of the concordat.

Archbishop Grober has frequently declared the serious increase in the influence of non-Christian ideas and principles, upon which the Reich is founded. He categorically stated that Christian truths are precisely and fundamentally opposed. In a letter to the Pope in 1941, the bishops expressed apprehension at plans for the destruction of a National Church, which church, they declared, would neither honor Christ nor worship a personal God. In March, 1942, Cardinal Faulhaber attacked this Nazi plan. In 1943 the Archbishop of Breslau, Cardinal Bertram, said in a pastoral letter that millions of Germans are trying to tear the Christian faith from their hearts and to replace it by an anti-religious ideology.

Count von Galen, the Bishop of Munster, has also taken a strong line, and in a series of bold sermons has publicly denounced the political attack on religion. He, and other bishops, have charged the Government with refusing to allow young people to gather in churches, hostels and labor camps, and even at home, to take part in any form of worship or religious ceremony.

In November, 1942, in a joint pastoral by the archbishops and bishops of the Greater Reich, the Nazi population policy was denounced as a deliberate denial of Christianity. It was stated that deliberately organized youth gatherings encouraged promiscuity and the depravity was fast spreading.

Compulsory marriage, with the object of raising the birthrate, was also strongly condemned. Another Nazi practice which has caused great indignation in church circles is the killing of feeble-minded and unproductive citizens. The bishops have pointed out that if this horrible practice is tolerated, no one will be safe, for any committee can put a man's name down on the list of unproductives, and he will be quietly taken away to some hospital and there destroyed. Count von Galen has also strongly attacked the Gestapo methods, and the Bishop of Berlin has denounced the Nazi judicial system.

Although the hierarchy has not blessed what the Germans call the anti-Bolshevik crusade, nevertheless it is the anti-Russian policy of National Socialism which at least criticizes. This has made enemies for the Roman Church in many quarters outside Germany. Moreover, the bishops and clergy, like others in most countries, and of nearly all denominations, tell their people to fight patriotically, in the armed forces of the State. The quarrel between church and State in Germany is one over philosophical and internal questions, and does not at present directly affect the issue of the war itself. This may come later as the situation unfolds itself. At present it is true to say that, from the point of view of internal politics, one of the largest and most effective organized opposition to National Socialism is to be found in the churches.

Sure, The Nazis Know They're Licked, But —

BY DeWITT MACKENZIE

While we are awaiting development in the war theatres I'd like to put on hand an intriguing question which you might like to try your hand at answering. Have you ever felt like this:

"I don't Hitler know that he will be beaten in the long run?"

Well, I've been submitted to me I replied without hesitation:

"Of course he does. And so does General Dietrich Command, for they are tonflight soldiers, and the cards are stacked against them."

"Well, then" persisted my questioner, "why doesn't Hitler quit now and save Germany from unnecessary suffering for his country?"

That is a hard one to answer, is it? When you sit down to figure it out, a lot of different angles rush to the mind. The first thing that strick me was that my reply hadn't been responsive and that therefore I was startine from a faulty premise. My questioned have said that Hitler and his military experts admitted they are beaten — barring some unforseen development in the nature of a near miracle. The odds are vastly against that. There's never always a possibility that fate might give them a break. And so long as a whisper of chance remains, they have to fight on. They hang on — unless frenzy overcomes morale.

What then, is there to encourage them in holding out ? In answering this it's mighty important for us to remember that any straw is a liferaft to a drowning man. In brief we may say that any developement which is unfavorable to the Allies is grabbed by the Germans as a potential means of salvation.

Such as we watch the Boche eagerly to see what hurts he has sustained and whether his morale is breaking, so he watches us. And in his despairing condition he is bound to magnify little straws of hope.

Take this for illustration: Recently Lewellin, reporting on the damage done to the German industrial city of Dortmund by bombing, cited the fact that reports of air raid victims had been heavily damaged and sending out of production. This is an important item, which will help to beat Hitler.

Two collieries—my hat! We get satisfaction out of that, while at the same time the news reports record that some 100,000 coal miners still are at their jobs in the Ruhr. Birmingham tells us this has not resulted in a cut of 20 per cent in the production of steel. Its said that the reduction will mean a loss of 2,000,000 tons of war-vital steel every twenty-four hours.

How much hope do you suppose the Axis extends from a given situation like the American coal strike? That's one—and he's pretty smart. Americans are casting plenty of straws in the hot wind for the enemy to grasp. One of the most disquieting aspects of the situation is the developments of an undoubted complacence in some parts. I refer you to the staggering statement made by Lieut. - Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the U. S. Army service forces, in the current issue of the trade publication Mill and Factory. He specifies two aspects of this.

The general said that their Army was so short of weapons and material that equipment employed in training soldiers was being sent abroad for combat use. He stated that the May output for the Army's supply program was $1,067,783,000 under the month's quota of 1,600,941,000.

That's a bad score, and the reasons for it are shocking. Gen. Somervell attributes the drop to several factors, including floods, labor shortages and turnover, work stoppage, but "by far the greater part of the failure was due to the psychological let-down — the over-confidence that has swept the country with favorable news from the battle front."

In short, the United States is suffering from what the general describes as the "sedative effect" of good news from the war theatres. We shouldn't delude ourselves with the idea that the Boche doesn't know this, for his agents are everywhere.

BURMA BATTLE HINGES ON EUROPE

BY WAVERLEY ROOT

There seems to be no serious difference of opinion on the theory that the first step towards the relief, of China has to be the reconquest of Burma. The only forseeable alternative is a Russian attack on Japan, which would permit the Russian Far East Army in Siberia to move overland into China; but, that eventuality rests in the domain of high politics, and it is not possible for strategists at present to divest themselves of the responsibility for an ultimate move to Burma on the basis of the hope that action in the north will make action in the south unnecessary.

It is also pretty much of an axiom that Japan can only be attacked with hope of real success from the mainland—that is, from China. Thus a campaign in Burma must some day do the crucial campaign of the Far Eastern war.

But when? In public discussion of this point, ignorance of a number of the controlling factors has been displayed. It may therefore be useful to set down some of them:

No attack can be made on Burma for the next four or five months, because the monsoon season is on. Some laymen are inclined to return cynically to this statement. "Don't it rain on the Japs, too?" would be answer is this: Bad weather handicaps the offense, but aids the defence.

The famous argument by figures expressed in the question: "Why can't an Indian army of 2,000,000 drive out the Japanese occupation force of 60,000?" makes the mistake of comparing a paper force with an effective fighting army on the scene of action Of India's 2,000,000 knock out half a million immediately for those in service in other theatres of operation, plus casualties. Subtract another 800,000 to represent those not yet properly trained or equipped. There remains 700,000. From that number, enough reserves must be held back to safeguard India, a subcontinent the size of the United States. In case disaster to Burma should embolden the Japanese to attempt the invasion of India. The proportion immediately dwindles considerably.

But, it may be objected, it is still easily possible to outnumber the Japanese two or three or four to one in Burma. Again, this is a paper conception. Burma, a land of jungle and mountain and rampaging rivers, almost without roads, provides one of the most difficult terrains in the world for offensive military operations. It would matter little if the Allies had 2,000,000, or 3,000,000, or 4,000,000 troops to put in this area; could not possibly be applied effective fighting. The limit to the number of troops which can be engaged in Burma is limited by the country's geography.

Probably Japan now has there the optimum number that can be used successfully in her 60,000 man defensive army. It is an open question whether the Allies might otherwise have the Japs — the defenders — outnumbered. Generally speaking, from the nature of the ground, the motorized units all important for aviation, plays have little part in the way of tanks. The problem of and supply and ammunition, and cover is the abundance of the troops and supplies are all crucial. Docks and ports in southern Burma, however, are not of much importance. The Japanese have successfully from the air. The weakest point of Japan's defense in Burma — the Burma into India — is at this time when India was much better prepared than she is now. There is no roads between the two countries. Before the war, direct railway connection between Burma and India existed. At this time.

There are also no railroads or roads in Burma, with the exception of one minor line running from Irrawaddy River valley to the Assam railroad in India. This is not necessarily always slight. It is motivated by the fact that there are no invaders at this river, which has a hard surface and is navigable for vessels of a mile or two within a short distance of the Japs, too! An invasion of Burma must be made by air-borne. It is therefore a question of shipping — and the United Nations do not have half enough shipping, and probably will not have that until the end of the European war releases what is tied up in sinking the vessels of the Axis.

The conclusion of military observers regarding the essential first steps in the campaign to retake Burma can be retaken and the Japanese consequently reinforced easily, by concentrating all possible effort in Europe in the attempt to finish off the Boche as quickly as possible, after which all available shipping can be turned from the east to make the invasion of Burma possible. However, there will be no careful thought given to the problem of the situation on both eastern and western fronts, for the reason that is more serious than many observers realize, and there is every chance that Japan can knock her out of the war before the invasion of Burma can be undertaken, if the European conflict drags out too long or if there is not possible to muster soon enough support in the meantime to hold off the Japanese.

Lesson Text: Exodus 2: 1- 12
"GOD CALLS A LEADER"

A short time ago, a book was published bearing the title "The Price of Leadership." It was an impressive contribution to the solution of to-day's problems It assumed that leadership has to be paid for, and those who would attempt to direct the life and manners of others, or who give constructive direction to the religious, political, educational, economic life of the community, cannot depend on study alone. The price must be paid in long hours of study and contemplation; days, weeks, and years must be spent in preparation for the opportunity which may come or may not.

The world to-day is in the hands of clever leaders. Whatever we may think of their leadership, the men who are guiding the destinies of the world have the qualities of leadership, and all have paid the price. Stalin, for years unknown, worked and schemed, preparing for "the day" that his world-shaking thoughts on Communism would be put into effect. President Roosevelt fought against what seemed a fatal handicap, reading and studying as he struggled back to health. Premier Churchill, for years concentrated his thoughts and attention on the procedure to be followed in time of war, such as that in which we are engaged and which he envisioned, should break out. When the time came Great Britain, in her extremity turned to Prime Minister Churchill, and he was ready.

When Joseph died, the people of Israel were in dire straits. They lacked leadership. They had been a favoured people, but they had depended on Joseph. But when he died the Egyptians, not the slaves of the Egyptians, but God was preparing for the future. This child Moses was saved by a clever ruse. He was trained and educated according to the plans of God. He might have been a great leader of the Egyptians, but he never forgot his own people. He suffered with them; he felt their oppression and in a fit of passion, struck an Egyptian who was abusing a Hebrew. Then he fled to Midian, becoming a shepherd in an area in and around Mount Sinai. Here, out in the open, he had much time for contemplation. His mind, harped back continually to the oppressed people of Egypt. Then one day he saw a bush afire but not consumed. He went to see it, and likely the voice of God spoke to him. It gave it the flame-like appearance. Approaching it, he took off his shoes realizing the place on which he stood. And there he underwent such a great crisis in his experience.

Standing at the burning bush, he heard God's call to a life of service for His oppressed people. He had some misgivings. He had to go into the thing carefully himself. He did however, in his own heart that he had called him to the special task. Minor matters had to be settled. But the main issue was clear. He had called him and he could not refuse.

Now, to be sure, not everybody called by God to be a national leader. In the world lies in desperate need of leaders in the local church, in the local community, in every person seek leaders for a Sunday school, for a young people's study group and he becomes powerful aware of the dearth of leaders and women who are willing to pay the price of leadership, unwilling to look the voice of God to a service for which that there is a call of God.

Almost invariably, when nations fail to produce great leaders, great ones will emerge. In Russia, in Germany and Italy, in many and Italy, arisen who have plunged the world into tragedy and catastrophe which could not have happened had nations been given capable leadership. The failure of nations to produce good, self - sacrificing leaders, has left them an easy prey to unscrupulous demagogue of wrecking politicians.

The Democratic nations are in need of young, consecrated Christian leaders. Men and women who have heard the call of God, who are willing to pay the price which He demands of them. In the church, that leadership should be found. The Christian Church itself suffers from the lack of leadership, so noticeable in politics. We will not succeed in meeting the spiritual challenge of Communism and Fascism, until men and women in the Church here have attuned to hear the call of God, and their eyes opened to see the leading hosts with all its implications. That means the payment of the price. But if the price is not paid in that way it will continue to be paid in blood and treasure.

NEWS FROM TAMWORTH SCHOOL

The Tamworth Continuation School closed for the year 1942-43 on Wednesday, June 29. In addressing the pupils regarding the coming holidays Mr. Miller stressed the importance of helping in the garden, on the farm and in war industry. Fifteen pupils had gone out at Easter on the government farm labour scheme and he hoped that every one would help in some way to increase garden or farm production. Good wishes for happy holidays were expressed, also, by the Principal. It was a good thing, he said, for us to be out in the world of nature, to enjoy the sunsets and to recognize God in the beauty all about us. Speaking of education he emphasized the importance of good citizenship and the great need of it in our own country and in the world to-day.

The examination results for the year were released on Wednesday morning also. Nine students attained the honour class honours, six of these being from Grade X. The highest percentage was attained by Rowena Milligan, grade ten student.

The following pupils were then presented with prizes for high standing:—

Grade XII Latin—Lillian Burd.
Grade XII French—Ferne Wagar.
Grade XII History—Lillian Burd.
History Note Book—Valerie Allison.
Grade XI Latin—Cora Gray.
Grade XI French—Cora Gray.
Grade XI History—Cora Gray.
History Note Book—Myrtle Young.
Grade X Latin—Rowena Milligan.
Grade X French—Reta Tyner.
Grade X Can. History—Mary Adair.
History Note Book—Mae Thomson.
Geography Note Book—Mae Thomson.
Grade IX Art—Bette Mitchell and Shirley Mitchell.
Art Scrap Book—Marjorie Hawley.
French—Monita McMullen.
French Scrap Book— Gladys Renaud.
Canadian History — Herman Ackerman.
History Note Book — Gladys Renaud.

In expressing her good wishes to the pupils for the holiday season, Miss Smith, the Mathematics teacher said that, while high marks were to be commended, the steady worker with whole-some attitudes who often had to work hard at them and under considerable difficulty was perhaps to be more highly commended.

A vote was taken on the student who during the year had exhibited the best qualities of leadership, school spirit, cooperation and conscientiousness. It resulted in a tie and it was decided to postpone the awarding of the prize. The Literary Society is considering giving war savings certificates to the students who obtained first class honours.

Miss G. Smith has been appointed Associate examiner in Upper School Algebra at the Department of Education. Her duties begin July 6th.

Miss Phyllis Paul has been appointed teacher in the Napanee Public School. She will be attending Summer School at Queen's University, this summer.

Mr. Jacob Wagar has just completed forty years as caretaker of the Consolidated and Continuation School. In the performance of his duties during this time he has won the respect of both teachers and pupils, and it is with regret that news of his resignation has been received. At the commencement exercises of the Continuation School last November in appreciation of his work he was presented with a War Savings Certificate by the Literary Society.

The Late Mrs. R. J. Smith

The death occurred last Friday at her home on Pearl Street in South Napanee of Mrs. Robert J. Smith, in her 80th year. Mr. Embury came to Warsaw in the year 1911, after having organized the Embury Manufacturing Co., Rochester, some years earlier and became one of the most influential and useful citizens of Warsaw. Not only has his factory furnished considerable employment to the citizens of Warsaw, but his family has provided one of the most prominent and creditable in the village. The last ten years of his life were spent in gradually increasing retirement, and the three sons, Philip W. Frederick B. and William, have been operating the business for several years.

Mr. Embury's arrival in Warsaw, thirty-two years ago, was an event of large importance to the citizens of this village.

OBITUARY

MANLY OSTRANDER, DESERONTO

Residents of Deseronto heard with sincere regret of the passing of Manly Ostrander, of 29 Dundas St., at his home on Main Street, after an illness of over months. Deceased was for twenty years Principal of the Public School in Deseronto and was very much interested in the children of the school and always willing to assist in anything that was for the betterment of them. He was an active member of the United Church and for twenty years Superintendent of the Sunday School, only giving up when his health would not permit him to carry on.

In his earlier days he taught at Colborne, Hastings and North Bay. His first school was the one he had attended as a boy at South Bay.

He was born at South Bay, Prince Edward County, on December 29th, 1874 and was the son of the late Isaac Ostrander and his wife Clarissa Ferguson.

He was very proud of the book he had compiled telling of the Ostrander families and which he had called "The Reuse or Ostrander". It is just within the past few years that he had it printed.

He was married in 1899 to Mary Ann Gill, of Picton, and a family of three children survive, two sons, Cpl. Arthur Ostrander, with the Signal Corps, Overseas, and W. O. Howard Ostrander, with the R.C.A.F., Overseas and Blanche (Mrs. M. Dettori), of Deseronto, one grandchild, Donald Dettori.

Two daughters, Rose and Myrtle, died some years ago, Rose in 1916, at the age of 17 and Myrtle in 1925 at the age of 21 years.

In 1922 Mr. Ostrander was again married to Mrs. Myrtle Bell, who survives and also two step children, Mrs. Robert Pennell, of Concession and Guy, of Deseronto, and also five step grandchildren.

PRESENTATION TO BRIDE AND GROOM

A number of the Switzerville friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hogle, on Wednesday evening, June 30th, to honour of their daughter, Mrs. Lester Hogle. After a social time was spent together, Mr. Howard Craig made a few words of regret in losing Eileen from the church and Sunday school which she attended. Two girl friends of Eileen's, Miss Vivian Craig and Miss Phyllis Paul, presented Mr. and Mrs. Hogle with a beautiful electric table lamp, as a remembrance from the Switzerville friends. Eileen replied, thanking all for the lovely gift and inviting all to visit her in her new home. Dainty refreshments were then served and all joined in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hogle a long and a prosperous wedded life.

WEDDING BELLS

HODGETTS - WOODGER

White and pale pink peonies and syrinea formed the setting for the wedding at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 26th, in Trinity United Church, Cobourg, of Ruth, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Woodger, and John Edwin Hodgetts, William Street. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, Mr. Frank Parkinson, organist of the church, played the wedding music.

The bride entered the church with her uncle, Mr. F. A. Small, of Toronto, and looked lovely in a gown of white brocaded taffeta with finger-tip veil, held by a halo of chantilly lace and carried a nosegay of white sweetpeas and lily-of-the-valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Eleanor Woodger, who chose a powder blue brocaded taffeta and Miss Jean Small, cousin of the bride, of Toronto, in pale yellow brocaded taffeta, matching picture caps and carried nosegays of small yellow roses and forget-me-nots. Corp. K. S. Cooper, R.C.A.F., Trenton, and Mr. R. H. Soward, of Toronto.

DE CARLO - BALDWIN

A very pretty summer wedding took place at St. Gregory's Church, Picton, on Wednesday, June 23rd, at 10 o'clock, when Doris Ruth, the daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. Delbert Baldwin, became the bride of Francis Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. DeCarlo of Belleville, a member of Royal Canadian Ordinance Corps, in Kingston.

The ceremony was performed and the Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Meehan. For the occasion the church was beautifully decorated with peonies and ferns.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Daly Baldwin. She looked lovely in a street length dress of white chiffon with an all-over lace yoke and cuffs and white accessories, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses, and fern.

Her only attendant was her sister, Marion Baldwin, wearing ice blue chiffon, with flowered applique trimming and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, peonies and fern.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, to about 35 guests. Amid showers of confetti the happy couple left for Ottawa and points east. On their return here they will visit friends and relatives in Chippewa and Belleville. For travelling, the bride chose a navy tailor's jersey suit with brown accessories.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl rosary and a white Missal covered prayer book, to the bridesmaid a gold locket and chain and pearl to the best man a gold tie pin.

KING — WAGAR

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Wagar, on Saturday, June 19th, at 1:00 p.m., when their eldest daughter, Vera May was united in marriage to Ross Stanley King, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall King, Moscow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. E. Frair, of Enterprise.

The bridal party entered the effectively arranged living room to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. William Jackson. A T C M course of the bride, who also played softly during the signing of the register. The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor-length gown of heaven blue triple sheer over satin, with shirring at the waistline, from which the skirt fell in graceful folds to the floor. Her finger-tip veil was held in place by a coronet of Sweetheart roses, and she carried a bouquet of pink peonies and heliotrope. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the groom. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Freda Watson, of Moscow, as maid of honour. A floor-length gown of pale pink sheer, her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a headdress of flowers and she carried an arm bouquet of white peonies and heliotrope. Miss Doreen King, only sister of the groom, and Miss Doris Wagar, only sister of the bride, acted as flower-girls, the former dressed in pink and the latter in yellow. Each carried an old-fashioned nosegay. The groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Walter King, of Shannonville.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold compact and to the best man a leather billfold.

The bride's mother received her guests wearing navy blue sheer with a corsage of roses. The groom's mother assisted, gowned in rose figured crepe, with corsage of roses.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to about 35 guests by cousins and friends of the bride.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left by motor for Oshawa, Toronto and Niagara Falls. The bride travelled in a two-piece ensemble of beige and British tan, with British tan accessories and a tweed topcoat. Her corsage was of Premier roses.

EMBURY — DeWITT

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Selby United Church parsonage Saturday, July 3rd, when Rev. W. R. Merrick united in marriage Violet Mae, youngest daughter of Mrs. M. DeWitt, and the late Mr. DeWitt, Selby, and Wilmot Frederick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Embury, of Melrose.

The bride looked lovely in a street-length dress of white sheer, with silver embroidery, white hat and shoulder-length veil, white slippers and a beautiful corsage of Premier roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Cecil Denison, Napanee, dressed in a turquoise and navy dress and white hat and navy accessories, with a corsage of roses. Mr. Lloyd Embury, brother of the groom, was the best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold chain and locket, to the bridesmaid a gold compact, and to the best man a silver cigarette lighter.

Following the ceremony the wedding party had lunch at the Supreme Tea Rooms, Napanee. The bride and groom left later for Ottawa, the bride travelling in a Paddy Green dress suit with matching hat and beige accessories. Upon their return a reception will be held at the home of the groom's parents, where the happy couple will reside.

TOWN OF NAPANEE
Information Respecting Wood For Sale

In view of a possible serious fuel shortage during the coming fall and winter, all Municipalities in Canada have been requested by the Dominion Government to secure a supply of wood for sale to the Citizens of their respective Municipalities.

Following the suggestion of the Government, the Town of Napanee has purchased a quantity of wood. The price paid by the Town, in each case, was the price established by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and the price the wood will be sold at is also fixed by the same Board.

The Committee of the Town Council in charge have devised a policy to be followed, that all wood will be cut up into twelve inch lengths and delivered to the purchaser, that is wood will be sold in quarter cord lots and the purchaser can secure as to two cords for present delivery.

Orders will be received at the Town Treasurer's Office, Town Hall, where payment for wood desired will be collected and a receipt issued to the purchaser. Delivery will be made as soon as possible after receipt of order. No wood will be sold or delivered until cash payment is made for same.

On account of the lack of storage space for large quantities of wood, and to avoid holdup of delivery later in the season, when weather conditions may be unsatisfactory, and to make the individual residents more secure from a fuel standpoint, CITIZENS ARE URGED TO PLACE THEIR ORDERS AT ONCE OR AT AS EARLY A DATE AS POSSIBLE.

The several grades of wood that will be offered for sale and prices for each grade is listed as follows:

ALL WOOD CUT 12 INCHES IN LENGTH

BODY WOOD, PRACTICALLY ALL HARDWOOD

One-quarter cord	$ 4.50
One-half cord	8.50
One cord	16.50

BODY WOOD, MIXED, LARGE PERCENTAGE HARDWOOD

One-half cord	7.75
One cord	15.00

HARDWOOD SLABS, MOSTLY LARGE BLOCKS

The Navy Delivers Mighty Blows In Silence

BY WILLIAM W. WHITE

The close-lipped publicity shy "silent service" — the Royal Navy — is overdoing its silence.

It's common gossip in London that the Navy is delivering damaging blows to the German submarine fleet with such increasing regularity that these day-after-day successes must have far-reaching results on the future course of the war, but the Navy, as aloof and unimaginative as ever, maintains its majestic silence and by doing so deprives the Allies of a mighty propaganda weapon.

Although sources close to the Navy say without hesitation that German submarines are being destroyed "like flies" — fact that should be painfully obvious to the German high command — the Navy officially says that disclosure of these important day-to-day victories would divulge information to the enemy.

It seems elementary to assume that the Germans feel the impression when dozens of their submarines fail to return, but the Admiralty, unmindful of the fillip such stories would give the Allied morale, steadfastly refuses to budge from tradition because they feel it would "confirm a suspicion in the German minds which we would rather not confirm." That is the Royal Navy's idea of a war of nerves.

It doesn't take a particularly careful observer to detect the impression at the Admiralty that things are going supremely well. There is almost an air of smug complacency in the musty, old building that dates from 1726. There is also an air that the Navy knows its business better than newspaper men do, which also dates from about 1726.

There are dozens of reason why the Navy's arduous task of defeating the U-boat is finally meeting with success. First and foremost is the perfection of some new, highly secret anti-submarine devices which are British in conception and development but largely produced in the United States. There are new aerial depth charges so potent that U-boats now prefer to fight on the surface to lessen the concussions; call ships are more heavily gunned and air protection has reached a new peak, with the final acceptance of helicopters and small escorting aircraft carriers, which the Allies are producing at an amazingly rapid rate in preference to the costlier and slower battleships. In addition to having heavier corvettes for escort work, the Navy has been given a powerful helping hand from the air.

Added to the Coastal Command's more effective striking power, which now includes Liberator bombers, the weight of Bomber Command's giants, operating with Axis shipyards, submarine "pens" — and against the U-boats themselves — is doubled beginning to be felt. The air arm has finally closed the "gap" in the Middle Atlantic, an area until recently unprotected by aircraft.

There is additional evidence that German submarine crews are not relishing favorably what they are doing. Hitler Winston Churchill and other experts call this "unsurpassed" rate of destruction. Although most of the German undersea fleet, which recently was estimated at about 400 vessels, can stay at sea from 60 to 70 days, most ships average from 21 to 30 days before they return to base. Of 70 such ships average from 21 to 30 days before they return to base. Of given a rest. British crews morale is reported high, for the losses have been gratifyingly modest and H. M. submarines have averaged two sinkings on enemy ships per week for the past three years.

New Japanese Push Charts Unpleasant Course In China

BY DeWITT MACKENZIE

Intensification of the Japanese military operations in the region of the strategic port of Ichang in the Yangtze River appears to hold unpleasant potentialities.

Observers in Chungking figure that the Japanese are out to consolidate important territory along the Yangtze in order to establish a drive against the Chinese provisional capital itself. In either event, rich agricultural provinces vital to the maintenance of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's regime would be at stake.

The Japanese early this year threatened to go all-out to smash Chungking and knock Generalissimo Chiang out of the war. Whether this is the inauguration of such a campaign remains to be seen. It hasn't gone far enough yet to warrant us in assuming that the Chungking area is in jeopardy.

However, it's a harsh fact that should the Nipponese succeed in capturing the capital, and in pacifying the provinces of Hunan and Szechwan, with their rich resources and other vital resources, it would place a terrific strain of unpredictable effect on the hard-pressed Chinese. This isn't cited in any spirit of pessimism but as representing the possible goal of the Rising Sun barbarians.

Military observers in Chungking say that "the Chinese are well prepared" to meet such a fresh onslaught, and, if so, one hopes that this is a correct estimate of the position. Certainly there is no doubt about the Chinese bravery and, apart from other considerations, nature has set down some great barriers in the path of the Japanese.

The land-born mountain city of Chungking lies less than 300 miles by air to the west of the strategic Yangtze port of Ichang which the Japs hands. However, Ichang is at the eastern entrance of the Yangtze gorges. West of this city are mountains through which the mighty river has cut the famous gorge that in some places is 2,000 feet deep in solid rock.

Meagre reports of the fighting indicate that the Japs may be encountering one driving westward to the south of the Yangtze in an effort to reach Chungking. They also are operating to the north of Ichang, which might represent an effort to get at the capital by a route north of the Yangtze. The latest Chinese communique reports a successful counter-attack against the Japs in this region.

Of course, Chiang still has a vast hinterland into which he could retire with his Government and his armies. However, he would be leading his people out into a comparative wilderness. Thus it is essential that Chungking and the agricultural areas in neighboring territory be held.

Damage done to Malta up to the end of 1942 includes 3,000 houses completely destroyed, 5,000 ruined and awaiting demolition, a similar number unfit for habitation, 20,000 repaired and 13,000 houses damaged by blast.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Mydro Home Economist

PICNICS ON THE LAWN

Hello Homemakers! Laughter . . . sparkle . . . colour! There's no busier time for those litt'e folks than the Picnic. And there's no greater relaxation for busy workers who realize that by strenuous labour and concentrated efforts we can help to secure serenity and freedom from tyranny.

Balmy weather brings vagrant wishes for a cottage by the lake. However, there's a shortage of gasoline and tires and all of us have duties to do, often with no one to take our places. So why not make friends with the home town park or even enjoy your own lawn where there'll be no worry about forgetting your most important item of lunch (which is often the one thing left out).

As you probably know, "caring" the lunch out of doors takes time and effort — if you make a big spread. The scheme is, therefore, to plan a simple lunch — considering the food to be carried and the dishes required. No need to make a hot-eating job.

SUGGESTIONS

1. Sandwiches — of course save on the dishes. Fillings include meat, fish, cheese, eggs and raw vegetables.

Meat, now rationed, may be stretched out in sandwiches and it may be combined with relishes or salad dressings to give zest. Cottage cream cheese or old cheese (ground) may be combined with chopped, crisp greens, grated raw carrot or chopped fish. Cooked, flaked fish is also delicious mixed with celery or cress. Shredded raw vegetable will now be an important filling—green onions, cucumbers, tomatoes, sprouts, radishes, etc. For savoury — parsley, spring tops, nasturtium leaves, cress, endive, mint.

Vary the bread — use enriched flour, whole wheat, cracked wheat, oatmeal, tea biscuits, muffins or scones.

Stretch the butter — heat with milk and chill well.

2. A salad bowl is always attractive. Do not forget the salt and pepper shakers. In the bowl place small whole tomatoes, green onions, celery hearts, lettuce wedges, pieces of cheese, hard-cooked eggs, etc. Or a tasty potato salad, tossed shredded greens, fruit salad, etc. And cheese sticks, salted crackers go well with salads.

3. To top off the picnic lunch, take favourite cookies — oatmeal, ginger or fig-layer, and of course, one — everybody will love them.

Tarts made with fruit filling or even a firm cream filling are more satisfying if a top crust is put on. Cakes baked in muffin tins are easy to handle — plain ones, flavoured, or cup cakes — because I wouldn't be surprised if the neighbour's kiddies join you. Other accompaniments for dessert are: graham wafers, hermits, doughnuts, fig bars, etc.

4. Fruit in season or tinned cups filled with the kind of mixture to balance the meal. For instance, if you've included lots of greens, serve a baked custard. If you've included lots of meat sandwiches, Jell ome fruit.

5. The problem of thirst may be solved by taking along milk, chocolate milk, tomato juice, fruit juices or lemon, iced coffee.

RECIPES

Sandwich Spread

Two tablespoons chopped onion, one tablespoon fat, one cup of thick tomato pulp, one egg (well beaten), one cup grated old cheese, half-teaspoon salt.

Cook onion, tomato pulp, cheese together until cheese is melted (about 5 minutes). Stir a small amount into beaten egg and then egg mixture into the rest of hot pulp. Add fat and salt. Cook two minutes. Cool.

Fruit Loaf

Three-quarters cup sugar, two eggs (beaten), two tablespoons melted fat, two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, two teaspoons baking soda, one and one-half cups chopped figs or currants, one cup sour milk. Add sugar to eggs, then melted fat, and fruit. Add sifted flour and baking powder alternately with milk. Bake in a greased loaf pan in electric oven at 350 deg. for 45 minutes.

THE QUESTION BOX

Miss P. P. asks: Should bacon be cooked over high or medium heat?

Answer: Bacon should be cooked over medium heat and the fat drained off once or twice while cooking. Of course we save all fats. May we remind our readers to turn in drippings for salvage not used in home cooking.

Miss J. D. asks: Carrot strips and radishes do not seem to crisp up in salt and water in refrigerator.

Answer: Sugar draws out juices. Raw vegetables require only a small amount of water (no salt) and a cold atmosphere for crispness. Four hours in ice water is enough.

Mrs. C. C. asks: Is it true that chicken feet make good jelly and how?

Answer: Yes, they contain gelatine. Scald, skin, cut off nails and then cook in about a pint of water for 30 minutes. Chill, add pieces of meat for a mould.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:

Here I am again. Next I will be pooping up in your coffee. Just call me "Oil Faithful." Incidentally, I have been more too faithful a correspondent lately. I suppose that I should be ashamed that you find time to write at all in the midst of your domestic chaos. What you really need is a pair of stalwart C.W.A.C.'s to help you settle your apartment. I will volunteer with pleasure. Of course Dave might object to a pair of interlopers, but I imagine you can deal with him.

At last the C.W.A.C. of No. 7 Company, Kingston, have an official name. Oh, I know we have a thousand or more unofficial voices, but only too willing to put in their two cents, but now C.W.A.C. in this District can voice their opinions publicly through their weekly paper.

This sheet made its first bow to the public a short time ago. Known as the "Barrackroom Beachcat," it is a fairly accurate reflection of C.W.A.C. opinion. It may interest you to learn that it has a column entitled "If Wasn't Told Me, I Only Heard . . ." which I consider a very cute title for such a column. It really hits the nail on the head and gives the girls the chance of a little to speak their minds. Incidentally, the column flourishes like a green bay tree. C.W.A.C. are just as quick to pick up their ears as their civilian sisters when rumour raises its intriguing head.

I would like to depict my associates in khaki as above human frailties, but honesty constrains me. Besides, to be blunt, I like to know what goes on myself. As a matter of fact, I am a regular contributor to "It Wasn't Told Me. I Only Heard . . ." I will have to watch myself or I will find I am involved in a libel suit. Well, I don't care. I like making life interesting for others.

The "Backchat" deals with sports, current events and editorial subjects and of course, there is a column for the budding poets in the companies. This goes under the caption "C.W.A.C. Opinion."

The lengths the girls will go to in a line is fantastic! It reminds me of Ogden Nash... I have just enough self-restraint left to refrain from competing with the poets, knowing my own limitations. Some other hard can sing the achievements of the C.W.A.C. in verse. I will content myself with shouting them from the roof tops.

I am beginning to make plans for my furlough, which I will be taking sometime this summer. Think, two beautiful weeks all my own! I expect to spend a few days and spend the remainder of my time in the mountains or near my old home in Bedford Mills Quebec. My plans include lots of sun and swim. The programme would not appeal to you, would it, Chum? Nevertheless, I think it is very lovely. Lazy days, here I come! I will ask permission to wear civilian clothes and I will be able to get around in a better way over gypsy colours and costume jewellery. Much better also! Imagine me toddling around in three inch stilettos after my army brogues. I will have to learn to walk all over again.

Thank goodness, we get the special army reductions for travelling. It makes a big difference in expenses and helps the old budget meet. If I had to pay full fare every time I went home, I would not see my family as often as I do, and I certainly would not be able to afford those little jaunts to Toronto to visit you.

I am enclosing a photograph of myself in my C.W.A.C. uniform for your new home. You can always oust Dave from his rightful place by the fireplace if you are short of room. Pat chance of that, but I can try, can't I? Anyway you asked for it.

The chronicles of the Canadian Women's Army Corps continue to absorb my attention and I am a busy scribe. Women are replacing men in non-fighting jobs on an ever increasing scale and it makes an epic story. It is my good fortune to be in a position to tell a little of the story of our Corps and all I ask it that I will be able to do it justice.

That reminds me, I must get back on the job. I snatched a few minutes from my lunch hour to dash off these few lines to you.

Cheerio,

NICKEY.

CANNING

BY LAURA C. PEPPER,
Chief Clothing Supervisor,
Dominion Department of Agriculture

The open kettle method of canning which used to be very widely used, is no longer recommended. Ways of canning are now:

Three things have been responsible for out-moding this method of canning;—our greater knowledge of nutrition, our increased knowledge of bacteriology and the fact that our use of sugar for canning is curtailed.

Through our ever-growing knowledge of nutrition we have learned that vitamin C is destroyed to a very marked extent when foods containing it are cooked while exposed to air, as they are in the open kettle canning method. Figures prepared by Nutrition Services show that black currants, strawberries, white and red currants, berries, raspberries, and gooseberries are the Canadian fruits which contribute important amounts of vitamin C. Tomatoes are, of course, one of the very best sources of this vitamin C.

When canned by the open kettle method, these fruits lose most of their vitamin C. On the other hand when the foods are packed and partially sealed before being cooked, much more of the vitamin is retained.

Through our increased knowledge of bacteriology we have learned more about the causes of spoilage and how to prevent it. We know that there is a greater chance of spoilage when food is canned by the open kettle method and that it is actually unsafe to use this method for vegetables, except tomatoes. The open kettle is a safe method for tomatoes but it is not a wise one, because when it is used most of the vitamin C (the most valuable food element in tomatoes) is destroyed.

The limited amount of sugar available for home canning this year means that most fruits will be canned with a light syrup and some without the use of any sugar. Heavy syrups which were commonly used when the open kettle method was in its hey-day, reach higher temperatures than light syrups. Consequently, fruits cooked in them are more quickly sterilized. With a light syrup or when no sugar is used, a longer time is required for complete sterilization and if given the cooking time required the fruit would be overcooked.

The hot or cold pack method with sterilization in the boiling water bath, oven, steam or pressure cooker has superseded the old-fashioned open kettle method. Complete and up-to-the-minute directions for home canning of fruits and vegetables and making jams and jellies are contained in "Wartime Canning" which may be obtained from Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

REGARDING CORN SYRUP

The existing situation in regard to corn syrup supply is not due to any reduction in the production of popularly believed—but to a marked increase in consumption, according to the Prices Board, which says that the output of corn syrup in this country has increased greatly since the outbreak of the war and that sales last year were about 60,000,000 pounds greater than in 1940.

Several reasons are given why the demand for this product should have exceeded even the much-augmented supply:

1 Sugar rationing has reduced, by an estimated 200,000,000 pounds, the amount of sugar used yearly in Canada.

2 Imports of molasses were reduced last year by 60,000,000 pounds, and will probably be reduced further this year.

3 The honey crop of 1942 did not come up to expectations as regards quantity.

4 Canadians are buying more foodstuffs per individual than before.

Sacrity of corn syrup, it is reiterated, is not due to less of its being made but to more of its being sought. The Board has endeavored to meet this situation by prohibiting its use for industrial purposes and by limiting it distributed in smaller containers, thus increasing the number of units available for sale to the general public. It has not, however, laid down any ruling on how the retailer should distribute his supply among his customers, although the retailer is expected to distribute that supply as equitably as possible and may take into account the special needs of young children or invalids.

TIPS FOR MEAT RATIONING

A new pamphlet, "eat" has just been issued by the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It covers the buying, storing and cooking of meat and includes a number of recipes especially adapted to meat rationing. It may be obtained by writing to the Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

In A Great Tradition

Another Dominion Day has come and gone. More than just a summer holiday, it should be the most cherished anniversary to celebrate. Seventy-six years and a half millions leading the way, and a passion, and years ahead in their time, brought this nation to birth. What would they think of Canada today?

Supposing these men of vision could have celebrated this Dominion Day with us, would they have been amazed at the progress they saw? A nation of eleven and a half millions leading the world in its per capita production, the envy of the Commonwealth and the Air Plan. A nation that has built its 500,000th motor car during the war, its 380th ship, its 800th plane. A nation that has made deliveries of four and a half billion dollars worth of munitions.

This is what these Fathers of Confederation would have wished for. They would have wondered at, and reverenced all this, they might well have asked one question. Absorbed in tremendous industrial expansion, there come a corresponding new and spiritual maturity, so that a balanced growth is assured? Democracy will be safeguarded? This is a question that can be answered by one man. The electorate of Canadians.

On him Democracy depends to produce and apply a moral purpose, certain moral standards must be recognised, against which people can be measured. Democracy needs this kind of living, set up by ordinary people, a national policy on which the home, to prevent it from drifting alone, unconsciously or directionless, to be caught up in the strongest ideological current to come along.

There is knowing where the Democracy as it emerges from the previous three years of war, tested our ability to expand industrially, so this coming year may be the test our moral and spiritual fibre. Canadians, all of us, who create and maintain for the nation. Such men will come only as moral standstick will be the measure of the great freedom of the nation, which men will cherish. Canada will be a blessed land, pointed right as the centre of a wave of materialism that accompanies victory.

THE USE OF NATIVE GREENS

We know that we should eat as many leafy vegetables — fresh possible — as we can and, in the summer it is easy to do just this. In us eat lettuce, tomatoes and celery and consider that we eaten a sufficient amount of fresh vegetables. It has been en by food analysis that lettuce and celery have very low vitamin mineral content, so we would be wise if we altered our summer nu this year. Green peppers, parsley, dandelion greens, water e could all be used; chopped and added to a salad, they are all sources of vitamins A and C. Instead of eating spinach this mmer, why don't you try the fresh green leaves of your turnip nts. They are an excellent source of vitamin C and have a d flavour. I know some of you have been eating beet tops, but when you are growing your own vegetables pratically all of can have beet tops fresh and crisp from your garden instead wilted, as they usually are in the store. To show you how uable these native greens are to your diet I am going to show a table with the content of Vitamin C and A and iron an average ong contains;

	Vitamin A
	Fe	International	Thiamin	Riboflavin	Vit. C
	Mg.	Units	mg.	mg.	mg.
lo Greens	2.0	14822	.12	..	135

d Greens	..	..	..	..	50
.....	.2	702	.02	..	5

Compare the totp six vegetables with the conventionally used ure and celery.

These figures are for the vegetables in the fresh state. Nutrial value of cooked vegetables depends on the method used for king.

When you cook leafy vegetables use a little boiling water and for as short a time as possible to retain the maximum amount the vitamins and minerals. Always remember to save the cooking er as it has the vitamins and minerals that have dissolved out the vegetables.

A Famous Prophecy Recalled

The birth of the French Committee of National Liberation, last month, under the tropical skies of Africa, is function until such time as France is liberated and the people of France can form a new Government, recalls to the world the famous prophecy broadcast by General Charles de Gaulle, June, 1940, for the liberation of France through the rallied Fighting French Forces.

Exactly three years ago, on June 18th, 1940, the stunned and bewildered people of France heard, for the first time, the voice of a young, unknown General calling to all French men still free to rise and join him in the liberation of his country:

"France has lost a battle!

"But France has not lost the war!"

This was the battcry of General Charles de Gaulle from the British Broadcasting Station in London.

Since formation of the French Committee of National Liberation in Africa, Fighting French forces now number upwards of 400,000 men a navy of nearly 10,000 naval officers and sailors; approximately eighty ships; a merchant marine of 2,000 men and fleet representing over 281 ships. (These figures are a minimum estimate).

Over 100 Fighting French Committees have been organied in many parts of the world.—England, Canada, United States, South America and far away countries, to carry on recruiting organization, relief, etc., all with the objective of speeding the liberation of France.

The Fighting French Empire today represents a population of 10,-382,300 people (plus North African figures not yet released), and total area of 1,386,650 square miles (plus North Africa territory). In addition to French Equatorial Africa, this total area includes French Somaliland, Madagascar, Reunion, French Territories of Oceania, New Caledonia, Tahiti, New Hebrides, St. Pierre et Miquelon.

The special strategic value of French Equatorial Africa, was in the fact that an inland road was made possible across Africa to Sudan and Egypt.

Fighting French Forces, composed of army, navy and air force have fought on many battlefields—fighting West against Rommell all across Libya, playing a big part in the battle of Bir Hacheim, when under General Koenig's orders they held up Rommel's forces for ten days in order to allow the consolidation of the main army. At this point, holding the post for sixteen days, they were completely surrounded and broke out of a German ring—to rejoin the British forces, losing two-thirds of their personnel. Under General Jacques Leclerc, an army of 16,000 Fighting French fought their way 1,600 miles across desert to keep a rendevous with General Montgomery in Tripoli. Fighting north to Tunis to meet Allied armies, they were in at the victory.

General de Gaulle's plea to the people of France to resist resulted in formation of local point of resistance in occupied France. In France today there are only two parties—the "Kollaborationists" and the "liberation." The Fighting French guerillas have formed an advance guard of Liberation of France party, one of their objectives being the sabotaging on a vast scale of German lines of communications in many districts of the enemy being killed or wounded.

The formation of the French Committee of National Liberation in Africa, commemorates proof of the pledge given by Charles de Gaulle to the people of France three years ago.

SUNLIGHT TANED OUT

Many Old Country readers will remember those fine fluted tin sconces which are seen so commonly in the walls of older British houses. They were the first model of the tax of a fixed sum per window which was imposed on British taxpayers, many years ago.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer therefore had his experts give him an estimate of the number of windows which would be taxable, and calculated accordingly. Doubtless also he allowed for some blacking up of windows, but he did not allow enough. He did not expect his ample little tax to change in a modest but noticeable degree, the external appearance of every bar city in Great Britain.

The tax was soon abrogated, but the bricked up windows remain.

V

WERE AUSTRALIA AND ASIA ONCE UNITED

Geologists think that the Netherlands East Indies are the remains of a great neck of land which at one time united Asia with Australia. The theory is that the land gradually sank, and the sea encroached upon it until only the mountain ranges remained above sea level, constituting what we know to-day as Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, and New Guinea. This great tract of sea-covered territory is usually referred to as the Lost Continent.

It is believed by many that at one time in the distant past there was another vast area in the middle of the Atlantic, often spoken of as the Lost Atlantis.

the Pacific from the Aleutians to the Solomon Islands, is a carefully-guarded secret.

Not much mystery, however, has been made about the approach to Japan from the west, through Burma and China, and it is this phase of the campaign which seems to have Japan's leaders most worried.

Recent Japanese pronouncements, including Premier Hideki Tojo's speech to the Diet, have stressed rather nervously the Japanese strength on the Asiatic mainland and the bulwarks which have been set up around the home islands.

This apprehension is fed by statements such as that of Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, who told the Senate appropriations committee that the Japanese tide of advance has been turned into a gradual withdrawal towards their home bases and that we are about to bring the war home to Japan "in a most violent and destructive way."

At the same time, Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, the Air Force commander in China, predicted the early delivery of heavy blows, perhaps decisive ones, against Japan.

The Allied drive against Burma is extremely unlikely to start before October, when the monsoon season, which makes efficient military operations impossible, is due to end. The intervening time is being used to make the necessary air, sea and land power to what admittedly will be a difficult and costly campaign.

Restaurants Must Not Cut Portions

Under meat rationing restaurants are expected to go on serving the same size portions of meat for the same prices. The Prices Board says that a meal dish is a much more important item of the meal than butter or sugar, in which the sizes of the servings are restricted, and a reduction in quantity without a corresponding reduction in price would be the same as an increase in price and would be, therefore, contrary to the whole spirit and intention of the price ceiling policy. If restaurants occasionally run out of meat, their patrons must choose other dishes, an experience not unfamiliar to them even in time of peace.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTERS ENTERTAINED AT "YELLOW GABLES"

On Wednesday, June 30th. members of United Empire Loyalist and Alex L. Hardison Chapters of the I. O. D. E. were guests of Mrs. Donald Macnaughton at her charming home "Yellow Gables" on Port Hill. The guests were welcomed by the hostess.

During the evening, Mrs. Duane Hall, regent of the U. E. L. Chapter, gave a summary of the work completed by the Chapter since the outbreak of war in 1939 to the present time. Figures do not do justice to the amount of work done and time freely given. The report showed a total of 5,630 field comforts made, including sox, mitts, wristlets, caps, sweaters, pyjamas, scarves, ditty bags, gloves, helmets, housewives, laundry bags, turtle neck tuck-ins, and turbined jerkins. A total of 1,289 other articles were given to British War Victims, to the local Red Cross and to the Military Hospital, Kingston. These included afghans, quilts, layettes, aprons, articles of new clothing, blankets and hospital supplies. About 300 quilts were made at the workrooms at the weekly meetings.

Special mention was made by the Regent of the work done by Mrs. Albert Lewis, war work convener, by Miss Betty Smith and her committee of sewers, by Mrs. McCracken, who made the seamen's jerkins; by Mrs. A. Woods and Miss Jean Hall, who were in charge of the bursiry; Mrs. Geo. Fisher and her committee who were also thanked for serving refreshments at the work meetings.

The members were urged to continue making field comforts for the armed forces as there is a greater need for them now than ever.

An assignment of books and magazines had been sent to the No. 1 I. F.S., R.C.A.F., Deseronto, and a letter of thanks and appreciation was read. Other camps' libraries were supplied with books and magazines and donations were requested. Hundreds of articles were sent to Polish and Russian relief.

Mrs. Hall explained the meaning of the word "order," which is from the Latin ordo "coming into life" for the betterment of mankind, and also of the badge representing, Majesty and Loyalty, Unity and Sacrifice.

Mrs. W. A. Ashley, second vice-regent of the U. E. L. Chapter, was in charge of the lovely door prize, which was won by Mrs. Bert Sharp of the Alice Harshaw Chapter. Mrs. T. Symington made the draw.

Mrs. W. R. Douglas won the hooked rug which had been made by Miss Sarah McGinness, of Corbyville.

Miss V. McLaughlin and Mrs. Fisher had charge of the tickets and the proceeds amounted to almost $15.00.

Mrs. Ralph Ham spoke on behalf of the Red Cross and told of work done for the Chapter relief.

Miss Eleanor Mellow contributed several piano selections during the evening and Mrs. Mervyn Owen, Regent of the Alice L. Harshaw Chapter and Mrs. Albert Lewis, poured a wartime beverage at the dining table, which was attractively centred with panies.

A vote of thanks to the hostess for her kind hospitality, was moved by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson and seconded by Mrs. Owen, bringing a very pleasant evening to a close.

Preparations for the landing of troops in North Africa involved alteration to over 300 ordinary merchant ships for use as troop carriers, floating work-shops, etc., all of which was completed in a short time and in the utmost secrecy.

Waste paper collected in the United Kingdom from November 1, 1939 to August 31, 1942, amounted to nearly 2¼ million tons. It would have required 450 ships, each of 5,000 tons cargo capacity, to transport it.

Grange the people's warden, gave a short history of the parish since the laying of the corner stone in 1870 and made some suggestions for future work. C. W. Buchanan, the rector's warden outlined the improvements made on the church grounds and the work of restoration of the old cemetery on the site of the first Anglican Church in Napanee, on Thomas Street, near the Newburgh Road. Jas. deC. Hepburn Again Chosen Conservative Candidate

During the past week conventions have been held throughout Lennox and Addington by the three parties who are putting candidates in the field for the Ontario election to be held on August 4th.

In Prince Edward-Lennox, Conservatives nominated James de C. Hepburn, the present member, and the Liberals in Prince Edward-Lennox put Bert Pearsoll in the field. No C. C. F. candidate has yet been chosen for the riding of Prince Edward - Lennox.

In Addington-Frontenac, the candidates chosen are Dr. T. W. Warner, Yarker, as Liberal contestant; John A. McMaster, Reeve of Pittsburg Township and Warden of Frontenac, as C. C. F. candidate. The Progressive Conservatives of Frontenac-Addington are choosing a candidate today (Wednesday) at a convention being held in the Kingston Court House.

At the Progressive Conservative Convention for Prince Edward-Lennox, held in the Parish Hall on Saturday last, the following were nominated besides the successful candidate Jas. de C. Hepburn: Fred Hubbs, H. S. Colliver, T. D. Creighton, George Welch, Thos. Kinney and Mrs. Rose Bush. All the nominees withdrew but Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Creighton and when a vote was taken Mr. Hepburn was declared the candidate.

There was a large attendance at the convention, including forty delegates from the Lennox part of the riding. Thos. Kinney, the President of the Association, was chairman, and L. B. Calnan was acting secretary in the absence of P. U. Lasdley, the secretary.

Each nominee spoke for a short time and after the candidate was chosen, addresses were given by Jamieson Bone, Belleville and Geo. J. Tustin, Napanee.

At the Liberal convention for Frontenac - Addington, held at Harrowsmith, the contestant for the nomination, besides Dr. Warner, were E. J. Courtenay, Tamworth, Warden of Lennox and Addington, T. Judge and Archie Black.

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVES

The Ontario Election took quite an unexpected turn when Hon. George Drew laid the programme of his Party before the Electorate. Never before has Ontario had a pre-election platform quite like it. A few years ago such a thing could not have happened. To have presented such a document before the people even three or four years ago would have branded those who presented it as "Bolsheviks" "Reds" or "Radicals". But we are in the midst of a revolution. Changes in the thinking of the ordinary man are so drastic that he is now ready to welcome a platform which represents, in some measure, these changes. The programme is even more startling in that it comes from a party which has never been known for its radical views on social and economic concerns.

The platform recognizes the swing of public opinion towards the C. C. F. and capitalizes on the pioneering work done by the Socialist group. We have, more than once, pointed out in these columns, that this was one of the main functions of a radical left wing party. It anticipates public opinion, and by its very persistent demand for changes, forces the older parties to modify and change their policies. If it has done nothing more than to make possible the Progressive Conservative platform of Mr. Drew, the C. C. F has justified its existence.

Mr. Drew's platform, too, takes the wind quite out of Mr. Nixon's sails. Premier Nixon had planned to go to the country on the record of his party. Naturally, he would assume from past experience that Mr. Drew and the Progressive Conservatives would content themselves with opposing Mr. Nixon, and in denouncing the work of the Liberal administration. That was a natural assumption. And in all probability Mr. Nixon was ready to meet Mr. Drew on that basis. He would be all set to defend what the Liberal Party had done, to anticipate Mr. Drew's criticism and to ward it off.

But Mr. Drew has not bothered much with that. He leaves the public to judge the record of the present administration, and then goes on to a positive and constructive platform of his own. So the whole tactics of the election have been changed. Mr. Nixon will have to revamp his addresses. He cannot ignore Mr. Drew's platform. If he promises more than Mr. Drew the electorate will ask why were the reforms he promises not put into legislation before. And if he promises less than the Progressive Conservative platform, the voter will naturally move away from the less to the more. Any way we look at it, Mr. Drew has won a tactical advantage and puts Mr. Nixon and the Liberal Party on the defensive.

WHAT MR. DREW OFFERS

In a twenty-two plank platform which has no parallel in Ontario political history, Colonel Drew has based his appeal to the electors. It is a sweeping social reform that is promised. Mr. Drew pledges his Party to maintain the British connection, to co-operate with the Dominion Government in the prosecution of the war and to introduce legislation that will encourage good wages. Farming will be organized under county committees. Stockyards are to be taken over by the government. New and advanced Labor legislation is to be introduced.. The mining industry is to be assisted and encouraged. The forest resources are to be conserved under a government commission. A housing commission will be established. At least fifty per cent. of local school taxes are to be taken over by the government. The educational system will be revised. Public health measures will be instituted, and plans for a public works programme for post-war employment, made. Hydro rates will be revised, land reclaimed, and duplication of taxation with Ottawa, avoided.

A permanent civil service will be established. Legislation barring the right of the individual to defend his person and property in the courts is to be repealed. Mothers' allowances and Old-age pensions are to be increased, and the rule which makes it necessary for old-age pensioners to give up their property, abolished. Supplies of fuel, milk and the basic necessities will be controlled. Preference to men in the Armed Forces will be given to those seeking public positions. There will be legal protection for the property of men and women in military service. A committee to draft plans on the social security of the people after the war, will be set up.

There it is — a most astounding, progressive forward-looking document. It is the most hopeful signs that has come out of the Provincial political party system in many a day.

JULY TENTH

July the Tenth will go down as one of the memorable days in Canadian history. On that day Canadians, along with their brothers in arms from The United States and Great Britain embarked on the momentous task of liberating the enslaved peoples of Europe from the tyranny of Hitlerism. For that day Canadians have been preparing for three long years. Men from the fishing coasts of British Columbia and the Maritimes, from the mines in the North, from Prairies, lumber camps, offices, schools, farms, and factories, have been drilled day and night until they are a great war machine, prepared in body and mind for the great adventure. While at home, the fathers, younger brothers, sisters, wives and often mothers of these men have labored at the lathe, the turret, the shaper, grinder, milling machine and boring tool, to provide the guns, planes and accoutrements of war for those overseas. While other thousands are working short-handed, at long hours, to see they are properly fed during their campaigning.

There have been errers, of course. That was inevitable in a world run by imperfect human beings. But all in all, Canada has a creditable record. And now, the moment for which all this preparation, all this national effort has been made, has arrived. First dispatches tell of the success of our armed forces, bridgeheads have been established on Sicily; from these the invasion forces will foray forth on their mission of liberation. The prayers and hopes of every man and woman follow them as they meet the foe in an alien land, under an alien sky.

While we rejoice in the share our nation has in this war of liberation, there is a sobering thought that the cost of freedom, is life and treasure. There are anxious hearts all across Canada these days. While hopes beat high, tremors and fears are not easily overcome. They refuse to be smothered. Indeed, even to attempt to smother them would be inhuman. We may rest assured, however, that the steadiness which has marked the United Nations in this hour of testing through the years, will not now, in the face of impending personal loss and sorrow, desert.

REVOLUTION AND RELIGION

One factor we ought not to overlook in the present world upheaval, is the relationship between revolution and religion. Every revolution is, in a measure a revolution against the institutions of religion. In the French Revolution, the fury of the revolutionaries was turned against the church. It was denounced and the god of reason substituted for the God of the churches. In the Russian Revolution, the whole force of the Bolsheviks was directed against the church. A godless society was set up. Persecution of clergy and church dignitaries instituted, and a campaign of education against the church set on foot. In Germany, the revolutionaries tried to capture the church; failing that they have suppressed it, and done all in their power to wean youth away from it.

But in all this it must be noted that what the revolutionaries turned against was not religion as such, but against the church, because of its conservative reactionary character. It is the church that is denounced, the institutions of religion, and not religion itself.

It is well to keep this in mind in religious controversies. When there are those who tell the preachers to stick to the gospel, and denounce the church for passing progressive, forward - looking resolutions, they are making it easy for the man on the street to associate the church with all the standpatters, the reactionaries and fence-sitters in the modern world.

Fortunately, in this country, there are some groups, in practically all churches, and indeed some churches as a whole, who are quite willing to take their place in the van of progressive religious and social progress, and it may well be that when this revolutionary period through which we are moving, has spent itself, the churches that will come out strong and with the confidence of the people in them unshaken, will be those who, through the years, have pioneered in social and prophetic movements, and have been unafraid to declare from pulpit and in conference, their faith in a New Heaven and a New Earth wherein dwelleth righteousness.

When newspapers undertake to give lectures to ministers and to conferences for applying their religion to social movements, it might be well for them, before doing so, to read up a bit on church history and the history of revolutions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. What is the purpose of the recently - announced restrictions upon the manufacture of flannelette garments?

A. Principally to save material so that it can be more largely utilized for infants' and children's wear. Together, the elimination of two-pant rompers, long sleeves on men's pyjamas and long sleeves on fifty per cent of women's night-gowns will save, it is estimated, 226,000 yards of flannelette a year.

Q. How will the new ration books be distributed late in August?

A. The method is expected to be largely similar to that governing the distribution of the existing ration books. The services of volunteer workers in manning the distributing station will be much appreciated.

Q. Our local newspaper has recently increased its subscription rate. Is that a violation of the price ceiling?

A. No, newspaper subscription rates are exempted from the maximum prices regulations.

Q. As a dressmaker, do I have to hold a license of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board?

A. If your operations are of an itinerant nature, you are exempt, but if you operate a regular place of business, you are licensable. Dressmakers operating at home are also licensable if the volume of their business is more than $500 annually.

Q. It seems to me that I am being discriminated for unwarrantably. What should I do?

A. Present your complaint to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, if possible with sales slip. A dealer in an Ontario town was recently fined $100 for overcharging on the sale of bananas, which are definitely under the maximum prices regulations.

Q. I live in an hotel. Is it true that I must surrender ration coupons to the management?

A. Yes, you must deliver your ration book to the management, which will detach coupons as they fall due.

RED CROSS NEWS

The Odessa Continuation School sent in their annual contribution of two hundred dollars to the Society at the end of their school term. An interesting letter accompanied the gift, written by Mr. George A. Pearce, Principal of the school. Mr. Pearce has a brother who is a prisoner of war in Germany and he says the Red Cross food parcels he receives are indeed God-sends. It is an added incentive to this good work when we hear personal instances of how well the parcels are received.

The Red Cross rooms will be closed from July 13th till July 26th, for cleaning and renovating.

The wool convenors announce the arrival of a new quota urgently needed. Ask plenty of wool to fill it. Anyone wanting knitting for the summer will find plenty waiting for them.

1/2 inch from the mouthpiece, please!

Do people you talk to on the telephone say, "I can't hear you!"? Our repairmen report that the most frequent causes of complaint about not being heard may be traced to failure to use the telephone properly.

IT'S REALLY NO PROBLEM to make yourself clearly heard — provided you remember to speak directly into the mouthpiece with your lips half-an-inch from it.

Then you can speak in ordinary conversational tones and the other party will have no trouble hearing you.

By observing this rule, you will also help to conserve the time of telephone service men. The delicate mechanism inside the transmitter is adjusted to operate most efficiently at this half-inch distance.*

*RESEARCH reveals that transmission results are only one-quarter as good when the lips are one inch (instead of half-an-inch) from the mouthpiece. Every additional half-inch has the effect of adding hundreds of miles to the talking circuit.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, JULY 18TH, 1943

Lesson Text: Exodus 3: 13-16; 4: 10-17

"GOD ENCOURAGES MOSES"

Once Moses had made a decision to lead the Israelites from Egypt it might have been expected that he would throw all caution to the winds and set out on his great adventure. Not so. Moses wanted to be sure of himself. He wanted to be sure that he was not mistaking the call of God. In the first place he wanted to be sure that the call was a genuine call. So he asked God what he was to say if he was asked the name of the God who sent him on the great undertaking. It was a natural request, for in many days of tribal gods it was essential that the name of the God be accurate and acceptable to the people. So the name was given: "Thus shalt thou say to the children of Israel 'I am' hath sent me."

"This name "I am" is simply part of the verb "to be." It simply meant that God was an ever-present God. He was not a God of the past, not a God of the future. He was an ever-present reality. He was with Moses now. He was with the people now. He was an immediate ever-present God.

But, lest there should be some misunderstanding, God made it clear to Moses that He was the same God who had been with the nations in the past. "The God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you." While God was a present God, yet he was the same who had been with the nation through all its history. It was essential that the sense of God's historic guidance of the people be maintained. There was to be no appeal to a new God. Jehovah, the "I am" was also the God who had been with the people in the great moments of their history.

The instructions that Moses received were reasonable. He was told to go and get the heads of the tribes together. Consult with them, lay his plans before them, explain to them the nature of his mission. God gave directions that a few years ago we might have thought this a pretty poor excuse for a potential leader to make. But now we know what a large part victory plays in rallying a nation to a great adventure. The Nazi movement in Germany was compensated, stimulated and brought to fruition largely through the persistent, fanatical appeals of Hitler. And future historians will look back to the addresses of Churchill in the dark days of 1940 as perhaps the most important factor in arousing the nation to defend its rights. The fireside chats of President Roosevelt have done, for the United States, what Prime Minister Churchill's addresses have done for Great Britain. There can be no discounting the value of strong, effective speech. No wonder that Moses was a bit worried because he could not speak well in public.

Is it not strange then that God should have been angry with Moses? The anger of God was kindled because of two factors. In the first place, Moses began to make excuses. He was not sure of himself; he saw obstacles in the way. That is not an unusual experience. Indeed, those who have any share in church leadership know full well how many excuses there are from men and women who seek to evade responsibility: teaching Sunday school, singing in the choir, serving on the church board, doing any one of a hundred duties that people can render nearly always finds them ready with excuses as to why they should not be done. As the parable in the New Testament has it: "They all with one accord began to make excuse."

That was one reason for God's anger with Moses. The other was that Moses did not show the trust in God's power to give him the necessary qualities for his task. "Who hath made man's mouth, or who maketh a man dumb or deaf, or seeing or blind. Is it not I, Jehovah? That is to say, if God has a work for us to do, He will see that we are provided with the qualities of heart and mind and the physical powers to do it. Moses was not taking that into consideration. God does not call a person to a special work, and then leave him unfitted for its accomplishment. Moses had qualities of leadership, organizational ability, the power to persuade, the power to attract people and compel their allegiance. No man has all the qualities. Some can speak; some write; some work with their hands, some with their tongues and talks. Not all have the whole budget of human gifts. And we must learn, as Moses had to learn, that God does take us with our partial gifts and use them for the bringing in of the Kingdom.

In this instance, God used all the gifts Moses had, and provided in Aaron a complement for that which was missing in Moses. Aaron was a Levite. Apparently he was a good speaker; so the two men made a good combination. We can imagine the two of them sitting down and working out their plans. Moses would map out the method of attack. He would draw up the details of the campaign. Then it would be left to Aaron to get this across to the people.

It was not an easy task to which Moses was called. He knew well enough that the Egyptians were not going to let a million slaves drift away without a struggle. So the call to action was preceded by an exhortation to tackle the job with all adequate preparation. This means that once God calls a man, he is to receive strength for the work. It was that Moses had to learn, and in his new position as liberator of the people. And there can be no doubt that it served a good purpose in future days. For Moses was to be beset with almost overwhelming obstacles, but he went on knowing that a God who had called Him to a task and had given him an Aaron to back up for his own deficiency is one who would enable him to overcome every other difficulty.

If We Do Pull Together

National unity, industrial unity, the will to pull together, the willingness to make sacrifice — all the intangible factors which make up national and industrial morale — these are desperately needed in our war effort. Only as we all pull may we hope to establish national strength for the work to be done when Moses can take his place in his new position as liberator of the people. And there can be no doubt that it served a good purpose in future days. For Moses was to be beset with almost overwhelming obstacles, but he went on knowing that a God who had called Him to a task and had given him an Aaron to back up for his own deficiency is one who would enable him to overcome every other difficulty.

V

If We Do Pull Together

National unity, industrial unity, the will to pull together, the willingness to make sacrifice — all the intangible factors which make up national and industrial morale — these are desperately needed in our war effort. Only as we all pull may we hope to establish national strength for the work to be done when the time comes to begin to liberally the cualities of character necessary for the bringing in of the Kingdom, self-sacrifice, faith in God and in God — which alone can bring victory, ensure lasting peace and build a new world.

One evidence that industrial and labour leaders are thinking along these terms in connection with the present maximum production and post-war industrial reconstruction is the wide sponsorship of the "Pull Together Canada" program in Montreal. During the last few weeks, this program has been jointly sponsored by labour and management for the personnel of a number of Montreal industries.

The Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation brought "Pull Together Canada" to Montreal for two performances, as the final wind-up of a successful tour of the Company's steel and shipyards plants in the Maritimes. Following this the executive officers of Cefivie Flour Mills, one of Canada's oldest milling companies, were asked by representatives of the employees for a special performance for all of their plants in Montreal. In line with the General Instructions issued by Montreal Command, the Army has also asked members of Pull Together Canada to address gatherings of shop-stewards, union-executives and foremen in industrial philosophy. And this week performances have been arranged for the large munitions plants of Robert Mitchell Company.

TWO-THIRDS of the total number of loans outstanding in Canada's Chartered Banks average less than $500 per loan.

Through bank loans, Canada's Chartered Banks help Canadians to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country. Many of these loans are small—but all contribute their share to the day-by-day activities of Canadian enterprise.

Some further facts about Canada's Banks:

Chartered Banks' loans related to agriculture as shown on the last official return to Parliament, totalled $340,118,473. This sum included loans to farmers, ranchers, fruit raisers and to grain dealers and grain exporters.

Every general manager today heading a Chartered Bank entered the bank as a junior in some small branch.

Up to and including February, 1943, no fewer than 6803 men and 154 women bank employees had enlisted in the armed forces.

Canadians in every walk of life and in every part of Canada are served by more than three thousand branches and sub-agencies maintained by the Chartered Banks to facilitate the nation's business.

Magistrate's Court

On Thursday afternoon, Jos B. Donovan, a transient, appeared before Magistrate Garvin, charged with intoxication in a public place and was remanded nine days.

Clarence Dionne, also charged with being intoxicated in a public place, was fined $10.00 and costs.

On Monday, Thornton Brummel appeared before Magistrate Garvin charged with reckless driving. After listening to the Crown witnesses, Chas. McConnell, Mrs. William Vankoughnet, Robert Smith and Constable A. E. Cook, the Magistrate decided there was not sufficient evidence to convict Brummel of the reckless driving charge and reduced the charge to careless driving, under the Highway Traffic Act, on which he found him guilty and fined him $15 and costs.

Ernest C. Bailey was charged with assaulting Lance-Corpl William C. Babcock and was found guilty as charged. Bailey was fined five dollars and costs and was bound over not to go to the premises of Mrs. Babcock and also to secure some gainful employment.

Cecil Lennox was found guilty of theft of a bicycle and was sent to gaol for two weeks.

TRANSPORT OVERTURNS

A motor transport owned by James W. Harris, Toronto, driven by Gordon Hiseman, and loaded with small kegs of beer, overturned in the ditch on No. 2 Highway, about two miles east of Napanee, on Friday, about 5:45 p.m. and scattered the kegs over the road and ditch.

The accident was the result of the transport being crowded off the road by a west bound car, according to witnesses. Unfortunately the witnesses were unable to secure the license number of the offending car as their concern was given the driver of the transport who narrowly escaped serious injury or death, when the transport rolled over.

It was a case of "roll out the barrell" for a number of passers-by as heads of some of the kegs were broken and beer was flowing freely for a while. All kinds of containers were said to have been used by the thirsty travellers.

MIRIAM MILLER WEDS CHARLES BUCKLEY

A wedding of considerable interest took place in Trinity Church, at 3:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when Miriam Eileen, only daughter of Mrs. J. Edwin Miller and the late Mr. Miller, Napanee, became the bride of Charles Lewis Buckley, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Buckley, Sutton, Ontario.

Tall standards of delphinium, gladioli and regal lilies formed an effective setting for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. G. Murray Chidley. Miss Beatrice Baughan played the wedding music.

The stately bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Lieut. R. G. Miller, of Kingston, who gave her away. She wore a classic gown of silver - tone faille taffeta, which fell in graceful folds to the floor. Her finger-tip veil was crested with a coronet of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses, bouvardia and shatter daisies.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Helen McDonald, Reg. N. a former classmate. She wore a dainty floor-length frock of turquoise chiffon and carried a colonial bouquet of roses, bachelor buttons and bouvardia.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Robinson Street. Mrs. Miller received her guests wearing a street-length frock of frosty white crepe with large black leghorn hat, smartly trimmed with white plume. Her corsage was of pink roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Buckley, mother of the groom, becomingly dressed in a two-piece ensemble of robin's egg blue, with white accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Later, the bride and groom left by motor for a short honeymoon at a cottage on the St. Lawrence, near Brockville. For travelling the bride chose a tailored frock of beige crepe with brown corded silk hat and purse, and corsage of roses and bouvardia. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Buckley will reside in Toronto.

Mrs. Mary Nolan donated the refreshments for last Thursday and Mrs. J. L. Haycock and Mrs. W. A. Ashley are in charge of arrangements for the month of July.

Farmers' own records prove that greatest egg production is secured by the use of these "Miracle" Poultry Feeds. They often get as high as 7.5 eggs daily per hundred hens, and hens lay longer at seasons when eggs are scarce.

LANGEVIN - McGUIRE

On Wednesday morning, June 30, at the Church of the Assumption, Brinsville, Rev. Fr. Powell united in marriage, Margaret Bernice, only daughter of Mrs. Pearl McGuire and the late Chas. McGuire, and Francis Edmund, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Langevin, Stone. The church was decorated with ferns, peonies and potted plants.

The dark-haired bride looked charming as she entered the church on the arm of her eldest brother, who gave her away. She wore a floor length gown of white chiffon over white satin, with lace bodice, sweetheart neckline and long full sleeves. Her finger tip veil fell from a wreath of orange blossoms, and lily of the valley. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses, white pyonies and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid Miss Mabel Langevin, sister of the groom, wore a floor length gown of flowered powder blue chiffon. A short matching veil and halo of blue flowers graced her hair and she carried pink roses.

Mr. Edward McGuire, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while Mr. Wray McGuire, also brother of the bride, and Mr. Fred Langevin, brother of the groom, were ushers.

The bride's mother chose a two-piece costume of flowered tan crepe with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Langevin, mother of the groom, wore a brown and white ensemble and corsage of pink roses.

The bride was a popular young schoolteacher in St. Patrick's School, Erinsville, during the past year. The groom is an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company at Peterborough.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Lieut. and Mrs. Leonard McLellard, Pte. Stan Langevin and Miss Mabel Langevin, all of Kingston; Miss Lillian Flynn, Napanee; Mr. and Mrs. Jennie Botts and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Allore, Stoco.

TOWN OF NAPANEE

Information Respecting Wood For Sale

In view of a possible serious fuel shortage during the coming fall and winter, all Municipalities in Canada have been requested by the Dominion Government to acquire a supply of wood for sale to the Citizens at their respective Municipalities.

Following the suggestion of the Government, the Town of Napanee has purchased a quantity of wood. The price paid by the Town, in each case, was the price established by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and the price the wood will be sold at is also fixed by the same Board.

The Committee of the Town Council in charge have decided, as the policy to be followed, that all wood will be cut up into twelve inch lengths and delivered to the purchaser, that is wood will be sold in quarter cord lots and the purchaser can secure up to two cords for present delivery.

Orders will be received at the Town Treasurer's Office, Town Hall, where payment for wood desired will be collected and a receipt issued to the purchaser. Delivery will be made as soon as possible after receipt of order. No wood will be sold or delivered until cash payment is made for same.

On account of the lack of storage space for large quantities of wood, and to avoid buildup of delivery later in the season, when weather conditions may be unsatisfactory, and to make the individual resident more secure from a fuel standpoint, CITIZENS ARE URGED TO PLACE THEIR ORDER AT ONCE OR AT AS EARLY A DATE AS POSSIBLE.

The several grades of wood that will be offered for sale and prices for each grade is listed as follows:

ALL WOOD CUT 12 INCHES IN LENGTH

BODY WOOD, PRACTICALLY ALL HARDWOOD:
One-quarter cord	$ 4.50
One-half cord	8.50
One cord	16.50
BODY WOOD, MIXED, LARGE PERCENTAGE HARDWOOD
One-quarter cord	$ 4.00
One-half cord	7.75
One cord	15.00
HARDWOOD SLABS, MOSTLY LARGE BLOCKS:
One-quarter cord	$ 3.50
One-half cord	6.75
One cord	13.00
SOFTWOOD SLABS, MIXED SOFTWOOD, SMALL PERCENTAGE HARDWOOD:
One-quarter cord	$ 3.00
One-half cord	5.75
One cord	11.00

The First Three Grades of Wood listed above are now available, and orders will be accepted for delivery starting August 1st.

OBITUARIES

JAMES STUART CLOSE

On Saturday, July 3rd, Stuart, son of the late John and Elizabeth Close, Croydon, passed away at the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston, following a critical operation, at the early age of fifty-one . His demise came as a great shock to the entire community for preceding his entry to the hospi- tal on June 26th, he was about his active duties as usual. The whole of his life was spent in the vicinity where he was born. His life-long friends and neighbors, whose sympa- athy was extended in a very prac- tical way, bore testimony of his worth and fellowship as a neighbor and friend. He was never too busy to lend a helping hand and his word was as good as his bond.

In 1915 he married Christine Rougey, who was his faithful help- meet and who with two sons, Gerald, Sudbury, and Donald at home, be- sides a stepson, Raymond, of Sud- bury, Mrs. Harry Gordon, a sister residing at Sharbot Lake, and a brother, Bashford, Croydon, is keenly feeling a great loss.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, July 6th, in Reedville United Church. A large concourse of friends assemb- ed to pay their respects and bid fare- well to him who had fraternized with them for half a century. Rev. A. W Beaton delivered a thoughtful and soul-inspiring message. He choir sang one of the deceased's favorite hymns, "The Old Rugged Cross," upon re- quest. Many beautiful floral wreaths and sprays lent their silent tribute of love and goodwill.

The pall - bearers were Stanley Dougo, Henry Lacey, Rose McGregor, Murney Marlin, Harry Doupe and Stanley Hagerty. Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

The Constructive Platform of the

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

IN THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

Approved in General Meeting at Toronto, July 3, 1943

ON July 3rd, an all day organization meeting of Progressive Conservative Party candidates and officials from all over the Province, held at the Royal York Hotel, listened with rising enthusiasm to a highly constructive and inspiring address from the Provincial Leader, George Drew.

Mr. Drew presented a series of pledges to the people of the Province—each one of which was unanimously applauded. The pledges, twenty-two in number, constitute the platform upon which the Progressive Conservative Party enters the general election.

It was that programme which the Leader announced to the public in his radio address last Thursday night. Mr. Drew said:

"The programme which the Progressive Conserva- tive Party in Ontario undertakes to put into effect is based upon the conviction that under a strong govern- ment the vast resources and producing capacity of this Province can assure employment and good wages for all who will work and security for those who find themselves unable to work because of sickness, unemployment, physical disability or old age. It is based upon the belief that the spiritual and material welfare of our people, now and in the future, can be best assured under British democratic institutions and within the British partnership.

The Progressive Conservative Party undertakes to put the following programme into effect in the Province of Ontario.

Twenty-two Point Programme

1. We will maintain British institutions and strengthen the British partnership in every means within the constitutional power of the Government of Ontario.

2. We will at all times work in effective co-operation with the Dominion Govern- ment at Ottawa and with the Provinces of Canada in all activities which will assist in the prosecution of the war to a successful conclusion, and in establishing a sound basis of social security, health insurance and protection for the aged, and in all other matters in the Provincial field that fall within the constitutional rights of the people of Ontario in present conditions, and the Govern- ment of Ontario exercise full control of its own Provincial affairs.

3. The farms, the factories, the mines, the forests, and personal services which con- tribute to the maximum war production effort will be encouraged to the greatest possible extent in their efforts to increase employment at good wages. In every field of employment individual initiative will be encouraged and hard work rewarded by reducing taxes and removing bureaucratic restrictions.

4. Farming will be organized in every county under committees of outstanding farmers who will be given authority to fix production and regulate the processing and distribution of farm products, and the whole- salemen, milk distributors, central pro- duce boards and all others who are engaged in handling farm products will act as co- operating partners in each line of production.

WILL TAKE OVER STOCK YARDS

Stock yards will be taken over by the Government and operated as a public service similar to that of the railways, and manipulation may be stopped and fair prices ensured.

5. Agriculture will be rolled immediately of leading farmers from the whole Province to assist in drawing up plans for the organization of food production.

6. Legislation will be introduced granting the workers and employers in the industry the fullest and most effective collective bargaining rights, and the Government will be ready to act as arbitrator in the event of a dispute of at least 15 members to be known as the Ontario Labor Relations Committee, and which these will be equal representation of labor, employers, and the public. Recognizing at the outset the most important industry in the Province is mining, and that the bargaining in connection therewith is asked to examine the labor situation with labor and industry and to report to the Legislature for Ontario as at which will establish that basis of justice, co-operation and respon- sibility which is so necessary for the welfare and security of all our people.

6. The mining industry will be assisted in the development of new mines by the wise direction of Mining with practical knowledge of mining. The tax burden will be lightened so that there will be a more equitable distribution of the tax between the different taxing bodies. A large part of the taxes will go to the Provincial and Municipal Governments from the mining mines which deep prospectors and others the inducement to find and develop new mining properties will be repealed and every encouragement will be given to geologists and prospectors to discover new mineral areas. Every practical measure pos- sible will be taken to encourage the gold mining industry, having in mind the great contributions for re-investment which our gold mines are responsible.

LONG-TERM FOREST POLICY

7. Our vast forest resources, which under proper administration are capable of creat- ing employment for hundreds of thousands of new workers, will be placed under the control of an Ontario Forest Resources Commission, which will have responsibility for long-term policies of conservation, reforestation and soil control. Immediately after its formation it will review all existing con- tracts and will cancel those which have allowed or permitted the destruction of forests without proper consideration.

8. An Ontario Housing Commission will be created to plan a great housing program throughout the whole of the Province for the purpose of creating employment in the period of readjustment and at the same time bring to an end the unsatisfactory housing conditions in many parts of the Province.

SCHOOL TAXES TO BE CUT

9. There will be a sweeping revision of our whole system of real estate taxation so that the burden of local government will be placed on taxes now charged against real estate. It is, however, to be clearly understood that this change will not affect the authority of the local school boards.

10. Our educational system will be com- pletely revised so that every child in this Province will have an opportunity to be educated to the fullest extent of his natural capacity, no matter where they live or what the financial circumstances of their parents may be. Vocational training will be made a much more important part of the school work, so that children may be prepared to earn a living by practical vocational instruction. The important place of our teachers in each community will be fully recognized.

11. Steps will be taken to assure that every child is given the greatest possible opportu- nity to face life with a healthy body and mind. Adequate clinics will be established in the hospitals, dental and other health protection will be available to all.

12. Steps will be taken immediately to provide (free for grey public assistance) which will create employment of the people and the readjustment immediately after the war.

TO REVAMP HYDRO

13. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be reorganized and placed under a strong administration. Recognizing that the publicly owned Hydro-Electric resources of this Province belong to all our people, there will be an immediate adjustment of the rates for power to the consumers on a fair and equitable basis. The new rates in each case are to be announced. Power will be extended to new areas with full recognition of the fact that load production in war is hardly less essential to our success than the military effort.

14. Plans will be made for land reclamation throughout the Province, so that all areas which can be brought into production will be fully developed. These plans will be started immediately, but the actual development in most of the areas will be carried out after the war, when the services of industrial organizations in the period of readjustment. This will often wide opport- unities for the reduction of unemployment entering military service and other employ- ment, and for the return of many to their old positions. However, will be subject to the express condition that those able to pay will not be permitted to evade their obligat- ions by this device, and that just protection will be given to the interests of the municipal- ities affected in accordance with their needs. This does not provide for cancellation of obligations, but merely disaffirms with justice to all concerned.

SOCIAL SECURITY PLAN

22. A rehabilitation and social security committee will be appointed immediately to prepare a comprehensive plan to be put into effect as soon as the war is over, and to make provision for the rehabilitation and employment of the members of the armed forces and munition workers after the war.

17. All legislation will be repealed which denies any individual the right to defend his person and property before the courts.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

18. There will be an immediate increase in mothers' allowances and old-age pensions in keeping with the increased cost of living. There will be an immediate study of the whole question of old-age pensions, with the object of giving a home of their own, which they have established by their savings throughout long years, most dignified of that home before they will be granted the very limited allow- ances which they are entitled to receive. In future the old people who have placed their savings in a home of their own will not be in what it is today and not be forced to mortgage their homes before they can receive their small pensions.

19. Adequate supplies at reasonable prices of fuel, milk and other basic necessities will be assured by effective organization and administrative control. Representatives of labor, veteran organizations and the con- sumers will be invited to participate in all boards dealing with these matters.

20. Men and women who have served in the armed forces will be assisted to secure employment in private and public enterprises.

21. During the war those who are in refi- nance service will be given legislative pro- tection against the economic consequences of their service. In all cases where the obligat- ions of those in military service and their dependents to meet their financial obligat- ions have been materially reduced by such service, the rights of creditors will be safe- guarded against attempts on the part of debtors to evade contractual obligations. This right have sought to dispense with immediate hire. His complete train- ing and experience in the service of his coun- try will be recognized and preference given to ex-service men in the filling of appointments and promotions.

George Drew is fast and fearless as a Canadian, set down and stood and true for the British connection. He is a man of the people, and his father was a member of Colonel Bur- ton's regiment after Confederation. George was an officer in the Leeds Rangers at 20 years of age, enlisted in the same regiment in 1914, and was in the ammunition in 1915, and more months in military hospitals. George Drew entered public life in his native city, Leeds, as an alderman at 26 he was mayor of that city. His administration was marked by the same fearless and broad- minded strength as his present activity as a member of the Provincial Parliament and leader of the Opposition. But he has gone far beyond the confines of his native city in both the breadth and depth of his knowledge. George Drew has travelled throughout Canada has established world contacts and personally toured the British Empire during the Summer war, seeing, hearing and learning at first hand the effective methods of liberation.

Outstanding is the fact that while overseas he made a particularly effective enquiry into agriculture and farmers' problems. Now the public eye in Canada has enabled him to see the Province of Ontario. Public officials and Canadian farmers should be deeply indebted for the wisdom and knowledge that George Drew, since his return from Britain has brought to bear on the problems of agriculture. He appointed both the grain-growing and world view of Canada's greatest, yet most neglected, in- dustry. There is pleasure involved in telling something of this man whose life course has shaped steadily toward statesmanship.

George Drew as I know him

An Ontario provincial election is to be held on August the fourth. A duty now falls upon the weekly press. That is to make known to leaders and indifferent voters the issues involved. Not only the big and equally important one but all editors are aware—the hardy, hard working, clear thinking, war minded people of Ontario want to know something about those who lead the parties seek to seek their support.

Issues and controversy, as the campaigning lengthens, will be dealt with in the press and platforms. The time is now opportune to say some- thing about the leader of the Pro- gressive Conservative Party. Personal history is a fair test of prospective performance.

Let us then introduce George A. Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party of the Province of Ontario.

His political opponents have sought to picture George Drew as a person aloof and unsympathetic. Those of us who have come to know him, and he has many friends in this district, know that no indeed! Warm of profound and practical sympathy he has demonstrated that were one to be counted polite- ness and good will. His exhaustive meetings and many indiscrimin- ate speeches in behalf of those upon whose shoulders the heavy load of war effort rests, confirm this latter quality in the most immediate hire. His complete train- ing and experience in the service of his country will be recognized and preference given to ex-service men in the filling of appointments and promotions.

COUNCIL RECEIVES ENGINEER'S REPORT ON NATURAL WATERCOURSE

Report Recommends Post-War Rebuilding

The following report received from the engineering firm of Gore & Storrie regarding the natural watercourse west of the Belleville Road and West Street, which in the summer overflows and floods the cellars of nearby houses, was received by the Council this afternoon and action at the special meeting on Monday evening.

The report is reproduced in its entirety in order that citizens of the district may know that the Council is concerned with the problem and desires to take action to remedy the situation when the time is opportune, which as the report of the engineers indicates is not at the present time.

The Council ordered the report filed with the intention of taking it up again as a possible post-war project.

C. M. Graham, Esq., Municipal Treasurer, Napanee, Ontario.

Gentlemen:—

Re: Flooding from Creek

At the request of your Mayor, Dr. H. Hall, we examined, on June 16, 1943, the Eighth Army land through the westerly part of the town.

There was plentiful evidence of seriously flooding Bridge Street to Water Street and considerable damage had been done to the properties adjacent to the creek.

We have not been able to secure satisfactory contour plans of the Napanee area but such maps as we have obtained indicate that the creek drains an area of about 160 acres and that the drainage area slopes very steeply, about two and one-half per cent. in a southerly direction. Most of the streets within the drainage area have been paved and drain into this creek. During a heavy rainfall the run off to the creek would probably amount to about 160 cubic feet per second.

The creek is not in its original natural state. The culverts under the various roads have an average area of about eleven square feet. The creek has a free discharge south of Water Street but between Water Street and Bridge Street it has been placed along the sides and the bed is very rough and its carrying capacity is seriously reduced.

From Main Street to Bridge Street the sides of the creek have been built up with rock, the top covered in with cedar timbers and earth which varies in depth from about two to three feet. The bottom of the creek has a rock surface and the sides of the conduit as enclosed average about 10 square feet.

From Bridge Street running in a north-westerly direction for a distance of about 1,000 feet, a 24-inch tile pipe has been laid in the creek bed and covered to a depth of about two feet. Upstream from this point the creek is an open channel with rock walls on both sides as far north as Thomas Street and from Thomas Street north-westerly it is a natural earth channel. The drainage coming from Belleville Road from a few hundred feet north-west of the Canadian National branch line discharges into the creek and there was evidence of some ponding on the north-west side of the railway tracks, although there are two timber culverts each with an area of more than two square feet.

It is quite probable that the creek was originally capable of carrying all the storm flow but due to the paving of the streets the run-off reaches the stream much more rapidly and in greater quantity, and the covering of the channel has restricted the area and reduced its carrying capacity. The combination of the two conditions has been responsible for the flooding of the channel, as it now exists, is capable of carrying the storm flow. Moreover, the timber lining of the channel are in a damp condition favourable for decay and will, therefore, in time, partially choke the passage.

To eliminate the flooding of certain lots along the creek from Thomas Street to the north-westerly limit, it will be necessary to reconstruct the whole creek, materially increasing its carrying capacity. The average area of the conduit required should be about 24 square feet. The sides, if built up with stone, should be smooth and the roof solid so as to ensure the life of the timber under these conditions is short.

As we have been unable to secure satisfactory contour maps of the area a definite design cannot be worked out without first making a survey but from the information we have obtained from observations of the watershed in question, we do not believe that the cost of rebuilding the creek will be about $60,000.00.

It must be understood, however, that under present conditions it is quite impossible to accurately estimate the cost of carrying out construction work of this kind. If the creek drains a large area in the Town and as a very small portion of the watershed is outside the town's boundaries we believe it would be reconstructed as a storm sewer under the Municipal Act and paid by the Town as a whole on the assessment basis.

The reconstruction of the creek channel is necessary to avoid the flooding of the adjacent properties but it is very doubtful if a permit can be obtained for this work at the present time. As you know there is not sufficient labour available for the carrying out of work essential to the war effort. We therefore suggest that this project be carried out after the war is over.

If there is any further information you require or if you desire to have plans and specifications prepared in order to proceed with the work as quickly as possible at the end of the war, we shall be glad to cooperate with you.

Yours very truly,
GORE & STORRIE.
N. G. McDonald.

FIRST DIVISION WELL TRAINED FOR ACTION

SICILY INVADERS CANADA'S VETERAN FORMATION

London, (C.P.) — The Canadian First Division, which landed in Sicily Saturday, July 10, and now is fighting as part of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's Eighth Army, has had more than three and half years of training experience.

The First Division is the veteran formation of the Canadian Army. It arrived in Britain in December, 1939, with Lt.-General A. G. L. McNaughton (then a Major General) as divisional commander.

For security reasons it has not yet been announced which general officer commands the division in Sicily.

The division had been on the verge of action several times in earlier years of the war. Some of its units went to Scotland in the spring of 1940 on their way to Norway, where they were scheduled to attack Trondheim.

TURNED BACK

But they were turned back before they reached Norway when the expeditionary attacks further north scored initial successes. Shortly afterwards the Norwegian campaign collapsed.

In June, 1940, just before France fell, a brigade of the division crossed the Channel as part of a British plan to send a new expeditionary force to aid France. But the military situation had deteriorated there so rapidly that it was decided to recall the brigade, which had penetrated deeply into France, without, however, meeting the enemy.

In 1941 the First Division provided the troops that occupied Spitsbergen, a task which was carried throughout without encountering the enemy. The Canadians destroyed military buildings on the island and returned to Britain.

Now the division is at least in full action after its long wait.

UNUSUAL VISITOR IN NAPANEE

An unusual visitor made his appearance early on Monday morning in Napanee and was given a rather wide berth by all who saw him. The visitor was a large sized porcupine, which was seen ambling quite leisurely down Centre Street, near the Armouries, between seven and eight o'clock in the morning. He was followed by two dogs, which were prevented from making a closer and likely more painful acquaintance by passersby.

NO INCREASE IN BUTTER RATIONS

Officials of the Foods Administration, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, have repeated a warning that the substantial increases in stocks of creamery butter in storage in Canada does not mean that there can be any increase in the present butter ration allowance. It is stressed that at least 70,000,000 pounds of butter must be in store on October 1st to maintain the existing ration allowances during the low-production season of the winter and there are other heavy demands upon Canadian butter stocks including the requirements of the armed forces, of large construction undertakings, of Red Cross parcels for prisoners-of-war and of outlying territories such as Newfoundland and the British West Indies which are dependent upon Canada for their supplies.

HITCH-HIKING GIRLS RETURNED TO HOME

On Sunday evening two young girls in the company of three men in uniform were picked up by Highway Traffic Officer Morden, on the way to Kingston, and were brought into town, where they were lodged in the county gaol for the night.

The girls stated they were on their way to Kingston, where one of them was supposed to be taking a job with a woman whose name she could not give. Both were from St. Catharines and when the St. Catharines police were contacted the request was made for their return to their home town.

They appeared before Magistrate Currie on Monday, charged with vagrancy, and were sent back to St. Catharines.

FUEL CONTROLLER ISSUES COAL ORDER FOR NEXT WINTER

Require Consumers to Use Bituminous Coal

The Munitions Department announced on Thursday that unless a Quebec or Ontario householder is willing to use high-volatile bituminous coal for one-quarter of his "proved requirements," he will not be allowed to buy for next winter more than one-half the hard coal he used in the year ended June 1st, 1943.

The order was "designed to help avert a coal famine next winter," and was issued by E. J. Browning, coal controller. It will "compel greater use of the softer coals and will more fairly distribute available supplies of hard coal.

"It affects all types of consumers of high-grade coal," the Department said.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC

Mr. Browning said the order applies only in Ontario and Quebec because these are only provinces which depend almost entirely on United States coal. Labor difficulties in the United States, coupled with the lateness of the navigation season on the Great Lakes, has reduced the flow of coal from that country.

"It is impossible to predict how much United States coal we shall obtain this year," he said.

Under the order, every consumer of hard coal or other high-grade coal or coke must as soon as possible file with his dealer a Government form in which he may agree to accept high-volatile bituminous coal to the extent of one-quarter of his requirements for the year ending next June 1st.

In the form he must declare how much high-grade coal he burned on his premises in the year ended June 1st, 1943, how much he has on hand, and whether he has already placed an order for next winter's supply. He must also describe the location and kind of premises for which he seeks the coal, and the type of equipment in which it is to be burned.

WHEY BUTTER PRICES SET

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Maximum prices for the sale of whey butter by retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers are established in an order issued by K. H. Olive, administrator of dairy products for the Prices Board.

The maximum selling price on sales by manufacturers of whey butter to wholesale distributors is fixed at 32 cents per pound in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba; 34 cents in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia, and 35 cents in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

The maximum price on sales to retailers by a manufacturer or wholesaler has been placed two cents higher, and the top price to consumers two cents higher than the basic price for manufacturers.

When the butter is sold in printed or rolls rather than solids, the ceiling price may be increased by one cent per pound.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. Is there a ceiling on used radio tubes?

A. Yes, they must not be sold for more than one-quarter of the price in the same locality for the same tube when new.

Q. I have a number of used fruit baskets. What shall I do with them?

A. If you know any fruit or vegetable grower in your district, he would probably appreciate them as these baskets are fairly scarce. There are fixed prices which growers will pay for used baskets, varying from one to three cents apiece.

Q. Circumstances have arisen which make it probable that I will not use all the extra canning sugar coupons allotted to me. What can I do with those unused when the season ends?

A. Any canning sugar not used for that purpose must be declared to your Local Ration Board before December 15. With this declaration you are required to surrender coupons from Ration Book No. 2 (to be distributed late in August) for the sugar declared, which may then be used for household purposes.

Q. What is the meaning of the maximum price that has been set for various commodities?

A. These are the highest prices at which such commodities may be legally sold, sometimes in different areas or zones. This does not mean, however, that the legal selling-price is always at the maximum figure given because it is determined by the cost of the article to the retailer so which he is entitled to add a certain mark-up before selling it to the consumer. It frequently happens that when this formula is followed the selling price is below the maximum.

Q. My laundry has failed to return an article which I sent to it some weeks ago. Under the Prices Board do anything to help me?

A. I am afraid that is a matter between you and your laundry. The Board is responsible for laundries maintaining their prices and services but it cannot undertake to mediate in regard to articles which they may lose.

Q. Does the Wartime Prices and Trade Board propose to enforce the Order under which small arms ammunition is rationed?

A. Most certainly it does. Heavy penalties, including a fine of $1,500, were recently imposed upon a western Canadian hardware concern, and some of its officers for having violated this order. If you have knowledge of any similar abuse, please report it to the nearest office of this Board.

The Prices Board has granted an increase of two-thirds of a cent a dozen on clothes pins. Doesn't seem much, but what does it mean to Canadian housewives? Curious I checked, found they use annually around one million 320 thousand gross or over 190 million pins to hang out the wash.

To the Newmarket Era and Express, it "will set a stiff pace for the other two parties." Its "dynamic policy," declares the Essex County Reporter of Kingsville, "assures Ontario that the Progressive Conservative Party has a new and revitalized purpose." Sutton West Reporter: "The Progressive Conservatives are on the right track with their 22-point platform. . . . It should be a big factor in this election. Real, down-to-earth, constructive items." Drew has answered these critics who were saying that the Progressive Conservative Party has no platform to offer the people of Ontario." Ottawa Journal: "Here at last is a pronouncement by a public man who reveals understanding of the gravity, and, the birth and hope of our times. . . . No Ontario leader in years has announced a more progressive, a more humane, or a more hopeful program." Hamilton Spectator: "The Progressive Conservative Party has statesmanly in its vision. . . . Mr. Drew believes profoundly in the future of Ontario."

Chosen at Convention Last Wednesday

At the Progressive Conservative Convention held at Kingston, Wednesday of last week, J. A. Pringle, Arden, was nominated as candidate for the party for the electoral riding of Frontenac-Addington. Mr. Pringle won the nomination by a large majority on Victor Edgar Mooney, even of the Township of Camden, in Addington. Other nominees, who withdrew before the vote was taken, were L. B. Cronk, E. F. Purcell, W. D. Black, Frank Lemieux and D. J. Rankin.

W. D. Black, Parham, who has represented his constituency in the Ontario Legislature for 23 years, indicated his intention to retire from active political life in a letter written to the secretary of the association, which was read at the convention. Mr. Black will be remembered as the member who paid a fine tribute to Col. George Drew, the leader of the party in the province, and commended the platform drawn-up by the leader.

Mr. Pringle, who is a merchant in Arden and also a farmer, is well known to many in the constituency. He expressed his thanks for the confidence placed in him by the members of the party and assured the delegates that he would do his utmost to win the riding, provided he had the backing of the members of the party.

J. D. Diefenbaker, M.P., for Lake Centre, Sask., a prominent member of the Dominion Parliament, was the main speaker for the occasion.

FURTHER DETAILS CONCERNING WOOD SALE ARRANGED BY COUNCIL

Town Will Buy Truck for Wood Delivery

At a special meeting of the Napanee Town Council held last Monday evening, several matters of importance were given consideration. Details respecting the purchase and distribution of the wood purchased by the Town, for resale, were completed, an agreement with the Ontario Highways Department regarding repairs to the Dundas St. pavement was completed; a complaint from the Medical Health Officer of North Fredericksburgh regarding the dumping of garbage from the Town of Napanee on the farm of F. H. McCutcheon was considered; a report of engineers regarding the rebuilding of the natural watercourse which runs through property west of West Street and the Belleville Road was read; and a complaint from citizens on Graham Street regarding the dumping of street refuse, was considered.

The report from the Special Committee re wood purchase was presented by the chairman and the recommendations of the committee were adopted. The report is as follows:—

1. We have arranged with Mr. Matthew Taylor to supervise the sawing out and delivery of wood from the Town Wood Yards and to certify on the sales sheets the date of delivery of such wood. Mr. Taylor is to be paid twenty-five cents per cord for his services.
2. We have arranged with Mr. Archie Mack to fill the wood racks and assist in loading the delivery truck. Mr. Mack is to be paid forty cents per hour for the actual time he is so employed.
3. We recommend that the tender of Mr. Thomas Anderson to saw up said wood in twelve-inch lengths at one dollar per cord, be accepted.
4. We have been unable to secure satisfactory contracts for delivery of wood and would recommend that the Town purchase a truck to make such delivery. The truck when not in use for such wood delivery to be used by the Town for general street work and the Street Committee pay to the wood account the prevailing price for a truck. We have received the 1940 International Truck, one and one-half ton capacity equipped with oversize tires, which can be had for $800.00, delivery available for September first. Councillor Thomas has assisted your committee in examination of this truck and found same in good condition. Said truck was purchased new in December 1940. We would recommend the purchase of this truck and that it be financed through the wood account and that when it is not needed further for the wood business, the Town purchase same after allowing for depreciation.
5. Your committee report a further purchase of 100 cords hard hobby wood from Mr. R. H. McFarland and Mr. McFarland expects to have an additional quantity of wood for later delivery.

The members of the Council accepted an agreement with the Ontario Department of Highways, by which the Department will pay 50 per cent. of the cost of maintenance of the whole with Dundas Street pavement in Napanee from West to Adelaide Streets and 50 per cent. of the cost of maintenance of a 30-ft. strip of the balance of the Dundas Street pavement. Considerable repair work is required on the pavement where it has settled and the work will be undertaken at a later date when labour and materials are available.

A complaint from Dr. F. C. Wilson, Medical Officer of Health, of the Township of North Fredericksburgh, regarding an alleged nuisance created by the dumping of the town of Napanee garbage on the property of the garbage collector F. H. McCutcheon on the River Road was read and was referred to the Town Solicitor for legal opinion, before action is taken.

The report of the Engineers, Gore & Storrie, regarding the natural watercourse in the Belleville Road area, appears in another column of the paper.

A petition from citizens of Graham St., between Centre and John Streets, regarding the nuisance created by the dumping of street refuse on Graham Street was referred to the Streets Committee with instructions to make some other arrangements for the disposal of the refuse.

HUGE QUANTITY CLOTHING SHIPPED TO RUSSIA

Twenty-six carloads of used clothing, weighing 780,000 lbs. have been shipped to the Soviet Union by the Ontario Provincial Division of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund, it is announced by Mrs. Reed. Among the 588,149 items of men's, women's and children's clothing were included 1,000 pairs of brand new and the rest in perfect wearable condition, Mr. Reed told the Canadian Women's Institutes.

He hailed the result as a fine example of unanimity with a needy Ally. In his report Mr. Creed stated that the campaign had reached into 368 Ontario districts and that there had evolved 898 organizations; among them 184 Red Cross Societies, 31 Women's Institutes, 86 Churches and Church Groups, 18 Chapters of the I. O. D. E., 96 Salvation Army Units, 185 Fraternal Societies and Service Clubs, 12 Women's Associations, 102 Schools and School Organizations, 162 Retail and Wholesale Firms and 90 Aid to Russia Fund Committees.

"I have been deeply impressed," said Mr. Creed, "by the magnificent spirit in which the people of Ontario supported this great effort. They have been carried on without our established ideas of a drive. They have toiled without glory. Nor should it be forgotten that these people have during the same period, engaged in many other war services. It is noteworthy that there has been a complete absence of a patronizing attitude toward those being helped. Literally thousands of grateful enclosed letters with their gifts and in practically every case the emphasis was on our great indebtedness to the Soviet Union, and what our campaign could do to convey to her people something of the deep admiration we feel for them."

"In short," Mr. Creed continued, "this has been a practical demonstration of the average Canadian's desire to contribute to the United Nations unity and to strengthen our battle fraternity with the gallant Soviet people."

The Campaign has convinced me more than ever that the people of Canada are fully conscious of their partnership role and responsibility in the interests of free peoples united to rid the world of nazi-fascist tyranny," Mr. Creed concluded.

At the request of the participating Organizations, the Central Depot at 918 St. Clair Avenue, West, Toronto, will remain open indefinitely.

OFFICIAL STAMPS FOR MARKING MEAT CARCASSES

The official stamps for marking carcasses of cattle, calves, hogs, sheep and lambs under the live-stock slaughtering regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board are now being distributed without charge to the licensed slaughterers entitled to them.

The stamping system, an important aspect of the rationing of meat now in effect, will become effective on July 12th. After that date no carcass may be sold without the official stamp appearing the required number of times on it.

CANADIANS IN IT

The present war of movement is just the sort of war that suits the Canadian soldier. It is quite different from the war of 1914-1918. Then, it was largely a war of position. A trench warfare, in which each side sought to wear down the other's defences. Under those conditions a few yards gain was considered an advantage worth achieving, even if it cost the lives of a considerable number of soldiers. But this is a war of movement, of quick thrusts, of rapid transit, a war of the aeroplane, fast tank and armoured car. Canadians, who made their splendid contribution towards victory in the First World War, yet found the waiting in the trenches irksome. In this war they can move fast Most Canadians have spent some time in the great outdoors, on canoe trips, fishing expeditions, or camping holidays. They know how to fend for themselves in the open. This may be one of the reasons for the phenomenal successes in Sicily during the first week.

Then, too, the boys of this country are mechanically minded, and used to motor travel. As lads they tinkered with the old bus in the backyard. Getting spare parts from any garage scrap heap and tying the loose joints with hay wire, they made the gas buggy go, long before they were legally entitled to a driver's license. They used to driving, used to making temporary repairs, used to speed. A mechanized war is right up their alley. This is perchance another reason why the Canadians were hard to keep up with, after they were set loose in Sicily.

All this training and experience has served them in good stead. It must not be assumed, however, that they will be able to maintain the speed of their earlier successes. Premier King, in his week end review of the progress of Canada's share in the war, warned against undue optimism. Wars are not fought without losses. There will be many casualties before the war is won. Our pride in achievement and our joy in the success of our first real contact with the enemy, must be tempered with sorrow and grief and suffering. War being what it is, that is inevitable

However, the war fought with sorrow and anguish, as it must be, is nevertheless of a character suited to the Canadian temperament. The average Canadian likes movement, thrives on excitement, and dearly loves to "go." The war in Sicily, at least in its early stages, was quite suited to the temperament and experience of our boys. They have already demonstrated their ability, and will give a good account of themselves in the future. The three months of waiting in England, with its intensive training, have been justified by the results already attained.

THE COAL SHORTAGE

A rather severe shock came to most people when the Fuel Controller announced, last week, that there would be rationing of fuel this winter. At least there would be a drastic cut in the amount which the householder would be permitted to buy. This is a cold climate. Last winter was a long, cold winter. And it is necessary, for our national health, that the homes be kept moderately warm. In the less cold climates it is not a hardship for people to get along without central heating, but with the thermometer hovering around ten below, central heating is imperative. It will be a serious hardship for many Canadians if the coal allotment is curtailed to any considerable degree.

Under ordinary circumstances some relief could be found by insulation. The wartime houses, in many of the new war districts, are little better than shells, and yet, by insulation, they have been made warm and comfortable, able to withstand the rigors of this climate. But that is not easily attained now. Labour is difficult and there is not sufficient time to make plans. It would appear that the best we can hope for is coal enough to keep us moderately warm. If our houses are not as comfortable as usual, we will simply have to put on more clothing.

Under the present emergency the foresight of the Town Council in buying plenty of wood, is to be highly commended. It was a good stroke of business, and shows that the members of the Council had anticipated the announcement of the Controller. It is to be hoped that they will not stop in their efforts, but will secure more wood and so assure the people of Napanee against the worst effects of a fuel shortage.

THE MARVELLOUS LOCATOR

As the days pass and it becomes possible even in a small degree to see those things connected with the early days of this Global War, in perspective, the Battle of Britain stands out in striking colors. The valor, bravery, courage of the indomitable little group of flyers who, day after day tackled the winged might of the German Air Force, will be retold in countless generations yet unknown. Poems will be written about them, odes will tell of their place in England's history. They will take their place beside the heroes of Thermopylae, Waterloo and Trafalgar.

Second only to the courage of the British Air Force in winning the battle of Britain, was the quiet, painstaking, unspectacular work done by Sir Robert A. Watson-Watt, Scottish physicist, who long before the war was secretly at work on Radio Detectors. In a little hut and truck near Daventry, he carried on his investigations with his wife as his assistant. When the war broke he was ready, and as a result, England was surrounded with radio-locators which, with unerring accuracy, told the distance, location, direction of travel and speed of the German Air Force, as it set out for Britain. This information made it unnecessary for Great Britain to keep in the air a large force of fighter planes To have been compelled to do so at that stage of hostilities would have been disastrous. The planes were kept on the ground until the enemy approached, when they went out to meet the foe. Thus conservation of men and materials, so essential to war, was maintained. The enemy was met and destroyed. The battle of Britain had been won. Precious time was thus saved and England was given a breathing spell in which to work and to prepare for the hard and strenuous days ahead.

The story of the Radio-Locator— Radar as it is called in the United States, has only recently been given to the world. It is one of the most interesting stories to come out of the war, and one of the most illuminating and important. That it should have been ready and so effective, is a glowing tribute to the scholar and the student, whose work lacks the glamor of the spectacular, but is so often a determining factor in directing the course of history.

COLONEL DREW'S BOMB

The bomb which Colonel Drew dropped into the present political campaign, has had two notable results. In the first place, it has directed attention away from the past to the present and future. Premier Nixon and those who are with him had intended to make their appeal to the country on the record of the Hepburn administration. It had many good things to its credit, and Mr Nixon could have made out a pretty fair case for supporting it in the present election. But once Colonel Drew came out with an advanced programme of reform, nothing was left for Mr. Nixon to do but to meet it And unfortunately he was unprepared to do that task. He had no such constructive programme with which to meet Colonel Drew's platform. Consequently he has to be content with denouncing it as unpractical and financially unworkable.

The other effect of Colonel Drew's sensational bid for power has been to draw attention to the Canadian Commonwealth Federation. For years, the C. C. F. has pioneered in social and economic reform. It was not popular with the more conservative in the community. But it had an increasingly large following among the working people and socially minded students and professional groups. The swing of public opinion has definitely been towards the advanced social program of the C. C. F. in recent years. In the last six Canadian by-elections, the C. C. F. has won five — South York, Edmonton, Salmon Arm, Winnipeg, North Centre, and Revelstoke. There can be no denying the trend of these by-elections are any criterion.

Any party which hopes to win popular support will have to take this trend into consideration. This Colonel Drew sees well enough. Naturally the C. C. F., which has anticipated the present demand for social changes, and has made such phenomenal progress in the past few years, resents the adoption of part of its programme by the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party. However the election will go the C. C. F. will be the victors in that they are seeing the principles for which they stand now before the public as the platform of one of the older parties. Whether, if elected to office Col. Drew could pursuade the party he represents to implement his promises, is quite another matter.

BI - LINGUAL FIGURES GIVEN

Ottawa, (C.P.)—Slightly less than thirteen per cent of Canadas population can speak both English and French, the key official languages in the Dominion, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports. Actually but there are more than 115,000 persons in Canada who speak neither.

According to the 1941 census, 1,479,009 persons in Canada could speak both official languages, the bureau said. "About 70 per cent. of these resided in urban areas and thirty per cent. in the country.

"This number represented 12.8 per cent. of the total population of Canada at the date of the census, as compared with 12.7 per cent. at the 1931 census.

"Among those who spoke one of the official languages, 729,482 spoke English only and 2,181,746 French only. There were also 113,414 persons in Canada at the 1941 census who could speak neither English nor French, as compared with 278,165 in 1931."

Of the 1941 census 6,486,180 persons said English was their mother tongue, and 3,384,753 gave French. Other languages reported as mother tongue by 50,000 or more persons were German, 322,298; Ukrainian, 313,273; Yiddish, 129,906; Polish, 126,711; Italian, 80,360; Hungarian, 69,084; Netherlands, 53,215; Russian, 52,241.

Of persons reporting German as their mother tongue, more than 70 per cent lived in the Prairie Provinces and 20 per cent in Ontario. Nearly 90 per cent of the population with Ukrainian mother tongue was in the Prairie Provinces and about 15 per cent in Ontario.

Four - fifths of the population whose mother tongue was Yiddish were found in Ontario and Quebec — about equally divided between these two provinces— and another 13 per cent in Manitoba. Just over half of the people with Polish mother tongue lived in the Prairies, and 40 per cent. in Ontario.

Persons reporting Italian as the mother tongue were concentrated in Ontario, with 53 per cent of the total, and in Quebec, 37 per cent. About 70 per cent of the people with Norwegian mother tongue were found in the Prairies, while 17 per cent. were in British Columbia.

Over three-quarters of the population regarding the Netherland mother tongue were in the Prairies Provinces and 15 per cent in Ontario. More than half the people whose mother tongue was given as Russian were living in the Prairies Provinces at the 1941 census, another quarter in British Columbia, and 16 per cent in Ontario.

Canada and the United States are now Britain's chief sources of egg supply. Although drying permits sending five times as many eggs in the same space British rations can still allow only one to four eggs per person, per week.

A Natitonal Victory Garden

For many of us today, long hours in the business end of a spade, hoe and fork are taking the place of those peaceful, though sometimes expensive hours wielding a golf club or fishing pole. Hanging on a strap in a crowded street car you hear the sure cure for corns, pimples or earth that has soured, all coming from the same men who used to be troubled with "hooking their driver or flubbing the right shot for half a July. Worms, too, seem to have further functions than just going on fish hooks. Believe it or not many of us are learning that potatoes don't just come nicely scrubbed in paper bags nor do carrots grow in bunches with a rubber band around their tops. And too many of us have baggy trousers and sore backs to fall to admire all that has gone into producing the choice vegetables that are going to be so slow to appear on the dining table for victory.

We may never produce a new kind of vegetable, but we never fully understand the miracle of nature that lets certain tomatoes from those tiny seeds, but there are many things we do know and others that we are picking up quickly. We know that sunshine and water are essential, that there must be certain minerals in the earth if its fruit is to be of real value as food. Therefore we water, drain and fertilize our patch of ground.

We know now much to our sorrow, that with all the good will in the world we can't dispense with the simple laws of nature. Even though our garden is dedicated to victory it takes stiff doses of foul smelling manures and many layers of skin to create the conditions in which plants will thrive.

This gardening gives us time to think, too. It takes sweat to produce a perfect head of lettuce, what about that there must be sweat in our freedoms? We know that our potatoes won't be worth digging if we allow the potato bugs to look after them, but do we expect victory and peace will be ours when the fight stops. While our national soil is being poisoned and soured by differences of race, class and creed and is love deep in weeds, there are still too many who glibly go about their jobs just waiting for the fruits of victory and the lasting peace to drop into their baskets

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE DUTCH

The secret Dutch radio station was on the air. A Dutch Nazi had been killed by patriots in Utrecht, and the broadcaster was bravely giving details of the slaying.

Three weeks later the Gestapo still was searching for the underground station. It came on the air again, taunted the Nazis by describing a visit to Gestapo headquarters in Amsterdam with a full description of the building's interior.

This one incident in the Nazi versus Allies radio war is recalled by the Netherlands Information Bureau since a report from London that Nazi authorities in Holland had ordered the confiscation of an estimated 1,000,000 radio sets in an attempt to keep the people from hearing and heeding Allied invasion signals.

The order is interpreted in London as an admission by the Nazis that the Dutch listened only to free station — British, the United States and other short-wave broadcasts and those of the Netherlands Government in London.

The Netherlands Government frequently has broadcast instructions to Dutch civil servants and the population over Radio Orange from London. During the recent crisis after the German decree for the re-interment of all former members of the Netherlands armed forces as prisoners of war, the Netherlands Government advised the ex-soldiers not to comply, and asked the people to aid them in avoiding arrest.

On July 16, 1941, after a year of Nazi rule, the head of the central Nazi Office for Public Welfare, in Amsterdam declared "many Dutchmen look unhealthy" and ascribed this appearance to "unhygienic living conditions, including the fact that they stay on late at night listening to the forbidden radio."

The Nazis have tried elaborate ruses to discredit the underground broadcasting in the Netherlands. Last June after the Egland broadcasts from the Hilversum radio station (an important Nazi transmitter), a new and somewhat trembling voice suddenly came on the air one night.

"This is the secret Dutch freedom sender, De Notenkraker. (The Nutcracker)," said the voice. "We draw your attention to our daily transmissions on the ultra short-wave. . . . This war probably will not end in a stalemate, and Holland will have to know where it stands. To make this clear is the purpose of our underground broadcasting station."

Britain heard the station, but no official had any fear that the Dutch would be deceived by it. This view was confirmed the next night when the station came on the air on the same wave length and at the same time, and repeated this process on succeeding nights with a carefully timed 20-minute programme. The German methodical instincts had overruled reason, since no illegal station would have broadcast so regularly.

Radio Orange in London broadcast a warning to the Dutch against the "secret" station, and the people began ignoring the nutcracker. Shortly afterwards it disappeared from the air.

EXPERTS KNOW WHERE TO HIT

BY WALTER LOGAN

The Royal Air Force smashes Cologne or Dusseldorf, Essen or Dortmund with one of the great raids of the year, causing widespread devastation. But a week or a month later the R.A.F. bombers are pounding the same target.

Why?

The chances are the Ministry of Economic Warfare suggested the return raid. A new expert may have looked at a reconnaissance photograph and said, "the bombs missed a key shop right there."

Or another expert may have been studying a letter written to a German prisoner from that town which mentioned the "big white house two blocks down the street" that escaped bombing. And the expert may know that right beside the house is a shop on which factories many miles away depend for essential parts.

The Ministry's work depends on just such details as those.

A big staff maintains such close watch on German industry that Nazi war production might well be dislocated entirely with 1,000 blockbuster bombs if each could be dropped on the exact spot desired. Unfortunately, bombing is not that accurate.

The staff includes many men who have spent their lives in Germany or elsewhere in Europe. They know in detail the targets of the R.A.F. attacks, and may even have worked in the factories affected.

It is not unusual for these men to be able to say when one end of a factory building is hit just what machines were housed there and exactly what the effect will be on the factory's production as a whole.

The Ministry had much material on German industry before the war, and it has been supplemented with intelligence reports from Germany, aerial reconnaissance, and neutral sources.

In the Ministry are experts on many subjects — rail transportation, munitions, optical instruments, etc. The railroad experts, for example, determined that Germany now has four times as much track as before the war, but only two and one-half times as many locomotives.

Therefore the Ministry suggested to the Air Ministry, that locomotives should be made a special target. That accounts in some measure for the frequent raids on the Krupp works at Essen, the Henschel works at Kassel, the Schneider plant at Creusot, and such industrial objectives.

The campaign also includes frequent attacks by fighter planes on locomotives of which 150 were damaged last month.

FARMERS ASKED TO SAVE HORSEHAIR

As everyone agrees, farmers are very busy people especially during wartime, but the Prices Board hopes that, in spite of everything else that is expected of them at this time they will bear in mind that the supply of horsehair is limited and that any of this hair which they can collect as a result of combing will be of distinct service to their country.

Horse hair from the mane and tail is of particular value in connection with the war. Hair from the mane is used extensively in the construction of shock-pads for army tanks, cushions for army vehicles and mattresses for the navy. That which comes from the tail is required for the making of brushes with which guns and the wings of combat aircraft are cleaned. It is further required for making large numbers of special brushes in the ammunitions plants.

Every combination which farmers can make to the supply of horsehair will be appreciated. That from live horses is the best and if combings are placed in a bag it will be of much assistance. If tan bags are used, one for the mane combings, and the other for the tail combings, it will help even more.

A TIP FOR MEAT RATIONING

Here is a meat recipe from the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture which makes good use of Hamburger or the remains of a roast. It is different in both appearance and flavour and is simply and quickly prepared.

Favourite Casserole
(One Coupon — 6ix Servings)

Two tablespoons fat, one medium onion, minced, one pound hamburger, or, two and a half cups ground cooked meat, two teaspoons salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper, half-teaspoon of celery salt, quarter-teaspoon of sage, two cups canned tomatoes, two tablespoons flour, two tablespoons cold water, two cups peas, fresh or canned, biscuit dough.

Brown onion in hot fat, add hamburger and sear, stirring with a fork. Season meat with salt and pepper and reserve three-quarters cup of the meat mixture. Add tomatoes to remaining meat mixture, blend flour and water, add and cook, stirring until the mixture thickens. Add cooked fresh or canned peas, pour into a casserole.

Make biscuit dough using two cups flour. Roll dough into a rectangle one-quarter inch thick and spread with the three-quarters cup meat mixture. Roll up like a jelly roll. Form dough into a circle on top of meat mixture in the casserole, join and seal the ends. Snip dough with scissors in one-inch slices cutting almost through. Turn each slice slightly on its side. Bake in a hot oven, 400 F. deg. until biscuit is cooked — about 35 minutes.

When one of its sharp teeth is lost by the game shark, another slides forward to replace it from a "spare" back row.

Blimps Are Filling A Major Role

The United States Navy Department has revealed that a significant factor in the recent success of the anti-submarine campaign in the North Atlantic was due to the one hundred per cent effectiveness of the Navy's new non-rigid airships which have escorted thousands of transports and supply ships without loss of a single vessel.

The Navy Department says: "Not one of the thousands of transports and supply vessels that have been escorted by the Navy's new non-rigid airships has been lost to submarine attack."

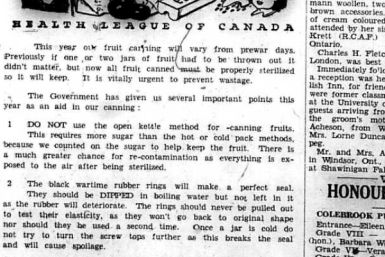
These blimps are now operating in the Pacific and the Gulf of Mexico as well as in the Atlantic and "have proved their worth as guardians of American shipping, both on convoy protection and on anti-submarine patrol," the Navy Department said.

Operational flexibility of the new airships is indicated by the recent Navy announcement that one of these ships has successfully completed a 3,000-mile-trip to an outlying expeditionary base. The blimp is not handicapped by low visibility as are other aircraft, and it is in effect a movable platform from which anti-submarine operations can be effectively directed.

Shortly before the beginning of the war the lighter-than-air craft of the navy consisted of only seven ships, three of them small ones and two of them ten years old. However, Congress authorized the rapid construction of 48 lighter-than-air craft and early last year 23 others were ordered. Congress later authorized the Navy's airship strength increased to 200 craft. A widespread network of major and auxiliary bases are being established for these ships. The main training school is at Lakehurst, N.J., and another is at Moffett Field, Sunnyvale, California.

During the past year a considerable part of the huge lighter-than-air expansion program has been completed, the Navy revealed. Twelve squadrons projected for escort patrol and three Pacific main bases are functioning. Five bases are in operation outside of the continental limits of the United States and others are planned. In addition to the main bases, numerous auxiliaries are functioning.

WARTIME CANNING



This year our fruit canning will vary from prewar days. Previously if one or two jars of fruit had to be thrown out it didn't matter, but now all fruit cannot be properly sterilized so it will keep. It is vitally urgent to prevent wastage.

The Government has given us several important points this year as an aid in our canning :

1 DO NOT use the open kettle method for canning fruits. This requires more sugar than the hot or cold pack methods, because we counted on the sugar to help keep the fruit. There is a much greater chance for re-contamination as everything is exposed to the air after being sterilized.

2 The black wartime rubber rings will make a perfect seal. They should be DIPPED in boiling water but not left in it as the rubber will deteriorate. The rings should never be pulled out to test their elasticity, as they won't go back to original shape nor should they be used a second time. Once a jar is cold do not try to turn the screw tops further as this breaks the seal and will cause spoilage.

3 Make less jams and jellies — they require twice the amount of sugar.

4 It is possible to can without sugar, depending entirely on sterilization for keeping the fruit. The sterilization time should be five minutes longer when no sugar is used. You can tomatoes without sugar with complete safety; the same applies to the fruit. If you use sugar make a thin syrup by using two cups of water to one cup sugar.

Preservatives should not be necessary when you use the proper method for sterilization.

Chinese Peasants Treated Like Cattle By Conquerors

BY SONIA TOMARA

Chungking—Living conditions under Japanese rule in North China are far worse than in Free China, two young students from Peiping assured me on their arrival here. In the north life is particularly hard for the poorer classes. Laborers get very low pay, they eat little more than bean cakes and coarse millet, they are ill-treated by the Japanese troops and officials.

I heard such reports from Chinese officials, but I was anxious to have them confirmed by someone who had recently arrived from the north. I had the opportunity to meet a young student men whom I shall call Chang and Wong, as their real names may not be disclosed. Chang's father until he was former cantal and arrived here after a month's trip.

"When we arrived in Free China we felt like different people," said Wong, who abandoned his studies in Peiping and intends to continue them in Chungking. "Here we can eat and we can say what we want without fearing to be overheard by spies."

They were able to give me much first-hand information about North China. The Japanese, they said, make a great distinction between the rich and poor Chinese. They treat the rich better and some of the richer people are forced to collaborate with them. The younger ones do not, Chang said emphatically. They run away to Free China. The two students met several young men and girls who had been taken to study at universities in Japan. They stayed there a year and did not like it. They were allowed to attend only picked courses and were never permitted to visit Japanese factories.

Although all of occupied China was supposed to be under the puppet government of Wang Ching-wei, there is a difference between Central and Northern China. Wong explained. The former had more autonomy; the latter was frankly ruled by the Japanese army. The Japanese experts keep watch on all the crops and configurated them as soon as they were ripe.

"I had an uncle who had a farm and who tried to raise his own food," one of the boys said, "but he never got his harvest. They took it away before he could store it."

Workers in the coal mines were no better off than the peasants, according to Cheng. They received one bag of flour every seven days and from 70 cents to $2 in Chinese money a day. As the cash would buy nothing they usually sold the flour and bought cheaper food for their families. The Japanese treated the peasants and workers no better than cattle, the boys agreed.

Rich people had more consideration, but they were not permitted to have more than 500 Chinese dollars at a time from their bank accounts.

Foreign missionary schools were closed for lack of funds. Wong told me, but the Japanese opened a new technical school in Peiping to train civil engineers. In the Chinese schools pupils now are obliged to study the Japanese language eight hours weekly, while the teaching of English, where it has remained at all, is reduced to two hours weekly. The Japanese-controlled books, magazines and newspapers stress the theory of Asia for the Asiatics.

There is a shortage of everything in Peiping, the boys said, and although the shops are open, they display little. Most of the manufactured goods come from Japan and are sold in newly opened Japanese shops. Gasoline is available only to Japanese officials and the number of bus routes in the city has been reduced from 90 to three.

Travelling within the provinces of North China is allowed without permits, but no Chinese is permitted to go to Manchuria except on business ordered by the Japanese.

"Thank you so much for the quilts, etc., sent to us by the members of them confirmed by some of the boys by arrived from the north. I had the opportunity to meet a young man here whom I shall call Chang and Wong, as their real names may not be disclosed. Chang's father until he was former cantal and arrived here after a month's trip.

"When we arrived in Free China we felt like different people," said Wong, who abandoned his studies in Peiping and intends to continue them in Chungking. "Here we can eat and we can say what we want without fearing to be overheard by spies."

They were able to give me much first-hand information about North China. The Japanese, they said, make a great distinction between the rich and poor Chinese. They treat the rich better and some of the richer people are forced to collaborate with them. The younger ones do not, Chang said emphatically. They run away to Free China. The two students met several young men and girls who had been taken to study at universities in Japan. They stayed there a year and did not like it. They were allowed to attend only picked courses and were never permitted to visit Japanese factories.

Although all of occupied China was supposed to be under the puppet government of Wang Ching-wei, there is a difference between Central and Northern China. Wong explained. The former had more autonomy; the latter was frankly ruled by the Japanese army. The Japanese experts keep watch on all the crops and configurated them as soon as they were ripe.

"I had an uncle who had a farm and who tried to raise his own food," one of the boys said, "but he never got his harvest. They took it away before he could store it."

Workers in the coal mines were no better off than the peasants, according to Cheng. They received one bag of flour every seven days and from 70 cents to $2 in Chinese money a day. As the cash would buy nothing they usually sold the flour and bought cheaper food for their families. The Japanese treated the peasants and workers no better than cattle, the boys agreed.

Rich people had more consideration, but they were not permitted to have more than 500 Chinese dollars at a time from their bank accounts.

Foreign missionary schools were closed for lack of funds. Wong told me, but the Japanese opened a new technical school in Peiping to train civil engineers. In the Chinese schools pupils now are obliged to study the Japanese language eight hours weekly, while the teaching of English, where it has remained at all, is reduced to two hours weekly. The Japanese-controlled books, magazines and newspapers stress the theory of Asia for the Asiatics.

There is a shortage of everything in Peiping, the boys said, and although the shops are open, they display little. Most of the manufactured goods come from Japan and are sold in newly opened Japanese shops. Gasoline is available only to Japanese officials and the number of bus routes in the city has been reduced from 90 to three.

Travelling within the provinces of North China is allowed without permits, but no Chinese is permitted to go to Manchuria except on business ordered by the Japanese.

A COUNTRY EDITOR SEES Ottawa

WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS OF CANADA
by JIM GREENHALF, Editor of the SUN
SWIFT CURRENT SASKATCHEWAN

This introduces, from the nation's capital, a new series of weekly letters, designed exclusively for community papers of Canada and that vast audience of readers which never gets out to a night club. For the rancher, farmer, fruit grower, miner; the semi - urban and rural people whose feet are directly and indirectly rooted in the soil of Canada.

Our own editor among others has been annoyed so high heaven with the flood of material which comes from Ottawa much of which he cannot use. Like you he's a busy person; wants only that which will think so much of, whether you agree with him on politics or not. He knows you would be interested in a quick catch-up on governmental doings and what's what around Ottawa after you come in from chores at night. He knows you do not relish long winded reading after a hard day's work. And this weekly feature, for your editor's sake and especially you, I hope will fill the bill.

The Wartime Information Board has been among those that readers of weekly papers are entitled to something in their own language from Ottawa, and so, accepting this assignment it would be interesting to get your collective reaction through your editor.

If you have any particular problem which has its anchor in Ottawa, and you want to know what makes it tick, feel free to drop a line to the Editor, umn. Maybe it can be interpreted for you. Possibly there are thousands of others who want to know about the same thing. But it would be better if none of us got too personal or too political. We'll leave that sort of thing to the politicians.

This column to justify itself should be a national mirror for the home town. I don't suppose you are much interested in the fact that Ottawa looks really beautiful this time of year. So is your own place out east or west. But you might like, occasionally, to hear of those unpredictable strange faces, strange ideas, all of which make Ottawa an unique place even if you have to stand in line to get one.

There could be little sidelights, like seeing the Soviet fliers recently; the fellow who flew from Moscow to Ottawa — just like that. I watched them in the hotel lobby, in black knee length boots, loose fitting tunics, rakish forage caps; smart, exotic looking fellows who looked as if they had a mission in life. Undoubtedly their's is killing Germans. They were watching the smartly dressed girls in their well-cut uniforms; men of our airlied forces, civilians and seemed to be measuring the standards of democracy as against Communism. I got a look out of watching them eye the well filled cigarette stand, the jammed hotel cafe.

Well, that's part of Ottawa. A little of this, a little of that about government, activities, legislation, Parliament, none of it too wearying, but informative.

Just recently I heard Hon. Humphrey Mitchell in the House of Commons justify the government's manpower policy. When he said that 5,100,000 men and women out of a total population of 8,720,000 aged 14 years and over were in the armed forces or at work, this on the face of it speaks mighty well for Canada at war. The Opposition calls it a "muddle." After listening in on the debates for weeks on end, it becomes increasingly clear that Canadians have got to think and interpret for themselves a little, too. We'll try to unravel things if possible, always keeping in perspective the national picture and that millions of others have problems, and plenty, too.

Letters in from editors all over Canada relative to this new service reveal that people in Canada are pondering these days and want to take the works of the clock apart themselves. One editor suggests we play with both hands into a Health Insurance scheme now pending which he claims would be foisted on us by a medical monopoly, and which in its present form would cost the people plenty.

A Manitoba editor wants, "in simple language enlightenment on matters pertaining to farmers and the farming communities" and also "the benefit will the post war reconstruction schemes be to the farmer."

That seems to be our "simple task" in this weekly news letter. You must not expect miracles or reporting Time, experience in digging out the essential facts and developing a continuity that makes interesting reading you might be interested in out here will follow. Undoubtedly you want facts, and an authentic, unbiased and interpretive slant at Ottawa. Dished out as if your own editor was looking editor was here doing it.

GERMANS REACTING AGAINST NAZI RULE

How do the German people feel about the war? What do they think of the Nazi leaders and the Nazi party now? Has Hitler's prestige with their attitudes?

Answers to some of these questions are to be found in the German newspapers. The New Statesman and Nation of London has culled from German papers a number of revelatory paragraphs.

The evidence, the New Statesman writes, is significant but fragmentary; to interpret it we must recall that Goebels no longer hopes to disguise the extent of Allied successings. He admits the devastation and explains away "grumbles" due to temporary administrative chaos; but he also strives to hide the emergence of opinion that is opposed to the Nazi regime." The journal then cites a few pieces of evidence that go beyond the recent revolt of students in German universities and the condemnation of Nazi lawlessness by dignitaries of the Church.

In Hamburg, for instance, Gauleiter Kaufmann complains not only of "occasional bleating," which is "disagreeable," because it originates from "a negative basic attitude." On the same platform Prof. Jessewe complains that the "oppositional intelligentsia" is beginning to extend its influence over youth. He defines this opposition as existing in "leading men and women from the Party, State, armed forces, economic, scientific and cultural life." "Youth," he declares, "wants to see its ideals and to fight for them," and "he declares war against an intellectualism which undermines youthful enthusiasm. He admits that the "opposing power" of this intelligentsia is inducing "many young people to fail to do their duty." "Only one thing avails against the opposing powers of destruction — hardness."

These anti-Nazi corruptors of youth are no doubt among the administrative breakdown which has overwhelmed the state officials. Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders are bombed areas have organized voluntary systems of social welfare which are to benefit all, irrespective of race and creed. If Nazi social machinery breaks down under bombing, those whose ideology is different get their opportunity.

Nor are bombed-out districts alone affected. The local Nazi paper in a university town in South-West Germany day by day attacks various groups of opposition. "There are Christians who have "kind hearts". "A kind heart is no longer enough in this time of strife. We are in the midst of a trial which has been imposed upon the entire German people and nobody can calmly remain aloof and withdraw from daily life on account of his "kind heart." . . . This zeal for the kind heart may become a great nuisance and even a danger."

On the following day the paper went so far as to remind its public that—

"Even a people without a government would quickly be forced to decide whether it wanted to fight and live or surrender and perish. And such a people, without a strong leadership, would be doomed from the very outset, as this war has often shown."

"We party members in particular, this article of Sunday, June 14th, 1943, declares, must acknowledge our close links with the Party, even though this may require a good deal of civil courage . . . appear and act as a Parteigenosse in everyday life and at all times is hard and by no means always pleasant."

This the British journal considers a remarkable admission. "What" it asks, "are we to deduce when to wear a Nazi badge ceases to be an object of pride in Germany? Not too much, surely, that the strain in Germany is telling and that groups of many kinds now dare show hostility to the Nazi swashbucklers.

Canned Chicken To Be Sold By Grade

When a housewife wants a can of chicken after September 1, 1943, she will no longer select it by guesswork — but by grade. This is the result of the Dominion Department of Agriculture regulations governing the packing, grading and marking of canned poultry. When poultry canners are able again to get supplies of tin, they will be required to label their product either Grade 1 or Grade 2, for interprovincial and export shipments—and these grades will tell the consumer exactly what she is buying. Under the regulations, grade 1 is prohibited no matter where ete from sold.

Grade 1 canned chicken means that the meat is produced from chicken with the highest quality of canned product. The meat will make up from 50 to 56 per cent of the jellied pack and not less than 75 per cent of the solid pack. The remainder of the can is filled with broth in which the meat has been pre-cooked and which also must be of definite quality.

The Department officers point out that the grading of canned poultry is a development of the nationwide grading of dressed poultry which it introduced some years ago. A consumer accustomed to buying with confidence dressed poultry by grade, will now have the same assurance in buying canned poultry.

In devising these regulations, which cover not only chicken but all kinds of poultry canned on and after September 1st, the Department has received assistance and co-operation in the technical aspects of canning from the National Research Council and has been in consultation with the canned poultry trade.

Sculptors find it particularly difficult to carve spectacles on man's statues. Among the many statues of statesmen and soldiers in the United States Capitol, only the bust of Vice-President James Sherman represents the subject wearing eyeglasses.

DREW 22-POINT PROGRAM BACKED BY HOUSE RECORDS

The Press Endorses Progressive Conservative Platform

DREW PLANS A DYNAMIC ONTARIO
(Essex County Reporter, Kingsville, Ont.)

Social security, full employment, and economic planning are prominent topics of the day. George Drew's approach to the discussions forms a stimulating contribution . . . Ontario's planning problem, according to George Drew, is not a static one, but is dynamic in character, designed to develop to the utmost our Nature-given potentialities . . . his view at first may sound like old-line thinking, but one must admit that his approach is more than ten echo of Laurier and Macdonald. He adds something new . . . our planning for the future must be dynamic.

DREW APPEALS TO THE BEST IN ONTARIO
(Ottawa Journal)

For the Progressive Conservative Programme offered the people of Ontario by George Drew, one thing must be said at the outset. It is that here at least is a pronouncement by a public man who reveals understanding of the gravity, and the faith and hope, of our times . . . He (Mr. Drew) offers us a programme within the framework of freedom; a programme that must appeal to Ontario's traditions of individual independence and self-reliance. He would have government control and supervision for the citizen; he would not subject men to the deadening hand of bureaucracy, nor plan us all into puppets under drill sergeants of the state. That he leaves as it should be left to the Socialists of the C.C.F. . . . No Ontario leader in years has advanced a more progressive, a more humane, or a more hopeful programme.

DREW'S GREAT SOCIAL DOCUMENT
(Toronto Globe and Mail)

Progressive Conservative Leader, George Drew has raised the present campaign far above the picayune things of the public politician. By it all the carping, all the sneers, the insendo and the petty slander of his critics were swept aside. In that address George Drew has given the people of Ontario a great document, the finest social document in Ontario's history, one which should be read, studied and thought upon by every citizen . . . Point by point it is a constructive thing, given in the skeletonized form that it is a dynamic and constructive programme . . . Almost every point offers a practical approach to fundamental problems. . . It is essentially a programme of work, a series of well-integrated steps calling for the creative use of all our resources and all our skill . . . George Drew is publicly pledged to these 22 points. What is more, he is pledged to implement them with the guidance and assistance of the chosen representatives of each group directly concerned. . . . If some concrete evidence of the genuineness of the Party were needed, there is the record. Many of the records of the points Mr. Drew itemized in his address are not new. He has offered them to the Legislature of the Province and as Opposition Leader offered to assist the Government in carrying them out.

THE RESCUE OF REAL ESTATE
(Windsor Star)

Mr. Drew proposes that the Ontario Government, if he is called upon to form it, will assume at least fifty percent of the school taxes now charged against real estate . . . That . . . would prove a relief to all taxpayers.

Constructive Proposals In Public Interest

Speaking over the C.B.C. network Friday night, July 16th, Leslie M. Frost, M.P.P. for Victoria and Haliburton, one of the outstanding Progressive Conservative members of the Provincial Legislature, emphasized the fact that the 22-point program recently announced by George Drew, Leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, was the product of extended consultation with his followers, and that it was unanimously adopted at a largely attended meeting of Party members from all parts of the province of Ontario held at the Royal York Hotel on Saturday, July 3rd.

Not only this, said Mr. Frost, the platform given out after that meeting was the natural sequence and outcome of numerous key proposals made in the legislature by the Party's members during the years of the war began the Opposition, led by Mr. Drew has at each session put forward a series of resolutions founded in the public interest. These proposals, added the member for Victoria and Haliburton, have been either voted down at the instance of the Liberal Government, defeated, or under by a Liberal Speaker.

On February 15th, 1941, the Opposition, submitted a resolution, calling upon the Government to move for a conference of representatives of the Dominion and of all the provinces for the following purpose, To adopt such measures for the post-war reconstruction as may be necessary:

(a) To assure the greatest war and post-war efforts.
(b) To meet emergencies created by the war.
(c) To secure adequate prices for agricultural products.
(d) To recognize established rights of labor.

And to devise plans for the rehabilitation of the members of our armed forces, and of the men and women of civilians who may be specially engaged in work by postwar industrial readjustment; and to consider such other questions relating to the welfare and security of the people as may be deemed advisable.

Voted down by the Liberals including Mr. Nixon.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING

The advisability of planning beforehand for postwar economy was again pressed upon the House by the Opposition in a resolution which read:

That the proposed St. Lawrence Waterway and other public works designed to give employment the province, in the opinion of this House, should be made the immediate creation of an Ontario Town and Country Planning Commission, with authority to recommend and supervise plans for the reconstruction, development and redevelopment of rural and urban areas.

This and similar Opposition proposals were voted down by the Liberals, including Mr. Nixon.

ECONOMY URGED

In the same session the Opposition, impressed by the need for economy in the administration of the province, put forth a resolution:

That in the estimates for the current year be referred back to the Committee of Supply with instructions to decrease the total amount of the said estimates by $25,000,000.

This was turned down by the Liberals, including Mr. Nixon.

FOREST RESOURCES

Later on Mr. Drew's followers offered a resolution demanding that the conservation and control of the perennial forest resources of the province be placed in the public body to be known as the Ontario Forest Resources Commission, and that the manner of its appointment and duties be Provincial Commission.

Rejected by the Liberals, including Mr. Nixon.

RECONSTRUCTION PLANS

In the late session of the Legislature (1943) the Opposition put forth the pressure (le action by submitting this resolution:

This House regrets that the Liberal Government has introduced no legislation to provide for the re-establishment in civilian occupations of the members of the forces . . . to appear and act as a Parliamentary Committee to study and report upon the whole question of social security for our people.

The Liberals, including Mr. Nixon, voted this down.

Still on the same drive for action the Opposition proposed:

That the Provincial Government should undertake with special reference to the post-war industrial relations between the Provincial and Federal Governments a comprehensive survey of existing social schemes here and elsewhere, and with due regard to the probable course of events after the war, to prepare and submit to this House a workable plan which will assure a proper standard of well-being, health, education and gainful employment for all our people—with special reference to the re-establishment of the men and women in our fighting forces and the war industries.

The Liberals, including Mr. Nixon, killed this resolution.

HELP FOR AGRICULTURE

The Opposition renewed the attack with this further resolution:

That members of this legislature express their regret that the Government has failed to meet the critical needs of our agricultural producers; and they insist that the Government should immediately adopt whatever steps are necessary to ensure stability of prices, and an adequate supply of manpower and machinery to meet the rapidly increasing demands of war production.

This was a vote on behalf of the farmers of Ontario. Despite the plea of the farmers' party, Liberal Government members, including Mr. Nixon, got around this difficulty by adopting a resolution praising the Government for the admirable work done by the people of Canada, its manpower, prices and machinery for the prosecution of the war.

UNIFORM RATE FOR HYDRO

The next resolution submitted by the Opposition was that the Government should take immediate steps to bring about the establishment of a uniform rate for hydro-electric power throughout the province. Despite the sufferings of last winter and the urgent need for relief, the only action on the part of the ruling Liberal Government of the day, including Mr. Nixon, unanimously voted down this resolution.

TO MEET FUEL SHORTAGE

An Opposition resolution dealing with the current fuel shortage read:

That in the opinion of this House a fuel committee should be appointed to enquire into the fuel situation and report to this House similar to the committee appointed by the government to assure the greatest possible supply of fuel for the coming winter.

FINANCIAL PROTECTION FOR SOLDIERS

The next Resolution, introduced by the Opposition at the recent session of the Legislature, was that the Province of Ontario should forthwith provide financial protection for soldiers who have enlisted from Ontario during the present war, against the normal economic consequences of their service; and that all those, whose ability to meet their financial obligations has been materially reduced by such service, should be relieved from the payment of such obligations pending cancellation; and that legislative policies up to $10,000,000 be made available by payments or other legal means for debts incurred before entering military service. The resolution stated that the protection should be extended to the dependents of those who have died in the service and be encouraged to pay their obligations. The deferment rather than the cancellation of obligations was suggested in that justice might be assured.

Voted down by the Liberals including the Liberal Attorney-General stated that the Government had already taken steps to meet the situation and, up to the present time no action has ensued.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

A further resolution introduced by the Opposition read:

Resolved that in the opinion of this House the Government should take immediate steps to increase the old age pension payments to correspond with the present cost of living.

In speaking this resolution Mr. Drew and others contended that old age pension payments should be increased to meet the increased cost of living, and that the practice of the Province of Ontario in providing people with little homes to give up these homes before they can collect their pensions.

This reasonable proposal—the Opposition was voted down by the Liberals including James Clarke Nixon, now Minister of Canada with the Dominion Government, on occasions in the late session.

LABOUR AND "TEAM-PLAY"

As far back as 1941 George Drew pleaded before the Legislature for a conference upon the Machinery of Labour in order to bring about a conference to be known as the Industrial Peace Conference which was attended for representatives of Labour, Industry, Employers, Unions, Education, etc., for the purpose of the Conference was to be to discuss ways and means of dealing with the problem with effective protection to all concerned.

In keeping with its record in the past, the Progressive Conservative Party of Ontario, under the leadership of George Drew, has put forward a program which is in the 22-points of its platform.

The only thing left for the Party to put forward looking measures which will be of benefit to the people of Ontario, is to get into Office. Progressive Conservatives who are under a particular obligation to vote to these things.

own fault, of course. I usually manage to take time off for a "coke" and a couple of biscuit bars during the day. The regular hours and the splendid meals did the rest of the damage. Our cook, Corpl. Elizabeth Adamson, of Regina, Saskatchewan, sees that we get the most tasty meals. She is a treasure. For instance, this morning we had grapefruit juice, scrambled eggs, toast, hot biscuits with corn syrup and coffee. Does that make you jealous? Not bad, is it? Needless to say, I do full justice to her cooking and my girth continues to increase. I will have to do something drastic, like cutting out the between meal snacks. The flesh is very weak though.

Well, my dear, I think it is time to cut short this spiel. Drop me a line soon even if you have to keep that husband of yours waiting for his dinner.

All the best,
NICKEY.

Dear Babs:—

Thanks for that nice fat letter. It more than amends for your past lapses.

I am sorry to hear that Dave has been moved. However, if he can still get home a forty-eight, that is some consolation.

Once again I have appeared in Part II Orders, No. Indeed I was not "A.W.L."; good soldiers do not go absent without leave! This is a credit entry in the ledger— I was promoted! Surprised? I was, too, but there was a vacancy for a sergeant and it fitted me like a glove, so the next time you write, please address me as "sergeant." I hope that you will be careful not to tread on the toes of my new dignity. Sergeants are very conscious of their rank, and expect all due respect. Think, only a few short months ago, I was a slaphappy private with never a care in the world. Ah me!

There are additional privileges granted to all N.C.O.'s and sergeants, in particular, are usually shown special consideration. N.C.O.'s have permanent passes which entitle them to stay out any night until twelve o'clock instead of signing in for the ten fifteen curfew which is customary, though a couple of nights a week passes are granted to all ranks. Sergeants need only make their beds in a bedroll once a week. This is a privilege, indeed. That pesky bedroll is a frightful nuisance in the morning when everyone is dashing around polishing shoes and buttons for parade.

N. C. O.'s at No. 39 Coy., C. W. A. C., Kingston, have a separate Mess Hall and in addition, the sergeants have their own table and a waitress. The blessings, I suppose, are supposed to more than compensate for the responsibility that sergeants must assume, but I think any one of the senior N. C. O.'s of No. 39 Company will say that the happiest days of their service in the C. W. A. C. were when they were carefree privates.

Not that the sergeants of No. 39 Company do not have fun! They certainly do. The present group is the merriest bunch of subdraps imaginable and are familiarly known as "the mad sergeants." They excel at practical jokes and will go to almost any length to perpetuate a prank. Even the officers are not safe from their sense of humour. In "Betsy's" hostel they were her most constant customers and would go romping through the countryside in a body. They have parties, masquerades or just impromptu little snacks together at bedtime. They attend in a group the various dances held by the Fleet Air Arm at Collins Bay or the Veterans Guard at Fort Henry, Kingston to which C.W.A.C. are invited, and have a whale of a time. They will dance till they drop and ask for more. One of the sergeant's outstanding qualities is their loyalty to each other, and they can be depended upon to stand by the other fellow through thick and thin. I found every inch a sergeant, don't I?

I was down at the Quartermaster Stores a few days ago, turning in my worn-out stockings—when stockings are turned in new stockings are issued and I watched some girls being issued with their kit. They were completely outfitted — two summer uniforms, two winter uniforms, cap, greatcoat, overshoes (or "glamour boots" as the C.W.A.C. calls them) two pairs of shoes, overstockings, three pairs of stockings, three shirts, two ties, collar pin, collar badges, two pairs of leather gloves, 1 pair of leather mittens, one scarf, hold-all with brushes and polishing kit, satchel (in which C.W.A.C. carry change purse, cosmetics, etc.) rubber trench coat, rubbers, haversack, kit bag. In addition each girl when she enlists receives $15.00 to buy underclothing and this is renewed quarterly by a cheque for $3.00. This means that every member of the Canadian Women's Army Corps has ample clothing for every requirement.

I have been watching the soldiers at the Armouries parade and they are a smart and soldierly sight. As I always say — "there's something about a soldier" . . . Oh, but I forgot—your Dave is an Airman. Don't be downhearted dear, Airmen are nice, too. Excuse we while I duck. I expect to be back when next you write. However, as a C. W. A. C. I am bound to uphold the Khaki against the Blue (bonny as it is). Besides, I like a controversy, don't you?

Love,
NICKEY.

SURPRISE CREAM FILLING

One and one-half tablespoons of butter, one and one-half tablespoons Benson's or Canada Corn Starch, three-quarters cup milk, three-quarters cup icing sugar, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one and one-half tablespoons lemon juice, half-cup shredded cocoanut, or half-cup stale cake crumbs.

Melt butter in saucepan; blend in corn starch. Gradually stir in scalded milk and stir until boiling point is reached. Allow to boil for two minutes, stirring constantly. Add icing sugar, salt and lemon juice. Blend thoroughly. Cool and stir in cocoanut, crisp cereal or stale cake crumbs, before putting between layers of daily's Layer Sponge Cake.

V

TAKE A TIP

1 Use ripe but not overripe fruit for jam.
2 Wash and cut up or mash fruit for jam, adding about half an inch of water in bottom of saucepan.
3 To extract juices, heat fruit slowly, stirring frequently.
4 Pre-cook solid fruit or wild fruit first—then add sugar.
5 A longer boiling period is required when less sugar is used. Test for required time by lifting a spoonful. If it remains heaped up or when poured off the spoon drips to two or three drops which run together, it is ready.
6 Pour while hot into sterilized jars. Cover with thin layer of melted paraffin, then when cold with thick layer.
7 Jelly may fail to set if juice was not boiled long enough after adding sugar or if fruit was overripe.
8 Jelly may be tough if juice and sugar are boiled together too long or if too little sugar was used according to amount of acid and ripeness of fruit. For example, not-too-ripe currants contain a lot of acid and require some water.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. M. Mc. suggests: To make whipped cream; pour a can of evaporated milk into freezing tray; chill until fine crystals form around the edges. Meanwhile chill bowl and beater. Add half-teaspoon of lemon juice to the milk poured in bowl and beat.

EXTRA RATIONS FOR FARM HELP

With haying operations in progress, the Local Ration Board draws attention to the fact that special provision has been made by the Ration Administration for the issuance of extra rations to feed temporary help engaged in such work on farms, provided a total of more than twelve meals is fed such help during the time it is so engaged.

All that farmers are required to do to obtain these extra rations is to give the Local Ration Board an estimate of the total number of extra meals they expect to serve, the number of men they are hiring and the kind of work for which they are being hired.

The same arrangement will apply at any other time farmers hire extra temporary help for a special job like wood-cutting, fruit-picking, harvesting and so on. But if the help is hired on a basis of more than two weeks' employment, the ration regulations require abuse so engaged to surrender their ration books to their employers so that coupons may be used to supply them with rationed foods.

Should rain or other unavoidable circumstances delay special farm operations for which extra temporary help is hired and the latter has to be kept on beyond the anticipated period, farmers should keep track of the extra meals served by them and not allowed for in the original application to the Local Ration Board and then make further application for special rations to cover such meals. There is no need to go short of extra rations because delays of this sort take place.

1943 PRESERVING SEASON

Hello Homemakers! The harvest season is here again — and in the year between Canadians have realized more fully the implications of "war effort." Women have leaned that their part in the kitchen is as important as "kitchen fatigue" in the armed forces. With the preserving season we are utilizing to the last degree our fruits and vegetables—leaving nothing to waste. This is one duty from which the housewife reaps a rich reward — the food is on her own shelf.

When you have to make sugar go a long way, it calls for you to guard every movement in your tactics— a real service strips for your rolled-up sleeve.

RECIPES

Raspberry Jam

Two quarts raspberries, three cups sugar.

Crush fruit and simmer ten minutes. Then add sugar and cook until thick —about 25 minutes. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: approximately two and one-half pints.

A delicious jelly - like jam may be made by adding two teaspoons cider vinegar with the sugar in the above recipe.

Raspberry and Red Currant Jam

Two quarts raspberries, one cup red currant juice, three and one-half cups sugar.

To make currant juice, crush one and one-half cups currants slightly and cover them with three-quarters cup water. Cook until currants are soft and mushy — about ten to fifteen minutes. Drain through a moist jelly bag.

Cover raspberries with one cup of red currant juice and let stand 20 minutes. Simmer raspberries and juice twenty minutes, then add sugar. Cook about 20 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool seal with paraffin. Yield: approximately two and one-half pints.

Gooseberry Jam

Two quarts gooseberries, one and one-third cups water, four and one-quarter cups sugar.

Top and tail the gooseberries. Simmer the fruit and water for ten minutes. Add sugar and cook for about one-half hour. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool, seal with paraffin. Yield: about three and one-half pints. This jam is quite thin when hot but, it thickens considerably when it cools.

If desired, one-half cup honey or corn syrup may be added to the recipe if it is too tart for your taste.

Jewel Jam

One quart pitted cherries (six cups unpitted), one quart gooseberries, one quart red currants, one quart raspberries, eight cups sugar.

Wash and pit cherries and put in kettle with two cups of sugar. Bring to the boil and boil for five minutes. Then add quarts of cleaned gooseberries and two more cups of sugar. Bring to boil and boil five minutes. Then add quart of cleaned red currants and quart of cleaned raspberries and four cups of sugar. Bring to boil and boil five minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and when cool seal with paraffin. Yield: approximately four pints.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY
THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:

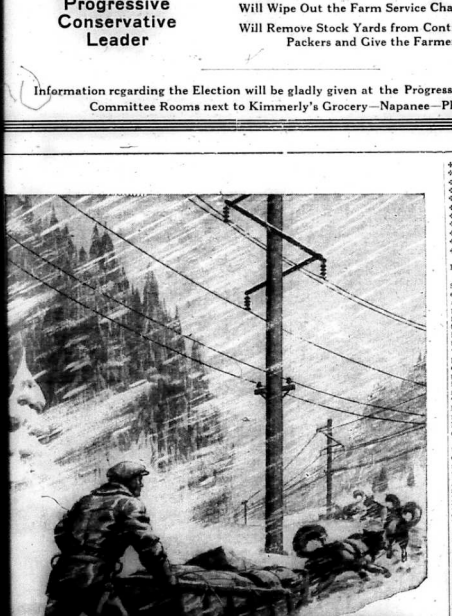
This is the way I like to spend Saturday afternoon lying in the sun, encouraging a tan. The grounds of Alwynton barracks at Kingston are perfectly lovely now with gay flower borders which are jealously tended by Charles Newport ,who has been a gardener at Alwynton for twenty-three years. I can see Corpl. "Bech"-Beeman, of Peterborough, picking herself a nosegay of lillies of the valley. The girls revel in the garden and almost every room has its bouquet of tulips and flowering shrubs. Yesterday I was in Pte. Jean Thompsons room, and saw on her bureau the loveliest bowl of forget-me-nots. Pte. Thompson is also a Peterborough girl (great flower lovers these Peterborough girls!)

The girls have dragged out upon the lawn our heavy gymnasium mat of white leatherette, thickly stuffed, and they like nothing better than tumbling about, practising a little judo, or turning handsprings and somersaults. I can see little red-headed L/Corpl. Noreen Birch, of Lakefield, turning a series of neat cartwheels on the mat. Corpl. Stella Wilson, of Pembroke, makes a neat job of walking on her hands and several of our amateur gymnasts go in for tumbling feats.

The trades training scheme is well underway now and girls who display aptitude and intelligence are being dispatched regularly to train as stenographers and typists at the trades training school in Ottawa. Draughtswomen are being trained in your native city of Toronto, as you no doubt know. That should be an interesting job and here at No. 39 Coy., Kingston, C.W.A.C. are displaying considerable interest in this course. Another course available to the C. W. A. C. which embraces a field not usually open to women is the Instrument Mechanic Course, also held at Toronto. Then, of course, some of our girls are being trained as cooks, drivers and wireless operators. I can see that the scope of our activities through such training is widening and that in the near future many more skilled soldiers will be replaced by women. It is very encouraging to see our organization doing the essential work which is so urgently required.

Good old "Betsy", the Ford, has almost given up the ghost. I think her gyrgying days are over. The open road still calls but her springs can't take it. That means we have had to find other means of conveyance. As a result, bicycles have come into their own and C. W. A. C. may be seen flipping back and forth to work on their wheels or just cycling for the pleasure of it. Bicycling is great fun. I go zipping down the hills wide open and pumping up the inclines. Great exercise, very reducing.

By the way, my sqish days are a thing of the past. I have put on many pounds since enlisting. My meals . . . .



The LINE PATROL
keeps Ontario's Power Flowing
● Maintenance of Hydro transmission lines presents a tremendous challenge to the men whose job it is to keep Ontario's power flowing. For, in war or peace, the factory, the farm, and the home, depend upon an unfailing supply of electricity.
● During the winter, when deep snow blankets the province, line patrol and maintenance is particularly tough. In the north . . . when, at many times of the year, roads are impassable . . . line patrols of men and dogs, fight their way through the drifts . . . battling blizzard, ice and frost. In summer too, the patrol must continue. Where economically possible this is done by car or truck, but in many remote places it must be carried out on foot or by canoe. In fair weather or foul, the year around, Ontario looks to Hydro for power . . . and Hydro men see that they get it.
● From one end of the province to the other . . . from the great lakes to the wilderness of the far North . . . Hydro patrol men and crews of skilled linemen are on the alert, day and night, ready to meet the onslaughts of nature in the raw . . . ready to combat the havoc wrought by any storm. And . . . when disaster strikes . . . they stay on the job until the power is flowing again, so that Ontario's war-geared industries can keep running full-tilt, producing on round-the-clock schedules.

On Tuesday afternoon of this week a good number of enthusiastic women arrived at the Salvation Army Hall where piles of goods to be sized, tied and packed awaited them.

During the afternoon the following articles were approved and carefully packed for shipment overseas: 36 quilts, 6 coats, 8 dresses, 1 mackinaw jacket, 4 sweaters, 1 pair fur gloves, 1 shirt, 2 scarves, 1 pair ski trousers, 1 coat, 3 jackets, 6 boys' coats, 2 skirts, 1 dress, 1 scarf, 1 man's coat, 1 pullover, 4 scarves, 1 pair mitts, 2 helmets, 18 pairs sox. These goods have come from all parts of the township as well as from the individual Red Shield members and made up five cartons of useful articles which will be well appreciated. Many thanks to all who have contributed.

NEWBURGH W. C. T. U.

The Strathcona ladies met with the Newburgh members of the W. C. T. U. at the home of Mrs. Geo. Finlay, to enjoy the program planned for the White Ribboners. There were twenty-seven mothers and visitors present and eight little children. A worship service, consisting of a hymn, Bible reading by Mrs. R. Boyce and a short talk on Influence of Mothers, by Mrs. George Finlay, was held. Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. J. Paul led in prayer service. Mrs. Jas. Wilson gave the address of the afternoon, a heart-to-heart talk with the mothers, on their responsibility. A beautiful solo was contributed by Mrs. Herrington. Mrs. George Finlay, as president of the W.C.T.U. then presented the pledge of the White Ribboners, in which the mothers promise to bring their children up in purity and, as a token of this pledge, each child had a white ribbon tied on his arm. A prayer of dedication was offered by Mrs. Finlay. The offering was taken. After singing the closing hymn, the benediction was given by Mrs. Jas. Wartman. The hostess assisted by Mrs. R. B. Finlay, Mrs. Doris Wilson and Mrs. Herrington, served tea and refreshments to the guests, while Shirley Boyce entertained the children on the verandah and treated them to chocolate milk and cookies.

NEWBURGH W. I.

The June meeting of the Newburgh Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. E. Nasent, on June 24th, with Mrs. Shier presiding. Fifteen members responded to the roll call which was answered by giving the name of a Canadian city and its historical interest. Three visitors were present. The motto of the day was an Arab proverb "Perpetual Sunshine makes a Sahara." Tests were commenced on by Mrs. Lochead. Miss Cameron gave a concise and interesting report of the district annual. During the business period it was decided to hold a quilting and pot luck supper.

Mrs. George Walker gave the following report of war work sent in to the Napanee Red Cross during June: Six pairs seamen's stockings, one pair sox, one pair hurricane mitts, two ladies' sweaters, three women's sweaters, two pairs men's gloves, two quilts.

Mrs. Acton Robinson gave a splendid paper on "Patriotism," using as a summary the poem by Kipling, "Land of Our Birth." "O Canada" was then sung and a quiz of jumbled names of places in Canada was conducted by Mrs. Hugh Ramsay. A reading on victory gardens was given by Mrs. Stuart Moore. The singing the the National Anthem brought to a close an enjoyable and profitable meeting.

NAPANEE W. C. T. U.

On Wednesday, June 30th, Napanee W. C. T. U. held its annual meeting for Mothers and Little White Ribboners, in Trinity Church. The president, Mrs. Wartman was in the chair and extended a warm welcome to the large number of mothers and little children present. After singing the children's hymn "Mothers of Salem," Mrs L. andler led in prayer and Mrs. George Finlay followed with a very helpful devotional talk, reading from the first chapter of Samuel. She spoke of the many great and fine men who had been blest with good mothers who early dedicated their children to God. She urged members never to be too busy to listen to their children and be friends with them, thus having the opportunity of showing them the beautiful and the good and leading them to know God. She then led in prayer. After a chorus sung by five little children the mothers were brought their little ones forward to be made Little White Ribboners. The pledge was read, the president tied on the ribbons, and prayer was offered for mothers and children. Five Little White Ribboners then gave a recitation, and a child war-guest who was present, sang a solo. This finished the children's part of the programme and they were taken downstairs to enjoy light refreshments, while a talk was given to the mothers by Mrs. M. Moore. She spoke of how quickly the years pass and how short the time we mothers have to give our children something to which they may hold in the storms of life. She mentioned the great importance of the bedtime hour to both, mother and child. A mother's prayers follow her children when she can no longer be near them, and often prove a source of new strength in the hour of temptation.

Mrs. Moore then closed with a very beautiful poem:

"I took a piece of plastic clay,
And idly fashioned it one day,
And as my fingers pressed it still,
It moved and yielded to my will.
I came again when days were past,
The bit of clay was hard at last,
The form I gave it, still it bore,
But I could change the form no more.
"I took a piece of living clay
And gently formed it, day by day,
And moulded with my power and art
A young child's soft and yielding heart.
I came again when years were gone,
It was a man I looked upon.
He still that early impress bore,
But I could change it nevermore."

SWITZERVILLE MISSION BAND

The first outdoor meeting of the Busy Bee Mission Band was held at the home of the leader, on Wednesday afternoon, July 7th, with the president, Mary Brandon, in charge of the meeting. It was opened by all repeating the Mission Purpose, after which Gerald "Bena read a Child's Prayer, and all repeated the Lord's Prayer. Geneva Robinson read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll which was answered by each repeating one of the 4Saltitudes. We are invited to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Russell Craig. The offering was received by John Craig and Glenn Bemm, and dedicated in song.

Miss Alexcrack gave a reading, and Dorothy Vanalstyne read "God's Way." The heralds taking part were Beulah Craig, Mary Vanalstyne and Garnet Craig.

The story from the Study Book was told by Mrs. Wales, after which Elaine Bemm distributed copies of World Friends, and the meeting was closed with the National Anthem and the Children's Benediction. Games were then enjoyed for a short time, and lunch was served by Miss Alexenbrack and the leader.

VICTORIA W. I.

Members and visitors of the Victoria Women's Institute enjoyed the hospitality extended them by Miss Carrie Bush, at their regular monthly meeting. The president opened the meeting by the singing of the ode and repeating the creed in unison. The roll call was answered by each one naming A Safety Measure. Mrs. Jack McFarland extended an invitation to all to her home for the next meeting. The convener for the topic, Social Welfare Mrs. H. Edgar, presented an instructive and interesting programme. Miss Mavis McFarquar gave current events. Mrs. Jean MacFarland delighted all with a humorous monologue. Mrs. Edgar then presented the hospitalization plan for discussion, each one taking part. A paper on the Municipal Device very fittingly followed and was listened to with keen interest. A bit of humor was a pleasant change, each one contributing a joke. Mrs. Jack McFarland conducted a contest and Mrs. A. M. Graham was the winner of the dainty prize.

The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem. Lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

REIDVILLE W. I.

Mrs. Fred Reid was hostess to the members of the Reidville Women's Institute, on Wednesday evening, June 30th. Three visitors were also present. The president, Mrs. D. Hannah, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of the ode and repeating of the creed. The roll call was answered by suggestions for the year's programme. An invitation from the Tamworth ladies to join them in the nutrition course, was accepted. It was decided to purchase a fountain pen for Pte. J. Hannah, who has recently enlisted with the armed forces.

The rest of the meeting was spent in making out the programmes for the coming year.

The meeting closed with repeating the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Reid served a dainty lunch.

TAMWORTH

Tamworth, July 19.—Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Richmond, of Tamworth, have received word from the International Red Cross that German sources report their son, Sgt. John Reginald Richmond, lost his life May 14th. No particulars were given. International Red Cross further stated that Sgt. Richmond is to be considered missing, believed killed, until further information is received within the next six months, after which he will be presumed dead. Sgt. On Being a Real Person — Fosdick.

Out of twenty years' experience in dealing with the everyday personal problems of everyday men and women comes this book, rich in wisdom, insight and practical usefulness.

Sleeping Island—Downes.

Across a World—Considine

This book is especially timely since it gives us, under one cover, a very complete picture of the peoples of Asia and Africa, whose destinies are today at stake in the world holocaust. This is the only volume in English which presents a contemporary picture of the World mission of the Roman Catholic Church.

Head Hunting in the Solomon Islands—Mylroie.

One World—Wilkie

In this book Wendell Willkie gives a highly personal account of his meetings with many great United Nation leaders. He tells of his talks with prime ministers and kings, and with teachers, soldiers, librarians, factory workers, and farmers, around the world. He reports a great awakening that is going on among the peoples of the world and his deep conviction that the United Nations must learn to work together now, while they fight, if they hope to live together after the war is over.

Gentleman Ranker—Jenning

A powerful and stirring tale of colonial America in the days of savage Indian massacres, canny French conquest and gallant English expeditions of swashbuckling red-coated soldiers of fortune.

Another Claudia—Prunier

It is a very simple novel. It is a very great achievement.

Great Smith — Marshall

Full of action, of wanderings and adventures in strange places, with three love stories. Great Smith is an historical novel of much interest.

The Sea is So Wide—Eaton

The absorbing story of early Colonial refugees by the author of "Quietly My Captain Waits," and "Restless are the Sails." Evelyn Eaton has brought to vivid unforgettable life a striking yet little-known episode in history.

His Majesty's Yankees—Roddall

The Forest and the Fort—Allen.

A novel of murder and spies in wartime Washington

OIL FROM THE ARCTIC CIRCLE

From The Journal, Lansing, Mich.

It is further by many, many miles on to Fort Norman, in the Arctic wilds of Canada, than it used to be to Tipperary, but far as it is, we are all interested in the news of an oil development there.

Next, after getting his fill of good meat after the war, the American looks forward to saying "Fi'erup" at the "gas" station. Against this fond hope, considerable has been said of late to the effect that possibly the gasoline supply in the United States would never again be what it was before the war.

Indeed, the supply of gasoline has become so questionable that good money is being poured into experimental producing gasoline from coal and shale. The effort is reported as gaining good results. It may be well enough to have other sources of gasoline available than the customary ones, but, even at that, most Americans will rejoice to think of gasoline from the crude oil of the earth, for a long time to come.

The effort to produce gasoline in the far north has been going on for a long time, yet now, only as the effort at production is near realization, has news come out as to what is afoot.

Fort Norman oil district is some 400 miles north of the new Canadian-Alaska road, but already provision is being made to get the gasoline from the new supply available at the new highway. It is said that the Fort Norman supply will be of great advantage to the truck business of the new Alaska highway. From Fairbanks, Alaska, it is proposed to make further distribution of the gasoline supply. The expectation is that the gasoline supply will be sent down to the open waters and shipping there.

The ready supply of gasoline up in the Arctic circle will assure a better air defence. That is a matter that must be provided until such a time as Japan is rendered powerless as a threat to our shores.

After immediate needs of the far north are met with respect to gasoline, it is assuring to know that the geologists believe that one of the most important crude oil sources on the American continent has been tapped and that it will not be long before the American market will begin to feel the benefits of the newly-opened supply.

On the front against the Nazi Luftwaffe and the Japanese planes, our airplanes have been showing great superiority. Our planes and our pilots, we believe, are of superior quality, but, even at that, we must not forget what vastly superior gasoline is done for them.

44TH FIELD REGT. (R) AT PETAWAWA CAMP

Batteries from Belleville, Napanee, Gananoque and Kingston

On Sunday, July 4th, the following officers and men left Napanee for Petawawa —

Major C E Jamieson, Captain P. U. Lindley, Sec.-Lieut. G. R. McPhee, Act.-B. S. M. J. W. S. Jamieson, B.Q.M.S. N Richardson, Sergt. J. W. Grinrod, Sergt. R. T. Hird, Sergt. T. L. McCullough, Sergt. R. C. Thompson, Sergt. D. G. Walters, Act.-Sergt. A. F. Greaves, Lance-Sergt. M. C. Graham, Lance-Sergt. R. M. Graham, Lance-Sergt. D. L. Leary, Bdr. R. C. Jone-, Bdr. W. F. Storey, Bdr. W. M. Young, Lance-Bdr. W. J. Amodeo, Lance-Bdr. E. C. Hazards, Lance-Bdr. J. E. Maracle, and Gunners W. K. Amey, M. Brady, C. Blute, R. Loomhour, H. Brant, J. Butcher, H. R. Calver, A. L. Chapman, D. W. Cover, R. M. Dafoe, L. B. Davis, D. L. Godfrey, C. Jaynes, A. Mack, O. B. Miller, R. L. O'Connor, J. M. Perry, G. M. Rendall, J. A. Rogers, W. Shetler, R. Shetler, G. Smith, H. Storey, C. Symmons, — from Napanee; Capt. D. R Hall, M.O., of the 44th (R) Field Regiment, who acted as Camp Medical Officer.

These keen, enthusiastic volunteer soldiers of Canada's Reserve Army were glad of the opportunity of spending two weeks at this famous Artillery Camp for intensive training under actual military conditions.

The Regiment arrived at Petawawa at dusk and was soon in step with army routine. This Camp, situated on the Ottawa River, is ten miles square, providing excellent ranges for artillery practice. The weather could not have been better. It did not take long for "Old Man Sol" to paint a golden brown on everyone there.

For here, in the shadow of the Laurentians, with the boom of sixty-pounders and the staccatos of the Bofor, the men of the 44th (R) Field Regiment, R.C.A., are learning the grim business of gunnery, theory plentifully garnished with practical work. Here in the miniature tented cities, the pronged youngsters and veterans, are undergoing the training that has made and is making their active service brothers the pride of the army. Here these civilian gunners, many from farms, factories, offices and shops for the short period of two weeks, under expert instruction, are the cream of gunnery equipment, are gradually reaching the training climax that will see them sending live shells hurtling through the air at actual targets. This is the thing they have longed for, looked forward to and are at last experiencing. For it is no make-believe, no theoretical fantasy.

Reserve Army Artillery Camp officers are leaving no stone unturned to fit only make the "reserve" gunners stay a pleasant one but are providing the last word in modern artillery tactics training and equipment. Keen young eyes are looking through dial sights, telescopes, and compasses. He'mered youngsters ride the "jeeps" the tractors and drawn behind the shields of the field pieces. They are experiencing the "thrill" of going into action with real guns in troop battery and other formations.

The training is the thing. It is that they have wanted for years, what they are getting and how they love it. Canada's Reserve Artillery is showing that if the need arises, it will be a worthy successor to its "active" Big Brother.

90 BLOOD DONORS AT NAPANEE CLINIC LAST THURSDAY

County Citizens Make Good Response to Appeal

Napanee district shows its patriotism and loyalty again to our fighting forces. Last Thursday the Blood Donors Clinic, in Napanee, broke another record when ninety donors came to donate to this needy cause.

The Clinic is holding its own with others across Canada, where records are broken every month. Thirty-two who came were there for their first time last week.

Herbert Clancy, of Centreville, 78 years old, really enjoyed it, and said he would be back again.

The National Committee at the January convention, set 12,000 a week as the objective. This has now been raised to 15,000 a week so great is the need. Monuments to the "Unknown Soldier" were erected after the last Great War. This could easily be reversed now by soldiers erecting one to the "Unknown Donor." This is definitely true. You can be one, and in the days of peace to come you can feel you brought some Canadian boy home in donating.

The following is the complete list of donors. Those marked with (x) are first donors. — Miss Olive Hambly, x Rex Martin, Basil Balanze, P. R. AUG., SEPT. SUGAR FOR CANNING NOW AVAILABLE

The Local Ration Board announces that August and September canning sugar coupons will be good for the purchase of sugar effective from July 26. Merchants are authorized to redeem these coupons on and after Monday, July 26, notwithstanding that some of them are marked as not becoming valid until August and September.

"This does not men that additional sugar for home canning will be available later in the season," it was said. "The move is made for the convenience of those who want to can the fruit that is available now, instead of spreading their canning activities throughout the whole summer. There is no present prospect of the present canning sugar allowance being increased."

"A larger proportion of the total years supply of sugar has come in during the first six months than was expected," according to a Board statement on the advancement of the validity dates.

"This does not mean that any greater quantity of sugar will become available during the full year, but simply that a greater proportion of it has been placed in the early part of the year. As a result of this it is possible to allow the special sugar coupons for home canning to be used before the due dates originally set when the coupons for the first half of the year were calculated."

Progressive Conservative Candidate for Prince Edward - Lennox.

Mr. Hepburn was a member of the last Ontario Legislature, and is a life-long resident of Picton, where he has taken a leading part in all civic and community enterprises. His son, Major William Hepburn, went overseas in 1939 with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and his daughter, Rebecca, is an overseas Nursing Sister. Another son, Charles, is now training with the R. C. A. F. at Toronto.

Magistrate's Court

On Thursday, Clare Joyce, R.R. No. 3 Napanee, paid $5.00 and costs for driving a motor vehicle without proper lights.

In the absence of Magistrate Garvin, who is on holiday, Magistrate A. E. Collins of Belleville presided at Police Court in Napanee, Monday morning, when Lloyd Farrow, of Kingston, who pleaded guilty to a charge of dangerous driving, was fined $5.00 and was ordered to pay $8.10 costs in addition. The charge laid against Cecil Colwell an accident on the Colebrook Road, one quarter-mile northeast of Yarker on Saturday, July 17, about 7.30 p.m., involving Card's car and a car driven by Harry Irish of Yarker. The two cars collided at a blind corner and Card's car hit a culvert and which overturned in the ditch and caught on fire and was completely demolished. The loss to Card was estimated at $500. Irish's car was damaged to the extent of $25.00.

Evidence indicated that Card was driving at an excessive speed. The only injuries to occupants of the cars were sustained by Mr. Card, whose left elbow was bruised and cut.

In view of the serious loss to Mr. Card, the Magistrate showed leniency in his sentence.

George Eberle of Strathcona was found guilty of common assault against Mrs. Charles Beattie, also of Strathcona and was ordered to pay the costs of the court amounting to $9.50. No fine was imposed but Eberle and Mr. and Mrs. Beattie were required to sign an undertaking to stay on their own premises and keep the peace for one year.

The charge laid against Mr. Eberle was apparently the result of a long-standing difference between his family and the Beattie family who live side by side in the village of Strathcona. Evidence given by Mr. and Mrs. Beattie was denied in every detail by Mr. Eberle, but the Magistrate decided there was at least some evidence of assault and imposed the above sentence.

EDITOR'S NOTE

The editor of this paper was waited on by a committee of the Lennox Temperance Federation, who wanted to report the policy on temperance of the different candidates running in the constituency.

We regret exceedingly that we did not have space for their report, which came just as we were going to press, and the Federation found it necessary to resort to other means for informing the people on this vital issue.

THE ELECTION—ANOTHER ANGLE

We have heard very little in this election so far, as to the attitude of the various parties on the liquor situation. We have been asked several times about that. How is the person who desires to cast a temperance vote to accomplish it? Frankly, the opportunity for such a vote is rather difficult. It is strange, too, that such an issue should be given so little attention. Admittedly, the liquor situation in Ontario is worse than it has been for years. The so-called government control is a farce. What prevails in this Province is government sponsored sale, and not control.

When we look to the past history of the parties seeking office there is little to help the conscientious temperance voter arrive at a decision. It was the Progressive Conservative Party under Premier Ferguson which imposed the so-called government-control policy on the Province. And it was the Liberal Party under Premier Hepburn which did all in its power to oppose the will of even moderate temperance leaders, and to encourage the widest possible sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages. The C. C. F. is an unknown quantity, but the silence of the C. C. F. on this vital issue gives little hope for any change in policy from this newer party.

There is one ray of hope, and that is the attitude of the men who are offering themselves for office. These men will be asked to state their position on this issue. The voter will then have some guidance. This is perhaps not the most effective way of dealing with the issue. But it is one way, and about the only way left open under the circumstances. Should enough men of all parties who are favourable to temperance legislation be elected, the attitude of the Government would have to reflect their views.

GOOD NEWS FOR OLD FOLK

The news that the Old Age Pension is to be increased will bring cheer to the lives of many old people scattered throughout the Province. The Dominion Government will increase the pension by five dollars and the Ontario Government by three dollars. So that the maximum amount an Old-age Pensioner will be able to get under the new regulations will be twenty-eight dollars.

We are apt, in youth and middle life, to forget or ignore the tragedy of a penniless old age. There are thousands of people who, for no cause whatsoever for which they were responsible, are unable to provide for their declining years. To have reached the age of seventy and to face the remaining years with the fear of want staring one in the face, with relatives who are unable or unwilling to undertake the maintenance of the aged one, is a terrible tragedy. It is fraught with fear, bordering on despair.

It is one of the signs of the humanitarian trends of modern society that the governments are providing for these people to a certain extent. When first mooted, it seemed impossible to many that money could be found for this service. But since it was accepted as a part of our social obligation, taxes have carried the load and there has been no complaint.

While twenty dollars a month is a blessing to many people, yet as the costs of living have mounted and food prices have soared, it became increasingly difficult for the old-age pensioners to meet their rather meagre wants. There will be little if any objection that these older people are to be given an increase in their monthly allowance from the State.

THE CAMPAIGN

We pointed out earlier in the campaign that the revolutionary platform proposed by Colonel Drew would change the whole trend of the electioneering. This has turned out to be true. Premier Nixon has very little to say about the past record of the Liberal administration. He is concerned with the Drew platform. To be sure he is not having any too happy a time over it. About the only argument so far advanced is that such a programme would cost a lot of money. We are not so frightened by those bogeys as we used to be. We have learned in these last few years that there is always plenty of money to do essential things. The income and other Federal taxes are pretty stiff. Few people grumble, and the reason there is little grumbling is because we believe wholeheartedly in the cause for which we are taxed. If we believe in the policies for which Colonel Drew stands, we need not worry so much about where the money will come from. It will come from all of us, and we will pay it, gladly.

HOW ARE THE MIGHTY FALLEN

The inglorious fall of Mussolini may well prove the first crack in the armour: the undying, unyielding union to which Hitler and Mussolini bound themselves, with great fare a few years ago has been reversed: the comic opera actor has made a forced exit from the stage; the would-be emperor has abdicated: the sawdust Caesar is no more!

Events are moving swiftly. They may move even more swiftly within the next few days, so that what is now written might be eclipsed by an ever more dramatic story by the time this appears in print. The story of the rise and fall of Mussolini is the same old tale of a man who overreached himself; of a man who accomplished some good, but, who was carried away with his own egotism. There can be no doubt but that the Fascist leader accomplished many good things for Italy. He improved the health of the nation, developed unused farm lands, and abolished many a blot on the Italian economic and social landscape. Had he been content with that he would have left an imperishable imprint for good on the history of Italy.

But Mussolini wanted his place in the sun. He wanted to restore the ancient Roman Empire. Carried away with the portrait of himself as the emperor of a rebuilt, reconstructed Roman Empire, Mussolini set about the task. He undertook to make Italy strong on the sea, in the air, and on the land. A powerful navy, air force and army were developed. This was done at the cost of the ordinary necessities of life. As with Hitler, it was either guns or butter and Mussolini ordered guns. For years the nation was kept at fever pitch as it accelerated production of the munitions of war. Indeed, the high tension under which we have been living for the past four years of war was the tempo of Italian life for almost a generation.

It was a heavy price to pay for the place Mussolini hoped to secure for his people. But the people paid it. How willingly, no one could tell for no one dare express his inner feelings on the subject. Make no doubt about it, the Italians have acquitted themselves well. In spite of all that has been said about the Italian not being a fighter, the United Nations airmen pay a tribute to the high qualities of the Italian Air Force, and the individual Italian Airman. These qualities of manhood would have better been used in the constructive work of developing their own land, and cultivating their own spiritual and social gardens.

Mussolini set the standard for European totalitarianism which the Germans under Hitler, with their more painstaking and scientific thoroughness, have perfected. Little wonder that Mussolini and Hitler pledged themselves to each other to the end. The eclipse of Mussolini must cast its shadow over the totalitarian world which Hitler has erected in Europe. It bodes ill for the future of the Nazi dictator who, taking his lesson from Mussolini, outdistanced his school teacher.

WHAT NEXT?

It is interesting to speculate on the development of events in Europe following the resignation of Mussolini. Marshal Badoglio has announced that the war will be continued. Troops which have been stationed in France and in the Balkans are being recalled ostensibly for the purpose of defending Italy. Supposing Italy decides to continue the struggle the result will be a heavy strain on Germany. There are well organized guerrillas in the Balkans. With the Italian armies removed Germany will either have to replace them or leave the Balkans to themselves. In either case, there will be trouble. Hitler's armies are being hard-pressed in Russia, and any withdrawal will make their position most difficult. But if the Balkans are left to themselves it is not too much to expect that these nations, looking for the best chance, and under pressure from the guerrillas, will not be any too anxious to continue the struggle.

The United Nations, we may be sure, will not be slow to take advantage of this situation. It will not be so difficult to bomb the Balkans now that the Island of Sicily is well within our grasp. This will add to the discontent among those nations, and hasten their movement away from the Axis.

Then, too, psychological factors cannot be ignored. The effect, the moral and psychological effect of the resignation of Mussolini both on the Balkan States and on Germany itself, will undoubtedly be a lowering of morale and a weakening of the will to fight. It will be the very opposite of the effect which the news had on our own people. There is encouragement to all on the Allied side at the news of Mussolini's resignation. It has created a feeling of hope and confidence in our leaders, our forces and our cause. The very opposite of this will be the experience of the Axis groups and their satellites. Thus almost anything can happen. To underestimate the power and reserve strength and will of the Nazis would, of course be a fatal error, and yet there are real reasons to believe that the United Nations have the upper hand, and will be aided in their efforts by the gradual decline of morale among the German people themselves. Events may move even more rapidly than we had dared hope a few weeks ago.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TAX FREE MARKED GAS ?

The lure that the users of Marked Gas, are getting something for nothing, is a delusion. All the Government has done and all the fanfare advertisements they have made about it, is a delusion.

What they have succeeded in doing, is to make the gas station man, a bookkeeper, an enforced money lender and tax collector, for the Government.

Take as an example, a 200-gallon fill of marked gas purchase. The gas station man pays the Oil Company for the gas, when he gets it. He then has to pay the 7 cents per gallon Provincial Tax ($24.) and the 3 cents per gallon Federal Tax ($9.), and he must stand for all the evaporation or shrinkage. He gets the 3 cents back as he sells the gas to the purchaser.

To get the 6 cents back, he has to make out about a dozen reports and documents, as well as assist the farmer to make out his set of papers. Marked gas is a slow seller and he might be three months disposing of it. Gas stations keep it, just as an accommodation as most farmers buy gas direct from the Oil Company tank wagon, and only buy a little from the gas station, when they run out or are short. Thus the gas station man may be out his $24.00 to the Government for three months, before the gas would be disposed of. Then, according to the instructions sent out by the Provincial Government, if the gas station man is not a good bookkeeper, he will never get his $24.00 back.

The Farmer or Purchaser must make out a set of papers, to get a permit to buy the gas. He must then drive over the township to get the Reeve to sign the application. When he gets through driving around and using up gas and tires, and then paying postage and declarations fees, he is behind, not ahead.

Is there any wonder the gas stations have quit or will now quit, handling marked gasoline. The coupon system was hard enough to keep straight, but this last deal simply makes the gas station man a bookkeeper and the Government gets the use of his enforced loan, for nothing. The farmer gains nothing.

The gas station men do not object to collecting the 3 cents Federal Government Tax, but they do object to being compelled to help the Provincial Government pull off a camouflaged fake political gesture on the people.

Every Man's Offensive

At last the great offensive has come; the first step in liberating the continent. Our men in the centre of it carry the hopes of millions through the bullets, the heat and the cold. It is to be painful to compare what they are doing in Sicily with what we do here. But it need not be, for there are two kinds of offensive. They are fighting to make sure we do not get the wrong kind of world. We must fight to make sure we do get the right kind.

Suppose we in Canada had to read headlines in the paper like: "Allied invasion bogs down; High Command disagrees," or "Lack of confidence between officers and men underlies collapse in Sicily." We should look at our headlines: Strikes, blackmarkets, mud-slinging, mistrust, suspicion, our press is full of warnings that the real battle is only beginning. That is one of our battles. We must realize that while our soldiers are standing the war in the battlefield, we have to win the battle of production on the home front. Production these days means more than just the implements of war, more than food for us and our allies, it means the spirit to win the war and secure the peace.

Our offensive at home in Canada will begin any day we choose. We can prove to our soldiers that the people of Canada is worth fighting and dying for. Every man and woman is free to do something about it. The ordinary man can determine to live for Canada. Each one of us can sacrifice as our boys are doing; not just the little luxuries of food or gasoline, we can sacrifice our selfish interests, our ambition, our mistrust and our greed. We can start living as our invasion troops have been living these last three years—matching their discipline, their physical fitness, their alert mentality, their perfect teamwork; we can pull together with those nearest us, and start pulling the country together. This is every man's least contribution towards building a country worthy of the sweat and sacrifice of Sicily.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 1ST, 1943

Lesson Text: Exodus 5: 22, 23; 6: 1-7; 12, 51
"GOD DELIVERS HIS PEOPLE"

The Jews have always been a persecuted people. Every once in a while some other race or culture will attack the Jews with fanatical frenzy and kill them off in thousands. We used to hear of the pogroms, by which this butchery of the Jews took place. In the early part of this century, in Russia, such pogroms were a common thing. We thought we had outgrown that. Just as we believe we had outgrown a lot of other things — other objectionable actions or modes of conduct which had characterized other generations. Then comes Hitler with his Jew baiting propaganda. No greater or more merciless, cold - blooded, scientific plan for exterminating a minority people was ever put into effect. That it should be done, in a time when we thought our culture and broadmindedness shows how little thorough control users of civilization count unless there is some deep, fundamental ethical basis for social living.

They have laid on him the responsibility of freeing the Hebrews from slavery. He approached the Pharo in the proper manner. But the fact that a Hebrew had the courage and the audacity to approach Pharo and ask for the release of the slaves only stirred the Egyptians' bitterness and hatred. The ruling classes took this as further evidence of the growing strength of the slave race. Consequently they became more bitter than they had been, and imposed even greater tasks upon the unfortunate and unhappy Jews.

This was not the only problem with which Moses was faced. Having promised to free the Jews, and then finding it hard to implement his promise, he brought on himself the anger of the Jews themselves. The efforts of Moses was therefore to stimulate the Egyptians to impose on the Jews heavier burdens, and to bring down on his head the disapproval of the Jews whom he had promised to help.

However, God made it clear that the covenant he had made still stood, whether the Jews believed it or not. The people would be delivered. As a matter of history, as every student of the Bible knows, that is exactly what happened. The people were finally released. They got out of slavery and set out on a long migration, seeking more living room in a wider sphere for opportunities.

This matter of "living room" is a most vital one. The world is becoming crowded with people. We do not notice it yet in Canada. But in Ireland and Japan the population is 400 to the square mile. It becomes increasingly difficult for people to make a living. The world's population has doubled in the past 150 years. When people are crowded, when living becomes difficult, trouble is on the way. They become desperate and try to take what others have. The balance of population is then restored by killing off surplus in a war.

This is the pagan, ruthless age-old method. The solution can be found in another direction, by sensible limitation of population, and by an equitable distribution of the gifts and blessings of nature. The former

"THE SINKING SHIP"

The Rats are Abandoning the Ship:

Under the headline "The Sinking Ship," the prominent Stockholm newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, writes on Vidkun Quisling's increasing difficulties in keeping his followers in line.

Referring to the recent resignation of Oliver Moerystad, Chief of Quisling's Hird (storm-troopers), ship-owner Stenersen, "Bishop" Pelek Toemberg city Council, Bjerck, the paper stresses the fact that the ordinary members of Quisling's party are also seized with panic. Even Minister Haeglin, the paper continues, tries to appear as a patriot within the Quisling "government" and as a defender of Norwegian interests against the usurpers.

In Telemark, Quisling's native county, the number of party members has decreased from 14,000 to about 200 since February of this year. But the most convincing proof of the general desertion from Quisling's colors is the increased number of Quislings among Norwegian refugees escaping to Sweden. Among these Quislings is one officer of the so-called Norwegian Legion, several legionaires and Quisling storm-troopers in uniform. The main reason for these desertions is that they are reckoning begins to loom on the horizon.

The Swedish paper concludes saying that in spite of the increasing material difficulties, continuous oppression and terror, the situation of the Norwegian people appears brighter as each day passes. "It redounds to the everlasting honor of the Norwegian people that they, even during the hard years of reverses and disappointments, stood firm in their resistance and would not be drawn over the ship which the rats are now beginning to abandon."

VOTE WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 4

FOR

LOWER TAXES - BETTER INCOMES

A SECURE FUTURE

The people of Ontario have much to gain from the Progressive Conservative programme, outlined by the Leader, George Drew, on July 8th after months of consultation with farmers, merchants, drovers and all classes of citizens all over the Province.

The Progressive Conservative Government will:

1. Establish county committees of leading farmers to plan production and distribution of farm products to meet domestic and foreign demands on a profitable basis—to assure for the farmers a fairer share of the national income.
2. Eliminate speculation in livestock by converting stock yards into a province-wide publicly owned service.
3. Relieve farmers and all home owners of one-half the school taxes.
4. Revise the whole provincial tax system to stimulate home improvements and house building.
5. To provide for every child all the education that can be usefully absorbed.
6. Introduce such vocational training in schools as will imbue farmers' children with pride in and love for agriculture as a basic and honourable calling; and fit them to make it in their own life time a more gainful occupation than it has been in the past.
7. Educate the rising generation to earn their own living and make their own way.
8. Improve the health of children by furnishing them with adequate medical and dental care.
9. Increase mothers' allowances and old age pensions.
10. Reduce the cost of electric power to farms and homes.

The rural population, which in more senses than one have their feet on the ground, will approve the note of authority and confidence which animates the Progressive Conservative platform. The farmers will welcome the advent of a strong aggressive administration to Queen's Park—an administration which will employ the most advanced economic and scientific methods to develop and utilize the agricultural, mining, forest, and other natural resources of the Province, to build up a strong provincial economy, furnish steady employment to men and women and establish social security for all classes.

The Progressive Conservative Programme affirms that the moral, spiritual and material welfare of Ontario will be best assured under British democratic institutions and within the British Commonwealth of Nations and Empire.

THE ISSUE IS NOW IN YOUR HANDS . . . VOTE FOR

(1) The Progressive Conservative Candidate—(No Party in the history of this Province ever attracted a more representative group of candidates). The Party is pledged to carry out every commitment given in the Drew 22-Point Programme. Drew has faith in Ontario, faith in its people, faith in the future. Only Drew can win.

(2) We want and need a change—vote for a change—but weigh the facts. Don't vote for a party whose aims you have never studied or who would destroy individual property rights and everything else you hold dear. Drew's programme is clear and sound. Don't cast a vote that will set Ontario back 100 years. Vote to assure George Drew a strong working majority in the Legislature.

Take the necessary time off on Wednesday, 4th of August, and mark your ballot for the Progressive Conservative Candidate.

CEILING PRICES FOR EGGS SET

MAXIMUM RETAIL MARK-UP SIX CENTS PER DOZEN

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Ceiling prices for eggs have been set for 25 cities and a number of rural areas covering most of the inhabited parts of Canada, the Prices Board announced Monday, in a revised order relating to eggs.

Effective Wednesday, the order also fixes the maximum mark - up allowed retailers at six cents per dozen.

Last August the board established maximum wholesale prices for grade A large eggs for eleven cities, while lawful prices elsewhere based on prices in those cities plus transportation charges.

Subsequent orders fixed maximum prices for other grades and sizes of eggs.

A schedule accompanying the latest order gets out a uniform wholesale price. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and British Columbia, with the exception of Vancouver Island and certain mainland coastal areas.

In the remaining provinces certain areas are defined and a varying maximum wholesale price is set out for each. These include 50½ cents in the principal Quebec markets and 50 cents in Central Ontario.

Every sale of eggs by a primary producer now is under the price ceiling, whether the sale is made to manufacturers processors, wholesalers, retailers or other dealers. When a primary producer sells direct to a consumer, whether on a public market or otherwise, he is governed by the wholesale ceiling price for his area and the mark-up allowed the retailers.

MARLBANK W. A.

The July meeting of the Woman's Association was held on Tuesday evening, July 20th, at the home of Mrs. W. G. Burd, with an attendance of twenty-five members and visitors. The president, Mrs. W. Marlin, was in the chair. The meeting opened with a hymn and Mrs. T. Dennison led in prayer. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Badgley. The topic for the meeting was "The Sabbath." The roll call was answered by "Do's and Dont's for the Sabbath." The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Bessie Allen and adopted as correct. The business part of the meeting followed. It was decided to hold a quilting and pot luck dinner in the church hall, and to give $10 to the Greek relief fund, also to send a card of sympathy to Mrs. J. Kirkpatrick, in her bereavement. A lengthy programme was then enjoyed. A reading by Mrs. Stout, an instrumental number by Ann Allen, reading by Mrs. C. Benn, solo by Mrs. Melburn, reading by Mrs. Burd, with scripture verses read by Mrs. McCutcheon, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Pringle. A reading by Mrs. T. Dennison brought to a close a very interesting programme. Lunch money, $2.80; birthday, 58c.

TEARING AT THE SINEWS OF THE JAP OCTOPUS

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

It certainly gives one a grateful feeling of security to hear Vice-Admiral Frederick Horne, vice-chief of the United States naval operations, say the navy is planning for a Pacific war "that will last at least until 1949, "but it's equally good to note that he doesn't specifically state he believes the conflict necessarily will run that long.

Six more years might not mean much to a tortoise which has an expectancy of 200 years of life. But it's a long time to the average citizen who is looking forward to the day when he can take his car out of storage and drive into the country-side for a steak smothered with onions.

When James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization, was asked about the admiral's statement he replied, "If anyone else is planning on that basis, I do not know that they are." T. V. Soong, China's astute Foreign Minister who is now in Washington remarked that it's "anybody's guess" how long the fight with Japan will last—and that seems to be a fair assay of the situation.

One thing we're sure of is that whatever the duration of the war it will be plenty long and painful. Its length and bloodshed and privations will depend mainly on civilian efforts in producing sinews of victory. We must neither allow ourselves to grow slack because of overconfidence nor become despondent and therefore inefficient — for fear of a long war.

Unfortunately the amount of striking power the Allies could turn against Japan has been largely dependent on the demands of the European conflict. However, things are looking decidedly brighter in the Pacific as industrial efforts begin to pyramid. It's encouraging — though surely nothing to cause complacence —to see the United Nations go on the offensive against the Mikado's forces at the same time as the Allies launch their "beginning-of-the-end" drives in Europe.

As witness to progress we have the recent great Allied air raid on Rabaul harbor, New Georgia, when 150 bombers dumped 123 tons of grief on the Japs. This was a companion piece to the huge aerial attack by 192 aircraft on Kahili, Japan's key base in the Solomons, when nine enemy ships, including a cruiser and three destroyers were sunk.

The field of Allied aggressiveness covers the whole vast Pacific area. Warships again have blasted the Nipponese defences on Kiska Island, up in the Aleutians, in preparation for invasion. The time must be near for the amphibious assault which will return Kiska to American hands. That will lessen the Japanese threat to Alaska and yield another important air-base within reach of enemy territory.

Almost coincident with the Kiska assault, American bombers made the first raid on Japan's northernmost island base — Paramushiro on the tip of the Kurile chain. They apparently were operating from Amchitka, in the Western Aleutians, demonstrating the fact that Japanese territory can be reached from American bases.

At the same time bombers from Australia blasted Celebes. These two raids, each of which represented a round trip of about 2,000 miles, are among the longest bombing flights on record. That's something for the Japanese to wagry about.

So it goes — a story of steady Allied progress. Daily we are tearing at the vital sinews of the Japanese octopus. In his efforts to clinch the vast expanse of islands which he grasped, he is expending resources which he can't replace and can't afford to lose.

Since the attack on Pearl Harbor the Allies have destroyed close to 650 Japanese ships of all types, including some 230 war vessels. The enemy air losses have been grave. Figures change almost hourly, but the trend can be seen in the fact that since the offensive in the New Georgia area began the firing of this month, the Allies have destroyed more than 300 Japanese warplanes.

The cumulative effect of this will be great, when finally Allied sea, land, air sea and air power is released from the European theatre and can be hurled at the Mikado.

The mistress of the house entered the dining room just as a burglar was in the act of purloining her silver. "What are you doing?" asked the lady.

"I'm at your service, Madam," said the thief.

Sixberry, Calcium, N.Y., and Mrs. Clinton Smith, of Pennfield N.Y., and three sons, Elson of Mount Pleasant, Mich., D. D of Toronto, and Myron of Marlbank. The pall - bearers were Messrs. David Turkington, Neills Allen, J. F York, John Kimmett, William Burd, and Than Kimmett.

Peace needs generalship and basic training as much as war.

People dedicated to their work are never chained to it.

Once again, motorists cast a "landslide" vote in favour of TIRES GOODYEAR

Hundreds of motorists, in every province of Canada were asked this question: "If you had a tire permit, what tire would you buy today?" By a huge majority Goodyear was again elected Canada's first choice tire!

This simply proves that motorists, forced to keep their old tires running, have learned that Goodyear's "extra mileage" is not merely a claim or a catch-phrase, but a definite reality.

Never before, since motoring began, have tires come through such a testing-time as during the past eighteen months. Never before have motorists been compelled to extract the very last mile from tires. Therefore when Canada's first choice tire, Goodyear, comes through that period and remains, by all odds, the first choice tire, there is abundant proof that motorists have found, by practical experience, that Goodyears do give a "bonus in miles and service".

*Canadian Facts Reg'd. an impartial fact finding organization has the names and addresses of those who voted in this nation-wide survey.

Indisputable tests show that, by feeding calves "Miracle" Calf Meal, and selling the milk they would otherwise need, there is no actual feed saving. The milk brings more than the feed cost. And when calves are fed on "Miracle" Calf Meal they are free of rickets, grow stronger and faster. "Miracle" Calf Meal shortens the time when calves will pay their own way as milkers. And this feed in the dotted bags starts them on the way to higher milk production.

His wife died in 1921, and he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Fred A. Henderson, Mount Pleasant, and Mrs. Wm. Oliver, Belleville. He also leaves one brother, Herbert, at Sillsville. The late James Rikley, Belleville, was an older brother.

His funeral was conducted at the Wartman Funeral Home, in Napanee, on Saturday afternoon by Rev. W. R. Merrick, of Selby, and interment followed at Mount Pleasant cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Chas. Hawley, Russell Hopkinson, Thos. Uens, Frank Hudson, Ross Oliver and Fred Stafford.

EXPLAINS RULING RE TEACHERS' EMPLOYMENT

"The general intention of Selective Service Regulations as applying to teachers," commented L. Percy Parker, manager of the Local Employment and Selective Service Office, "is to keep teachers at their professions during the school year, and to make the best possible use of their services during vacation."

Mr. Percy said that there might be some misunderstanding among teachers as to their status under Selective Service Civilian Classifications. He explained this status in this way:

By Order in Council of June 17th, 1943, teachers were brought under Selective Service previously they had been exempt in so far as employment at their profession is concerned. Now a teacher must continue at the teaching profession during the school year, unless given leave to take other full-time employment except in the agricultural industry, under permit from Selective Service. It is not the intention to authorize teachers to leave the profession, where their services as teachers are needed. Teachers may still join the armed forces without permit, or they may engage in part-time employment during the school year, so long as it does not interfere with their teaching duties. During vacations teachers are encouraged to take other priority work, but generally speaking and apart from employment in agriculture, teachers must secure Selective Service permits before entering employment. Teachers will not require permits to engage at work in their own professions.

The new regulation defines a teacher as any person who teaches or instructs in a school, college or university not carried on for gain.

FOREST MILLS W. A.

Mrs. Lewis Fox was hostess to the members of the Woman's Association of the Forest Mills United Ch. for the July meeting. There was an attendance of thirteen members and eighteen visitors. Mrs. K. W. Scott conducted the devotional, the theme being "Stewardship." During the singing of a hymn was followed by the Lord's prayer repeated in unison. A scripture lesson was read by Mr. Hancock. A paper on stewardship was given by Mrs. E. Cook and a solo by Miss Hazel Baker. A hymn closed this part of the program.

The president, Mrs. Bert Asselstine presided for a brief business session. A letter of appreciation was read from Mrs. Arch Richmond for flowers sent during her illness. Calls for help donations from members while she was ill in the hospital.

Mrs. John Benn had charge of the social program, which was very interesting and was as follows: reading by Mrs. George Brooks; duet by the Misses June and Eva Benn; readings by Mrs. C. Davison and Mrs. Lewis Fox. A musical contest conducted by Miss Hazel Baker was won by Mr. Hancock.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. I am of the opinion that our landlord is charging me more for our apartment than he is legally entitled to charge. Is there any way in which this can be checked?

A. The rentals regulations demand that landlords shall furnish both their tenants and the Rentals Administration with properly-completed copies of form RC-40 whenever a new lease, written or oral, is contracted or the terms of an existing lease are altered. If you have not received such a form from your landlord, you should demand it. The Rentals Administration will then be able to check the rental.

Q. Is there any way in which I can be of assistance in connection with the distribution of the new ration books?

A. Most assuredly there is. Your Local Ration Board will be very glad to have your services as a volunteer in helping to issue these books.

Q. I was ab'e to buy some fuel-wood recently and the seller did not supply me with an invoice. Is that not an infraction of the regulations?

A. Yes, the firm or individual supplying fuelwood is required to furnish each of its customers with an invoice giving details of the transaction.

Q. My cousin has invited me to spend a fortnight at her summer camp. Ought I to take my ration book with me?

A. There is no regulation requiring you to do so, but no doubt she will be depending upon your rations to meet her food requirements. Under such circumstances it seems only the courteous thing for you to place your coupons at her disposal.

Q. Are hospitals required to hold Wartime Prices and Trade Board licences?

A. Every hospital, public or private, which buys for consumption by its staff or patients, is required to hold such a licence, unless it is operated by the Federal or a provincial government.

Q. Our club is planning to hold a picnic. Is there no way in which we can secure special rations to cover our needs?

A. You must provide rationed goods out of your own coupon allowances unless the services of a public caterer are obtained to handle your outing.

MAKING PLANS FOR DISTRIBUTION NO. 3 RATION BOOKS

Rationing authorities are already making advance plans for the distribution of the No. 3 consumer ration books which are to be received by the public during the week commencing August 22nd.

As in the case of the current ration books, these books will be distributed under the auspices of the Local Ration Boards which will set up convenient local distributing centres and depend upon volunteer workers to do the actual issuing under the direction of distribution chiefs. Other centres will be established in industrial concerns where a suitable number of consumers may be served.

In some cases, it is pointed out, the location of the distributing centres may differ from those used during the campaign for the distribution of the current books. Some of those occupied at that time may not now be available. In other cases, arrangements more convenient for the public will be made. Accordingly, consumers are asked to take careful note of the whereabouts of the distributing centres and also of the instructions governing the issue of the new books which will be announced well in advance of the actual period of distribution.

RATION COUPON CALENDAR

The Local Ration Board reminds consumers that an additional series of consumer ration coupons became valid on Thursday, July 22nd.

In addition to meat coupons (pair) No. 8, this series embraces tea, coffee and sugar coupons Nos. 11 and 12, and butter coupons Nos. 20 and 21.

The meat coupons now falling due will expire on August 31st and the butter coupons on the same date. The tea, coffee and sugar coupons are valid until declared invalid.

Consumers are also advised by the Local Ration Board that butter coupons 16, 17, 18 and 19 and meat coupons (pairs) 4, 5, 6 and 7 will expire on Saturday, July 31st:

MEAT — Buff coupons 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 (pairs) are now valid for the purchase of meat according to the coupon value chart. Coupons 10, (pairs) will fall due July 26. Coupons 4, 5, 6, 7, expire July 31.

TEA AND COFFEE — Green coupons 1 to 12 inclusive are now valid for the purchase of two ounces of tea or one-half pound of coffee apiece. They are valid until declared invalid. Coupon 13, with the same value, will fall due August 19th.

SUGAR — Red sugar coupons 1 to 12 inclusive are now valid for the purchase of one pound of sugar apiece. They are valid until declared invalid. Coupon 13, with the same value, will fall due August 19th.

CANNING SUGAR — All canning sugar coupons, however marked as to month, may now be used for the purchase of sugar for the home canning of fresh fruits and may be cashed until September 30th.

NEW RATION BOOKS—The No. 3 consumer ration books will be distributed under the direction of your Local Ration Board during the week of August 22rd.

Directed toward greater efficiency in manpower allocation it is announced here that a representative of National Selective Service will be located at army reception centres to interview rejected applicants for enlistment. If sympathetically handled, in my opinion, this shoud help to put more round pegs in round holes of the agricultural and industrial war effort.

Hans and Fritz were discussing conditions in Germany.

"Der Fuehrer," said Hans, "has done great work. We now have more living space than ever."

"Is that so?" asked Fritz. "Why—because we have more land?"

"No," was the retort, "Because we have less soldiers."

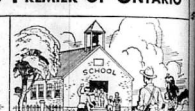
THE LIFE STORY OF HARRY NIXON, PREMIER OF ONTARIO

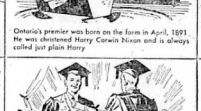
Harry Nixon's people were United Empire Loyalists. His farm was pioneered by his grandfather over 100 years ago.

Ontario's premier was born on the farm in April, 1891. He was christened Harry Corwin Nixon and is always called just plain Harry.



He attended the little red school house down the road. Nights, mornings, Saturdays and holidays he helped on the farm.

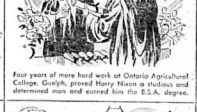
High School in Brantford was an exciting experience to young Nixon, but he worked hard and did well.



Four years of more hard work at Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, proved Harry Nixon a studious and determined man and earned him the B.S.A. degree.

He returned to the farm, his chosen life work. On October 28, 1914, he married Alice Jackson, a Guelph girl who had graduated from MacDonald Inst.

Those who know Harry Nixon well, know him to be a man of sound business judgment as well as a successful "dirt farmer"



Working in his own quiet way, Nixon's qualities of leadership earned him a seat in the Ontario house in 1919.

At 28, Harry Nixon was the youngest Cabinet Minister in Canada.

The Nixon family are church-goers. They attend the United Church at St. George.

Harry Nixon has been a member of the legislature for Brant continuously since 1919, but farming is his occupation and he works at it.

Equally, at home in a neighbor's drawing room or in his barn, it is said he has reached many important decisions while milking a job he truly enjoys.

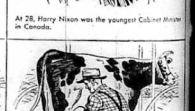
Nixon's quietly efficient ways and original thinking earned him a high place in government councils. At 45 he was many times Acting Prime Minister.



On April 30, 1943, an enthusiastic Liberal Convention made Harry Nixon leader of the party. He was sworn in as Prime Minister. Now he wants his appointment confirmed by the people.

The Nixon family is "in uniform". Son Jackson, R.C.A.F., was killed in action over Germany; Katherine, R.C.A.F., W.D., is overseas. Margaret is doing confidential work at Ottawa. Both daughters married service men. Bob (14) is working on the farm.

Mrs. Nixon is a friendly, motherly woman, a gracious hostess and sympathetic counsel. She is well liked wherever she goes.

Premier Nixon is a steady-driving statesman; a courageous thinker who has the will to get things done. His long administrative experience and level-headedness will ensure Progress and Unity in Government for Ontario.

Conservatives Ahead with 38 Seats C.C.F. Have 33

The Ontario Liberal Government, headed by Hon. Harry C. Nixon, was decisively defeated in the election held on Wednesday of this week, but neither of the other two parties was given a clear majority. The Progressive Conservatives, early Thursday morning, had secured 38 seats, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation 33 seats, the Liberals 14 seats, Labor 2 seats, Independent Liberal 1 seat. Two other seats out of the 90 were still undecided.

Tea, Coffee Coupons Available For 12 - Year - Olds

A new class of young Canadians will become entitled to rations of tea or coffee with the issue of the No. 2 ration books during the week of August 23rd.

The Local Ration Board, which will supervise the issue of these books, drew attention to the fact that all children who will reach the full age of 12 years on or before September 1, 1943, will be entitled to retain tea or coffee coupons in their new ration books. Those children who are below that age on September 1, will however have them surrendered when the new ration books are issued.

This means that a considerable number of children who have reached the age of 12 years since the issue of the No. 2 ration books will receive tea or coffee rations for the first time when the No. 3 books are distributed.

FREIGHT TRAIN CRASH TIES UP TRAFFIC ON C.N.R. NEAR NAPANEE

Rear End Collision Blocks Tracks for Several Hours

As the result of a rear-end collision of two freight trains, near Mooney's Crossing, three miles east of Napanee, on Sunday evening, August 1st, traffic on the Canadian National Railway main line was held up for some time until wreckage could be cleared.

An east-bound freight was said to have been forced to stop on account of a hot box and another east bound freight crashed into it, smashing several freight cars loaded with cereals. R. W. Sturgess of Toronto, breakman on the first train, who was in the caboose, was slightly injured and was taken to a hospital in Kingston, for treatment. Fortunately no other trainmen were injured. Several cars in the second train, loaded with wheat, left the track, as did also the engine of the same train.

Service on the west-bound track was resumed late on Monday and east bound trains were diverted to the west bound track around the wreckage.

Passenger trains throughout Sunday night and part of Monday were held up each side of the scene of the wreck. A large number of troops spent the night in Napanee waiting for the clearing of the tracks and a number of them were said to have utilised lawns on John Street as a place to sleep, rather than to remain in the hot crowded cars.

Early Monday morning passenger trains were backed east and west to the scene of the accident and the passengers on the stalled express trains were transferred and continued on their journey.

A large number of citizens of the Napanee district drove to the scene of the accident during the evening on Sunday and on Monday.

On Sunday evening the C. N. R. station platform was crowded with passengers of the trains which were held up because of the accident.

DR. H. A. McGREER SPEAKS AT ROTARY

Rev. Dr. H. A. McGreer, Principal of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que., a son of the late Charles McGreer, Napanee, was the speaker at the regular noon luncheon on Tuesday of this week.

Dr. McGreer in his address, dealt with the French - Canadian problem and made an earnest plea for a better understanding between the French and English residents of Canada. He suggested that the place to begin to develop Canadian unity is in the schools, where children would all be taught from the same text books in their own language. That, he said, supplemented by a strong central authority unafraid to exercise its powers, irrespective of local prejudices, would go a long way toward establishing unity.

Dr. McGreer was introduced by the Venerable Archdeacon R. J. Dumbrille and thanks of the club members were expressed to Dr. McGreer by Maj. C. E. Jamieson.

Day of Sports for Employees and Families

The annual Gibbard Picnic which, for many years was an event of great interest and enjoyment for the staff of The Gibbard Furniture Shops Limited, was revived last Saturday, the 31st of July, at the Napanee Driving Park.

The plant remained closed on Saturday morning, and the employees and their families enjoyed a picnic and field day at the Driving Park, which was made available to the Company through the courtesy of Mr. J. L. Boyes.

The day opened with a softball game between two teams of girls from the plant, which was followed by races for the children, novelty races for the grown-ups, and tug-o-war contests. At noon refreshments were provided by the Company, and were eaten under the beautiful shade trees of the Park. In the afternoon further races and games were organized, including a bicycle race, a soda-cracker contest, a blue-berry pie eating contest, a hood race, three-legged races, egg and spoon race, and so on, all of which were greatly enjoyed by the contestants and by the spectators. Two horse races were held—the horses ridden by Bruce McPherson and Miss Mary Richmond, the Plant Nurse.

Several thousand sandwiches were made by the wives of a number of the members of the staff under the supervision of Mrs. George Stewart. Cakes, doughnuts, and other refreshments were provided in great abundance. Mr. Lester Rogers was in charge of the programme at the picnic, and he, with a number of other members of the staff, aided in the running off of the races and in serving the refreshments.

The Gibbard Picnic was a great success and we'l take its place, it is hoped, as an annual event enjoyed as greatly as the annual Gibbard Christmas Party.

MISS BARBARA KIMMERLY

has been responsible for the distribution of a large number of War Savings Stamp during the past year. Miss Kimmerly, who was chosen Miss Lennox and Addington, is in charge of all the "Miss Canada" girls in this County and has unselfishly devoted her time and talents to this important work.

Theatregoers have been approached by an attractive "Miss Canada" in her red, white and blue uniform, on several occasions. Through the co-operation of Mr. Frank Miley, Manager of the Grenada Theatre, a booth has been set up in the lobby of the theatre for the use of the girls in selling War Savings Stamps. Many girls from Napanee and the County have willingly and cheerfully responded when called upon to sell stamps, thus starting a saving for countless adults and children which will help win the war and provide a nest egg for them when peace has again been restored to the World.

RACIAL CLASHES

The clash in Harlem on Sunday, when six persons were killed and 201 injured, is another symptom of a certain restrained racial feeling which is seething underneath the surface, in countries where there are different colors and races. The problem presented by this potential danger is accentuated by war conditions, when emotions are stirred and feelings run high. In the United States the race problem has not been settled, by any means, and besides the war psychology and its effect on racial differences, other factors have entered to make the feeling tense and potentially dangerous.

The shortage of labor for war industries has led to a migration of considerable proportion of Negroes from the Southern States. There are now large colonies settled in and around the great industrial centres in the north. The Whites have resented the placing of these colonies near their own residences; for real estate values immediately go down and the White community is looked upon as an undesirable home area, or investment

Then, too, the Negro in these new industries receives a wage, which is more than he ever hoped to receive in his lifetime. He spends recklessly and often foolishly, and if he indulges in intoxicating liquor it is not hard to imagine that the Whites will resent the actions induced by the effect of drink, and if, at the same time, Whites in the area have imbibed, pent up feelings are unleashed and clashes with disastrous results, occur. In Detroit, and now in New York, deaths have marked rioting in Negro sections of the cities.

This problem will not be settled in war time. A long term programme of education is essential. The United States, which has many wonderful accomplishments to its credit, has a tremendous task ahead, if it is to establish complete racial and national unity. We have our own racial problem in Canada, and can sympathize with our great Neighbor to the South in the difficult situation created by the large and increasing Negro population.

LABOR AND LOYALTY

On Saturday last The Gibbard Shops held a picnic at the Driving Park. Owner, Office Staff, Management, and Factory Workers with their Families, met for a day's pleasure, entertainment and fun. It was all well organized. There was a softball game between different departments; there were stunts, contests of one kind and another and all sorts of races. Dinner was served to about two hundred, in the main Fair building.

This is private enterprise at its best. There never in this world could be any quarrel with the sort of private enterprise which is typified by the local Furniture Factory. It is a sort of family affair in which each has a part, and in which each one is interested. Unfortunately, this type of organization is becoming increasingly rare in our modern society. The trend is to larger and larger units, where large financial interests buy up a dozen or more factories and govern them from some office, hundreds of miles away. There is no personal relationship between owner, management and worker. The business is a cold-blooded concern. It is this development towards large - scale production and absentee ownership which has made it necessary for labor to organize and to fight for their share of the profits. We may deplore this, but it is a trend which in the large centres of population cannot be changed, but must be intelligently directed by Government supervision.

Fortunately, there are still a few firms—like the Gibbard Firm—which are able to continue the happy labor relationship which marked industry generally in a day now fast receding into the past. Mr. MacPherson is to be congratulated, not only for reestablishing this old firm, but because his personal concern for the staff has developed a spirit of loyalty and devotion on the part of the workers, which any firm, particularly in these days of labor unrest, might well envy.

THE ISSUE IN ITALY

The situation in Italy has not been cleared up as quickly as might have been expected. The change from Mussolini to Badoglio did not bring the unconditional surrender which the United Nations had expected. A week has passed; just what has been happening in Italy during that week is not clear. But this much is quite apparent—that week has given Germany time to adjust her plans to the new conditions to make disposition of her troops to meet the situation that will emerge when Italy finally capitulates.

The United Nations have given Badoglio time to get control of affairs, and to restore order in areas where rioting had broken out. Bombing of Italian cities ceased in the meantime; but notice has now been served on Italy that the days of respite are over. The bombing of Naples is a grim warning that they mean what they say. From now on unless surrender is made the Italians will have to expect continual bombing of their important cities.

It is not easy to follow the attitude of all parties within the United Nations towards this crisis. Both President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill came out flat-footed in favor of a vigorous stern policy towards the Italians. But General Eisenhower softened down the statements of both these leaders in his appeal to the Italians. It may be that the Fascists took this to be a sign of weakness and as a consequence made plans with Hitler for further opposition to the United Nations. There are grounds for this assumption. They are to be found in the reaction on the part of the Axis powers on former occasions, to British attitudes. Any sign of kindness, fairness or justice of the United Nations, has always been taken by the Axis powers to mean a sign of weakness. The only language they can understand is that of force. Tragic as it is, the United Nations will have to push their attack, against Italy, to the limit, even when to do so might seem only to add suffering and distress to a people already tired of war and looking for a way out.

In the United States a good deal of criticism has been directed against the propaganda department of the Government because of their handling of the fall of Mussolini. Prime Minister Churchill said that the keystone of the Fascist arch had been cracked. But the American propaganda, it is argued, did not make enough of that. The burden of the whole story was that Italy had only changed one dictator for another, and that the ousting of Mussolini was not so important a matter after all.

There is some justification for the criticism. The fall of Mussolini marked the first crack in the Fascist armour. It was Mussolini who first started the Fascist movement. He set the style later followed by Hitler and Franco. When the man who originated the movement toppled from his pedestal, it was an event that should have been played up to the limit. For millions of enslaved, terror - ridden people throughout Europe, knowledge that Fascism was beginning to crumble would have brought hope and encouragement.

This war is being fought both on the military front and the propaganda front. On the military front our Soldiers, Airmen and Navy are doing everything that could be expected of them. There are times when the forces on the propaganda front leave much to be desired.

A NEW ORDER

The election on Wednesday has established a precedent so far as Ontario is concerned. The results at the time of writing give the Progressive Conservatives 38 seats, the C.C.F. 33 seats and the Liberals 14, with Labor 2 and Independent Liberal 1. The Left Wing Socialist Party now becomes a real political factor in the life of the Province.

The dissatisfaction with the working of Democracy as we have known it was reflected in the large number of C. C. F. candidates elected. To the credit of Colonel Drew and his a mark of his staesmanship, he it said he saw the trend of the times. Undoubtedly the twenty-two plank platform, socially progressive, forward-looking, and radically constructive, was responsible for his party polling the largest number of votes.

The main issue was a more vigorous streamlined social policy. Whether we like it or not we are living in a new world. The old things are passing away. Many will regret their passing, regret the easy-going, stable, steady condition under which they have grown up. It is hard, indeed, for people who have been so accustomed to them to believe that they were not the best, and who see, in their passing, a loss that is irreparable.

But we can no more turn back the hands of the clock of history than we can prevent the sun from rising. The world moves. A tremendous upsurge of human energy, human spirit marks our day. A new generation of young, energetic, buoyant, adventurous youth is representative of this spirit. Some are fighting in Sicily, others scarcely out of their 'teens are operating a bomber, supply or tugar for civilian use, was also predicted. The reason given was that supplies are larger because of from improved shippping situation.

The United States Navy disclosed more than 1,600 of its vessels ranging from cruisers to small landing craft, effected the landing of the United States invasion forces on the Island of Sicily.

BATTLE OF ITALY WILL PROVE A COSTLY BUSINESS

BY HARRISON SALISBURY
British United Press Correspondent

London. — The Battle of Italy now opening up is going to cost Germany the equivalent of 40 to 50 divisions even if the Wehrmacht fails to come to the support of the wavering Axis partner.

This figure is based on a careful estimate of Italian divisions which previously had been employed outside Italy as part of Mussolini's continental defence system. Before the start of the Sicilian campaign, estimates indicated the Italians had about 80 to 100 divisions.

Until recently, only about half of these troops were based in Italy, Sicily and Sardinia. The remainder comprised the defence forces in Southern France, Yugoslavia, Greece, Albania, Crete, the Greek islands and the Dodecanese.

Italy has been repatriating these forces as rapidly as possible during the past six weeks. Frontier reports state that the Germans have taken over much of the Italian duties in Greece, the Balkans and Germany is now faced with the task of replacing, sometime like 40 or 50 divisions in areas outside Italy.

This factor indicates that there may be considerable basis for apparent Russian suspicion that the Germans actually have been removing some units from the Eastern front. Russian reports in recent days state the Germans have possibly 240 divisions on the Western front rather than the 218, the latest Allied estimate.

Loss of Italian occupation and defensive troops comes at a moment when the Germans can least afford to spare additional troops. With the Allies threatening to move into the Balkans at any time, Axis troop disposition should be increasing. This would be most difficult if the Germans must replace the estimated 20 Italian divisions previously serving there.

The same is true of Southern France, also a logical spot for Allied attacks, combined with the obvious and almost official reluctance of Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary to send troops to face the Anglo-American action. the German army is facing a serious manpower crisis.

The extent of Germany's strategic lack of reserves, troops held in central areas for quick transport to threatened points — is not known but it is significant that Hitler only has been reduced close to the vanishing point by expansion needs.

The Germans are in the process of losing two more divisions of their own troops in Russia. It is feared that they will be forced to contribute a certain number of divisions to Italy even though they well may realize that they face a hopeless task.

Therefore, the situation may be roughly encouraging when the Allies will have created a real second front condition by forcing the Germans to divert additional men from the Russian Front. The extent to which the Russians are pressing every part of the front emphasizes the Red Army's alertness for any such indications.

V

GERMAN MORALE SINKS

Istanbul — A neutral traveller just returned from Berlin said that the Allied invasion of Sicily and the failure of German forces to counterattack Russia have plunged German morale to a new low and that even the most optimistic Germans are now convinced they are losing the war.

The traveller said also on the undermining German morale on the home front, this information said, asserting that reports prevalent in Berlin place the number of dead in Essen alone at 17,000.

Another contributing factor, he said, is the harrassing effectiveness of the Allied anti-submarine campaign. Germany now called up for U-boat service are said to be unwilling to all kinds of tricks and bribery to be transferred to another branch of the armed forces, and it is understood that a number of doctors have been arrested for issuing false medical certificates to get these youths exempted from submarine duty.

The traveller said that the practice of listening to enemy radio broadcasts is spreading in Germany and the Gestapo is unable to cope with it because so many of the Elite Guard troops are reported to have been sent to the Russian front.

Cleaning up the bombed districts in German cities, according to hopeless a task, he added, that the authorities now are not even pretending to do any more than repair the most essential factories. Shops, homes and office buildings have been left lying in ruins, even in Berlin, where some of the city's wealthiest sections have suffered heavily from air raids.

In the House of Commons the other day attended, on behalf of the weeklies, a press conference for General Henri Giraud. A memorable experience for me. The General spoke for fifty minutes without notes. Tall wearing a plain khaki field uniform, without decorations of any kind, he looked every inch the famous soldier who in two wars had escaped from German prisons. His grisled, granite jaw sets up an interesting face, close to a double for the late Lord Kitchener. He talks in slow, measured tones, without gesticulation; at times arms folded. He has piercing eyes which never stray from listening in without moving. While speaking, his face, stern, is in complete repose. Only twice did he appear animated, once when talking about the road from Thnis to Berlin"; and again in the question period when asked what effect recognition would have for the National Liberation Committee. His face lit up and he smiled broadly, saying if that was a practical question, he knew nothing about politics. He was introduced to the press conference by Prime Minister King.

Questioned in the House why the discount on Canadian funds as against United States dollars, financier Hyde stated that stability is much more important at the present time. Any change in final exchange rates, he declared, would cause a vast amount of dislocation; some would benefit, others wouldn't. There would be no national gain by reducing the spread now. For instance if the west required a lot of grain to the United States they would benefit by reason of the present rates set. It was pointed out that the fixing of the exchange rate while competing with continental currency is depreciated below ours would be a disadvantage to us.

As the Sicilian invasion news broke, Parliament sitting in irritating, hot sticky weather, fenced its way through a penetrating discussion on foreign affairs. Mr. King, Mr. Graydon and Mr. Coldwell had formally pledged Canada unstinted aid on the fighting men. J. H. Blackmore, said he wanted no repetition of the aid given soldiers after the last war.

West coast members like Mr. A. W. Neill, have been particularly anxious for the government to say what will be done with Japanese nationals after the war. If two-thirds of a farmer's debts were incurred before that date, he may seek adjustment on all his debts, even those incurred later. Opposition members from the West took the stand that legislation didn't go far enough for the farmer. Mr. Ilsley who piloted the bill thought it unwise at this time to re-open fundamental issues of western debt problems, and just could not see eye to eye with the three-province plea for a permanent debt legislation, something which no other country has. He stressed courts have power to stay foreclosure.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, AUGUST 8TH, 1943

"GOD SHOWS HIS PEOPLE THE WAY"

The Jews were, for generations, an enslaved people. The whole race was forced to do the most menial work for the Egyptians. At first a favoured people, they became the most oppressed. Under the blazing heat of an Egyptian sun they made bricks; urged to more and ever more production by the lash of the cruel task master. They were poorly fed; they dropped in their own tracks, their bodies unceremoniously thrown aside to make way for others. They became docile, broken in spirit, doing their tasks like "dumb driven" animals.

It was no easy task that Moses set his hand to when he undertook to lead these people into a land of their own. Naturally there was the excitement of the first adventure. But Moses knew that there were difficulties ahead. It is not easy to change the whole character of a people, overnight. The Negroes, in the States were freed from slavery many years ago. Even yet the spirit of the slave marks thousands of their descendants. They are indolent, lazy, unambitious, and poor. Education is helping, but many of the educational facilities provided for Whites are still denied the Blacks. Moses knew the psychology of the slave. And so instead of taking the most direct route to Canaan, he chose a round-about way. The short route would have brought them into a clash with the Philistines. The years of slavery had taken all the fight out of the Jews. One good clash with the Philistines and they would have sent them all scampering back to Egypt. They had to be trained, disciplined and organized. This required time. So Moses played a delaying action, and thereby showed good generalship, good strategy.

The Scripture record says that God guided them by a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night. They followed certain cloud formations in the daytime and the stars by night, directed by Moses who undoubtedly received the general course of their migration. We have to be very exact and sensible about the way we consider the guidance of God. Of course, as Christians, we believe in guidance. But God guides through consecrated men and women. The whole race was led through Moses and an Ethiopian woman. Miriam was a prophetess, and the recorded instances of her use are few. We are safe in saying that she wielded a powerful influence on her brother, and through him on the whole race. Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, was a wise counsellor and divinely [illegible]

A SORE SPOT WITH HITLER
BY HENRY SHAPIRO

Leningrad is an anvil that has broken many of Hitler's hammers and forged into defensive strength into a striking weapon that Germany would give much more to eliminate.

Since the battle for Leningrad began two years ago, Germany has sent record numbers of men to death or injury, expended enormous piles of materials and taken incalculable losses in prestige trying vainly to reduce this Russian fortress.

It still is a prime German objective. Mainly, this Nazi obsession with Leningrad rests on its strategical importance. But Germany also wants to wipe out the forces of destruction now operating from the city Hitler once said was doomed.

On no part in the city. I was shown the naval aircraft bases in which area from which hundreds of raids have been launched against Finnish industrial and military bases, against Murmansk, Sterlitz, Kotlas, neighberg and Berlin itself.

Among the planes are a group of long - range twin - engined Soviet bombers, Russian - built machines, which recently bombed Berlin but escaped unscratched although it ran through enemy barrages repeatedly at 85-mile intervals all the way.

There are some American Bostons around here — no Flying Portresses though. The resiment of blue-eyed young pilots manning the outfit, who were lolling around singing or playing games when I saw them during a rare rest period, have accounted for 35 transports.

If Hitler could liquidate the Leningrad front, he would be in a position to seize and destroy the Soviet Baltic Fleet, giving him undisputed control of the Finnish Gulf and the Baltic area.

His failure to dent this important fleet, its air arm, its coastal artillery and its marines, cost him heavily. According to Admiral Valentin Tributs, commander of the Baltic Fleet, his naval artillery alone has silenced 2,000 German batteries, - sunk 200 enemy ships, including a cruiser, 17 destroyers, 30 submarines and 185 transports, since the attacks on Leningrad began in 1941.

Leningrad still has a strong industrial significance, too. Once, she produced 13 per cent. of the Soviet Union's total output. While much of its importance industry has been withdrawn, the city is a manufacturing centre helping put out the stuff that hurts the Germans.

Leningrad's strategical importance to the Germans includes, 1, its communications as the centre of a network of railroads and waterways; 2, Its historical and sentimental significance in Russian morale, making it second only to Moscow; and 3, Its position on the agenda of Nazi defeats.

SELECTIVE SERVICE MAY DIRECT MEN TO WOOD CUTTING

M. L. Perry, Manager of the Local Employment and Selective Service Office, states that the local office is having to give a good deal of attention these days to labour requirements for fuel wood cutting. This is one of the areas in which a substantial cut is looked for.

Through a recent amendment to National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, the Local Selective Service Officer now has authority to conditionally direct men to accept work at fuel wood cutting. This may be done after a man has been otherwise unemployed for seven days. Or a man in less important work may be directed to give his present employer seven days' notice, following which the Selective Service Officer may direct him to the cutting of fuel wood.

Of course the employment office is trying to find as many men as may be suitable for this work, among applicants, who are registering for jobs. Any man who is available to go to the cutting of fuel wood, Mr. Perry states, will be a very welcome visitor to the employment office these days.

The Manager stated that transportation to the employment will be looked after, and where it is necessary, a man may be accommodated with a very small loan to help him to pay for necessities until he receives his first pay check on the job. Head Office of Selective Service at Ottawa lims recently announced to the local offices the importance of fuel wood as one of the leading Canadian fuels, and of course it follows that the heavy cut expected must be made at this time of year.

Mr. Perry pointed out that this area, which consists of the Napanee district, is expected to produce 1,000 cords of fuel wood this year.

LEGEND OF THE "UNDEFEATED GERMAN ARMY"

BY JAMES F. KING

The German General Staff can be expected to use Generalissimo Hitler when Germany's complete collapse appears inevitable, a high source whose job inside Germany for years was to keep tabs on the Reich military predicted recently.

But getting rid of Hitler, this observer said, would be only the beginning in breaking Germany as a warfaring power.

The big job — and big danger, if it fails, he said — would be wiping out the legend of the "Undefeated German Army" — a legend that the military clique — the Junkers — and the German people. The theme was that the German army never surrendered in 1918—it was the German government which quit.

The army, the Junkers argued, was "stabbed in the back" by Communists and Social Democrats in and outside of the Government.

The Junkers won't give up easily, this source said, even though beaten in battle. They will try to find a way again to keep the door open for them to retire behind the smokescreen of gentlemen officers while they plot another war.

When the time comes, he added, the General Staff — even if not Hitler — will decide to call it quits. They may be already planning the idea of writing off this war, he thinks, even though there's long and bitter fighting ahead.

Two things, he said, would lead to the final decision — when the bombing reaches a point where the German people are beginning to develop a horror of war they'll never forget; when fighting on German soil becomes inevitable.

Then watch out for their campaign to maintain the myth of the "Undefeated German Army."

This observer said they probably would operate this way:

1. Eliminate Hitler — even at the risk of civil war with the fuehrer's own SS, troops and the Luftwaffe.

2. Begin a campaign to win sympathy, arguing they were forced into waging war.

Later if the chance came to sow the seeds for another war, they would revive the same old tune—invincibility of the German army.

In beating the drums, they would try to bury their second failure with a new cry—that they called a halt because of "inhuman warfare." They would play up the Allied bombings in an attempt to blind the shortsighted German people to the fact that the Luftwaffe invented wholesale bombing and "total warfare."

The German military clique has run the Reich since the Franco-German War of 1870. In the opinion of this observer. When Hitler first appeared in the German political picture, he said, they faced the decision of crushing him or using him. They chose to use him.

As long as Hitler's "intuition" worked or fell in line with their plans, he said, his direction of the war was not challenged.

But now it is approaching the time for the Junkers to think of saving themselves in the same way they did before—holding up the German army as invincible in the eyes of the German people while they threw others forward with a pose as gentlemen officers.

LONDONERS FEEL SURE THE END IS NEAR

BY HARRISON SALISBURY
British United Press Correspondent

Opinion rapidly is hardening among Allied observers — despite official caution against over-optimism—that 1943 soon will be out of the war except for a facade of fighting which must continue during dickering over peace terms.

The feeling also is growing that the end of hostilities may come as suddenly as did the fall of Benito Mussolini. The next eight or ten days probably will tell the story. The time may depend upon operations in Sicily, especially at Catania where the Germans are concentrated.

On the other hand, it is obvious that each day of delay lessens the value of any offer the King of Italy or Premier Pietro Badoglio can make to the Allies. The new Italian regime has two things it can offer: Time and economy of effort.

Quick Italian capitulation would offer the Allies certain advantages. It would enable them to reach the Po River weeks or even months earlier than if they had to fight their way north. The Po Valley is the industrial heart of Italy and has good air bases for bombing Germany.

It would save the Allies thousands of casualties and vast quantities of war materials. It would enable the Allies to set their time table ahead, possibly by two months, by releasing much shipping and many airplanes and troops for attacks elsewhere in Europe.

Additionally, if the Italian regime is stable, it would permit entry into Italy by the Allied forces entered North Africa and eliminate the need for Allied guards at every town and crossroad.

But each day of delay means that the Italians have less to offer. This is hardly likely to escape the King and Badoglio since Mr. Churchill made that point crystal clear. From the Italian standpoint it also is important to gain as much Allied good-will as possible by a quick, frank offer. If there is hard fighting or dickering ahead, this goodwill asset will dwindle rapidly.

There is no indication that anything less than unconditional surrender will be accepted but the circumstances of surrender and the Allied interpretation of that surrender will be important. It is becoming increasingly plain that unofficial feelers are going out in regard to a peace deal and some negotiations may be under way, possibly at Lisbon, at Istanbul or Vatican City.

It must not be forgotten that the Italians also must deal with the Germans, who naturally are hopeful of persuading them by every step ahead of increased military aid to continue to fight. But the Germans are believed unable at present to divert sufficient troops to Italy to fight the Allies and to terrorize the Italians.

One Italian armistice condition, however, doubtless will be that the Allies rush in sufficient troops at great speed to protect the Italians from their angered Axis partner.

How does our own daily life match up with the new order we are striving for?

WE DARE TO CHANCE

"Victory in the field is only the beginning for us. It is essential, yet it is nothing in itself." These are the words of Herbert Agar, Lieut-Commander in the United States Navy, taken from his latest publication, "A Time For Greatness." He goes on, "It (victory) can only be made to bear fruit if we can lift ourselves to the practice of the human decencies, those plainest truths of righteousness of action. It cannot be met on the production line of our great factories or by the inventive genius of our great engineers. It can only be met in the quality of our daily lives."

In this book of Lieut-Commander Agar's, who was a former editor of the Louisville Courier - Journal, is some timely thinking for all those concerned with winning the war and securing the peace. He is right when he points out that one of the causes of this war has been the "democracies' refusal to face facts and to make, for the sake of our personal and national life that the facts of those facts would have necessitated.

Paradoxically, change has been the one permanent thing in the progress of civilization. The nations that have succeeded have been the ones that have best adapted themselves to change. Yet looking back over the last two decades we seem to have spent a great deal of our time inventing ways of cushioning ourselves against the need of any further change. It took the threat of annihilation to make us up our minds we would change enough to avert the danger. And now that victory seems to be round the corner, what course will we take? Will it be the road back to the 'good old days' with all their head-burying-ostrich-tactics or the road to a new world, which will demand of us, both personally and nationally more change and more sacrifice than these war years?

The Canada of today was built by men who dared the changes that building a nation demanded. The world of tomorrow may well be determined by Canadians who dare the changes involved in building a new world.

MAJOR-GENERAL GUY G. SIMONDS

BY DOUG. HOW

The Canadians in Britain know Guy Granville Simonds as a man who put to use a general young and deserved their confidence.

He was recognized as one of the army's men of brains long before he became a major-general, commanding first one, then another infantry division within temporarily few days of each other.

As a sharp, quick thinker who gave short expression to the things he thought, they saw him coming.

He was a major-general at 39, the youngest in the army. The First Canadian Army, one of the three under Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar is the Infantry Corps. He went to North Africa as a brigadier from the Canadian Army, and the 8th Army under Rommel at the Mareth Line and take Sfax. He came back—beckoned unexpectedly from his observer's post at the battlefield—convinced that the minefield had put the infantry ahead of the tank in fighting impetus, and that was the secret of divisional commander.

Major-General Simonds is a tall, dark man with an imposing moustache. His accent indicates his English birth, but he was brought to Canada by reason of a fully capable map confident of his capabilities. His present wartime rise started from the rank of major.

Born at Ixworth Abbey, Bury St. Edmunds, England, in 1903, he came to Canada as a youngster. He was educated at Ashbury College, Ottawa, and at Royal Military College, where he graduated in 1925. He entered the permanent army as an artilleryman. Gen. Simonds returned to Britain twice before the war, first for a gunnery course in 1932, later for a period at the Staff College at Camberley. He was attached to Sandhurst, and Woolwich after the second course.

He sailed to Britain a third time as General Staff Officer Grade II with the 1st Division in 1939. His rise started the following July when he was promoted lieutenant-colonel in command of an artillery regiment.

In December, 1940, General Simonds was named Commandant of the first Canadian Junior War Staff Course to be held in England. Then he was G.S.O. of an infantry division, Brigadier of the General Staff, Canadian Corps, and held the same job when the Corps became the 1st Army early in 1943.

Each week over an infantry division from Maj.-General J. H. Roberts a few months later, but shifted to another position, and then to Corps, Gen. H. L. N. Salmon, in an airplane crash. Now he carries our standard in Sicily.

Gen. Simonds likes polo, hunting and fishing. His wife and family (seven, Ruth, 10, and Charles, 8, live in Winnipeg.

UNITED KINGDOM EDUCATION PLANS NOTED

London. (CP.) — A new charter for the education of Britain's children has been laid down in a White Paper that opens the field of secondary education to every student, and in the words of its author, provides "an equality of opportunity" long sought by British educationists.

The White Paper, issued today at Richard Austen Butler, 41-year-old president of the board of education, who will steer the proposals through parliament. He should meet no serious trouble obtaining the legislation, judging from the favorable reaction in the press and parliamentary lobbies.

Butler's White Paper is concerned with England and Wales only, but a similar list of proposals, it is learned, is being prepared by the Scottish Education Department.

These are the main proposals set down in the White Paper:

Italy was warned that invasion of the mainland was imminent. Aerial assaults on Italian cities were renewed after a lull of a few days.

30,542 people were reported to have been killed, wounded or missing, as a result of the Allied air attacks on the city of Hamburg.

LEAVING AGE RAISED

1 The school - leaving age is raised from 14 to 15 and provision is made for compulsory part - time education from school leaving to 18.

2 Technical education will be extended widely. this field to include technical and vocational training physical training and instruction in hea'th and hygiene.

3 Secondary schools will be divided into "grammar" "modern" and "technical" divisions, the first concentrating on subjects of a more academic nature; the second offering general education embracing both literary and practical subjects and the third catering to students with more practical bent.

4 Every student will be enabled to enter a secondary school since education at all such schools, which will be maintained by the government, will be free and "special" free examinations will be abolished in favor of tests to be conducted records and intelligence tests. Previously children could not enter secondary schools if they failed the examinations for scholarships from elementary school and could not pay the fees.

5 Every primary and secondary school will give religious instruction with parents having the right to withdraw their children from such instruction, if desired.

The White Paper envisages widely-extended facilities for the training and training of teachers, eliminates local control over schools and deals extensively with extension of school medical services and school meals.

SUBJECT TO INSPECTION

Independent school will remain but they will be subject to inspection to ensure the necessary standards. No attempt has been made to eliminate the present public school's but the White Paper, it seems the time when they will be associated with the national plan.

Legislation embodying the proposals will, it is estimated, ultimately involve an additional annual expenditure on education of $306,500,000, two-thirds of which will be borne by the Government and the remainder by an increase in the education tax rate.

Butler foreshadowed the introduction of the White Paper with Disraeli's quotation, "Upon the education of the people of this country the fate of this country depends." He added there words of his own:

"It is the Government's desire that the younger generation should avail themselves of the opportunities which are being won for them by the gallantry of our fighting forces."

Saturday's Market

The best showing of the season of farm produce, was seen on the Napanee Market last Saturday, when produce, fruit, flowers and poultry were plentiful and were selling at fairly high prices.

Eggs were higher than previously at 35c, 40c and 45c per dozen. Chicken was selling at 35c per lb. Green corn at 40c per doz. potatoes 50c pk. Huckleberries were $1.50 per 4ft. quart basket; raspberries 20c per box. Onions were 10c per bunch, beets two bunches for 15c, cucumbers 5c each and 3 for 25c; beans, 10c qt. Little pigs were plentiful at $11 and $12 per pair.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM PTE. SEXSMITH IN NORTH AFRICA

The following is a letter from Pte. Willie Sexsmith, to his parents. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Sexsmith, Empey Hill, sens from North Africa :

July 12th, 1943.
North Africa.

Dear Mother and Dad:—

Well, at last I am in a position to write you and now that I have some spare time, I'll try and do just that. As you can see by the address, we are at last settled in Northern Africa, even though to me it doesn't seem possible; only the heat tells me it is not Canada or England, more like Hades." We have been here only a short time, and are on a side hill of sand; the top of the hill is covered with trees. They are about 15 feet high and the bottom of the hill runs out to the blue Mediterranean Sea. There is not a breath of wind, unless it comes off the sea, and say, isn't hot and dry! It's only twenty minutes' walk to the sea—we were there yesterday p.m. and it was grand with the waves coming in, although when you get salt water in your mouth, it makes you very thirsty and the water is very scarce and has to be purified before it can be used.

The Arabs and French natives can't purify it, so they drink wine all the time, even at meal times.

It is hard to tell you how landing in this entirely strange country affects a person. The towns and cities are a mass of white buildings, with red roofs, and the hills behind are covered with yellow sand and dark green cork trees, and as I said, the lovely blue sea at the foot of all. What a mess the natives are, dressed in anything as a'll, and very dirty. It will be hard for you to believe, but a lot of the men wear loose white gowns, with any color of a turban or "rag" wound around the head. Most of the married women, when out on the street, have white veils from the eyes down below the chin. When a man and wife are walking down the street, or the road, the man walks about thirty feet ahead of the wife, or wife and family. They walk, riding the dilapidated bicycle, a cart and small grey horse or donkey. In other words "Its one of the gayest of goes."

The money is francs, 1,000, 500, 100, 50, 20, 10 and 5, paper notes, and the large denominations are about 12 by 6 inches, so you don't have to have much money to have a pocket-full.

We had a fine trip down. No trouble at a'l. When passing Spain, which is neutral, it was nice to see all the towns, etc., with the lights all shining. Well, here it is the Glorious 12th again, the fourth I have missed since joining up. I hope you don't have as hot a day as we are having here. It is 2.00 p.m. now and everything simmering with heat, and to make it all the worse, the tree toads and locusts are singing a regular chorus in the cork trees. There are no palm trees here, but in town, five miles away, the streets are lined with them — and look lovely.

I didn't see Art, Bobby, or Don before coming down, although I may have seen the two latter and not known it.

Well, folks, I must close for this time. I hope you are both well and not missing the work and heat too much, Dad. I don't think you'd like the heat down here, too much, Ha! Ha! I am fine, and no complaints at all, and hope to soon be starting up north, towards home.

Best regards to all. Until next time, with much love,

I am, as ever,
WILLIE.

McKNIGHT FAMILY HOLD REUNION AT OSBORNE

The annual McKnight family reunion was held on the cottage lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gray and family at Odessa. At supper time they enjoyed a most bountiful meal.

It was a very pleasant event, particular'y since Sergt. and Mrs. Dawson and Barbara of Edmonton, Alberta, were present, besides other members of the family and Mrs. Simon Perfound, of Oshawa.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT ODESSA FOR WALT. J. THURLOW

Saint Alban's Church, Odessa was filled on Sunday, for the memorial service for one of its most faithful members, W.O. Walter J. Thurlow, who was killed in a plane crash while serving his country in Labrador, on June 22nd. The burial took place at the cemetery at Odessa.

The Rev. L. G. C. Walker conducted the service and spoke of the deep regret of the members of St. Alban's worker. He was president of the A.Y.P.A. until enlisting. His very pleasant disposition made him well liked among everyone. He attended the Odessa Continuation School and took a great interest in all local activities. He was a prosperous farmer and a member of the local 'Boys' Club. Other members of the club with their agricultural representative attended the service in a body, to honour one who had done his part.

Walter was stationed at Lachine and attached to the Royal Air Force Ferry Command, and had made many successful trips overseas within the last year. On June 5th, he was united in marriage to Margaret Black, of Bath, and also leaves to mourn his loss his sister, parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thurlow, Odessa, five sisters and one brother.

Many attended the service from Morven, Bath, and Kingston.

Mrs. L. Edmonds and Family To Return From China

Mr. James A. Wilson, Napanee, has received word from his daughter, Mrs. Lorenzo Edmonds, that she and her son-in-law and daughter have started on their journey from China to return to Canada.

Mrs. Edmonds and her late husband, who died suddenly four years ago while returning to China, after a furlough in Canada, first went to China twenty years ago as teaching missionaries, sent by The United Church of Canada. After spending something over a year in Canada on their last furlough, Mr and Mrs. Edmonds sailed from Vancouver for China, four years ago, shortly before the war broke out, and Mr. Edmonds died on the boat as a result of a heart attack. He was buried at sea, and Mrs. Edmonds and her three children continued their voyage and have spent the years since in West China. They have undergone considerable hardship and have been in great danger because of the war between China and Japan.

Their trip home this time will be by plane, from China to India and by boat around the Cape of Good Hope to America. The date of their arrival in Canada has not been learned as yet.

May Be Some Time Before Extra Supply Coffee is Available

Ottawa, — Intimation that no immediate change will be made in coffee rationing in Canada does not mean that change will not be made before very long. In the United States people drink coffee and very little tea. In Canada the consumption of tea is heavier than across the line, consequently the per capita use of coffee is less.

If the United States, through which the coffee comes, can remove the restrictions on its use, there is no reason apparent why it should not be lifted here after awhile.

There never has been a shortage of coffee. The difficulty was due wholly to shipping and to submarine warfare. In the South American waters the U-boat has pretty well been cleared out, while shipping is being constructed at the rate of 19 million tons a year.

The information here is that the United States over-estimated the rationed consumption of coffee and accumulated quite a surplus which is a factor in removing the ban. In Canada the consumption has been closer to the scale rationing.

When the United States loosens up on sugar, the prospect of which President Roosevelt also referred to last night, it is anticipated that the Canadian supply will be increased. It is Washington's chief source for the transport of the sugar which comes to Canada.

No change in the butter situation is anticipated.

PLACE CEILING ON SPRING LAMB SALES

Largely because of the manner in which retail prices for spring lamb have been during recent weeks, the Prices Board has issued an order, which became effective July 27, placing ceiling prices on such lamb. This new arrangement will be in force until August 31. Normally, the end of the spring lamb season and the new prices are established according to meat zones. The wholesale prices established under the order mean a reduction for carcasses to about 30 cents per pound, which will mean a substantial drop in retail prices to the public. Prices are, however, still sufficiently high to permit the payment of prices to primary producers for live lambs that will be higher than producers were receiving a year ago.

EARLIEST CAMOUFLAGE USED BY VICTORIOUS ALEXANDER THE GREAT

Alexander purchased a quantity of red dye for his invasion of Persia in 330 B.C. The dye may have come from the madder plant, whose roots are still used for the red pigment. Or it may have come from kermes, an insect found on Asiatic oaks.

One night before a battle, Alexander had the clothing of a large number of his fighters spotted with the red dye. The idea seems to have been to mislead the Persians into thinking that Alexander's soldiers had been pretty well damaged in fighting the previous day, with little opportunity to have their hurts properly cared for. This was supposed to make the Persians careless in attack.

Alexander won the fight.

"But, my dear sir, I can't prescribe whiskey for you unless I am convinced from your symptoms that you need it."

"What symptoms would you suggest, doctor?"

"This is the radiator and here is the fan," explained the car salesman.
"That's fine," announced the lady. "I've always wanted an all-season car."

Professor: Didn't I get my last haircut in this shop?
Barber: I think not, sir. We've only been in business two years.

EXTENSIONS LIKELY FOR DRAFT AGE CANADIAN MEN

Ottawa, (CP.) — With the available draft men in age groups now eligible for compulsory service almost exhausted, early extension of the call-up to new groups is expected.

Officially there has been no formal indication that the mobilization regulations are to be extended but it is known that the men now subject to call can not be expected much longer to fill Army requisitions from the Defence Department.

Proclamations so far issued under the mobilization regulations apply to single men and childless widowers born in the years 1902 to 1923 and to married men, or widowers with children, born in the years 1917 to 1923.

Expectations are that there will be an extension at both ends — lowering of the eligible age from 19 to 18½ or possibly 18 and inclusion of married men in the 25 to 30 age group. It is not considered likely that the present limit of 40 years for single men will be changed.

POOL NEARLY EXHAUSTED!

During the last three-month period, it is understood, the Army asked for something over 40,000 men. Selective Service came within 900 of meeting the requisition, but since the pool is steadily being exhausted it will become increasingly difficult to attain such objectives unless new groups of men are made available.

Just how many men would be made available by these extensions is problematical, but it is certain that such action would accentuate Canada's constantly-tightening man-power situation.

The group of married men from 25 to 30 is likely to include a considerable number of key men in war and other essential industries. However, medical ratings generally in the age groups is extended upward.

Total requirements of the armed forces for the present fiscal year have been placed by the Defence Minister Hon J. L. Ralston at 175,000 but allowing for the return of some men from the fogges to civilian life the net drain is estimated at about 150,000.

TRANSFERS HELP SOME

Enlistment of women is also likely to reach a point where it will make noticeable inroads on civilian employment. The enlistment quota for women in the three forces stands at 65,000.

Some relief may come to essential industries hard pressed for labor from the four compulsory transfer orders issued by the Labor Department but informed officials say the number of workers that can be drawn from less-essential employment is limited.

They say that many of these essential industries have already been experiencing stiff rationing of materials and have as a result, pared staff. In addition, it is recognized that comparatively few of the large businesses of the type that pay high wages and there has already been a natural seepage of personnel to the higher-paying war industries.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q. I secured my No. 2 ration book in Toronto and am now living in Kingston. Do I have to send to Toronto for my No. 3 ration book? No. Fill in and stamp the card in your No. 2 book and take the book intact to a distributing station in Kingston when the No. 3 books are issued late this month. A recorder will issue you with a new book.

Q. I have been in the habit of giving my unused meat coupons to my butcher. Is that the right thing to do?

A. Of course not. You yourself should destroy them as soon as they have lost their validity.

Q. Someone told me that I could use all my canning sugar coupons now regardless of the month stamped on them. Is that right?

A. Yes. All canning sugar coupons are valid at any time until September 30th.

Q. There are a whole lot or things about the rentals regulations that I still do not understand. I want to obey the law but it is hard for me to know what I should do. Where can I get this information?

A. Call at or write to the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. There is a rentals representative on the staff of each of these offices.

Q. There seems to be an increasing shortage of canned goods in the Stores. What is the reason?

A. Wholesale stocks of canned fruits and vegetables have been frozen until further notice so that a sufficient supply may be available for the armed forces and the civilian population next winter, when fresh fruits and vegetables will not be plentiful. People are expected to make use of fresh supplies during the summer season.

Q. I went to a garage to have my car repaired and the proprietor not only asked to see my gasoline ration book but said I would have to wait until more essential vehicles received attention. May he be right in taking such action?

A. Yes, there is priority on motor car repairs, and no garage may start work on the repair of any motor vehicle until it has recorded the category and number of the gasoline ration book.

CHERRIES ARE RIPE

Cherries are ripe, and if canned now will bring a taste of summer into many winter meals. Either sulphur or canning in syrup in the usual way in syrup will give successful results, but perhaps you will want to do some with, and some without sugar this year. If so, plan to use the cherries you can in syrup and canned fruit and the sugarless ones for pies and puddings.

Here are some points taht will be of help when you are canning cherries:—

For sweet cherries, the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, recommends a syrup made in the proportion of one cup sugar to two cups water. This amount will be sufficient for three pints of cherries. For sour cherries a syrup in the proportion of one cup sugar to one and one-half cups water is advised.

If cherries are to be processed in the oven they should be precooked in the syrup for five minutes then packed hot in sterilized sealers. If processing is to be done in the boiling water bath, steam or pressure cooker, the cherries may be packed into the sterilized sealers and the boiling syrup added.

Processing times for cherries canned with sugar are:—

Boiling water bath—20 minutes.

Steam cooker — 30 minutes.

Pressure cooker — 10 minutes at five pounds pressure.

These times are given for pint sealers. Quarts require five minutes longer in boiling water bath and steam cooker. 10 minutes longer for oven processing.

If cherries are canned without sugar, crush part of the cherries in the bottom of the preserving kettle, add enough water to keep the fruit from burning, add the rest of the cherries. Heat slowly until juice is extracted. Pack hot into sterilized sealers. The fruit should be packed quite solidly and there should be enough juice to fill the sealers. Processing times are the same as those given for cherries canned in syrup.

SUGAR-STRETCHING DESSERTS

Hello Homemakers! You certainly need to keep the lid on the sugar bowl these days. With abandonment of Ontario fresh fruit ripening, there is the basic consideration of storing fruit for the winter months. This will take any sugar you may save along with the ten pounds allowed for canning. You have no idea of the number of calls we've been getting from mothers with babies at the age when fruit is required three times a day—they've really been "stuck" for fruit.

When fruit is in season, let's serve it often to jep up our meals. Here are ways to provide more energy food value and a box of fresh berries without using up too much sugar: serve different kinds of bread with Butter Spread; serve man-sized desserts, such as Berry Shortcakes, Berry Jelly Roll, Fruit Upside Cake, Boston Fruit Cream Pie, Graham Gems with fruit, etc.

Fruits are sweeter served with some of the berries mashed — and their juices are sweeter, too, if measured sugar is mixed in and let stand an hour or so before serving.

RECIPES

Raspberry Refrigerator Cake

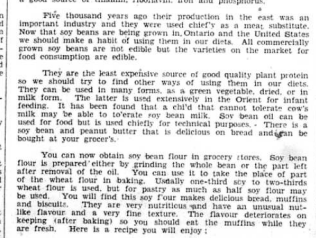
One and one-third cups (15-oz. can) sweetened, condensed milk, one-quarter cup lemon juice, one cup raspberries sliced, two egg whites beaten stiff, 24 vanilla wafers.

Blend sweetened, condensed milk and lemon juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Add sliced raspberries. Fold in beaten egg whites. Line narrow, oblong pan with waxed paper; cover with a layer of vanilla wafers. Add layer of raspberry mixture. Alternate in this way, finishing with layer of wafers. Chill in electric refrigerator for six hours. Turn out on small platter and remove waxed paper. Cut in slices, serve plain or with whipped cream. Serves eight.

Individual Cherry Pies

One cup flour, half-teaspoon of salt, four tablespoons fat, four tablespoons cold water (approximately), two and one-half cups pitted cherries, two-thirds cup of sugar or less, one tablespoon of flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Put flour and salt into a mixing bowl; cut in fat until pieces are about the size of peas. Add cold water gradually, using only enough to form dough into a ball. Chill. Mix cherries, sugar, flour and salt and place in four individual pie plates or casseroles.

Place dough on lightly - floured board; roll to one - eighth inch in thickness. Cut circles; make them one-half inch larger than tops of baking dishes. Fold one circle in halves; gash centre and arrange on top of a filled dish. Turn under edge, making a rim. Repeat process with remaining crusts and dishes. Bake at 425 deg. until crust is brown (from 30 to 35 minutes). Yield: four small pies.



Now that our meat is rationed we will have to learn the foods that can take its place. Soy beans are very high in protein, almost one-third is protein, and because it is a complete protein, soy beans can take the place of meat. Besides being an excellent source of protein they are high in fat, low in carbohydrate and are a good source of thiamin, riboflavin, iron and phosphorus.

Five thousand years ago their production in the east was an important industry and they were used chief'y as a meat substitute. Now that soy beans are being grown in Ontario and the United States they are being used in many ways, using them in our diets. They can be used in many forms, as a green vegetable, dried, or in milk form. The latter is used extensively in the Orient for infant feeding. It has been found that a chi'd that cannot tolerate cow's milk may be able to tolerate soy bean milk. Soy bean oil can be used for food but is used chiefly for technical purposes. Soy flour is a soy bean and peanut butter that is delicious on bread and can be bought at your store.

You can now obtain soy bean flour in grocery stores. Soy bean flour is prepared either by grinding the whole bean or the part left after removal of the oil. You can use it to take the place of part of the wheat flour in baking. Generally, one to two-thirds wheat flour is used, but for pastry as much as half soy flour may be used. You will find this soy flour excellent bread, muffins and biscuits. They are very nutritious and have an unusual nutlike flavour and a very fine texture. The flavour deteriorates on keeping (after baking) so you should use the muffins while they are fresh. Here is a recipe you will enjoy:

SOY BEAN MUFFINS

One cup of soy bean flour	One-quarter cup of sugar
One cup white flour	One cup of milk
Three and one-half teaspoons baking powder.	One egg
One-half teaspoon of salt	Two tablespoons of butter or shortening (melted)

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add milk and egg, then melted butter. Bake in greased muffin tins 25 minutes.

Fresh green soy beans of the edible variety may be used in the menu. They are cooked like fresh peas and beans, until they are tender, requiring a little longer cooking time.

The dried beans should be soaked overnight or for 24 hours when we use them as a meat substitute. Cook them as you would lima beans. They have a nut-like flavour. Try this recipe, I think you will find it delicious as well as nutritious.

SOY BEAN CASSEROLE

One cup soy beans	Two cups canned tomato soup
One onion	(diluted half - strength)
One green pepper	Two or three strips bacon

Soak soy beans 24 hours or over night. Simmer in salted water. Chop one onion and one green pepper finely. Place in layers in a casserole, the cooked beans, then the chopped onion and green pepper and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Continue adding the beans, onion and pepper in this manner until the dish is nearly full. Pour over this two cups of canned tomato soup slightly diluted, depending on the size of the casserole. If you can spare it, cut two or three strips of breakfast bacon into inch squares and lay on top. Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. This will serve five people.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:—

You wretch! Not a line from you in many moons ... well, days anyway! I expect you are in some rural paradise, a trout stream at your back door and a golf course two steps from the front. I remember your happy faculty of falling on your feet. As I recall it, you like living on a mountain-ledge communing with nature, but you take good care to see that the Country Club is around the next knoll. Remind me to send you a sturdy ass leave. I hear officers in the R. C. A. F. as in the Army, do not appreciate such things.

Returning to matters, C.W.A.C., it is hard to believe that the corps will soon be starting its third year of service. On the 20th of August, members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps will be celebrating the completion of two years of active service. Such an eventful two years! Back in August 1941 our khaki uniform had not yet made its first appearance on the streets and now from coast to coast the uniform is a familiar sight. Wherever the Canadian Army spreads its tents, there the C.W.A.C. can be found doing men's jobs that men may fight.

At first, as perhaps you know, the Canadian Women's Army Corps did not come under the Army Act and as an auxiliary was governed by regulations laid down for it. This resulted in some confusion and a rash of weird new titles to indicate the ranks of its officers—second subalterns, subalterns, junior commanders, etc. with maple leaves in place of pips. All these differences were eliminated when the C.W.A.C. were incorporated with the Canadian Army on the thirteenth of March, 1942. From that day onward the Canadian Women's Army Corps fitted into the army picture like the missing piece of a jig-saw puzzle and pitched into the work that was crying out to be done.

The air is humming with furlough plans and every lassie in the C.W.A.C. has her eye on some particular forest where she plans to get away from it all. Personally I am easy to please every time I hear the tread of a heavy official foot in the office in the days when I have designs on a furlough. I have lived and breathed and had my being with an iron in my hand. Incidentally, I can now press to the king's taste. As a matter of fact, I brought the knowledge with me from my zeal, a few days ago. The plug of my iron seemed a little loose and for wear so I "repaired" it, then I plugged it in and the fuses blew out. So there I was with fifteen or more C.W.A.C. reveling my name, as they were all planning on furloughs and their uniforms before going out for the evening. Following that little episode, some pressure was brought to bear and I have agreed not to indulge my electric bent any more. However, if you ever have any little chores that require a "touch" man, I want you to feel free to call upon me. Oh, that's all right, think nothing of it. I would do the same for you.

I had been hearing some news of the C.W.A.C. on duty in the U.S.A. from Corporal Jerry Hanson of Kingston who has returned from Detroit, Mich., where she was posted to a detachment of No. 36 Company C.W.A.C. At the present time, No. 1 Company C.W.A.C., which has its headquarters at Washington, D.C., is the only company of C.W.A.C. detailed to duty in the United States. The girls are employed by the Canadian Army Staff, the British Army Staff and the British Purchasing Commission, at Washington. C.W.A.C. live in barracks and in Detroit they are living on subsistance. Corpl. Hanson tells me the girls love duty in "doing "abroad" and that they find Washington is particularly a fascinating city. Diplomats of international renown are a common sight to these girls and they rub elbows with foreign envoys as well as with celebrities all in the day's work. Though they feel the excessive heat of Washington in summer, they are very content with their lot and would not change places with C.W.A.C. anywhere.

Once again I am running out of chit-chat, so in case I prove wearisome, I will say "adios", which I am given to understand is good Spanish for "Good-bye."

As ever,

NICKEY.

Dear Babs:—

Once again lend me your ears while I sing you a saga of the C. W. A. C. Yo ho ho and a bottle of pop! C. W. A. C. are addicted to soft drinks and this hot weather has resulted in an unprecedented run to the canteen. Pte. Joyce Stark of Peterborough, who is the canteen steward at Alwynton Barracks, complains feelingly that business is too good. It seems that as soon as her stock arrives, the line forms and all too soon the shelves are bare again.

A heartbreaking sight to a canteen steward who has her heart in her work! While Army canteens are not to be starting its third year of service. On the 20th of August, members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps will be celebrating the completion of two years of active service. Such an eventful two years! Back in August 1941 our khaki uniform had not yet made its first appearance on the streets and now from coast to coast the uniform is a familiar sight. I had been hearing some news of the C.W.A.C. on duty in the U.S.A. from Corporal Jerry Hanson of Kingston who has returned from Detroit, Mich., where she was posted to a detachment of No. 36 Company C.W.A.C. At the present time, No. 1 Company C.W.A.C., which has its headquarters at Washington, D.C., is the only company of C.W.A.C. detailed to duty in the United States. The girls are employed by the Canadian Army Staff, the British Army Staff and the British Purchasing Commission, at Washington. C.W.A.C. live in barracks and in Detroit they are living on subsistance. Corpl. Hanson tells me the girls love duty in "doing "abroad" and that they find Washington is particularly a fascinating city. Diplomats of international renown are a common sight to these girls and they rub elbows with foreign envoys as well as with celebrities all in the day's work. Though they feel the excessive heat of Washington in summer, they are very content with their lot and would not change places with C.W.A.C. anywhere.

Once again I am running out of chit-chat, so in case I prove wearisome, I will say "adios", which I am given to understand is good Spanish for "Good-bye."

As ever,

NICKEY.

Valuable Aid From Dr. Banting's Research On Drownings

Toronto, Ont. — Drowning fatalities reported in the press from all parts of Canada this summer tend to show that insufficient attention has been given some of the work of Dr. Sir Frederick Banting and associates at the University of Toronto. Dr. Norman Bates, general director of the Health League of Canada, said, recently.

The best memorial to the genius and labors of Sir Frederick Banting lies in proper appreciation by the people in whose service he gave his life," he declared.

The Health League director referred specifically to the investigation of resuscitation methods for Sir Frederick and other scientists who are now on a special League committee in connection with the work.

A special said recently that statements are made in correspondence which are the result of misinformation. Such as "We expect to receive your remittance in the near future" and "We have your payment by return."

WESTERN FEED GRAIN

DOMINION and Provincial Government subsidies and payment of freight charges on Western feed grains should make winter feeding more profitable this year, and will help you to maintain production to meet the British quota.

If you have decided to carry over additional cattle, hogs, sheep or other livestock, now is the time to provide for winter feeding requirements. Transportation may be difficult next winter.

See your feed and grain dealer now. If you need money call and discuss your plans. We shall be glad to consider a loan and help you to arrange the details.

NAMES OF MEN ENLISTED FOR ACTIVE SERVICE FROM NAPANEE AND THE SURROUNDING DISTRICT

It is the wish of "The Beaver" to secure and print a list of men in the Town of Napanee and the County who enlist in the army, raised in Canada. Friends of men who have already enlisted assist in compiling this list by sending to "The Beaver" names and addresses to which they are attached.

SWITZERLAND OBSERVES 652ND BIRTHDAY

BY MARIE WIDMER

On Aaurust 1st, Switzerland observed her 652nd birthday. This in itself is a remarkable record, but a miracle indeed is the fact that in spite of being surrounded by the world's greatest chaos of war, the Swiss people have so far been spared from its horrors. For this protection they are deeply grateful to God, also to their well trained Army which is keeping constant watch at the frontiers. Their beautiful country is an island of peace which has become famous for its deeds of charity on behalf of suffering mankind. Yet, Switzerland is landlocked severely taxed and obliged to attain by means of a huge agricultural expansion program a hitherto unknown degree of self-sufficiency.

In this era of world strife the case of Switzerland deserves close consideration, for by its very existence it proves that a mutual understanding among nations is no idle talk. Here peoples of four different tongues, i.e. German, French, Italian and Romansch live harmoniously side by side. Culturally these language groups have carefully preserved their own characteristics, but in matters common to all there is the closest co-operation.

The beginning of the Swiss Democracy dates back to August 1st, 1291, when the three small mountain states of Uri, Schwyz and Unterwalden entered into a Perpetual Pact, to safeguard their system of local self-government, in opposition to the officials set up by the Hapsburgs. This ardent desire for liberty and independence was in the 14th century responsible for the brilliant victories of the Swiss Confederation

CORP. FRED PUNCHARD FIRST COUNTY CASUALTY IN SICILIAN BATTLE

Member of H. & P.E. Regt.—Overseas Nearly Four Years

Word of the first casualty among Hastings and Addington members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now on active service in the Sicilian campaign, was received last week, when Mrs. Alice Punchard, Napanee, was advised that her son, Cpl. Fred E. Punchard, had been killed in Sicily on Monday, July 19. A telegram was sent to Mrs. Punchard from Ottawa on Thursday night announcing the death of her son.

Corporal Punchard, who was 25 years of age on June 22nd, enlisted September 23, 1939 in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and went overseas on December 19, 1939. SALVATION ARMY PRINCIPAL VISITS NAPANEE

Friday of this week, August 13th, will see the commencement of week-end campaign meetings to be conducted by Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Robert A. Hoggard. The Colonel is the Principal of the Salvation Army training College for officers, in Toronto, which supplies officers for all parts of the world.

Having only recently arrived in Canada from the British Isles the Colonel has many stories and interesting experiences to relate. He has served in the Far East and particularly Korea and knows something of conditions which prevail there in these days.

It is expected that representatives of different congregations in Napanee will want to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Hoggard and a good Napanee welcome will be given them when they conduct their first meeting in the local Salvation Army hall at 8.00 p.m. on Friday.

ANOTHER CASE OF BICYCLE THEFT

A boy of eleven years of age appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Napanee Police Court last Thursday on a charge of theft of a bicycle, the property of Glenn Wagar and was given a suspended sentence, for three years and will be required to report weekly to W. F. Barrett, superintendent of Children's Aid Society.

Police Officer Moore, in statement to the court said that the boy had been giving him a good deal of trouble and had also been the source of much worry to his parents, because of his forward actions. The Chief said also that thefts of bicycles was becoming very common in Napanee and that more action would have to be taken against culprits in the future.

The young lad in this case started ride the bicycle in question and claimed that one wheel developed a flat tire near Shannonville, where he ditched it. The bicycle was later found by a young fellow and kept in his place until it was collected by the police and returned to the owner.

FOUR ARRESTED ON THEFT CHARGE AT CONWAY STORE

A quartette of young people from Seeley's Bay, Ont., and Mrs. Raymond Rowsom and Ernest and Raymond Seerson, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd last Thursday and were remanded one week for hearing on the charge of theft of approximately $40.00 from the store of Archie Wright, Conway.

The four people were alleged to have gone to the store of Mr. Wright and while he was in the back of the store getting an article asked for, it is alleged that some of the party pilfered the till.

When Mr. Wright discovered his loss he informed the police and, after a chase the quartette was apprehended and arrested.

No evidence was taken in the case on Thursday as the police had not completed their investigation.

Camp Borden Soldiers Back Red Cross Blood Bank

Camp Borden, (Special to The Globe and Mail) — Nine hours of held were required him as Lieut.-Odd John Begg climbed wearily aboard a hospital ship en route to England from Dieppe.

He was later to be invested with the D.S.O. for his heroism at Dieppe when he took over command of the Calgary Regiment on the beach after the commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. John Andrews had been killed. But right now he was tired and worn and battle-weary.

But he wanted to check casualties and he climbed on the hospital ship.

"It was then" he relates now, "that I saw the blood bank in action and since that moment it has been my favorite subject.

Remarkable Change

"The change in the wounded from the time I had last seen them was remarkable. I was assured by the M. O. that without the plasma many of them would have died. A colonel had been dangerously wounded in the head, had received eight pints of plasma transfusion. A few minutes later time he was smoking, drinking tea and talking rationally.

"Since the loss in battle between the giving and receiving is in ratio of five to one, this officer required the donations of 40 persons."

So Col. Begg has had considerable to do with the development of Camp Borden's Red Cross blood bank, where soldiers are donating 25 to 30 gallons every week. During July more than 1,700 donated. In fact, the colonel has done so well that his training regiment has attained the highest blood donors' percentage in Borden Command.

NEW GOV'T ORDER TO BE ISSUED ABOUT USE OF COAL

To Restrict Temperature in Public and Industrial Buildings

Munitions Minister Howe in a radio address on Monday evening announced that it will be an offense to waste coal or heat in Canada during this coming winter. An order-in-council fixing maximum temperatures for industrial plants and commercial and other buildings will be passed. Householders will also be subject to the same regulations.

Less heat will be permitted in theatres, auditoriums and other public buildings where people gather for short periods and where warm clothing can be worn. When such buildings are put in use the temperature will be reduced drastically.

Temperatures in schools will be lowered as soon as the pupils have been dismissed each day. The same will apply to office buildings after working hours.

Through these measures it is expected at least 100,000 tons of coal may be saved during the winter.

To further curtail the use of coal, householders are being urged to improve insulation, check stoves and furnaces thoroughly and use better-fitting windows and doors and storm sash.

Industrial plants will be asked to appoint special coal wardens, whose duty will be to see that every possible conservation measure is taken.

Magistrate's Court

Frederick Brooks, Napanee, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd on Thursday and pleaded guilty to assaulting Mrs. Thelma Bennett. Brooks, according to a statement by Chief of Police Moore, was apparently in the habit of mistreating Mrs. Bennett when he was under the influence of liquor. Frequent complaints were made by Mrs. Bennett to the Crown Attorney and in order to put a stop to Brooks' actions, a charge was laid against him. Brooks was ordered to pay the costs in the case amounting to $21.50 and also to sign a recognizance to keep the peace toward Mrs. Bennett for two years.

Elmer Smith pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place and to having been in a place other than his residence. He was fined $10 on each charge and ordered to pay costs amounting to $8.50.

Gerard Devlin, Peterborough, for careless driving paid $5.00 fine and costs.

On Monday, Mrs. Stella Pybus appeared before Magistrate Garvin and pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place. She was remanded until called upon by the Magistrate and was ordered to pay costs of $3.00.

Chief of Police Moore stated that he had been called to an apartment over the former Frank H. Perry Grocery Store, where he found a fight had been in progress as the result of which one man was taken to the hospital for treatment. Mrs. Pybus was intoxicated and was warned not to appear on the street. In spite of the warning she went down the stairs to the street, where she created a disturbance and put up a strenuous fight against the efforts of the police to restrain her. As a result a charge was laid against her to which she pleaded guilty when she appeared in court.

Thos. Baker, Napanee, was charged by his wife with failing to support his two children and after listening to the evidence of Baker and his wife the Magistrate reserved judgment until September 13th and asked Mr. and Mrs. Baker to keep track of their expenditures for the month and present a statement to the court when they appear again on September 13. Both Mr. and Mrs. Baker are employed and Mrs Baker claimed most of her money had to be used to buy necessary clothing for herself and the children and that her husband did not contribute sufficient to keep the family in food. Baker's evidence showed that practically all his earnings were used for household purposes. He claimed also that of the difficulty arose from interference from Mrs. Baker's mother, who resides with them.

On Monday Stanley Fox paid $10 and costs for being intoxicated in a public place.

For driving without proper lights, Frank Booth, Marlbank, was assessed $3.00 and costs.

For parking a car less than 20 feet from an intersection, Clarence Valentine, R.R. 1, Selby, paid $5 and costs.

CERTIFICATES ORDER ISSUED

BUYING FOR NATIONAL CHURCHES BANNED

Ottawa. — The United Church of Canada has raised $800,000 for its debt fund through assistance taking out war savings certificates in the name of the church. Other churches have also raised some money in this manner, but the National War Finance Committee has issued a special warning to banks and Post Offices that this method of raising funds is no longer permissible and certificates are not to be issued in the name of a national body.

Individual local churches may still buy war savings certificates on their own behalf but only within the limit applicable to ordinary individuals, $600 in any one year.

The buying of war savings certificates was encouraged in 1942 but the campaign ended several months ago. Churches were in some communities have, however, continued the purchase of the certificates as a donation to their church. A further warning has now been sent out through the Post Offices to postmasters not to issue such certificates in future.

SOFTBALL SEMI - FINALS UNDER WAY

On Friday last, the semi-finals of the Bayshore Fastball League got under way at Deseronto, when the Gibbard team met the Redi-Heats of Deseronto.

A large crowd of fans from Napanee were at the game which proved to be one of the most interesting to watch that has been played this season. Both teams played "heads-up" ball throughout and only a couple of errors were chalked up for both aggregations.

The Redi-Heats trailed the visitors, who pushed two runs across during the first two innings, until they turned at bat in the third when they managed a single counter. In the fourth there was no score and in the fifth they eased two across the plate on an error by Gibbards in the outfield. The balance of the game was scoreless, although runners were left on bases in nearly every frame.

The batteries were:—

Deseronto—Maracle and Brant.

Gibbards—Rombough and Miller.

Umpires—Richardson and Bowman.

OAK LAKE SUMMER SCHOOL

The annual Bay of Quinte Young People Summer School which is held at Oak Lake near Stirling opened on July 26th with a record attendance of 74 students and ten staff members. This year the camp came under the able leadership of the Director Rev. C. D. McLellan, of Grace United Church, Napanee, granted to the students a total of ninety Leadership Training certificates in Young People's specialization work. Instruction in these courses was given by the following assistants: Rev. S. Littlewood, Rev. D. H. Woodhouse, Rev. M. C. Fisher, Rev. C. D. McLellan, Rev. R. H. Wylie and Rev. F. P. Vandervoort.

Morning watch services each day were held in the outdoor chapel which faces toward the east. These were conducted by Rev. S. Littlewood whose talks were based on the theme "The Holy Spirit." Following the worship period morning studies began at 9.30 a.m. A highly interesting feature of the morning were the morning talks by Mr. Sargat Singh, M.A. of India who spoke of the development of Christian Missions, and in one lecture dealt specifically with his own country. The morning was for complete until the noon intermission period had been conducted by Rev. D. H. Woodhouse in his inimitable style. Meals planned and prepared by Mrs. Currie were the envy of the campers in this capacity for many years were as good as in past years in spite of the many rules of rationing. Afternoons were spent in club, sports and swimming, and in the evenings, Vesper services were arranged by Miss Netta Brownlee. These were held on a hilltop facing the west. A camp fire each night was a very impressive close to the day's activities.

Special features varied this program throughout the week. On Sunday, Communion service was conducted in the outdoor chapel by Rev. M. C. Fisher, and in the afternoon Dr. A. J. Wilson presented a challenge to the young people which is offered by two Kiwanis clubs in communities. One is the rural community where there is no church, and the other where there is church work community. On Sunday evening at the camp fire a talk was given by Rev. David Gray of Stirling. Another feature of the Sunday afternoon programme was a talk on stamps given by Rev. D. H. Woodhouse who had many interesting stamps in his very valuable collection of stamps.

Campers were divided into four groups when they arrived and these groups developed a yell, a song, and yells and a real group spirit. On Thursday, Aug. 5th, each group made a contribution to the fun and put on a group stunt. After each meal there was a sing song led by different campers, and two editions of the camp paper "Oak Leaves" were read by the editor, Miss Mary Roberts.

Two special services were held on Wednesday and Friday evenings. The former was a special Call to Christ Vesper Service, and the latter a Galilean Service of dedication conducted by Rev. D. H. Woodhouse.

Officers Elected

At the Camp Council the following officers were nominated for the coming year. This list was ratified by the assembled school.

Camp Borden Soldiers Back Red Cross Blood Bank

Camp Borden, (Special to The Globe and Mail) — Nine hours of hell were behind him as Lieut.-Col. John Begg climbed wearily aboard a hospital ship en route to England from Dieppe.

He was later to be invested with the D.S.O. for his heroism at Dieppe when he took over command of the Calgary Regiment on the beach after the commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. John Andrews, had been killed, but right now he was tired and worn and battle-weary.

But he wanted to check casualties and he climbed on the hospital ship.

"It was then," he relates now, "that I saw the blood bank in action and since that moment it has been my favorite subject.

"Blood, upcharge."

"The change in the wounded from the time I had last seen them was remarkable. I was speaking to Sir M. O. that without the plasma many of them would have died. A number had been dangerously wounded in the head, had received eight pints of plasma solution. In an incredibly short time he was smoking, drinking tea and talking rationally.

"Since the loss in volume between the giving and receiving is in ratio of five to one, this officer required the donations of 40 persons.

So Col. Begg had considerable to do with the development of Camp Borden's Red Cross blood bank where soldiers are donating 25 to 30 gallons every week. During July more than 1,100 donated. In fact, the colonel has done so well that his training regiment has attained the highest blood donors' percentage in Borden Command.

Magistrate's Court

Frederick Brooks, Napanee, appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd on Thursday and pleaded guilty to assaulting Mrs. Thelma Bennett. Brooks, according to a statement by Chief of Police Moore, was apparently in the habit of mistreating Mrs. Bennett when he was under the influence of liquor. Frequent complaints were made by Mrs. Bennett to the Crown Attorney and in order to put a stop to Brooks' actions, a charge was laid against him. Brooks was ordered to pay the costs in the case amounting to $21.50 and also to sign a recognizance to keep the peace toward Mrs. Bennett for two years.

Elmer Smith pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place and to having liquor in a place other than his residence. He was fined $10 on each charge and ordered to pay costs amounting to $8.50.

Gerard Devlin, Peterborough, for careless driving paid $5.00 fine and costs.

On Monday, Mrs. Stella Pybus appeared before Magistrate Garvin and pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place. She was remanded until called upon by the Magistrate and was ordered to pay costs of $2.00.

Chief of Police Moore stated that he had been called to an apartment over the former Frank H. Perry Grocery Store, where he found a fight had been in progress as the result of which one man was taken to the hospital for treatment. Mrs. Pybus was intoxicated and was warned not to appear on the street. In spite of the warning she went down the stairs to the street, where she created a disturbance and put up a strenuous fight against the efforts of the police to restrain her. As a result a charge was laid against her to which she pleaded guilty when she appeared in court.

Thos. Baker, Napanee, was charged by his wife with failing to support his two children and after listening to the evidence of Baker and his wife the Magistrate reserved judgment until September 13th and asked Mr. and Mrs. Baker to keep track of their expenditures for the month and present a statement to the court when they appear again on September 13. Both Mr. and Mrs. Baker are employed and Mrs. Baker claimed most of her money had to be used to buy groceries, clothing for herself and the children and that her husband did not contribute sufficient to keep the family in food. Baker's evidence showed that practically all his earnings were used for household expenses. He claimed that most of the difficulty arose from interference by Mrs. Baker's mother, who resides with them.

On Monday Stanley Fox paid $10 and costs for being intoxicated in a public place.

For driving without proper lights, Frank Boots, Marlbank, was assessed $3.00 and costs.

For parking a car less than 20 feet from an intersection, Gerald Asselstine, R.R. 1, Selby, paid $5 and costs.

Pay $5 Each For Ignoring Stop Signs

For failing to come to a stop at stop-streets in Napanee, the following paid fines of $2.00 and costs of $3.00 each. P. U. Laidley, Enri Penny, Harold Cronk, Walter Bowen, Edward Gordon, Sarah Marlin and Lloyd Pindlay.

CERTIFICATES ORDER ISSUED

BUYING FOR NATIONAL CHURCHES BANNED

Ottawa — The United Church of Canada has raised $800,000 for its debt fund through adherents taking out war savings certificates in the name of the church. Other churches have also raised some funds in this manner, but the National War Finance Committee has issued a special warning to banks and Post Offices that this method of raising funds is no longer permissible and certificates cannot be issued in the name of a national church.

Individual local churches may still buy war savings certificates on their own behalf but only within the limit applicable to ordinary individuals, $600 in any one year.

The buying of war savings certificates was encouraged in 1942 but the campaign ended several months ago. Church-goers in some communities have, however, continued the purchase of certificates as a donation to their church. A further warning has now been sent out through the Post Office to postmasters not to issue such certificates in future.

SOFTBALL SEMI - FINALS UNDER WAY

On Friday last, the semi-finals of the Bayshore Fastball League got under way at Deseronto when the Gibbard team met the Redi-Heats of Deseronto.

WAIT AND SEE!

In a letter received by a soldier's wife from her husband in England, written on July 25th, he states he was at a show on July 24th and a crystal gazer was telling fortunes. He told a C.S.M. Sicily would be ours inside of 14 days (August 7th), Germany would quit between November 21st and December 21st of this year, and Japan by eight months later (which should be August 21st, 1944.

Father: Hullo! Where's Alfred gone to?

Mother: If the ice is as thick as he thinks it is, he's gone skating; but if it is as thin as I think it is, he's gone bathing.

DESERONTO BEATS OAK LAKE SUMMER SCHOOL

The annual Bat of Quinte Young People Summer School which is held at Oak Lake near Stirling opened on July 24th with a record attendance of 74 students and ten staff members. The camp is held under the auspices of the Deseronto Presbytery. D. D. McLellan of Queen's University, Kingston, acted as dean with Rev. Mr. Lightwood, Rev. C. D. McLellan, Rev. R. H. White and Rev. F. P. Vanderburgh.

Morning worship services each day were held in the outdoor chapel which faces toward the east. These were conducted by Rev. S. Lightwood whose talks were based on the theme, "The Holy Spirit." Following the worship period morning studies began at 9:30 a.m. A highly interesting feature of the camp were the morning talks by Mr. Russell Smith, M.A., of India who spoke of the development of Christian Missions, and in one session dealt specifically with his own country. Mr. Smith is now complete until the planned review period had been conducted by Rev. D. H. Woodstone in his unique and able style. Mealtimes planned and prepared by Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Bell served the campers in this capacity for several years were as good as ever and came in spite of the difficulties of rationing. After meals were spent in study, sport and community singing in the evenings. Vesper services were arranged for by Rev. Netta Brownlee. These were held on a hilltop facing the west. A camp fire each night was a very impressive close to the day's activities.

Special activities varied this program throughout the week on Monday afternoon a treasure hunt was staged in the outdoor chapel in which Mr. and Mrs. C. Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wilson participated a challenge to the young people which is continued by the challenge to the local communities. One is the rural competition between Centre and Mount Ida and the other the newly founded war work committee of Deseronto. Interesting events at the camp fire on a talk was given by Rev. David Gray of Stirling whether Lake Ontario or Lake Superior was the finest. Another night a camp song leader was given by Rev. D. H. Woodstone who had brought to the camp his very valuable collection of stamps.

Campers were divided into four groups, each group choosing a name, three groups developed their own songs and yells and a fourth group, the Thursday group, didn't. Each group made a contribution to the fun and put on a group skit. After each meal there was a sing song led by different campers and the editors of the camp paper "Oak Leaves" were read by the editor, Miss Mary Rogers.

Two special services were held on Wednesday and Friday evenings. The former was a special form of the Vesper Service and the latter a Baptism Service of dedication conducted by Rev. D. H. Woodhouse.

At the Camp Council the following officers were nominated for the coming year and were ratified by the assembled school.

Director—Rev. F. P. Vanderburgh
Dean of Studies—Rev. S. Lightwood
Recreational Leader — Rev. D. H. Woodhouse

TWO MEN INJURED IN TRUCK SMASH EAST OF NAPANEE

On Monday, a truck owned by George Ellis, Cartage Co., Limited, Hamilton, driven by Harold Ferrell of Hamilton, got out of control at a sharp curve on No. 2 Highway about six miles east of Napanee and went into the south ditch after breaking off a Hydro pole. The driver and a passenger, Derry Willis, of Toronto, both sustained cuts which were given treatment by Dr. Munro of Odessa. Both men were later removed to Kingston General Hospital for treatment.

The truck was travelling west and the driver stated that something went wrong with the steering gear causing the truck to leave the road. Considerable damage was done to the truck.

"Johnny, there were three slices of cake in the cupboard and now there are only two. How did that happen?"

"Well, mummy, I went in the backout and — er — I didn't see the others."

Auntie: Do you ever play with bad little boys, Willie?

Willie: Yes, Auntie.

Auntie: Why don't you play with good little boys?

Willie, Their mothers won't let me.

GETTING READY

Dorothy Thompson, the brilliant newspaper columnist, who has so often been right in her diagnosis of the international situation, has been warning the nations to be ready to take advantage of the desire for peace in the enemy countries as soon as it manifests itself. She points out that while we are doing well on the military front we are not doing so well on the political, and unless we are ready at the psychological moment, we may miss the bus again.

Miss Thompson contends that the politicians have bungled the situation in Italy, created by the downfall of Mussolini. It was an excellent opportunity, she insists, for the United Nations to capitalize on the unrest there. Instead of letting the Italian people "stew in their own juice" we should have, at once, used the popular uprising in that unhappy country as a means of throwing Fascism out completely. Instead, we left the Italian people alone and the revolution which might have taken place and established a new popular form of government, has been lost. Miss Thompson warns the United Nations against further unpreparedness.

This is a timely warning which our past history underlines. We were not ready to make peace when the First World War ended. We were not ready to engage the enemy when war broke out, this time. We must not let history repeat itself to the point of nullifying all our efforts during these awful years.

There is one consideration that gives hope. In this war to a much greater extent than in the last, men and women are thinking of the future, and planning for it. Governments, churches, business organizations, service clubs and a dozen other groups have commissions at work studying the situation, making plans, and drawing up resolutions. This is all to the good in creating an intelligent opinion. But, unless the opinion is crystalized into a definite government programme the end of the war may once again find us unprepared. If the United Nations have to spend months or longer, after peace is declared, deciding just what to do, the situation will be chaotic in the extreme. The United Nations, this time, should be prepared.

BOO ! ! !

Some newspapers, like some people, cannot get along without a bogey. Like a neurotic woman who enjoys being ill, they get a great satisfaction out of their own fears and the way they are able to scare other people. Take your favourite morning newspaper for example. A few years, about once a week regularly, it used to creep up behind Old Man Ontario, put its hands over the Old Man's eyes and then quick-like, shout "boo!" Old Man Ontario would open his eyes and see before him a Russian bogey; some new Bolshevik had been uncovered—perhaps a politician, a preacher, an alderman, or a business man. Old Man Ontario always had goose pimples after a scare like that and cold shivers up and down his spine.

But since our Russian friends have been doing not half-bad at saving Democracy, the Russian bogey has been pushed under the bed, away off in the far corner, next the wall. Your favourite morning paper has quite an assortment of bogeys, however, and anyway, Old Man Ontario should not be deprived of his weekly shiver. During the late lamented election campaign, "National Socialism" was tried out. The C. C. F. was branded "National Socialist" just like Germany. But Old Man Ontario didn't shiver at that one. He knew there were not many people in Canada who would like to set up a Nazi regime here, at least not many of the rank and file voters. So Old Man Ontario didn't shiver a bit, and there were no duck bumps on his body. So that bogey is carefully wrapped up and pushed under the bed, away over beside the "red menace".

But there are quite a few bogeys left, and remembering how the C. I. O. bogey worked when Mr. Hepburn used it with such effect, a little search among the bogey collection located it. And now, very quietly, your favourite morning paper sneaks up behind Old Man Ontario, puts its hands over his eyes and shouts "C. I. O." The people did not vote C. C. F., they voted Labor, and Labor is C. I. O. But Old Man Ontario wasn't afraid of that one either. He just opened his eyes and smiled. The trouble with Old Man Ontario is that he isn't old any more. He has renewed his youth. His nerves are a lot better than they used to be. He just doesn't jump and get cold shivers every time somebody shouts "Boo!"

ENEMY FEELS THE STRAIN

The enemy is showing signs that the strain of war is being felt, and little wonder. The bombing of Hamburg has shaken the morale of the German people. This great, beautiful city is no longer capable of an extensive war effort. It is all but levelled to the ground. The population has scattered, and as they go they tell the story of terrifying days and nights, of death and destruction. Not necessary to say much, the fear in their eyes is sufficient to unnerve those whom they meet, and to whom they tell their story. It is having its effect. Thousands of the citizens of Berlin are leaving the city, fearing that the fate which befell Hamburg awaits them.

Then there is the changed situation in Italy. The Germans had banked on Mussolini. Their propaganda machine had dinned into their ears the story of Mussolini's greatness and his power over the Italians. So that the rank and file of the German people were totally unprepared psychologically for his fall; they do not know just what to make of it.

On the top of all this the altered military situation. The United Nations are nearing the end of the Sicilian campaign. The Germans holding the last corner are being subjected to the most terrific pressure. The end cannot be long delayed.

On the Russian Front, our gallant Allies are showing that what they do in the winter they can duplicate in the summer. Up until the present the Germans always had the weather for an alibi. The Russians, so they told their own people, were not like other people, they were of a lower order who were impervious to cold and frost. Consequently the Red Armies were able to do things in the winter no other army could do. But now that the armies of the U. S. S. R. are forcing the Nazi troops to retire rather hurriedly and to evacuate key towns and cities, that alibi no longer holds.

Then, too, the submarine is gradually being overcome. It was on the submarine that Hitler pinned his faith on his ability to isolate Great Britain, and starve her into submission. But any hope he had of doing that has now gone. The air supremacy has passed from the Axis. This new devastating weapon, with which Germany hoped to crush all opposition on land has, in the hands of the United Nations, brought the terrors of war to the German people in a manner they never dreamed of.

Faced with all this, it is no wonder there are rumors of internal reorganization in Germany. Flesh and blood can only stand so much. Before too long, we may see the German morale so weakened that public opinion will demand an end to it all.

NOT SETTLED YET

The situation in Ontario following last week's election has not been completely clarified. Mr. Nixon still holds office. Mr. Joliffe says his party, the C. C. F. will co-operate with no other, and Colonel Drew has gone fishing. It is not clear whether he is fishing bass in some secluded northern lake, or in the more troubled political waters for a cabinet which will hold the confidence of the new House. It is not an enviable job that of constructing a cabinet under present conditions. Mr. Drew, who probably had a cabinet pretty well outlined before the election, will have to readjust his plans in the light of the election, and the possibility is that of a coalition of his party with the Liberals.

There are many thousands of people in Ontario who are not at all concerned about the success of this or that party. They are the great politically unattached group of voters who always determine the results of an election. In this case they swung to the C. C. F. for several reasons, some because they had lost confidence in the old groups, others to register a protest against the Mackenzie King Government at Ottawa. But without a doubt, the great majority did so because of the social platform which the C.C. F. has adopted.

This being so, the politically unattached will have a much greater opportunity of seeing their reforms enacted than they would had the Liberals been returned to power. Colonel Drew's 22-point programme is a constructive, streamlined promise on the part of the Progressive Conservatives, to meet the need of the modern man and woman. If the 14 Liberals decide to unite with Mr. Drew's party they will have to accept this programme. With the Government committed to the 22-point plan and with the C. C. F. ready with an advanced social platform, the Province is assured of legislation which will meet the wishes of this great army of politically unattached, as well as forward-looking people in all parties.

THE WAR BROUGHT HOME

The truth of His Majesty's statement that in this war we are all in the front line is being more brought home to us in Canada. No intelligent person today needs to be convinced that complete mobilization of Canada's manpower, and womanpower too, is essential to victory. No intelligent person, therefore, will be disposed to impede the government's War Labor policy which is very definitely shaped to that end.

Newspaper readers can assist the government very materially by studying carefully the National Selective Service civilian regulations, particularly the compulsory employment transfer orders, published from time to time in the newspapers by authority of the minister of labor.

These regulations and orders are the means by which complete utilization of our manpower and womanpower may be brought about. The regulations cover, with certain exceptions, persons of either sex from sixteen years of age upward. They are constantly being amended and added to from time to time to meet changing conditions. Men and women may now be called upon to leave their present employment on seven days notice to take more essential work. Men subject to the military call-up may be required to accept alternative employment. Coal miners must stay at their work; and ex-coal miners, if physically fit, must report for work in the mines. Farm workers are advised that they may not by law not do. Similarly, employers must not employ, or continue to employ, or engage any men affected by the orders without special permission to do so from the nearest Employment and Selective Service office.

All classes of employers and workers are urged to read the various orders as they appear in the newspapers, to study them carefully and to assist our war effort by carrying them out. Only by such unstinted effort will we deserve the victory for which we are so hopefully waiting.—Editorial from The Ottawa Citizen.

GERMANY AND THE STRUGGLE FOR OIL

BY WAVERLEY ROOT

If the American air raid on the Rumanian oil wells and refineries at Ploesti did as much damage as it appears to have done, the blow will be a very considerable one for the Reich. The importance of the Ploesti production has been exaggerated in some dispatches. Once for instance it said it supplied 90 per cent of the Luftwaffe's oil, although the Luftwaffe lives chiefly on synthetic fuel. But it is, nevertheless, a major source for Germany.

Earlier in the war, at a time when it was easier to secure figures and estimates of oil production, Rumania supplied roughly half of Germany's oil—and virtually all her natural oil, the other half being synthetic fuel made in the Reich. The few Polish wells captured by Germany were negligible. And Ploesti accounts for nearly 60 per cent of Rumania's oil.

The probabilities are that Rumania's contribution is now well below that figure, even still supply, for in spite of all efforts by the Nazis, Rumanian oil production has gradually decreased—and synthetic oil production has increased. There have, however, probably been no increases in synthetic production as a result of the raids over Germany.

Rumanian oil has been particularly important to Germany for lubricants, for less than a quarter of gasoline for this is the department in which Germany is weakest. Rumanian oil is by no means as good for this purpose as the Russian oil which Germany hoped to get in the Caucasus, but at least it solves a problem which the chemists who developed synthetic gasoline do not seem to have been able to meet satisfactorily. Natural gas is also supplied from Ploesti. And this problem has been all the more serious for Germany since North Africa was taken, for it had been possible previously to tire vegetable oil, made from peanuts, for some lubricating jobs. Importation of peanuts from West Africa was one of Vichy's most important contributions to Germany's war supplies. The Reich must feel already the effect of the cessation of these imports, which were cut back eight months.

The strain of maintaining her large scale operations is believed to have reduced Germany's oil reserves dangerously. With the loss of her vegetable oil from North Africa, and with her synthetic plants exposed to aerial bombardment, the attack on Ploesti is certain to be seriously felt.

Few persons know the story of why Ploesti had to be attacked from the air. It resulted from a service rivalry in the German High Command, whose effect was to give Rumania — and Germany — the use of wells which otherwise would have been destroyed before the Axis ever got control of Rumania. If the plan for their destruction had been carried out, bombing them from the air would not have been necessary.

The Rumanian wells were controlled by English capital, with some French participation. The English engineers in Rumania had envisaged the possibility that Rumania might be drawn into the Axis, that they themselves might have to leave the country, and that the oil might then become available to Germany. For that eventuality, an elaborate scheme had been worked out to render the wells and the refineries useless. Besides the English engineers themselves, a number of Rumanians were involved, some of them chosen expressly among members of the Fascist Iron Guard as having last likely to be suspected.

These plans, naming the persons involved, were so secret that only two copies existed in Rumania, one kept in the safe of the French Consulate in Bucharest, the other in the British Consulate. There was also a copy in the possession of French Premier, Paul Reynaud.

At the time of the French armistice Paul Reynaud, who had been promised the French Ambassadorship to Washington by Marshal Petain, sent his copy of this plan with other important papers out of France to prevent it from falling into the hands of the Germans. Two of his aides, Messrs. Lecca and Devaux, were the bearers of these documents, and also of private funds and jewels belonging to Paul Reynaud and the Countess Helen de Portes. They were passing through Spain on their way to the United States, they were arrested. Accounts published in the press at the time stated that they had been held at the request of the Vichy Government, for smuggling funds out of France. No mention was made of the fact that the papers they were carrying, although they were in a diplomatic pouch, had been taken from them also.

They demanded the return of the documents and Madrid sent them back. But when the contents of the pouch were checked against the list of what it had contained, it was discovered that the plan for the destruction of Ploesti was missing. The French Ambassador to Spain demanded the missing document. He was put off politely with the excuse that it must have been mislaid and the promise that it would be returned as soon as it could be located. It took Spain two weeks to find and hand back the missing paper.

And during those two weeks, every English engineer named in the plans for destruction was expelled from Rumania, and every Rumanian citizen mentioned was jailed.

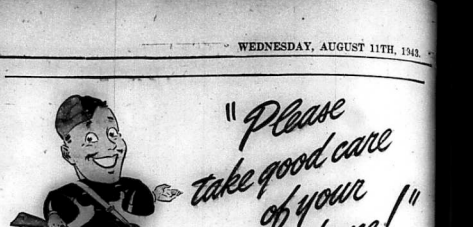
Illiteracy is not a cause for rejections in the Canadian Army. Intelligence and "learning ability" are the chief requisites.



A damaged telephone may be hard or impossible to replace — repair parts are scarce and material for new equipment has gone to war. So please guard your present telephone with extra care. Here, for instance, are six common causes of damage:

AVOID THESE MISTAKES:

1. Never place your telephone on the wall too low, on a narrow shelf. Keep it on a wide, firm table or desk.
2. Be careful that the cord does not lodge over the drawer handle or knob, thus pinching and damaging the cord.
3. Keep your telephone cord unkinked—twisting may injure the wire and necessitate replacement.
4. When painting, papering or washing floors, telephone with a cloth or paper. Then wash but do not get soaked with water, or wash the cord then wet but not get soaked with water, as it may injure the delicate mechanism.
5. Always replace the receiver carefully. Banging it down may damage it, besides, the sure sign is placed correctly on its support, too, to avoid causing a "busy" signal.
6. If you have dial service, please do not use a pencil or other sharp point when dialling. It disfigures and damages the dial and often causes a wrong number as well.

GOD PROVIDES FOR HIS PEOPLE

The attitude of the Hebrew people is typical. People have short memories. Having escaped the taskmaster's lash, and the hard, back-breaking drudgery of Egypt, it might be assumed that they would be happy with almost any inconvenience. Not so, they began to murmur, complain, find fault. They were not getting what they thought was the right kind of food. The provisions they had brought with them were all used up. Now they were to experience God's providing care in another way.

God provided first, meat. Meat was not a staple food with these people. It was somewhat of a luxury. However, they were to have abundance. The Quails are migrant birds which fly from Africa to Syria in the spring and return in the autumn. They often, in the drought. Though, of course, they receive it often meant liber and plenty. But in the East, where scarce, civilization grows up around The water holes. Every one from Sicily are telling continually the desperate need of water, and how it has to be brought up from deep wells by rude pack or motor trucks. The Hebrew people lacked water. The experience of Moses was remarkable. He had erected many wells in this area tending sheep. He knew where water should be found. He knew where to find them. For undoubtedly he had helped to dig his sheep often times in the course of his shepherding.

The people were given food and drink. It was not brought to them. They did not sit like robins in the nest with their mouths open, while mother bird dropped in the food. No, indeed. The food was provided but they had to work for it. They had to go for the water. They had to gather the manna and quail. Perhaps a lot of us have never realized that quite so much of our living today. Of course, the fact is we know. They work from dawn to dusk hardly a breathing spell for many a man who, for patriotic reasons, is spending part of his time on the farm, will come back with new appreciation of the work the farmer does to provide milk and meat and vegetables for the rest of us.

God provides the soil, the rain, the sun and the rain. Left to themselves the result would be chaos. Only if man works co - operates with God, can all have enough. There is no place for exploitation and mishandling of God's great gifts. In the brave new world that is coming all must work, and all must co-operate with God's great plan. Everybody is not again to be rigged

OTTAWA—BUSY WARTIME TELEPHONE CENTRE!

Since the beginning of the war, the Dominion Government's telephone switchboard (left) has been extended from eight operators' positions to 25; the Ottawa dial telephone building (centre) has been expanded as telephones in service rose from 36,000 to 54,000; and out-of-town messages handled by the capital's long distance switchboard (right) have jumped from 37,000 a month to 100,000.

That, in brief, is the story of wartime Ottawa. Serving over 7,000 telephones and handling 110,000 calls of all kinds every day, the government's private branch exchange today is large enough to serve a city the size of Kingston.

CANNED FOODS ARE AS IMPORTANT AS AMMUNITION

WOMEN OF ONTARIO Your Help is URGENTLY NEEDED

WITH more and more Canadian Troops going into active service as the Allied Forces press the attack, Canned Foods become as vitally essential as bullets.

5,000 Ontario Women and Girls will have to replace the workers who usually man the Canning Factories each season. These workers are now almost entirely employed on year-round war jobs, but the canning crops of Ontario still must be saved for Victory.

Ontario's youth has volunteered and has been organized to harvest the abundant crops of tomatoes, corn, peaches and grapes from fields and orchards of Ontario. Ontario's Mothers and Sisters—housewives and unemployed girls, from 16 to 60—most of whom have never seen the inside of a canning factory before, are URGENTLY NEEDED in the canning factories of this province to save every ounce of precious food in the next 12 weeks.

NO WORKING PERMIT IS REQUIRED FROM EMPLOYMENT AND SELECTIVE SERVICE FOR THIS WORK. Current wages will be paid. The work is not hard and good living quarters will be arranged for if you are employed away from home.

Do YOUR Part: Act NOW! Today, before you forget. Apply at once to the superintendent of the nearest canning factory, if you live near one, or see the Agricultural Advisor at your nearest Employment and Selective Service Office, for full information. If neither is convenient to you, write direct to Farm Service Force, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

IF

Canadian Homes are to have sufficient Canned Fruits and Vegetables this Winter.

YOU will have to "Lend a Hand" in Canadian Canning Factories within the next 10 weeks.

BIG SPIKES IN HITLER'S COFFIN

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

A couple of stout spikes have been driven into the coffin of Hitlerism in the capture of two highly strategic cities on the flaming Russian front, and ancient Catania in the northeast corner of Sicily.

Both these cities were vital anchor points for the Nazis.

The heavily-fortified and strongly-held railway centre of Orel has for almost two years been the hinge for Hitler's great battle line between this point, not far south of Moscow, and the Sea of Azov.

Catania, crouching under the great volcano of Etna, has been the powerful position to which the Nazis and Italians hooked the left wing of the front which they threw across the last remaining tip of northeast Sicily in defence of Messina and access to the Italian mainland, only two miles across the strait from that port.

These two operations, while widely separated, are essentially having the relation to each other, are parts of offensives which in reality are acting as a pair of mighty pincers against the whole front in Russia. This is so because (1) if the Russians have the reserve power with which to follow up their notable capture of Orel, it will endanger Hitler's entire right wing, and because (2) victory in Sicily brings the Allies nearer to possible invasion of the Balkans, which would further jeopardize that Nazi right wing.

In short, Hitler is being pushed steadily towards that day when he will have to pull back his entire vast line of more than 1,000 miles in Russia in order to reach new positions which will afford greater security.

While this is a historic moment for the Allies, we should remember that these two captures are parts of continuing operations. Fierce fighting lies ahead on both theatres.

In Sicily the terrain within the remaining triangle which the Axis forces are defending is rugged and hilly. It's well adapted to defence and has been strongly fortified. There are said to be close to 100,000 Axis troops adjured to the desperate task of holding this "last ditch" — something more than half of them being Germans.

Thus we have the making of a great battle among the innumerable hilly strongholds, many of which probably will have to be taken at the point of the bayonet — assuming that the Axis forces don't fold up, and that is the real indication of this yet among the Germans. Ultimately the enemy must surrender or be annihilated, for there is no escape from this triangular trap for the vast majority of the Axis troops.

It's too soon to assay the full import of the Red capture of Orel. The cracking of this major fortress represents one of the great victories of the war. Into it have gone the lives of many scores of thousands of fighting men of both Germany and Russia.

Incidentally, it's only recently that I received a letter from an anonymous Nazi sympathizer, signing himself "A Soldier," who took me to task for saying that the indications were the Reds would take Orel. He said it was a preposterous suggestion, and sang the praises of the Boche. There are a lot of these fifth columnists still about.

The fighting which has preceded this victory has been titanic—reminiscent of the struggle at Stalingrad. The Russians drove forward, in the face of the best defence which Hitler could muster, until they'll but hold Orel surrounded. Complete encirclement would have meant the annihilation of a Nazi force of some 250,000 men, but it would appear that the German command has been able to withdraw many of them.

Orel not only is a strong point but it is a vital railway centre. Its capture will enable the Russians to reopen rail communications between Moscow and the southern centres.

The ultimate effect of the fall of Orel might be catastrophic for the Germans, if the Russians have the strength to develop it. However, this is no time to jump to sweeping conclusions.

FROM THE TEST TUBES OF TO-DAY COME IMPROVEMENTS TO-MORROW

Aviators suffer from severe sunburn when they fly for long above the clouds, but normal methods of providing shade reduce vision and hence help the enemies of military fliers.

The problem, a serious one for many doctors, is being solved by the use of a special transparent cellulose — acetate sheet which screens out harmful ultraviolet rays without sacrificing vision.

Other applications of cellulose-acetate sheeting depend on its ability to pass ultraviolet rays. The difference between the two kinds of sheeting lies in the compounding materials added to the cellulose-acetate.

To avoid the necessity of frequently removing fish from the screen used to keep them out of turbines, a West Coast power company electrifies the water in front of its power intake. The current is fed into the water through a number of alternately charged wires hanging in front of the intake.

When fish approach the charged zone, the electric shock sends them scurrying to safety. The power company says the labor personally needed to scoop the fish off the screen and has contributed to the scrap drive the metal previously forming the screen.

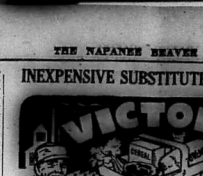
An improved type of sound record is now made on a glass disc faced with a thin layer of plastic. Since the glass core supplies the strength of the disc, a relatively soft plastic is applied to its surface carries the sound record.

Reduced consumption of plastic and improved tonal qualities are reported as advantages. Saving of shellac formerly used for records is important during wartime.

INEXPENSIVE SUBSTITUTES FOR MEAT



Now that meat rationing is established, you probably have your own system of meal planning in full swing. In households of two or three people you will find it more advantageous to serve meatless meals a couple or more a week. You can replace the meat by foods such as eggs, cheese, fish, poultry, which are in the same category nutritionally.

Eggs are important in our diets because they provide us with the best quality protein, essential minerals and vitamins A, D, B1 and B2. You should eat three to four eggs a week; if you plan to have an egg dish for supper you could use part of your weekly supply this way.

Do not cook the eggs at a high temperature as the whites become tough — you should always use a moderate, even heat for all types of egg cookery. Eggs are readily and completely digested when properly cooked.

You will find eggs a great asset to your menus not only for their palatability but also because they can be used in a variety of ways. Eggs are used as:

1 Main dish — souffles, omelets, casserole dishes.
2 Leavening agent — in sponge cakes. The egg white holds air beaten into it and forms a foam. If necessary, half the amount of eggs in a sponge cake may be replaced by milk and baking powder. One egg; two tablespoons milk and half-teaspoon baking powder.
3 Thickening agent — the protein in the egg coagulates. One egg may be replaced by one tablespoon flour or half-tablespoon cornstarch.
4 Emulsions — in mayonnaise. Write to the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, for "Egg Dishes".

+ + + + + + +

These days you should use more cheese to replace the meat in your menus as it is a concentrated food, highly nutritious, and stores well.

On the market you will find Canadian cheddar cheese, sometimes called Canadian cheese, processed cheese and those ripened by molds and bacteria.

Today we will consider the cheddar cheese only as it is the least expensive and used most in cheese cookery. You can buy new, medium and old, depending on what flavour you desire. The nutritive value is the same for each the cost increases with the age of the cheese due to the cost of storage.

Like milk, cheese is an almost perfect food furnishing protein in an efficient form, important building materials, calcium and phosphorous, vitamin A and the vitamin B complex. It also has a high fat content thus giving it a high energy value; one inche cube of cheddar cheese gives 109 calories.

When you are using the cheese just as a flavour or appetizer you should use the old cheddar as it has the strongest flavour. In your main dishes when you want the cheese to provide the energy and efficient protein you will need larger amounts of the cheese and so you will find the new cheese most economical.

Cheese is easily and completely digested if properly cooked or combined with other foods. It is a concentrated food rich in fat and protein, so it should be grated or used in combination with high carbohydrate foods. Cheese is slowly digested because of this fat content and as a result is often erroneously believed to be indigestible. When cooking cheese you should be careful not to overcook it as it becomes tough and rubbery and as a result is hard to digest. When properly cooked it has a spongy texture.

Store your cheese in a cool place and cover to prevent loss of moisture. Try this recipe on a day when you are not serving meat:

CORN AND CHEESE CASSEROLE

1 cup canned corn	1 tablespoon melted fat
1 cup bread or cracker crumbs	1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
1 cup grated cheese	2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
½ teaspoon salt	(optional)
2 cups scalded milk	2 eggs

Combine all ingredients except eggs and milk. Beat egg yolks and add with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Place in a greased baking dish and oven-poach in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until set—about 40 minutes. Serves four to six.

New Nazi Prisons— For Germans

Since the Germans suffered such drastic defeats in Russia, since they became aware of the increasing might of the United Nations and since their defeat in Tunisia, the morale of the soldiers in Norway has fallen precipitously, compared with the days before the "invincibility" myth was shattered.

In the Birkenau district of Norway alone some 1,500 to 2,000 troops are suffering similar treatment in that they raw meted out to the unfortunate people of the countries they over-ran — brutal man-handling in the worst possible concentration camps. Even Norwegians, who have seen the life these Germans are leading, have felt sorry for them in spite of the sufferings to which they themselves are subjected. In five different concentration camps these Germans whose morale has cracked, are being whipped and forced to do slave labor. Some of them have been flogged to death because they refused to work on road building and similar heavy work. Other concentration camps for Germans exist at Nordreim and Tromsoe, with a total of 1,800 to 1,400 prisoners.

Some of the German occupation troops in Norway have tried to escape to Sweden. A few have succeeded, others have been shot in the attempt. Recently one such soldier who was discovered hiding in a mountain cleft awaiting his chance to get away was discovered and shot summarily.

Many soldiers have flatly refused to go to the Eastern Front, while those who have come back after serving in the fight against the Russians have frequently shown insubordination and have been dealt with severely. Riots are not infrequent, amongst these elements and as a punishment they have been sent to the far north of Norway. The nervousness among the occupation troops in general has been shown by their indiscriminate shooting when on guard, with the result that a number of innocent Norwegians have been killed. In addition coastal batteries have, from time to time, opened fire on ships off the coast, only to find when the damage was done that they were German vessels.

Calculating Visibility By Altitude

People watching planes as they soon overhead in the sky often ask: "I wonder how far the pilot can see from away up there." The whole answer, of course, depends upon the kind of a day it is, in other words on whether visibility is good or bad. The higher the pilot goes in the air he can see. Pilots in Flying Fortress have frequently reported that they have been able, flying at height of 25,000 feet, to see right to Germany before they are out of sight of England's channel coast. Sometimes the pilots themselves have wondered just how far they can see.

The actual curvature of the earth for the first mile is about nine inches, and increases thereafter at a rate approximately equal to the square of the distance in feet. If the approximate curvature of the earth for your distance is wanted, multiply the square of the distance in miles by .67. The answer will tell you how much the earth has curved at that point. For example, at a distance of the earth ten miles from where you are standing is 67 feet lower than you are.

On the surface of the sea, at eye level, the range of vision is only 2.32 mile's.

On land, since the earth itself varies in altitude, the range of vision is always at least the same 29 miles plus the distance reflected by altitude of the individual and the object's altitude.

With that background, experts have worked out the following "vision ranger" formula to tell how far the average person can see from various heights.

The range of vision is equal to the square foot of the altitude multiplied by 1.225 miles. For example, at 1,000 feet, you can see for 38.8 miles. From 10,000 feet, you can see for 122.5 miles. And for those who are somewhat rusty on their mathematics, the experts compiled a table:

From	You Can See
1,000 feet	39 miles
2,000 feet	55 miles
3,000 feet	62 miles
4,000 feet	77 miles
5,000 feet	86 miles
10,000 feet	150 miles
20,000 feet	173 miles
25,000 feet	194 miles

Ragweed – Hay-Fever

HOW TO RECOGNIZE GREAT AND COMMON PLANTS

A certain number of people suffer from hay-fever during the months of August and September and in 85 percent. of the cases, this is caused by ragweed very common within the limits of Napanee as well as in its surroundings. Two of these plants are the great ragweed and the common ragweed are the most common species in Eastern Ontario.

The great ragweed is a tall annual plant from 3 to 6 feet in height with leaves, on pairs opposite each other throughout the length of the stalk. These leaves are large and are borne on a long hairy stem; they have two main, deep clefts forming a very characteristic three-lobed leaf. The male flowers, which carry the pollen, are grouped in long greenish clusters at the top of the plant. The female flowers are gathered into compact spikes located at the base of the bunches of male flowers.

COMMON PLANT DIFFERENT

The common ragweed differs slightly from the former in its floral appearance. It is most readily recognized by its height (1 to 3 feet) and by the shape of its leaves. It should not, however, be mistaken for the mugwort plant that has a flower cluster much more compact and larger and with leaves plainly whitish underneath.

Since both types of ragweed are annual plants, the most practical method of destruction is to mow them before pollination of the flowers and ripening of their fruits. Better results will be obtained if the mowing is done two or three times in succession after the beginning of the flowering period; this period lasts for six weeks beginning in the middle of the summer.

It is of the utmost importance that all vacant lots, open spaces, etc., where these plants grow are kept clean, if we want to obtain good results. A single lot thus neglected will permit the seeds of these weeds to be carried by the wind to neighboring lots.

The War Machine Needs More Than Soldires

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

We perhaps too often think of a fighting machine solely in terms of the men who are on actual combat service in the army, the navy and the air force. That probably is natural for they are the ones who risk their lives on the firing line in defence of their country. Still they're only part of the machine. They are an absolutely vital part, of course, but behind them and integrated with them are many parts which also are essential to make the vast machine run.

The soldiers and sailors and airmen are the experts who wield the instruments of death against the enemy. But other elements of the machine have to equip and maintain the fighting men or the battle, from all evidence, will be lost.

A thousand and one industries fabricate the armaments; farmers produce food; various units transport these essentials to the theatre of war by land and sea and air and still another goes down into the dark caverns of the earth and produces with arduous labor and great danger — the coal without which much war manufacturing power and transport must be disrupted.

Failure of any one of these units may mean stoppage of the whole machine. It may mean defeat.

At best it's likely to protract the war. That means unnecessary death and maiming in the fighting ranks, and additional suffering at home.

The fortunes of war sometimes are capricious, and a country may encounter adversity which it is unable to ward off. Even an act of nature, like a flood, may play havoc with part of a war machine. Rarely, however, does an all-important unit collapse as the result of a sabotage scheme the people comprising it.

It would be tragedy if any quarrel should interfere with essential war production at this critical moment. That's irrespective of the merits of each argument on either side of a controversy.

There's nothing that counts exceptingto keep the war machine running. Even individual lives don't matter, much less material affairs.

A general and his staff can't quit because of difficulties with the troops. Stoppage of a single unit for even a few days may react disastrously on the battle front.

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Forces, declared recently at Washington that the Allies will end the war, "and it soon," by bombing. By ending it quicker "we will cut down the casualties."

What a grand goal to work for! But we could fall far short of it if production were seriously impaired.

This is a great moment in the war. The United Nations are rushing at Hitler for the kill. We need every single ounce of striking power which we can produce.

Delay in essential production might change the course of the war. It might easily protract the European upheaval, with consequent delay in undertaking major operations against Japan.

Apart from everything else, this means more casualties. Every minute counts. Thousands of men can die in the thirty minutes before the cease fire is given. Even the final sixty seconds may take their toll. They did in the First Great War and will in this.

HUNS FORCED TO REVERSE PRODUCTION POLICY

Two-thirds of the centra' area of Germany's great steel city of Duesseldorf, steel centre of the Ruhr and Rhineland, have been destroyed by high explosive bombs and fires and war production has been correspondingly paralyzed, it was revealed by British officials, recently.

The statement was based on detailed information received from the most reliable sources and on the finding interpretation of photographs taken after the great attack on June 11 when the Royal Air Force Bomber Command dropped nearly 2,000 tons of bombs on the city and area in an hour.

Even before this tonnage was dropped, it was known that the Germans were faced with a war production crisis which has now driven them to a complete reversal of production policy.

This was explained by a British Ministry of Economic Warfare official as a switch from an offensive to a defensive production, policy, achieved by discarding programs for offensive weapons or by dovetailing some of them into such a way as to permit concentration on defensive weapons.

This concentration has enabled the Germans to maintain and in many instances even to increase the output of priority armaments, such as the latest types of anti-aircraft guns and the slow - moving fortress - like Mark VI tanks, the official said.

Offensive weapons, such as fast tanks, heavy guns and equipment for converted forces no longer have priority and consumer goods programs have now been abandoned.

The Economic Warfare spokesman said that the full effects of the last four months of intensive bombing of the Ruhr will not be known for some time but the results so far ascertained encourage continuance of the present policy of attack. With the blockade rotting the base of German industry in constant damage being done to the enemy's war output headache made worse by the exhaustion of raw stocks accumulated from pre-war production and from the loot of conquered countries, Germany's armies without doubt will become more and more acute.

From this viewpoint, it was further declared, the partial destruction of Duesseldorf was particularly significant, since in the production of armaments the city ranks with Essen and Dulsberg and is a centre for basic industries without which Germany cannot fully utilize her raw materials.

It is known that the Stahlwerk, administrative centre of the German Steel Manufacturers Association, was destroyed with all its records, files and industrial data. This is regarded as a serious blow to the steel industry, one of the most highly organized and centralized in Europe.

Forty-two plants were destroyed or damaged in the city's main workwork areas to the southeast. Five of these were of the greatest importance: the Schless-Defresag, leading producers of heavy machine tools; the Rheinmettal-Borsig, making all types of heavy armaments, employing 36,000 workers; the Deutsche Rohren-Werke, steel tube plant; the Mannesmann Rohren-Werke, iron and steel tube, submarine and tank frame case, and the Gutterhoffnung-hutte Steel Products.

Vast damage was done to plants producing a variety of munitions and weapons and a paper factory covering fifteen acres, was devastated. Warehouses, stock sheds, railroad freight depots, as well as locomotives and trucks were obliterated and wrecked. All this and the rest of the R.A.F.'s destruction in the Ruhr, however, that the battle or the Ruhr has been won, it was emphasized in London last week. The attacks will have to continue for a long time. Germany can disperse her light industries but can no more remove from the Ruhr the heavy industries dependent on the mines than it can remove submarine bases from. The ore, in the Ruhr must be maintained as the heart of German war production.

CONFESSIONS OF A HOARDER

Sun up, sun down.
I went scurrying through the town
Hunting victuals ... jam so sweet
And other things for us to eat.

Sun up, sun down.
My mind dwelt most on what we'd sup;
Hoarding here, hoarding there,
Lest my cupboards should be bare.

Night and day, day and night,
I kept up a losing fight.
Till, tarder tilled but soul depleted,
I realized I was defeated.

I knew, through and through
And gradually admitted, too,
That selfish shoppers caused inflation
And sabotaged their warring nation.

I began to see the plan
Of how food rationing began—
Mrs. So-and-So and I
Were Canada's enemies. That's why.

I turned, bridges burned.
Hunting food " for food's sake, spurned.
Now we're happier, healthier, thinner.
But always have enough for dinner.

Enough to eat, some to spare
Joy in a heart that likes to share
Mind released, soul at rest,
I now can serve my country best.

NEW PAY RATES FOR C.W.A.C.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps have been given a substantial increase in pay. Everyone from lieutenant-colonel to private shares in the raise. Similar increases were granted the Women's Services of the Navy and the Air Force.

Basic pay will now be 80 per cent. of that paid to men in the Armed Forces, instead of the former 66⅔ per cent.

And the girls, eligible for trades pay, will be paid at the same rates as their male comrades in arms. Previously they were paid two-thirds of a male trades pay rates.

Under the new wage scale, a private's (C.W.A.C.) pay may be increased to $1.10 a day after four months' efficient service, and to $1.20 a day after six months' efficient service.

Dependents of members of the C. W. A. C., as well as those of the Wrens and the Women's Division of the Air Force, other than husbands and children, are now eligible for dependents' allowance at the same rates and under the same conditions as apply to dependents of men. Thus a dependent parent or other close relative may receive an allowance up to $25 a month.

Increases in basic pay and trades pay are retroactive to July 1, 1943.

The fear of the loss of a particle or particles of radium is now banished by a wonderful detecting instrument, which is appropriately called the "Radium Gen." This so-called "Hen" is capable of finding a needle in a haystack or in a ten-acre field of rubbish.

The Radium Hen has a cluck similar to that emitted by an ordinary hen. At the end of the divining-rod is a small "ionization chamber" attached to an amplifier and loud-speaker, and when a search is made for a lost particle or needle of radium, the loudspeaker crackles and becomes louder as the search becomes hotter and the needle is found.

THIS YEAR'S PICKLES

Hello, Homemakers — A search warrant is being made for sugarless recipes for relishes. This year, pickles must be made without sugar or honey, the little you are able to save from your ration. Just like everything else that is not easy to obtain, is one reason why we hope to have a supply on our own shelf.

We've just opened beets canned by the saccharine method last year and they are real good. Because we eat a small amount of relish or pickle at any one time, we are recommending the following recipes:

Saccharine Pickles

one teaspoon Saccharine—exact measurement (if too much is used it produces a bitter-sweet flavour in the product), one teaspoon powdered alum, one cupful salt, one gallon white wine vinegar.

Stir the powdered alum, saccharine and salt into the vinegar and it is ready for use.

Prepare the pickles; wash, cut and dry. Pack in sterilized jars. Spices can be added preferably dill. Pour solution over the pickles and seal tight. This produces about ten quarts. This solution may be made and kept in a jug and poured over cucumbers when enough to make a jar full is available. If it is to be used on beets, the alum should be omitted. Beets preserved by this means may be used within a few hours. Cucumbers pickled with this solution should be allowed to stand for two or three weeks.

Pickled Silver Skin Onions

Soak one cup white onions (peeled) in strong brine for 24 hours. Soak in fresh water one hour and drain. Mix the following: one cup white wine vinegar, one tablespoon sugar, half-tablespoon allspice, half - tablespoon white mustard seed, two peppercorns.

Dill Pickles

Wash cucumbers and wipe well. Pack into jars. To one quart jar add: four teaspoons salt, one small hot red pepper, one clove garlic, dill and savory.

Fill jar with mixture of vinegar and water in proportion of one part of white vinegar to two quarts water. Seal tightly. Ready to use in six weeks.

Beet Relish

Eight cups chopped cooked beets, one and one-third cups chopped red peppers, one cup chopped onions, one cup horseradish, grated, half-cup sugar, one and one-third tablespoons salt, four cups vinegar.

Cook beets until tender. Remove the skins and chop. Add onions and peppers. Combine all ingredients and cook until mixture is clear. Pour the hot mixture into sterilized jars and seal.

Sour Mustard Pickle Sauce

Use half-cup vegetable combinations to make one quart, such as onions, sliced or tiny; corn; yellow beans cut; cauliflower flowerets, cucumbers, sliced; green peppers, chopped.

Cover with weak brine and let stand overnight. Drain and soak in clear water for one hour. Add one cup of water, one cup vinegar and let stand fifteen minutes. Cook 10-15 minutes. Drain. Add sweet or sour mustard sauce. Let pickles come to a boil. Bottle.

Sour Mustard Sauce:

One tablespoon flour, three-quarters tablespoon mustard, one-quarter cup brown sugar, one-eighth teaspoon tumeric one cup vinegar, half-teaspoon salt.

Chili Sauce

One six-quart basket tomatoes, eight onions (chopped), four green peppers, two cups cider vinegar, two tablespoons salt, two cups corn syrup, four tablespoons mixed pickling spices tied in a bag.

Peel the tomatoes and cut in pieces; chop onions and peppers; put in large preserving kettle. Cook slowly uncovered for two hours, or until thick. Pour into sterile jars and seal at once. Yield, approximately seven pints.

1 Grape or horseradish leaves covering the top will keep more green colour in the cucumbers.

2 If plum stone is troublesome to remove, leave them in until after the fruit is cooked for jam. They will come to the surface and are easy to skim off.

3 A sprig of mint cooked with peas gives a pleasant flavour and keeps the vegetable green

4 White cabbage, cauliflower and white onions keep their colour if cooked in water that has had half-teaspoon cream of tartar added. This softens the water.

5 There are two ways to prevent pickle sauce from turning as it begins to thicken. Rub preserving kettle with a hard fat before putting in the ingredients. Or, mix a cold tin pan under the preserving kettle during the last half-hour of cooking. If you have to leave the kitchen for any length of time let the kettle in a 350 degree oven leaving the door ajar.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs —

How did you like the barrage of postcards? I find it a painless way to keep friends posted during a holiday. Here I am back in the saddle once more with all my enthusiasm for training and getting set for the most part, basking in the sun. I am now a rich, nutty brown, and during the hours I spent engrossing myself with grease, well spent, indeed. I am really glad to be back in uniform again, having satisfied my wanderlust and the bonds and bracelets during the past couple of weeks, and the familiar uniform looks mighty good to me.

The sergeants at the mess gave me a rousing welcome on my return and I found myself jumping up all the familiar sleights and sounds — above all the friendly give and take. Probably the best thing that the C.W.A.C. has to offer is the undeniable spirit of camaraderie among the girls. It is the sauce which makes a lark of many an otherwise irksome duty. Just for instance, I do not think that many women regard washing dishes as a very pleasant task, yet the laundry Room in Alvington Barracks is usually one of the most entertaining spots in the barracks. Here the girls declaim their views, bending over their wash tubs as from a rostrum; here they meet the new recruits on equal terms and perhaps along a friendly tip on how to get on made in the army, and here, too, they indulge in plain or fancy washing, as the case may be. Washing, where women meet on common ground, is a great equalizer, and this is the essence of life in the C.W.A.C.—socialites, small town girls, girls from farms, factory workers, university graduates—all meet and mix it up.

It takes a certain length of time to become adjusted to community living, but I am convinced, no longer to make the readjustment back to an individual way of life. I have a hunch that when this war is over, I am going to have some acute attacks of nostalgia for the ragbaggy scramble of life in the barracks. Yes, even for the way you see your favourite tie adorning the neck of your next door neighbour. I expect that I will turn out to be one of those old war horses who turns up at every reunion and tells time bores friends to death, telling and retelling wheezy tales of hijinx in the barracks. Brace yourself, Babs, I see it coming.

My desk is piled high with work and I have been burrowing through it like a mole but at this point, the light of dawn is beginning to glimmer faintly, I refer to the dawn of achievement (since it is now exactly five postmeridian) so I look my nose away from the grindstone (temporarily) to write you a few lines.

Let me tell you, Babs, I have followed with wrapt attention your struggles as a housewife, and I felt that I, too, had triumphed when you produced that epic chocolate cake without butter, or was it lard? Anyway, I know it was a rationing triumph and I sniffed proceedingly. This I suppose is the housewives' version of "bricks without straw"? I wish you would try your hand at concocting a few bobby pins, my kit is desperate. I cannot find one, remember when I saw one. Yes, I do. Mrs. Bird's hussy-truss! Now she slapped my wrist when I fingered it. See what you can do, won't you? My hair looks wild, a comparable facsimile of that of a Fiji Islander. I would break your heart. Bye now.

Interesting Meat Dishes

NO COUPONS NEEDED

Tasty and nourishing meat dishes—for which one need not surrender even one of those precious meat coupons, may be made inexpensive, and easy to prepare. Here are recipes for three delicious meat dishes, whose main ingredient is unrationed meat:

Frankfurter Supper Salad
(Serves 4)

One-half pound frankfurters, two cups cooked elbow macaroni, one cup chopped celery, ¾cup chopped radishes, one-quarter cup chopped green pepper, half cup mayonnaise, salt and pepper, four tomatoes, lettuce, whole radishes.

Simmer frankfurters in water five minutes; cool; cube. Combine frankfurters, macaroni, celery, chopped radishes, green pepper and mayonnaise. Season with salt and pepper. Chill. Cut slice from tops of tomatoes, scoop out a little of centre. Pile frankfurter mixture on tomatoes. Arrange tomatoes on lettuce; garnish with radishes.

Liver Sliced With Creamed Peas
(Serves 4 to 6)

One pound liver sausage, one and one-half cups medium white sauce, one and one-half cups cooked peas, half-teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one and one-half pounds cooked new potatoes in jackets.

Slice liver sausage; broil about 5 minutes, or until hot and browned. Combine white sauce, peas, and Worcestershire sauce; heat. Arrange liver sausage slices around outside of serving plate; pour creamed peas on slices. Pile potatoes in centre.

Victory Garden Salad Bowl
(Serves 4 to 6)

One cup cooked peas, half-cup of chopped celery, half-cup of French dressing, three-quarters pound sliced cold meat (liver sausage, bologna, ra'ami, etc.), prepared mustard, one cup cottage cheese, one green pepper or one-quarter cup of chopped chives or parsley, one cucumber, two carrots, lettuce, mayonnaise.

Combine peas and celery; marinate 15 minutes in French dressing. Spread cold meat slices with mustard; roll up, fasten with toothpicks. Combine cottage cheese and green pepper. Score cucumber; slice. Grate carrots. Arrange lettuce in salad bowl. On one side of bowl place meat rolls up. In individual lettuce cups place cottage cheese; peas and celery; cucumber slices and carrot. Serve with mayonnaise.

CANNING BLACK CURRANTS

At the very top of the list of Vitamin C-rich foods stand black currants. Even when they are cooked or canned they take precedence over tomatoes and citrus fruits as a source of this important vitamin, according to tests and research.

Red and white currants are also excellent sources of Vitamin C.

Not many of us will be able to spare sugar to make currant jelly this year, but in any case we will get best value from fruit and sugar by canning our currants or making them into juice. They will appear next winter in pies, and puddings, as sauces and the modern version of Grandmother's black currant tea. Here then are directions, recommended by the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture for canning currants, red, white, or black and with or without sugar.

METHOD 1 — WITH SUGAR

Wash and stem currants. Pack into hot, sterilized sealers. Fill sealers with boiling syrup made in the proportion of one cup sugar to one and one-half cups water and boiled five minutes. Adjust sterilized rubbers and partially seal. Process —

Boiling water bath

pints	20 minutes
quarts	25 minutes
Oven 275 F.
pints	35 minutes
quarts	45 minutes
Steam Cooker
pints	35 minutes
quarts	40 minutes
Pressure Cooker
pints or quarts	ten minutes at 5 lbs. pressure

Remove from sterilizer as soon as pressure line is up. Complete the seal immediately. Invert sealers for a few minutes to test for possible leakage.

METHOD 2—SUGARLESS

Wash and stem currants. Crush part of the fruit in the bottom of the preserving kettle, add rest of fruit and hot enough water to prevent burning. Heat slowly to extract juice. Pack in hot sterilized sealers and finish as in method 1. Extra processing time need not be given, for fruit is pre-cooked in the juice.

BLACK CURRANT JUICE

Wash and stem the currants. Measure out three quarts and crush. Add water, using two cups water to three cups currants. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil five minutes. Strain through a jelly bag. Pour into sterilized sealers, adjust sterile rubbers and partially seal. Process in hot water bath at simmering temperature for 30 minutes. Remove from water bath and complete the seal immediately.

TIPS FOR MEAT RATIONING

Biscuit dough can be used in many ways to extend rationed meats. As a topping for meat pies it's a better bet than pastry for the concentration-conscious, because biscuit dough requires so much less fat.

If there isn't enough meat for this, put it through the food chopper, season well, and moisten with left-over gravy, tomato sauce or chili sauce.

Roll biscuit dough into rectangle one-quarter inch thick, spread with the meat mixture, roll up like a jelly roll and bake in a hot oven. Serve with extra gravy and plenty of vegetables and the family will never notice that you've stretched the meat it a bit skimpy.

Meat turnovers are delicious but take a little more meat than a rolypoly. Roll biscuit dough one-quarter inch thick and cut in six-inch rounds or squares. Place a spoonful of meat mixture on the dough and fold over, making half-moons or triangles. Press edges together and prick the top. Bake and serve like rolypoly.

Dumplings are closely related to biscuit dough but contain less fat or none at all. Feathery light, they make a delicious and filling addition to a stew that may be short of vegetable than animal. The Consumer Section of the Department of Agriculture suggests Tomato Dumplings with beef stew: the addition of finely chopped parsley to dumplings for veal stew and chives when the stew is of lamb. Tomato dumplings are made by substituting tomato juice for the milk or water used in plain dumplings.

BY LAURA C. PEPPER

When canning fruits with sugar this year, it is important to use, for each fruit, the syrup that will give a palatable product with the minimum amount of sugar.

In order that no syrup be wasted the amount of syrup required should be carefully calculated. Small fruits berries and cherries will require half to three-quarters cup of syrup per pint jar and large fruits such as pears and peaches will take from three-quarters to one cup for each pint jar.

Here are the syrups that we have found to give the most satisfactory and economical results in our experimental work:

Apples and Pears — A one to three syrup, that is one cup sugar to three cups water. Yield approximately three cups of syrup.

Apricots, Blueberries, Raspberries, Sweet Cherries, Peaches, Sweet Plums and Saskatoons — A one to two syrup — one cup sugar to two cups of water yields approximately two and one-quarter cups syrup.

Blackberries, Currants, Gooseberries Loganberries, Strawberries — A one to one and a half syrup. One cup of sugar to one and one-half cups of water yields approximately two cups of syrup.

Sour Cherries, Sour Plums and Rhubarb — A one to one syrup, one cup sugar to one cup water yields approximately one and one-half cups of syrup.

For all syrups, sugar and water should be brought to boiling point and boiled five minutes. The syrup should be kept hot until used.

ORANGES ARE DIFFERE

You have probably noticed an apple always has the cells in its seeds are laid

But with an orange it is dif for the number of seeds considerably, being generally en or more. There is a wid writer, to tell in advance corrections a given orange has you know the thing you can what seems to either people quite a wonderful boon.

At the stem end of the orange will find a little spoonshaped pression, and if you will notice spokes in this space it will ge the number of sections. Each of the orange is carefully s fruit and the number of seeds seems to be governed by the ber of cells which are formed the bud.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q We live in a village and have always kept a pig or two for meat. Do we need to apply for a slaughtering permit ?

A No, provided you do not raise more than two head of livestock of any kind within a year, and provided you kill such livestock, or have it killed for you, to furnish meat for your own family. You must, however, register with your Local Ration Board as a meat producer and surrender coupons for meat of your own kill which you consume. This surrender is at the rate of one coupon for every two pounds of meat so consumed. However, you are allowed to keep half your meat coupons falling due each month and may use these to buy other kinds of meat as required.

Q Can you tell me why chocolate bars seem to be so scarce ?

A This is principally due to much-increased demands for such bars to keep the armed forces supplied. It is considered only right that the sailors, soldiers and airmen should have first call upon the production of these commodities.

Q Is it true that I have to make a sworn statement before a justice of the peace or commissioner before I can get a ration book for my baby ?

A No. If you are able to furnish a birth or baptismal certificate your Local Ration Board will issue you with a ration book for your child.

Q Someone told me there was a new regulation about the sale of veal. What is it ?

A A new regulation of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board prohibits the sale of any carcass of veal obtained from a calf less than three weeks old. This action has been taken so that veal until for human consumption may not enter the channels of trade.

Q Will I be given tea or coffee ration coupons in the No. 3 ration book for my son who will be 12 years old on August 20 ?

A Yes. All those 12 years old before September 1, 1943, will be entitled to receive tea or coffee rations in their No. 3 books which are to be issued by Local Ration Boards during the week of August 23.

Q Is any penalty provided for non-compliance with the regulation requiring landlords to file copies of the form R C-40 and to furnish their tenants with other copies when they contract a new or altered lease ?

A Yes. The rental regulations provide for heavy penalties being imposed for such non-compliance and, as a matter of fact, several landlords in Eastern Ontario have been already fined in police court for failure to file these forms.

for homes are more than bricks and mortar—they are the spirit of caring for each other, of living together so that each one learns how to give his best. Imagine the impact on a community if, at home, each member of the family is quick with an apology, willing to sacrifice his point of view, his personal advantage and gain. A home where there is faith and courage, where the budget balances. Fear, strife, selfishness and habits of thrift lighten the burden of grown-ups; where the floors are as shining as the happy faces of the children; a home where people come to talk over the problems of the day and get new ideas and inspiration.

It is here — in the home — that the blue-print for the brave, new world can take shape and become a reality. For strong, selfless children will mean strong, selfless men and women in Government, business and industry. For back of every blueprint must be disciplined and fearless men and women who will lead the world back to sanity.

by JIM GREENBLAT, Editor of the SUN SWIFT CURRENT SASKATCHEWAN

Many of us get funny notions about members of Parliament. Sure they make speeches, but after watching them in action here for a while I guess they're just working men like you and me. For instance the other day I was talking with Olaf Hansen, member for Steena. B.C. He to'd me he had lost 14 pounds during the session. The stocky, grey haired son of the Vikings still talks with a delightful Scandinavian accent. His home port for many years was Prince Rupert, that booming, pulsating war baby become adult. Mr. Hansen in 1907 went after the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, walking the nearly one thousand miles from Edmonton to Prince Rupert through a wild country. He found the gold all right — but in lumber, pioneered and prospered.

The Prices Board order clamping down on further permits for storage of eggs until later in the year they tell me is primarily to stop speculative profits in storing and handling of eggs. You know Canada has a big job ahead of it this year. The production objective for 1943, according to the Agricultural Supplies Board, is to provide 345 million dozen eggs. Think of that, an increase of 26 per cent over 1942 and 41 per cent. over 1941. For domestic consumption they figure over 282 million dozen; a reserve of 11 million. Munitions and Supply estimate it will need seven and one-half million and the United Kingdom's need will probably be about 43 million dozen. That's cackling for victory in a big way.

In my rounds I also inquired about publication of the Sicilian campaign casualty lists, but find this can't be done for some time yet for security reasons. While one part of the Canadian army is still in one sector, like Sicily, such publication would give the enemy a fine chance to gauge losses, determine disposition, etc. However, when a paper has satisfied itself next-of-kin has been notified, it may refer to an individual.

Another interesting thing I was told is that official cameramen have been taking shots of the action in Sicily. These are sent on to London, then to the National Film Board in Ottawa. The people of Canada will be given the opportunity of seeing them through news reels in their local theatres.

CANNING SUGAR — All canning sugar coupons, however marked, may be used at any time before September 30 for the purchase of sugar for the home canning of fresh fruits. They must not be used for any other purpose, nor are they transferable.

NEW RATION BOOKS — No. 3 coupon ration books, to replace those now in use, will be distributed under the direction of Local Ration Boards during the week of August 23. Application cards in current books will be used, but these must neither be detached nor mailed. The books containing them, properly filled out, are to be taken or sent to distributing centres for the receipt of new ration books.

LATEST VICTORIES FAR-REACHING

BY LOUIS F. KEEMLE

The Russian victories at Orel and Belgorod and the British capture of Catania have a significance beyond their immediate military value.

Militarily, while important neither of them can be classed as decisive. The Russian advances possibly mean that the Red Army will be able to sweep the Germans back of the Dnieper, which it failed to accomplish in last winter's big offensive. This will become apparent if the Russians press on towards Smolensk, Bryansk and Kharkov, the remaining key points of the weakened German position on the whole central and south-eastern front.

The fall of Catania indicates the early crushing of the last German resistance on Sicily. The cleaning up of Sicily will facilitate an early landing on the Italian mainland by the Allies. The Italians do not capitulate.

Two other considerations may be more important, in the long view of the war. One is the evidence of the rapid decline of total German military strength — almost its collapse as far as offensive power is concerned. Germany is, of course, still strong defensively. The other is the possible effect on German morale and on the attitude of satellite and neutral countries.

Germany's inability to hold Sicily was apparent long before the fall of Catania. The capture of the city indicates that she is not going to be able to fight even much of a delayed action.

Events in Russia, however, are clear evidence of waning German strength. It was first indicated by the spectacular failure of the Nazi summer drive. Now the Germans are falter-ing before what is developing into a great Russian offensive. Their weakness is especially evident in the air.

The cumulative effect of German air loses in North Africa, Sicily and Northwestern Europe is beginning to show. The Allied bombardment of German air production facilities also may be an important factor.

All things should have an important effect on Germany's home morale and perhaps on that of her political and military satellites. Odds and evens for the ultimate decision: The war is up a jackpot for the Allies. Its purpose as just as it was when the argument was started four days or four years ago. Time has given a wider perspective to the issues and the forces involved. The latest simile is that of the iceberg. Only a relatively small part of the iceberg is visible above the water. The rest is submerged. But it is the part which supports the visible part. Without the invisible bulk the visible part would sink. Without the blind persistence of the people behind the armies, the armies would be helpless. Without certain raw materials, the Allies would be unable to continue the war. Hence the importance of the Allied decision to allow Sweden to export a limited amount of ball bearings, even though Sweden has allowed certain German troops to cross Swedish territory on their way to Norway. Sweden has received $125 million for the ball bearings, which will be subject to a heavy deduction.

A quick check on the production of used tires, for which no new tires will be made without a permit. Rubber is being diverted to more essential uses. Production of used tires is being increased. Railways appear to be doing their war effort job in a big way. The Canadian Railway war effort was reached by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Revenue freight tonnage for the first six months of 1943 showed an increase of 12 per cent over the corresponding total of 1942, the figures being 127,770,000 in 1943 and 114,277,000 in 1942.

Why is there a shortage of sunflower seed? Because production of sunflower seed is down. To keep the Canadian poultry and livestock industry going, it is necessary to import sunflower seed. Last year Canada imported 1,000,000 bushels of sunflower seed to be used for the production of sunflower seed oil, a hundred million pounds of which is used in the manufacture of soap. This year Canada will import only 18 pounds of sunflower seed. This is about eight pounds per acre.

ORIGIN OF "ETIQUETTE"

The French word "etiquette" means a label or ticket. Some say that it comes from the custom of placing on the gate or entrance to the garden at Versailles a card or ticket to put out because the King was coming over his beautiful grounds and that trespassers be placed liable to arrest. Others say it comes from the custom of providing the ambassadors with instructions as to the proper path.

At first haughty courtiers disdained to notice these printed slips, but a hint from high authority that walks in future must be taken only on "etiquettes" compelled their attendance.

This, according to the story, originated our present use of the word "etiquette."

HOW DITTY BAGS SENT TO SAILORS GOT THEIR NAME

With patriotic organizations and individuals preparing "comfort" ditty bags to be sent to the lads of the Canadian Navy, inquiry has been made as to the origin of the name "ditty bag."

According to The Burlington Gazette, it dates back to Nelson's time when British girls packed dainty bags of needles and cotton, for the sailors to enclose in the packages they sent only the name of the sender. Some added verses, such as "Roses are red, violets are blue." This habit of including verse with the gift led to the name "ditty bag."

FOURTH LINE W. A.

Rev. S. C. H. and Mrs. Atkinson were hosts to the Fourth Line W.A. at the Morven parsonage on Tuesday afternoon with a goodly percentage of the members out. An excellent programme on "Stewardship" was prepared and given by Mrs. C. F. Denyes. Poems suitable to the topic were read by the following members, Mesdames C. F. Reid, C. B. Vansickle, E. A. Wright and Harve Reid. The devotional part of the program was in charge of the president, Mrs. J. E. Hagerman, and several matters of important business were dealt with. The motto was in charge of Mrs. Harve Reid who chose the current book of Lloyd C. Douglas "The Robe" and synopsized it beautifully to fit in with the theme of her motto "Be ye doers of the Word not hearers only." This was very much enjoyed by the members.

A social half hour followed the close of the meeting and the hostess, Mrs. Atkinson and the members of her committee served delicious refreshments. As the guests were seated at the table, Mrs. C. F. Reid read a brief address to an old member, Mrs. William Robson, who has since moved away. Miss Mona Hagerman presented the guest of honor with a beautiful electric table lamp as a gift and the best wishes of her Fourth Line friends. Somewhat nonplussed by the turn of events, Mrs. Robson expressed the appreciation of Mr. Robson and herself for the lovely gift and the members sang "She is a jolly good fellow." The Robson family have been, for many years, active members of Fourth Line and their removal has been keenly felt.

A hearty vote of thanks was expressed to the Rev. and Mrs. Atkinson, the program and lunch committee and to all who had made the afternoon so delightful.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Wright and the programme is in charge of Mrs. Harold Robson.

Women And The Post-War World

IN THE HOME

Women are front page news these days. Alongside of our men in the Navy, Army and Air Force, as well as on the Production front, we are giving ourselves completely to the job of winning the war. Are we just as ready to return to our homes to build the framework of the just and lasting peace ? Won't we will the spirit from that men must have to continually inspire them to think, plan and work for the country; so that they put all the energy and sacrifice into building peace that they have put into fighting the war.

Here is the job for women, and homes can be the production centres for the new world. For to run a home can be a really thrilling adventure. If building a better world just took the brains of clever men it would be simple — because there are plenty of clever men — and splendid new systems could be evolved. But it isn't new systems we need, it's new men and women, free from fear, greed and hate, caring more for their country than for personal ambition.

First, we women must accept a new value for our homes. We must re-capture the art of home-making;

VOL. HOGGARD CONDUCTS MEETING AT S.A. CITADEL

The Salvation Army comrades and friends, who gathered during last week-end will long remember the visit to Napanee of Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Hoggard of Toronto. The Colonel's visits were more than inspiring with his wide knowledge of the Bible and his messages to be most realistic and definite.

Sunday Rally was held on Sunday afternoon and a very fine representation of Napanee's youth was gathered to hear the Colonel. "Youth of the New World" was the topic that the Colonel handled this exceedingly well showing how training young people in the past in the home and Germany, differs from that in Canada. His personal experience of life in the Orient proved to be most interesting to the young people.

Before closing questions were put by some of the young folk and the Colonel answered these expressing the fact that unless future p'ans for peace were based upon Spiritual foundations then he believed the world would yet again be plunged into even a more terrible period of war.

Memorial Service For Cpl. Fred Punchard at Sandhurst

On Sunday evening, August 15th, at St. Paul's Church, Sandhurst, a Memorial Service was conducted by the Rector, Rev. C. C. Brazill, L.Th., for the late Corporal Fred Punchard, who was killed in action on July 19th, in Sicily. The church was filled and extra seating accommodation had to be provided. A sign of the esteem in which this young man was held in the district. The hymns: "Pleasant are Thy courts above", "Let saints on earth in concert ring", There is no night in heaven" and, "Abide with Me" were sung and the music was under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Sills, organist.

The rector based his address on the great text from St. Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians "Wherefore my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always bounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." He reminded his hearers that although one might die young in years, one's work was finished and one's purpose fulfilled in this world. In the case of the young men who so willingly are laying down their lives in battle, it is that the world might be a better place in which to live and that Christianity might play the part it ought to play in the lives of men and women everywhere.

During the offering the Rector sang the hymn "O valiant hearts, who to your glory came Through dust of conflict and through battle flame;
Tranquil now be, your mighty virtue proved,
Your memory hallowed in the land you loved."

CALL-UP AGE EXTENDED FOR YOUNG MEN AND MARRIED MEN

Boys of 18 to Report For Military Training

Boys reaching the age of 18 years this year and married men up to 25 years of age are to be subject to call for compulsory military service according to an order just issued by Labor Minister Mitchell.

Boys of 18, while subject to military call, will not be served with notice to report for medical examination until they reach the age of 18 years and six months.

Up to the present married men up to 25 years of age were subject to call The new extension applies to men married before July, 1940.

The last extension of the callable groups was made in December, 1942, when the minimum age was dropped from 20 to 19, and married men up to the age of 25 were made subject to call.

The present extension comes just three years after the start of compulsory mobilization with the taking of the national registration in August, 1940. The first call-up was of single men in their early twenties, who were required to report for 30 days' training and then permitted to return to civilian life while awaiting a further call.

In March, 1941, the training period was extended to four months, and in April, 1941, an order was made requiring all men called to remain on duty for the duration of the war. Since then, there has been a progressive extension of the callable age groups until the present situation, where single men from 18 to 40 and married men from 19 to 39 are callable.

Convict Young Man of Theft of Money From Conway Store

Ernest Sernson, Selby, Bay, one of a quartette of young people charged with the theft of $40.00 from the general store of Archie Wright, Conway, on August 4th was found guilty by Magistrate Garvin on Thursday and was sentenced to pay a fine of $75.00 or serve three months in said $50.00 of the amount to be paid to Sernson as he has given to Mr. Wright to reimburse him for his loss.

Edmund H. Wright, father of Mr. Archie Wright, who was in charge of the store the day of the robbery said in his evidence that Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bossono and Ernest Sernson, Mrs. Bossono's brother came to the store about 4 p.m. on August 4th. He said Mrs. Bossono was bags of popcorn and Mr. Bossono three gallons of coal oil. Which Bossono paid for before the oil was measured out. Bossono went into the rear of the store with Mr. Wright to get the coal oil and when they went back to the store Mr. Wright said, Mrs. Bossono and her brother had gone to the car which was parked in front of the store and that Bossono carried after them and started the car and left immediately. Raymond Sernson, another brother of Mrs. Bossono had remained in the car. Another customer, Randall French, came into the store just as Bossono had left $61 in the till in the morning. Some money was taken in during the day and only two fives and a ten dollar bill were left. He stated he was positive the money was in the till when the Bossonos and young Sernson came into the store.

Randall French told of going to the Wright store to get candy and seeing Bossono leave in a hurry just as he was about to enter the store. He said that Bossono's car was headed east and model an 1941 or 1942 and started along Bay Road which enters No. 33 Highway at the west end of the village. When the car was started by Bossono Mr. French said it threw gravel. When he came to the store he was told by Mrs. Bossono that Mr. French's car had gone by and immediately called his son and started after the Bossono car and after the police had been notified.

Constable Grimes, Bruce Cuthill said when he learned the store had been robbed he also started after the Bossono car and came upon it on the Hamburg Road, where it was found on account of a punctured tire. In searching the ground near where the car was parked, Mr. Cuthill said he found a twenty-five cent piece in the dust which apparently had not been there long.

Traffic Officer Meeden and Provincial Constable Taylor told of being called by Mr. Wright and of searching the Bossono car and the inmates for the stolen money, which they failed to recover.

Mr. Bossono, Mrs. Bossono and Ernest Sernson emphatically denied having taken the money and having any knowledge of the theft.

The Magistrate in giving his verdict said that he was always inclined to give credibility to the truthfulness of elderly citizens of rural districts, such as Mr. Edmund Wright. He was quite satisfied that Mr. and Mrs. Bossono and young Sernson were the only persons in the store at the time the theft took place and was convinced the money was taken when Mrs. Bossono and Sernson were alone in the store. He also stated he was not deciding the case on the basis of a pre-arranged plan as was dismissing the charges against Mr. and Mrs. Bossono and Raymond Sernson.

W. H. Wickin, Kingston, appeared for the four accused and K. S. Hall, Crown Attorney, conducted the case for the Crown.

Raymond Bossono pleaded guilty to having in his possession loose gasoline coupons and was ordered to pay a fine of $25.00 plus costs or serve one month in gaol.

MUSSOLINI SAID DROWNED

The New York Post said last week that "according to reports in circles frequently well informed," Benito Musso'ini was drowned in a submarine attempting to escape from Italy.

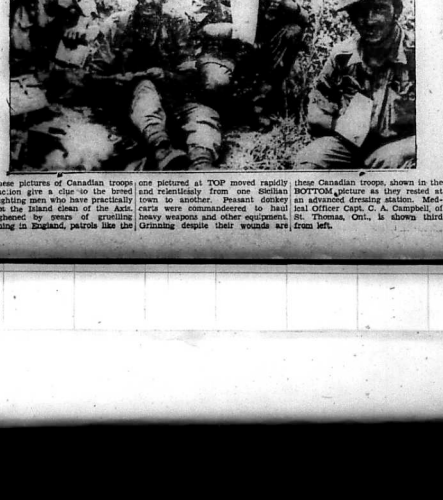
Mussolini, the newspaper said was reported to have boarded the sub "probably at Leghorn, within a short interval of the sub's departure and fall."

"The submarine," the Post said, "reportedly was spotted by Allied Airmen, who bombed it repeatedly and sent it to the bottom."

Whether the Allies were informed that the former Italian dictator was aboard, was not known, the newspaper said.

The Post gave no additional clue to the source of the story which it carried without dateline.

Canucks Long Training Speeds Progress in Sicily



These pictures of Canadian troops in action give a clue to the breed of fighting men who have practically swept the Island clean of the Axis. Toughened by years of gruelling training in England, patrols like the one pictured at TOP moved rapidly and relentlessly from one Sicilian town to another. SHIP BUILDING

In the days of the old wooden ships Canada held an enviable place among ship building nations. As steel took the place of wood in the construction of ships and engines supplanted sails as a means of providing power the number of vessels coming off the ways gradually declined. In the early days of the present century this once flourishing business had diminished to the point where ship builders were required for little more than repair work. It is one of the most cherished memories of those who happened to be boys in the Maritimes about that time to have played around the "slips" where schooners, barques, brigs or full-rigged ships were in for repairs. To smell pitch, soaked okum and to hear the tap, tap of the caulkers as they drove it in between the deck boards or hull planking is a never to be forgotten experience, reminiscent of a day now gone.

Ship building had become all but a lost art in Canada until the outbreak of the present war. But under the impetus of present hostilities a remarkable change has taken place. In the July issue of "Canada at War" it gives some impressive figures of the progress that has been made in constructing steel vessels of one sort or another. By the end of May of this year we are told 168 freighters had been launched and of these 141 had been delivered. All but 4 of these were 10,000 ton vessels, the others were 4,700 tonners. "Freighters delivered, under construction or on order number 300." Twelve Canadian yards are engaged in this work and 43,000 workers are employed at it

But this is not all. In addition to the merchant ships on which will be spent one fifth of the $1,000,000,000 ship building appropriation, Canada is embarked on a rather ambitious naval ship building programme. Up to June 1 contracts had been placed for 424 frigates, corvettes and steel minesweepers. By the end of June 221 had been launched.

Besides this there are about 65 smaller boat builders with 4,000 employees making small craft, such as lifeboats and patrol boats. On this small craft programme more than $16,000,000 has been spent.

This is a record of which we as a nation of eleven million may well be proud. The modern builders are maintaining the tradition of their predecessors, and their reputation

RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT

Looking back over the past few years it is evident to even the most unthinking and unobservant that we have lived through days of great changes, changes so vast that they have revolutionized our whole mode of living. The advent of the internal combustion engine has affected every life on the planet and the more recent discovery and development of radio has had an equally great effect on the life of the people even in the most remote corner of the world.

What is not so easily discernible is that changes in the political and social realms have been taking place which are just as great as those which have been brought about by the gasoline engine and the radio. We are living in one of the great periods of history. We need no longer look forward with eagerness or fear to a coming revolution. We are living through that revolution now. Nobody can be blind to these changes who would know the world he lives in and yet that is the hardest thing for some people to recognize and to admit. The world of politics and of business today is as different from the world of Laurier or Sir John A. Macdonald as the world of the Lancaster bomber and the radio locator at is to the horse and buggy and the old water wheel grist mill.

This change is a world change. It is not confined to any one nation. Indeed the whole world is in ferment. Evidences of that are on every hand. Canada can no more stand outside that changing scene than it can go back from the electric washer to the zinc covered rubbing board. Recent election returns indicate the upsurge of the human spirit. The social programmes of the political parties are indicative of this movement. Time was when Governments were concerned almost wholly with foreign policies. Today no government could win the support of the people without a platform of deep concern for the social well-being of every last man and woman in the country. Those who seek office on the basis of leaving things as they are, or or the anti-bellum status quo are out of touch with life. Fortunately for us in Ontario the Progressive Conservative party which assumes power, has by the 22-point programme of proposed reforms demonstrated that it is not unaware of the changes that are taking place in man's thinking.

NO UNNECESSARY RISKS

There is something almost breath taking in the way that Prime Minister Churchill gets around. One day we hear of an address he has given or a meeting he has attended in London, and the next thing we hear about him is that he is in Washington, Casa Blanca or Quebec. He has been blessed with good health, but apparently he knows enough not to undertake more than is necessary. When he was at Niagara Falls someone suggested he should climb the long steps up the Brock Monument. "Not for me," he said, "that may do for others but not for me." We are justified in assuming from this that even though the Prime Minister gets around with seeming recklessness he does not take unnecessary risks with his health. We should be deeply grateful for this.

In global war grand strategy has to be worked on a grand scale. There must be frequent meetings of leaders That modern transportation and the temperament and good health of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt make it possible for the heads of the two democracies to meet so frequently is a cause for great satisfaction and profound gratitude.

IN THE MAKING

Great events are in the making in Quebec. Probably never before have so many men of authority in the Councils of the Allied Nations met together. The leaders of the two great democracies, the chief of staffs of these nations, technical advisors from every branch of the service have taken temporary residence in the beautiful Chateau overlooking the St. Lawrence.

What it is all about — we may never know. Cryptic and laconic bulletins will be issued, press reports telling of the interviews with the leading figures, will provide interesting and voluminous "copy" At the end of the conference a brief statement will be issued to the press. That is all. But behind this facade of personal interviews and official statements great decisions will be made, decisions that will probably mark the direction which the war will take in the next few months or more. The phenomenal success of the Russian summer campaign, the increased tempo of the war against Italy and the internal changes that are taking place in that unhappy nation have made it necessary not only to review the position of the United Nation's forces, but as well to revise the time table and to plan a long way ahead. A master plan must be worked out. A survey will probably be made of all the resources available, air, navy and land, as well as the production schedules and available food supplies and transport facilities. Each of the partners must know what the other thinks, and a complete understanding arrived at. Only in this way will it be possible to embark on the next phase of the war absolutely assured that the total effort of the United Nations is being channelled into the most efficient and intelligent means of defeating the enemy.

When Hitler sent his troops against France he told them that their actions would determine the course of history for the next thousand years. He quite likely told the truth. But the course that history will take as a result of that action may not be the one which Hitler had in mind. The direction may very well depend on the decisions arrived

Two Major Problems Before Conference

For once Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill are going in conference without employing the customary smoke-screen of secrecy, and as a matter of fact, haven't even attempted to conceal the approach of what is likely to be one of the most momentous meetings of the war.

This doesn't mean that the forthcoming parley will be held in the open for all to hear. We are left to figure out for ourselves what questions will be debated at this critical moment. Still the trend of events indicates that there are at least two major problems with which the conference will be concerned and they are these.

1—The opening up of that much and warmly debated front in Western Europe, so as to capitalize to the full the amazing success of the Red offensive.

2—The post-war policy which will bring the best co-operation among Britain, the United States and Russia in particular, and the other Allies in general. This contemplates the probability that the Muscovites are likely to emerge from the war as the dominant power in both Europe and the Orient.

These questions would seem to be the urgent because of the unexpected speediness of the Allied successes both in Russia and in the Mediterranean theatre. Plans which were made at the last meeting of the Allied chiefs presumably need bringing up to date.

From the military standpoint the question would seem to be what we do when we have finished with Sicily. There has been considerable talk of a quick invasion of the Italian mainland, to take advantage of the patent weakness there. However, the more one contemplates the task of invading and subduing the peninsula as the next major move, the less attractive it appears — a lot of labor for a return of doubtful value. The conquest of Italy has lost much of its fire, what with the deflation of Mussolini and the relegation of Fascism to the ash-can.

The nut we want to crack is Hitler, and we want to get at him the quickest way possible.

The Russians again are urgently pointing out that the speedy way to smash Hitler's power is to open up that new front in France, while the Germans have the Nazis on the run in the east. This would "place the Boche between two mighty millstones."

That's the logical move, providing the Anglo-American Allies are capable of undertaking what undoubtedly would be one of the greatest, and most dangerous operations of the whole war — a landing in France from across Northern sensus of military men all along the line is that the only way to defeat Hitler is to annihilate his armies on the battle field and this would involve an invasion of Europe through the historic war routes of France, if the war isn't to drag on interminably.

The Allies are to undertake such an invasion it can't long be delayed. The summer is rushing by with its good fighting weather, and the opportunity presented by the Russian offensive may slip away with the arrival of autumn.

Occupation of the Italian peninsula wouldn't take us appreciably near our main objective. On the contrary, now that the Germans have been able to fortify the line of the Po River across Northern Italy, the conquering of the country would take considerable time and involve heavy fighting.

The Allies might be able to take over the lower three-quarters of Italy below Po River defences without a great struggle. But what would that get us? The only military objectives of great value are those in the hands of the Boche north of the Po. When we fought our way up to the Po we should find that our main achievement had been basically ourselves with the Government and maintenance of some 20,000,000 out of Italy's population of 43,000,000.

Invasion of the Balkans wouldn't bring against Hitler from two sides the quick and heavy pressure which Moscow believes would wind the war up quickly. That alternative seems to be a blow through France, and one reason for this to be figure largely in the Churchill-Roosevelt conference.

HELICOPTERS ARE COMING

Must Still Overcome Difficulties, However

It is too early, varied aviation interests indicated, to figure on using the garage roof as a port for your helicopter . . . but don't put the idea entirely aside.

Aviation people in business, government and the armed forces shy away from predictions for the helicopter. Just at the moment the military has the helicopter under a blanket, and nothing like the flurry of publicity which occurred during the spring can be expected for a while. It seemed from numerous inquiries that:

1 The helicopter has excellent possibilities in the short range field, but

2. It has at present some "bugs" which must — and emaliy will be — ironed out before engineers feel certain. will be worked out to make it practical.

The helicopter flies vertically and horizontally. It hovers like a humming bird by using rotating planes or blades above the body of the craft. The blades provide the lift as well as the propulsion, which can be in any direction. Landings and take offs are at zero miles per hour.

The possibilities in such a flying machine were recognized in 260 applications for route certificates filed with the United States Civil Aeronautics Board during this spring and early summer. A score of companies have asked for routes.

Before civilian models become available, however military models must be improved. Vibration is reported to be a serious handicap.

The civilian models will require approval of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, which is awaiting an opportunity to test the helicopter for safety, ease of operation and serviceability.

Prices Board Berated

Toronto — It H. Stephens, member of the Toronto Board of Control told the Board of Control last he had "absolutely no faith" in Consumers Branch of Prices Board. He added that he based remark on a twenty-cent rise to rising costs of food from vegetables.

Controller Saunders wrote in a letter to the Board, to R. L. Daley, Minister of Finance, said the members had not sufficient knowledge of the consumer sentiment across. Prices Board Board of Control, and asked Controller to reply to letter to Finance Minister.

"We are sufficiently informed," Hennessy replied. "In April, the Consumer Branch of Wartime Prices and Trade told us that prices must be frozen while every housewife was crying about the steep increases."

He said the Prices Board had nothing to rectify a person's opinion unless it was based on greater quantities of the vegetables in storage at March 1, 1943, the same date of 1942.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON AUGUST 23rd, 1943

"GOD GIVES LAWS TO THE PEOPLE"

LESSON TEXT: Exodus 23: 1-9. — GALATIANS 3: 23-26; 5: 13-25

Exodus 20-23 is known as the Book of Covenant. These chapters contain the rules and regulations by which the people of Israel were to live in an organized way. The background is that of a simple form of life. But the general principles which are laid down in those chapters form the moral basis for laws in all civilized countries.

The first two verses of the lesson the injunctions are simple indeed — "Thou shalt not take up a false report". But simple as it is, yet even in our own modern world it has to be emphasized. A vicious campaign has had to be conducted in every Allied country against careless talk. "Careless talk costs lives." We are familiar with the posters and the radio announcements which drive home this message. It has many applications beside war. It is always a safe policy for one to be sure of his facts before repeating them, and of the effect such repetition will have on others.

The next has to do with the use of dumb animals. If an ass goes astray it has to be brought back. A simple command but one which was quite probably essential in a simple form of society. Today we have reached a stage in which stray animals are placed, from science they may be led to their owners.

Poor are to have justice done them, not necessarily because they are poor, but because being poor they are so often the victims of the rich and powerful. The strong in our own day do not hesitate to make use of human weaknesses for their own satisfaction and their own personal advantage. Justice is the right of all whether rich or poor, weak or strong.

Bribes are ruled out. Quite probably the bribes which are suggested are of a very simple kind. In our modern complex society they take many and varied forms. We are not unfamiliar with pressure groups in politics, and various "blocks" with their lobbies. Few who have had any part in modern politics but know the regularity with which in the way of the elected representatives. Money is provided for certain purposes, and those who provide it expect a reward of one sort or another.

The "price spreads" introduced a few years back were designed in an extent that would help to guard against bribery and corruption.

The New Testament section is from Galatians, one of Paul's letters by which men's relations to God were superseded by the law of Christ. In the days before the religious life of the Hebrew people was organized under definite rules. To break them was a sin to keep them assured of rewards. All of this Paul had made way for "faith" in Christ. Since Christ came, millions of race and nationalities have done away. All are one in Christ whether Jew or Greek. Paul had accepted as a universal truth a few years back. But of late much bitterness in the Christian province and Dominion. The conception of blood and race is a titanic struggle in which the issue is the moment engaged. It is a sense a clash between these two ideas.

The basis or our whole civilization way of life, says Paul, is that we should "love our neighbor as ourselves." With so much hatred and bitterness in the world today words have a strange ring to them, and yet they constitute the basis of practical christianity. We can make this the sort of world which God had in mind when he created it, only when we exercise love to others which He has shown towards us. That is not an easy task with which God has confronted it is the most difficult of all assignments. But it is the greatest in results. The world will come only when each of us tries all life. New Selective Service Program Approved

Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, announced last week Government approval of a seven-point program for reorganization of National Selective Service under which its administration will be "strengthened, broadened and as far as practical, de-centralized."

Objectives Summarized

Mr. Mitchell summarized the objectives of the plan, recommended by Arthur MacNamara, director of Selective Service, as follows:

1. Creation of an administration board at headquarters in Ottawa.

2. The selection of a judge to act as deputy-head on the civilian side of Selective Service.

3. Division of the work on an industrial classification basis.

4. Creation of regional directors and regional advisory boards "so that many matters of an be adjusted in the regions rather than at Ottawa."

Mr. Mitchell said there will be an associate director at head office in charge of the various divisions including one for war industries and one for essential civilian services. These two men will keep in close touch with the requirements of the Munitions & Department and the Prices Board.

"By having representatives of the Mobilization Board and the Department of Munitions and Supply and one from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board on the Regional Advisory Board," said Mr. Mitchell, "a very much closer linked activity can be carried out which will produce better co-ordination and greater use of joint staffs of the four departments mainly concerned with men and women for the armed forces, manpower for war industries and manpower for essential civilian services."

Plan Detailed

Mr. MacNamar's seven-point expansion plan follows:

1. An administration board of full-time personnel consisting of:—

Director of National Selective Service; associate director (mobilization-military); associate director (general civilian) (a judge to be selected); associate director (French speaking); associate director (essential civilian services); associate director (public relations and staff training); associate, director (war industries); associate director (labor relations); associate director (legal interpretations); associate director (women employment); director of employment service and secretary the directors of National Selective Service Board and director of planning).

The director shall be chairman of the board and the judge selected will be vice-chairman.

2. Members of the administration board not already on the National Selective Service advisory board shall become members thereof.

3. Assistant associate directors at head office for:

Mobilization; fuel, mining, and lumbering and logging; farm labor; priorities (chairman of committee); fishing and canning industries; war industries; essential civilian services and women em-

SUMMER or winter, when nature cuts loose with a blitzkrieg of wind, torrential rains, lightning, ice, sleet or snow most people hurry for cover . . . and stay there. But not Hydro maintenance crews. For them a storm is the zero hour . . . and task forces go forth to battle.

● Last winter's sleet storm in Eastern Ontario is but one example of their work. Hours of freezing rain followed by a blizzard sheathed the district in ice and snow. Streets and roads were blocked by a fantastic tangle of poles, trees and wire. Hundreds of Hydro poles were down. Country roads blocked with snow.

● Within a few hours over 200 Hydro men were on the job. Supplies were rushed to strategic points. Men and trucks went to work . . . line breaks were repaired, broken poles replaced, wire restrung. Point by point the battling "storm troopers" restored the flow of Hydro to war production plants, factories, farms and homes . . . pushed relentlessly ahead, day and night, until the job was done.

● The work of Hydro maintenance crews is one of unrelenting vigilance. Power must go through regardless of conditions. Across Ontario, Hydro men are on the alert twenty-four hours a day . . . ready, at all times, to combat any storm . . . ready to meet any emergency . . . ready to stay on the job until power is again flowing . . . doing their part in helping Ontario's war-geared industries speed the supply of Victory munitions to the battle-fronts of the world.

"Forced Sales" are Illegal

PURCHASE OF EXTRA GOODS MUST NOT BE DEMANDED

The Prices Board Tuesday issued an order, effective immediately, making it illegal for a merchant to require a customer to buy additional goods when purchasing other goods which are in short supply. Exceptions are made for any practices of the kind which were established during or before the basic period, September 15 to October 11, 1941, and the order does not apply to goods distributed under provincial direction, such as alcoholic beverages.

The order will not interfere with the sale of articles ordinarily sold in sets. The board's announcement said there has been evidence of an increasing tendency on the part of some merchants to impose new conditions when selling goods that are in short supply.

"This is contrary to the general principles of price control and equitable distribution," the board said. "The board does not want to prevent a merchant form refusing to sell to casual customers goods in short supply, because in many cases this practice assists in maintaining equitable distribution.

"Typical of such cases would be that a merchant who, retains for his customers who have children goods for which children have special need. However, it is clearly contrary to the public interest that unnecessary purchases of any goods be encouraged."

I.F.S. AT DESERONTO FIRST IN CANADA TEACHING BEAM FLYING

Official Information About Procedure

At Old Mohawk Field, near Deseronto, where some of Canada's fledgling pilots of the first Great War learned to fly by the seat of their pants, a new generation of airminded Canadians are learning advanced R.C.A.F. techniques of flying by instrument.

The R.C.A.F. told last week in a press release how these youngsters, with the aid of "beam approach," can return to their home airfields and land safely, no matter how black the night or dense the fog.

The new training station is No. 1 I.F.S., the first instrument flying training school to be set up in Canada and the only school among the Allied air forces to combine on one station instruction courses in beam approach, technical training, and link trainer. Commanding Officer is Wing Commander D. F. MacDonald, of the R.A.F., reputed to be one of the greatest R.A.F authorities on instrument flying.

No. 1 I.F.S. is still under construction, but training has been under way for more than two months.

PLAN EXPANDED

With the output of trained instructors anticipated from the Deseronto school, it is proposed to set up "beam approach" flights at all twin-engine service flying training schools across Canada so that bomber pilots graduating under the Commonwealth Air Training plan will be well grounded in this newly-developed system of "homing" and controlled "let down" while they are still in the training stage.

"Beam" flying was brought to its present stage of perfection after trouble with Nazi "intruder" aircraft, which used to wait over British aerodromes and pick off, by the lights on the landing field, aircraft returning from raids over Europe.

Commercial airlines for some years have used radio beams to guide aircraft between airports. The R.A.F., however, has developed a radio technique for the pilot himself, capable of direction with knowledge of position over the airfield, so pilots can come in for a safe landing even when they can't see the ground until they are within a few score feet of it.

SIMPLE IN THEORY

In theory, it is simplicity itself. From one end of the airdrome, in line with the longest runway, projects a narrow radio beam. If a pilot hears dots, he knows he is on one side of the beam. If he hears dashes he knows he must steer in the other direction. If he hears a steady hum, he knows he is steering in the centre of the correct line of flight. Over the airfield, the beam is slightly narrower than the actual width of the runway, so the pilot knows that so long as he is "on the beam" he also is on the runway.

At intervals from the airfield in line with the beam, are other radio signals which dengte the aircraft's position. When the pilot hears the first one, for example, he knows he is two miles away and that if he remains "on the beam" and approaches at a fixed rate of descent from a predetermined height, he is sure to hit the runway "on the button."

From a mathematical point of view, it's easy. The correct technique in making the proper turns and calculations, however, must be drilled in to pilots until they are letter perfect. They also must be well-versed in reading instruments, for they have nothing else to guide them in judging where they are or how high they are from the ground.

DESERONTO "FIRST"

The Deseronto station has the first "beagp" in Canada. On days when aircraft at other fields in Canada were chained to the ground by low-lanying clouds and fog, aircraft were flying at Deseronto. They've flown every day and five nights a week since the station opened in April. Icing is the only flying hazard they fear; for it renders aircraft unserviceable and is apt to freeze over the instrument apertures.

The school also is turning out instructors for the link trainer, the ingenious "ground aircraft" which can do everything but takeoff, land, or do loops.

From a third course will graduate instructors and maintenance crews to install and repair the aircraft and ground equipment used for "beam" approach radio communication.

At first regarded as a sort of "black magic," the "beam" approach can be learned by anyone who can fly on instruments. Those taking "beam" approach training here are proficient service flying school instructors, picked for their instrument flying ability and their only task is to adapt their ability to "beam" approach procedure.

GRADUAL PROCESS

Trainees are first converted to the type of aircraft used at Deseronto, twin-engined Cranes. Then they take a few hours of instrument flying as a refresher. Flying by day "on the beam" and practising the proper turns for the "let down" are the next steps. During this period they actually are flying "blind." A canvas hood, with dot landmarks on the pupil's side, although the instructor's side is left clear to forestall mid-air crashes. Next they do night flying by instrument, one of the most important phases of their course.

In the R.A.F. modern instrument flying goes back to 1927. Considerable time was spent in developing the best procedure for a standard "beam" approach and the first "beam" was installed in 1936. Since then many score have been placed in active operation abroad.

Gardeners Warned To Watch for Potato Blight

Ontario Department of Agriculture
Lennox & Addington County Branch
C. W. W. Buchanan, B.S.A.
Agricultural Representative

Late Blight and Rot of Potatoes, the most destructive disease of potatoes in the Province, has already made its appearance on a few farms in Lennox and Addington County. Weather such as we have had the past week, and which may continue, is the main factor in spreading this disease. The only reliable remedy known is thorough applications of Bordeaux mixture applied to the plants. This material can be secured in the ready mixed form, which is the most convenient for small patches of potatoes. However, the home mixing of the material for larger fields of potatoes is more economical. Bordeaux consists of a mixture of 4 lbs. of blue stone, 6 lbs. of Hydrated Lime to 40 gallons of water.

A simple method of making this preparation is to dissolve the 4 lbs. of blue stone in 20 gallons of water, using a wooden barrel. Hang the blue stone in a small bag suspended in the water and it will dissolve in a few hours. In another container dissolve the 6 lbs. of hydrated lime in 20 gallons of water. By using equal quantities of these two materials you have the preparation known as "Bordeaux Mixture." It is always well to stir the solution before mixing as some of the material may settle in the bottom of the container. A sprayer is the most satisfactory way of applying the material and care should be taken that all parts of the plants are covered as the disease may spread on the under side of the leaves as well as the upper surface and unless the material is over the entire surface the disease may gain a foothold and spread all over the plant.

Even applying the Bordeaux mixture with the sprinkling can is better than not applying it at all and the foliage should be kept well covered.

Blue stone may be purchased at 15c per lb. and Hydrated Lime at 1½c per lb. A 40 gallon spray barrel of the mixture can be made up for 75c.

If potato beetles are prevalent arsenate of lime, at the rate of 2 lbs. to 40 gallons of water may be added and should be added as a control measure.

40 gallons is sufficient; for one application to a half acre of potatoes. The material should be applied at every week if the weather continues wet. This should be continued for several weeks until the plants have finished their growth. If only one-half barrel is required, of course, one-half of the quantities should be used. The material will keep separately but it is not satisfactory after the solutions are mixed.

All potato growers would be well advised to apply this material at once for we may not have a repetition of last years losses in potato crop.

Copies of the publication, "Making Bordeaux Mixture" are available for distribution at this office.

A recent Dominion publication, "Wartime Canning, Jams and Jellies," is also available for distribution and should be of special interest to housewives at this time.

We are pleased to mail copies of bulletins to anyone who does not find it convenient to call here for them.

OTTAWA ORDERS EXPORT BANS

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES INCLUDED

The Trade and Commerce Department announced today that export permits will be required for the shipment from Canada of certain fruits and vegetables and also of action on grapes and cabbages removed from light crops.

On and after August 16th permits will be required for shipments of apples, pears, cabbages, tomatoes and grapes to any destination outside Canada.

Export permits also will be required for the shipment of birch and maple logs, flooring and lumber to any country except the United Kingdom.

The department said the light vegetable and fruit crops indicated that cabbage and grape tonnage would not meet home demands. Tomatoes are in particularly heavy demand for canning and preparing tomato juice.

Short fruit crops also have created a heavier demand for pectin, used to save fruit in jam and jelly making, resulting in a growing shortage of this commodity.

The critical timber situation" was given as the reason for tightening export control over birch and maple exports.

The department also announced that the export permit requirement will be dropped for imported fruits, other than apples, peaches, pears, plums and cherries when they are being sent to any part of the British Empire or United States.

"While the movements of imported fruits through Canada is not permitted large this exemption will be helpful to shippers of bananas, oranges, lemons, bananas, etc. to destinations like Newfoundland," said the department.

A 10c. box of WALLACE'S PRESERVINO POWDERS is sufficient for dozens of quarts of fruit!

A Good Time Was Had by All!

(Contributed)

A fisheies fishing party and shore dinner was held last Wednesday afternoon by the Senior Members of the Lennox and Addington Fish and Game Protective Association for the Junior Members and their friends of 12 to 15 years of age.

Arriving at Sans Souci on time, they found Harry Vine's palatial Ark, "The Never Sink" was ready and willing. After food arrangements were taken, orders were given for casting off, and to the delight of all, the engine started on the first down.

After fourteen Captains had given their orders they headed for the "promised land" which proved to be all Wet. When no fish started jumping into the boat, a popular Greek, who owns a restaurant in Napanee, started offering big money for the one who brought in the first fish. But he must be mistaken in his necessity and really comes from the land of the kilts, as he caught the first, and only fish.

Under a freshening breeze the waves rolled high and Mike Fisher got a shower bath, but no extra charge was made for that. It took about three hours to consume pop, cookies and whatnot, that appeared on every deck and as the fish didn't bite, a real banquet, a three-course meal, of crabs, frogs and "fisheye" worms, they waved us goodby and said "See you next week."

To get rid of the odor of defeat, a popular vote decided for a swim and there the fun was renewed, except in the case of Rae (Nig) Adams. He dove in dressed as the law requires but when he came up he was minus all he took with him and the last seen of him, he was doing the tame seal act until the sun went down.

The bugle coon blew "Come and Get It" and the climax and grand finale was watching the hot dog eating contest. The winner was the son of a Napanee doctor who just put eleven out of sight in jig time, and if a false start had not been made, who knows how many more. We trust they all slept well.

Her veil of embroidered bridal net fell from a Queen Anne coronet and she carried a bouquet of white gladioli and bouvardia. Mrs. H. Cheesman, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, in a floor-length blue sheer gown with an embroidered bodice and long full sleeves. Sylvia Follis was junior bridesmaid in a charming gown of floor-length apricot taffeta. Both carried colonial nosegays, the matron of honor having pink roses and baby's breath, and the bridesmaid forget-me-nots and Johanna Hill roses.

The best man was Mr. Maurice Harvey of Hamilton, and the ushers were Sgt. Hugh Cheesman, R.C.O.C., London, and Pte. Eric Edmondson of Peterborough.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Murphy, 508 Patterson St., at which her mother received in a gown of French blue with navy accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore grey crepe with black accessories. Both were corsages of pastel shaded sweetpeas.

When the couple left on a trip to Haliburton the bride was wearing a two-piece powder blue dress with navy accessories, and a corsage of sweetpeas. They will live in Montreal, where the groom is stationed.

WEDDING BELLS

HENDERSON—SILLS

Amid a beautiful setting of gladioli a very pretty but quiet mid-summer wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Sandhurst, on Friday morning, August 13th, at 11:30 o'clock, when Elizabeth Victoria, only daughter of Mrs. A. Sills, Sandhurst, was united in marriage to Cpl. Ray Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Henderson, Markham. Rev. C. C. Bissell officiated.

The bride given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Wilfred Sherman, Conway, wore a suit of dusty rose charmain crepe with green and white accessories, and corsage of American Beauty roses.

The attendants were Miss Hazel Henderson, sister of the groom, and Mr. Harold Allen, friend of the bride.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will reside near Markham.

BOOTHE — REID — On Tuesday morning, August 3rd, 1943, at Selby Parsonage by Rev. W. R. Merrick, Edna Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reid, Napanee, to Clifford Vernald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernald Boothe, Selby.

In Loving Memory

SCHIMSHAW — In Loving Memory of our Mother who passed away Mrs. Alfred Scrimshaw, who passed away one year ago August 21st, 1942

You can only have one Mother
Patient, kind and true.
No other friend in all the world
Will be as true to you.
For all her loving kindness
She asked nothing in return.
If all the world deserts you
To your Mother you can turn.
So all I can do, dear Mother
Is go and lend your grave,
And leave behind a token of love
To the best Mother God ever made.
Two little words not hard to write
But I'll remember them all my life,
—My Mother.

New Restriction On Collection of Cream

Creamery trucks in Ontario are restricted to certain definite zones of operation from August 16. Under the new regulations, only one truck is allowed to collect cream in each district and it is estimated that this will result in a saving of 500,000 to 600,000 miles' worth of gasoline and rubber during the coming year. The order does not affect the farmers' trucking their own produce and he is entitled still at liberty to take his own cream to the creamery of his choice. If he prefers to do so. Prince Edward County cheese factories will continue to collect cream from patrons, the following trucks now collecting cream in Ontario may be made to last for the duration unless there is a very definite increase in mileage. farmers may find themselves without cream collection service of any kind.

THE STAND OF THE NORWEGIAN CLERGY

It was a bitter blow for the Nazis when the Norwegian clergy, backed by 90 per cent of the people, refused to allow the church to be "new ordered" on German lines. Not only from the general revulsion the people felt against their church life being brought under the leadership principle, and all the other warped ideas for which they forced upon them, but could they ever become reconciled to such a regime when Churches were being desecrated?

The example at Tysfjord is typical. There the Kornes Church was taken over for German troops and turned by them into a kind of spirit house. Drunken parties were held in this little church, and the religious symbols were removed. Then the Nazis stripped it of everything of value, including the plush round the altar rails. The church is now being used as a storehouse and billet for troops.

This is not an isolated example. At Trondheim, for instance, one of the vicarages was taken over by the Germans and used as a hostel, and they gave the vicar permission to retain two of the rooms. Needless to say the offer was not accepted. Small wonder that Quisling has been forced to announce that fellowtraitors may be allowed to take over Church duties in the future even though they do not possess theological knowledge!

The sacrilege against the Church had made the people hate the new regime more than ever, and the clergymen remained united. Nearly 1,400 of them refuse to have anything to do with the new "state" church, while only a score or two have thrown in their lot with the Nazis. Finding it impossible to get qualified candidates, Quisling has even authorized laymen of doubtful integrity to perform all the clerical duties, including baptisms, funerals and communions.

PAYING BACK FOR 1940

Listening intently to their illegal radios hidden away from the prying eyes of the Nazis who are ready to put to death any Norwegian caught tuning into an enemy station, Norwegians recently heard the voice of a countrymen tell of how he had made 29 bombing trips over Germany.

They had already learned that fellow Norwegians more fortunate than they, because they were free, had dropped a greater weight of bombs on Germany than were dropped in Norway during the war in 1940. That is the sort of thing the Norwegians have been waiting to hear, and they are prepared to risk their lives to listen to the exploits of free Norsemen against the common enemy. They quickly spread the news throughout the land.

This Norwegian was a navigator who was in the Norwegian Air Force in 1940 and helped to fight the superior German Luftwaffe with the rather obsolete machines which Norway possessed then. He escaped to Britain years ago and his listeners were thrilled to hear the story of what he has done since then side by side with the R. A. F. He told of the ordinary work on an airfield, the test flying, the briefing and preparations for raids and when describing one of his 29 trips, he said:

"No peacetime fireworks display on July 4th in America can compare with the display over a German target. There are searchlights, often gathered in cones and they pour flak into these cones when they have a plane sighted in them. There are the fires and explosions from the bombs, flashes from the aircraft all around and tracer bullets of all colors. One of the boys called it a watering can."

The underground listeners heard him describe his trip over the Skoda Works, Berlin, Bremen and Stettin, and his final words: "My home town in Norway was bombed to pieces by the Germans but I can't help feeling very pleased every time the bomb aimer reports that the bombs have gone. It is good and gives you much satisfaction to be able to pay back for what the Germans have done in Norway."

As Sir Archibald Sinclair said of Norwegians recently: "Bitter will soon be crying in the words of the old English prayer: "From the fury of the Norsemen, good Lord deliver us!"

DEHYDRATED FOODS — OLD BUT NEW

Hello Homemakers! Drying is the oldest known form of food preservation. But it took the armed services' extensive use of dried foods to bring to the housewife the improved methods of dehydration which can be used in any kitchen. The big improvement is blanching before the fruit or vegetable is dried, which retards spoilage and avoids poor flavour and loss of food value.

Many fruits may be sun dried, but controlled heat maintained in a dryer or even the kitchen oven is best for Ontario district, as it is quick and more dependable. A number of dehydrators are now on the market — the thermostat-controlled electric ones are constructed from the instructions given in the Central Experimental Station, Ottawa, bulletin, or an inexpensive type may be purchased or made. If you wish to make a cheap one, no special equipment is necessary. A handy man can build a cabinet if extensive drying is going to be done. Three or four wooden frames with cheesecloth or wiremesh trays will work very well in a cabinet which is placed over an element or bulb; to fit in the oven.

Food is dehydrated from 4 to 24 hours, emerges a tenth of its original size, and is stored in waxed cartons or jars. Before eating, it is soaked in water until plump, then cooked.

TIPS ON DRYING

When a cabinet dryer is used for cabbage: First trim the cabbage, slice thin as for kraut, steam 2 minutes, then spread on drying trays in a layer not over one-half inch deep. During the drying period interchange the shelves every half hour and at the same time stir the food.

When preparing apples: Peel, quarter, core. Cut in ½ inch slices and blanch (or dip) in Fruit-Saver solution, then put on trays.

Trays should not be set deep as the cabinet or oven as they may be unevenly placed in the oven to give air circulation. Temperature control setting is important; a dairy or oven thermometer is excellent for checking it. As the water evaporates, the danger of scorching increases and even a slight scorching destroys the flavour. Less heat is needed during the later stages of drying.

Vegetables should be brittle after dehydration, should rattle when shaken, or be slightly leathery. Store the dried foods in jars with cloth-fitting covers, or seal waxed package with adhesive tape.

GREENS: Trim and wash leaves. Steam 5 minutes. Use temperature of 150 degrees.

APPLES, PEACHES, PEARS: Remove skin, core or pits and blemishes. Cut in ½ inch slices. Hold in salt and water bath until all have been prepared. Dip in Fruit-kept solution. Use temperature of 140 degrees for drying.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. R. N. asks: Directions for salting string beans.

Answer: BEANS IN BRINE

Use 1 pound of coarse cooking salt to 4 pounds of beans. Wash beans string, cut into desired lengths or leave whole. Place a layer of beans in a crock; sprinkle generously with salt. Repeat until all beans are used. Place plate or board (cut in circle) on beans, and make a strong salt and water solution and add enough to cover.

To rinse the beans, remove them from the brine, wash thoroughly in several waters, then soak for 2 hours in warm water. They get tough if soaked overnight. Cook in boiling water without salt until they are tender — 25 to 30 minutes. Drain and serve in the usual way.

Mrs. C. D. asks: For variety of ways to serve string beans.

Answer: Spiced beans: Brown on rings in fat, add a dash of cinna, a sprinkle of nutmeg, salt; pour over cooked beans. Or serve them in tomato sauce. Or cook beans; add browned cracker crumbs, toss together.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babs:—

No words can express my joy and surprise when I opened your present and two cards of black, glossy, great war bobby pins gladdened my eyes. You're an Aladdin! I assume if I asked for new tires for "Betsy", the Fairy Godmother that you would appear and the tires would come rolling into the garage. However, remember the restrictions.

At "Betsy's" time of life anyway new tyres would be too disorganizing. So stay your magic wand, Babs, as I think I once reported to you that she had retired, but since that time she has made several more "farewell" performances. She is like an ageing prima donna who cannot bear to see the glitter of the stage behind her and continues to drag on for a few weeks.

Now to acquaint you with developments in the C.W.A.C. I had my first opportunity of seeing the members of the C.W.A.C. Pipe Band at Cornwall a few days ago when I was sent on a course there. Took part in conference at a Street Fair arranged by the Kiwanis Lions Club. Without a doubt the Pipe Band stole the show. I was amazed and thrilled with their talent and competence, and the crowds at the Fair went wild over them. Small wonder, for the girls made a charming picture in their C.W.A.C. uniforms with the gay plaid pipes slung under their arms as they countermarched to such Scottish airs as "The Road to the Isles."

The fourteen members of the band, of whom all but three hail from western provinces, represent the type of girl most welcome in the Canadian Women's Army Corps — alert girls, conscious of the dignity of the uniform they are wearing.

I was able to pry the Pipe Major, pretty, red-headed Lillian Grant from Victoria, B.C., away from her duties long enough to ask a few questions about life in the Band and found her brimming over with enthusiasm as she talked with the little drummer who twirls the drumsticks with the professional ease of a seasoned trouper. Her face rosy from the exertion for toting that giant drum is no mean feat, she told me that joining the C.W.A.C. Pipe Band was, to her, a dream come true and that she loved every minute of her rehearsal-jampacked days.

I was interested to learn that although all the girls were accomplished musicians before joining the Band, very few of them had played the pipes before. At the present time, life in the Band is made up of endless rehearsals interspersed with performances. However, it is expected, that when they are sent overseas to Canada, the routine will be less hectic.

Since last communicating with you, I have developed a brand new hobby. This is going to be a shock to you, Babs, so prepare yourself. I have turned botanist. I suppose next, I will take to dashing around the country with a butterfly net. When that time comes, you can take me into protective custody. It is all Barry's fault. It seems that Cuthbert is an ardent botanist and they send each other specimens. Consequently every time Barry and I went cycling, she kept jumping off her bike, and sprinting across the fields to gather some blooms. I didn't know what they were. The first time I knew I was doing it, too.

Wild flowers, I find, grow in the strangest places, such as bogs, behind barbed wire fences, or sometimes on very private property. One crowded occasion I had the audacity to be blooming squarely under a "Trespassers will be Prosecuted" sign. It is rew blooming in a prominent position in my flower album.

By the way, would you like, as I usually fine specimen of convallaria majalis? That is what Barry called it. It looks like lily-of-the-valley. Better still why not join the wild flower class of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and start a collection of your own? Tell Dave, that I simply cannot resign myself to the fact that he is in the home Dear old dogie that he is! That, I suppose, finishes me as far as you are concerned—and I do like a bone to hang my hat when I spend a weekend in Toronto!

Wisdom constrains me to bring this to a close before I have converted a dear friend into a violent enemy. Take care of yourself, my pet, and give me a ring on the bell any time you may feel like it.

Fraternally yours,

NICKEY.

Cabbage Worm Happy To Ruin Vic. Gardens

Throughout the summer months there are various insect pests which delight in ruining the year's Victory Gardens. One of these is the imported cabbage worm. They are velvety-green caterpillars commonly found feeding on cabbages and cauliflowers. They eat large circular holes in the leaves and frequently bore into the centre of cabbage heads, causing injury to the plants become evident. control methods should be applied.

Dusting with arsenate of lead and hydrated lime is the most widely recommended remedy. One part of the poison should be mixed with six parts of hydrated lime and the resulting powder dusted on the plants early in the morning, or late evening, when the leaves are wet with dew.

Particular attention should be paid to the central portion of the cabbages and cauliflowers. Dusting is usually most prevalent there.

Ration Regulations To be Relaxed For Clubs, Churches

Relaxation of the rationing regulations to permit clubs, churches and other organizations to obtain rationed goods under certain circumstances for the serving of regular meals in connection with annual exhibitions, fairs, ploughing matches and similar events is announced. Where such goods are released for this purpose, however, the Ration Administration must be satisfied that the need for the meals in question exists.

Under the procedure which is to be adopted in this connection, organizers of fairs, exhibitions, etc. units have disappeared. As sodium fluoride is somewhat poisonous, care should be taken to prevent children or animal pets from gaining access to it.

As an alternative, baits may be used. They may consist either of meat bones or sponges dipped in sweetened water. When large numbers of ants have collected on the baits they may be destroyed by emersion in very hot water. A bait trap which has been used with success may be made by taking a small tin with a tight lid, punching several holes in the sides and top and placing a small piece of sponge inside moistened with a syrup prepared by mixing ten grains of sodium arsenate, 4 ounces of sugar, and one pint of hot water. In using this bait, great care must be taken because of the poisonous nature of sodium arsenate.

POULTRY

Poultry is another food that may replace meat as the quality of the protein is comparable and the percentage of the protein is approximately the same as lean meat. The white meat is more rapidly digested because the fat content is lower and there is less connective tissue. You will find that poultry is more expensive than meat, due to the large waste in bones and other inedible parts. About 60% of the weight is lost in dressing, drawing, cooking and bone content. For the city housewives I will define the above two terms. Dressing is applied to the bleeding and removal of the feathers of the bird. Drawing is the removal of the head, feet and digestive organs.

When buying a bird you should choose one that is plump, compact, with moist soft feet, bright full eyes and a clean, unbruised or unbroken skin. Milk fed chickens appear to be less fat than corn fed, but the fat is more evenly distributed through the flesh, making the bird more tender. The milk fed birds have a the bird to test for doneness. As it reaches 176 degrees the bird matures the amount of fat done.

How To Keep Ants Out of the Home

Ants frequently enter dwellings in search of food. They breed on many kinds of foodstuffs but are particularly fond of sweet or fatty substances. Ants may be discouraged from entering houses by keeping shelves, tables and floors in kitchens and pantries as free as possible from crumbs and other food fragments and by storing foodstuffs in ant-proof containers. In addition, openings in floors and walls should be carefully plugged.

The most satisfactory material so far discovered for destroying ants is sodium fluoride, sold by druggists in the form of a white powder. The powder should be scattered or dusted lightly in places frequented by the ants and left undisturbed until the ants have disappeared. As sodium fluoride is somewhat poisonous, care should be taken to prevent children or animal pets from gaining access to it.

As an alternative, baits may be used. They may consist either of meat bones or sponges dipped in sweetened water. When large numbers of ants have collected on the baits they may be destroyed by emersion in very hot water. A bait trap which has been used with success may be made by taking a small tin with a tight lid, punching several holes in the sides and top and placing a small piece of sponge inside moistened with a syrup prepared by mixing ten grains of sodium arsenate, 4 ounces of sugar, and one pint of hot water. In using this bait, great care must be taken because of the poisonous nature of sodium arsenate.

FISH

Meal planning is a necessity to-day. To obtain the required amount of efficient protein you should have your portion or rationed meat four or five times a week and substitute a food containing efficient protein for the other two or three days. Fish is one of the foods you can use interchangeably with meat as a source of protein without affecting materially the nutritive value of your diet. Salt water fish is valuable in your diet for the iodine content. Salmon, halibut, cod, are rich in vitamins A, D, and G.

The locality and season influence the price of fish, so if you are not too far from where the fish are caught, you should buy fish every week when it is in season. In fresh fish the eyes should be full and bright, the gills red, the flesh firm and elastic and there should be no disagreeable odour. Fish may be preserved by one of several methods or a combination of two or more, e.g. freezing, salting, pickling, smoking and canning.

You probably have noticed that fish is never tough, this is due to the fact that there is no connective tissue, as there is in meat. As a result you only cook fish to develop a flavour and change the texture. These facts should always be kept in mind when cooking fish, as prolonged cooking dries out the fish and spoils the flavour—ten minutes per pound is sufficient.

You should cook fish several different ways to add a variety to your menus. Fillets and small fish may be broiled or pan-broiled in oil or fat and basted during the cooking to prevent the fish drying out. Fish could be coated with bread crumbs and egg or corn meal and fried in fat, at a high temperature to prevent the fat soaking into the fish. Larger size fish may be stuffed and baked in a moderate oven, basting with melted fat or salt pork or lean bacon placed on top of the fish will add richness and flavour. You could wrap fish to be boiled in cheese cloth to facilitate handling.

Lack of colour, flavour and richness in fish can easily be supplied by garnishes and sauces, e.g. lemon, cucumbers, parsley, tartar, tomato or egg sauce.

Shortage in fruit crops. Expected higher prices are responsible for the ceiling to be tacked on pears, peaches and plums when they hit the market. Stocks of canned fruits and vegetables, with exceptions like jams and jellies, were frozen on the national shelf just for the same reason housewife leaves her cellar stock alone while taking advantage of the fresh stuff available. Cold and wet weather early this year killed off a lot of peach trees in eastern Canada; late spring hurt strawberry and raspberry crops. Blueberries were heavy but faced a labor shortage; cherries were poor. The Canadian total for apples will likely be down, with a 23% increase over last year in Nova Scotia, but reductions from 2 to 29% are expected in New Brunswick and B.C.; about 400,000 barrels less. The pear crop looks like 250,000 barrels less; prunes and plums only slightly off. Peaches show a drop of around 67%, affecting both B.C. and Ontario crops. Grapes are expected to be 22% below 1942's record harvest, but the current estimate is nearly a third more than the five year average from 1936 to 1940. Plans are being made, we are told, to see that some of the crops are canned.

Some people are irked with the news that Canada will not follow the U.S.A. in taking coffee off the ration list. But it is pointed out we have only four months' supply on hand, which is not so much. Besides here's another angle. Because of our low tea ration and relatively high coffee coupon value, the latter's consumption is up 15% over prewar normal while tea is down by a half. It would be difficult to eliminate one without the other, they claim.

Food seems to have been in the spotlight around Ottawa with many announcements concerning an item which takes about a third of every family income. The war has put a big strain on our country's production capacities. This is shown by figures that food-production is now more than 25% above pre-war levels. Hog marketings are up 69%, cheese 56%. Feed grain acreage shot up 26% to meet the meat and dairy products increases. That means our producers have to work harder and be ingenious. The department of labor statistics show a net decrease in male farm workers during the period March 1939 to March 1943 of 350,000. At the latter date male family help only averaged 121 workers per 100 farms.

One of the lady officials in the Consumer section, talking about the conservation program says it really had its origin in the back concession farms. Here Canadian women have always made over their clothing or put it down for the children. Now that conservation has become a national necessity, due to the demands of the armed forces on the country's textile supplies, many of the ideas of these early experimenters in making over are coming in and contributing to the success of the program. She says that under the leadership of older women, the young fry are also taking to the idea of makeover. Many communities which do not already have Remake centres are planning to open these schools for sewing instruction in the autumn. Will all this affect our national home economy after the war? That's an interesting point.

Soldiers detailed from army training units, with the harvest, will be paid at $4 a day in Western Canada, $3.50 in more parts of Ontario and $3 in Quebec and the Maritimes, farmers also providing room and board, according to National Defence H.Q. Where they are granted compassionate leave to work on their own farms or the farms of near relatives, soldiers get free transportation up to 500 miles.

Unofficially it is estimated that around 300,000 people are in Ottawa doing temporary work in connection with the war. Looks it on the streets and in the eating places. Housing has been a big problem. Maybe you don't know it out there but the Government built a place, called Laurentian Terrace, especially for grade one girl office workers which takes care of about 360. It is nicely and very comfortably furnished and the girls pay $8.50 weekly which includes meals. Helps some.

A significant item! The number of male teachers in eight provinces excluding Quebec, declined from 14,700 in 1939 to 12,600 in 1942, due to enlistments and the fact that higher salaried employment was found elsewhere. About 80% of this loss was from one-room rural schools, where the teachers were younger and lower paid. The Bureau of Statistics indicates.

PREDICT OPENING OF THIRD FRONT

Allied bombs are retarding German production and affecting morale but only by decisive defeat of the Nazi armies in the field of battle can Germany be defeated, said Elmer Davis last week.

The director of the Office of War Information, at a press conference a few hours after returning from a trip to Great Britain, Iceland and North Africa, predicted that there already has been a second front set up in the Mediterranean.

He said reports that Adolph Hitler had been sidetracked in favor of a military triumvirate headed by Air Marshall Hermann Goering were "pretty dubious, but could be true."

If Hitler is shelved it would only mean that Germany — I mean the United States — would no longer have the benefit of his intuitions," Mr. Davis said smilingly.

"His genius was most effective before this became a shooting war. He was effective when he could use bull-dozing and blackmail tactics such as he employed at Munich. The talents he had could not be used effectively today."

Mr. Davis was asked whether he knew when a second front would be established in Europe.

"These may be a third front — as a matter of fact I am pretty certain there will be one," he said. "As for a second front, we have one operating now pretty effectively, I think, in the Mediterranean."

Optimism Tempered

Mr. Davis said there was less tendency toward over-optimism in regard to the war in places which he visited than there is in the United States. There is some tendency in this direction in England he said, and he found everywhere that Mussolini's resignation was taken as a hopeful sign.

Mr. Davis said Germany still has 200 Divisions intact in Russia and that these forces must be defeated before Germany can be counted as conquered.

He refused to forecast a date for the probable ending of the war, returning to his original premise that it all will depend upon when the Nazi troops are defeated.

Asked about new reports that he soon might resign as director of O.W.I., Mr. Davis said:

"If my betters tell me to go, naturally I will go. But they haven't told me yet and as far as I am concerned I intend to stay on."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This column is sponsored by the Regional Office, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Questions on price control, ration regulations and other Wartime Prices and Trade Board rulings should be mailed to: Information Branch, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Victoria Building, Brockville, Ont.

Q As a citizen of the United States residin gin Canada am I entitled to receive a No. 3 Ration Book?

A. Yes, if you are a permanent resident of the Dominion. It would be wise for you, however, to carry your Canadian National Registration certificates with you when you apply for a ration book at the distribution centre.

Q My ice dealer refuses to deliver ice to the refrigerator, but charges me as much as ever for ice. Is that permissible?

A If there is any variation of the service which the dealer has rendered during the basic period, he is expected to reduce his prices accordingly, unless he has been given specific permission to do otherwise.

Q As a retail shoe dealer, am I permitted under "business freezing" order of the Prices Board to establish a shoe repair department?

A. This order does not cover repairs of any kind. Consequently you are at liberty to open a repair department provided man-power, equipment and supplies are available.

Q I live in the country and it may not be a simple matter for me to go to a distributing centre in order to get my new ration book. Can my neighbor do this for me?

A Yes. In rural districts an adult may bring in his neighbor's book. But be sure your application card is properly filled out and signed by yourself before you give your book to him.

Q Our church intends to hold a bazaar in the fall. Is a license of the Prices Board required?

A No. Occasional church banquets, socials and bazaars are permitted without the issue of a license being required.

Q We have a used but still quite good motor on hand and believe that some other manufacturing concern could put it to service. Is there any way in which this can be arranged?

A Report it to the Used Goods' Administrator, Lumsden Building, Toronto who operates a registry of idle machinery. Anyone requiring such machinery can get in touch with a buyer who owns the machine or a motor.

ALL MEN 16 TO 40 NOW SUBJECT TO LABOR TRANSFER ORDER

New Order Amends Selective Service Act

Hon. H. Mitchell, Labor Minister, announced Thursday that all youths of men aged 16 to 40 have been made subject to existing and further compulsory employment transfer orders under a recent Order-in-Council.

Previously, the orders — used to shift workers from non-essential industries — applied only to men designated for the compulsory military call-up and to youths aged 17 and 18. Now they apply to all youths and men aged 16 to 40, regardless whether married or single and whether or not liable to military call-up.

Mr. Mitchell said the sixth compulsory employment transfer order will be issued shortly. The order, which will relate only to occupations or industries included in the first two orders, will bring under previous orders all youths and men from 16 to 40 who have not already been served.

UNDER AMENDS
SELECTIVE SERVICE ACT

Mr. Mitchell said the recent order in Council amends Section 39 of the National Selective Service regulations to read as follows:

"(1) The Minister may, by order, forbid any employer or group or class of employers to retain in employment after a specified date any male person (or group or class of male persons) who has attained the age of 16 but has not attained his 41st birthday, unless such person is prescribed to the employer in a prescribed form issued by a Selective Service officer; or to require any employer or group or class of employers to terminate, at such time and in such manner as may specify, the employment of any such person or group or class of such persons."

Mr. Mitchell added it was intended to go chiefly into the circumstances surrounding the employment of all men 16 to 40 in a number of occupations and districts.

The cases of men subject to mobilization regulations and of men 16, 17 and 18 years old, having been reviewed in quite lengthy list of occupations," he

EXTENSION OF NEW ORDER HINTED

Similar order will be issued during the cares of all other men who are within the limits prescribed by the amendment, under examination, and progressively further ordered will be issued covering men in the groups now referred to as "essentials" who may be engaged at certain occupations not covered by the first five orders.

The question of moving men up occupations of high priority into jobs is a very great deal of careful painstaking administration, so that the job must be done progressively. However, the project will be moved along as rapidly as is possible as a substantial number of men are still required to fill vacancies in high-priority jobs."

Mr. Mitchell said that, "for the time being at least," while ex-service men and men with domestic responsibilities will be required to register under the transfer orders, discretion will be used in the case of ex-servicemen rather than compulsion in order to leave them under to more essential work.

Changes Not Intended

In the case of men with domestic responsibilities, changes of residence will not be required which will involve domestic hardship, although these men will be available for transfer within industry in the area in which they reside.

He said that once the amendment to the regulations is implemented by specific orders, male employees covered will be required to register at an employment and Selective Service Office.

Young Girl Died After Being Struck By Truck

Jean Brant, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brant, who reside just West of Desoronto on the Indian Reservation, died last Tuesday evening, August 17th, in Belleville General Hospital as the result of injuries sustained when she was struck by a truck on the Highway near her home.

The child, with several other children, was said to have been playing ball and ran out on the Highway behind a passing load of hay after the ball into the path of an oncoming truck driven by Ivan Barrager, of Toronto, formerly of Napanee.

Witnesses stated that no fault could be attributed to the driver of the truck and the Coroner's inquest held at Belleville on Thursday evening brought in a verdict of accidental death, and no blame attached to Mr. Barrager. The truck was said to have been brought to a stop within a few feet after the child was hit by the bumper. A missing motorcycle took the child to the Hospital where death followed in about two hours, from concussion of the brain.

The funeral was held on Friday, Mr. Brant, the father, is a member of the Deseronto Softball Team and out of respect to him all league softball games for the week were cancelled.

Rental Appraisers To be Appointed Before Oct. 1st

Local rental committees, chiefly presided over by County Court Judges in this part of Ontario, will disappear when the new rentals order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board comes into effect on October 1st and functioning in place of them will be rentals appraisers appointed by the Board.

It will be one of the functions of these appraisers to receive applications for variation of maximum rentals, to conduct hearings if they so desire and report to the Board of the information reaching them and their knowledge of the general rentals situation to fix or vary the maximum rental of a housing accommodation. They may act independently in this connection by reason of the existence of certain circumstances described in the new order. The latter, however, provides that an appeal against the decision of a rentals appraiser may be taken to the Board of Review.

Announcement will be made before the new order becomes effective of the number and identity of the rentals appraisers, several of whom, it is expected, will operate in the Eastern Ontario area.

Play Here Tonight

First Game of O.A.S.A. Play-Downs Here on Thursday

The Mohawk Flyers edged themselves one game closer to the league title on Monday night when they drubbed the Deseronto Redi-Heats 12 to 3, in a seven-inning game.

A large crowd of airmen and civilian fans from the Airport, Deseronto and Napanee were on hand to see the game, which was slightly lopsided, as far as runs were concerned.

For the first couple of frames both teams played spectacular ball, but towards the fifth the play slackened and the possibility of getting seven innings in, looked remote.

The winners garnered twelve runs from twelve hits, while the losers garnered three from six clouts. Errors were five for the Redi-Heats and two for the Flyers.

The batteries were: for the Flyers, Phillips and Bargman; for the Redi-Heats, Maracle and Brant.

The next game will be played here to-night (Wednesday) at the Oddyard Park and there is a possibility the game might get under way a little before the usual seven o'clock.

The present standing of the play-offs gives the Flyers two wins, the Deseronto boys, one and if the Redi-Heats come through tonight, the fifth and final stanza will take place at Deseronto, on Friday night.

Progressive Conservatives Reduce Cabinet Size

Premier George Drew is shown above surrounded by his nine cabinet ministers at their first cabinet meeting last Wednesday in the Cabinet Council room in the Parliament Building, at Queen's Park, Toronto. Standing (left to right) are Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian, Port Hope physician, who is Minister of Health and Public Welfare; Hon. Charles Daley, St. Catharines, mayor and retail grocer, Minister of Labor; Hon. Leslie E. Blackwell, Toronto lawyer, Attorney-General; Hon. G. H. Dunbell, Carleton Place, insurance executive and farmer, Minister of Highways and Public Works; Hon. G. H. Challies, Morrisburg, business executive, Minister without portfolio and vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission; Hon. G. H. Dunbar, Ottawa Business College head, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Municipal Affairs; Hon. W. G. Thompson, Elenheim soy-bean grower, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Minister of Game and Fisheries. Planking Premier Drew are, (at left), Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Dixie farmer, Minister of Agriculture, and, (right), Hon. Leslie M. Frost, Lindsay lawyer, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Mines.

Following his announced policy of economy in the provincial government Premier George Drew has selected a cabinet of only ten men including himself as compared with the 14-man Hepburn administration. Rearranging the cabinet positions to make this reduction possible the Premier himself has taken the portfolio of Education along with his other duties.

The office of Minister of Game and Fisheries, formerly administered by the provincial secretary, goes with Lands and Forests, Municipal Affairs, formerly combined with Welfare, goes to Labor, and the Portfolio of Mines, formerly a separate post, is under the Treasury. Public Welfare remains under the Health Department.

Mr. Drew also abolishes the post of Liquor Board chairman as a cabinet portfolio. A speaker for the legislature is yet to be appointed.

The Premier has announced his intention to appoint "special committees to make surveys of the legislative needs of agriculture, labor, education, and the mining industry.

As Minister of Education, Mr. Drew is expected to personally direct his program to reduce municipal school taxation by 50 per cent. Social security and rehabilitation will also receive attention, Mr. Drew declaring this problem's solution is "long overdue."

A committee will study the administration of the mines. Mr. Drew has announced, "with the purpose of making adjustments in keeping with the great changes that have taken place in the mining industry in the past few years.

"The first step is to seek adjustment of the present system of taxation of mines and for this reason the portfolio has been placed temporarily under the treasurer," he continued.

Under present arrangements, the Dominion collects the heaviest taxes from the mines without regard to municipalities which perform the great service to them. Studies will be made of mines in other countries.

"The mining industry in Ontario is in an extremely serious situation," the Premier said. "Since the war more than half the mines have closed down. Unless steps are taken we may have many ghost towns in the north."

Mr. Drew forecast a regrouping of departments after study is made on "the broad question of administration and organization."

The Premier reiterated his statement there will be no "wholesale dismissals" from the civil service as arose when the Hepburn government took office in 1934, but examination is likely of various offices and when changes are made they will be made in a different manner than under the Liberal administration.

SCHOOLS OPEN SEPTEMBER 7th

No Decision on Students Delayed by Harvest

Department of Education officials announced that Ontario schools will open September 7th, the statutory day of opening.

Asked whether some students would be allowed to remain away a few weeks to assist in harvest operations or if opening of some schools would be delayed, officials said "that matter will be taken up with the new Minister of Education (Premier Drew) right away to see if some change is contemplated."

Last year opening was delayed several weeks to permit students to help in the fields.

Officials said the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has the power to postpone the opening of schools if he desires, but that so far the matter has not been discussed.

HONEY, JAM, JELLY TO BE RATIONED BEGINNING SEPT. 2

All Stocks Frozen in Meantime

As a preliminary to the rationing of honey, jams, jellies and marmalades with the new ration book on September 2, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has suspended, till also further notice, all sales of honey or deliveries of these commodities to consumers as from midnight August 22nd until that date.

The suspension order means that no further sales of these commodities or deliveries on orders already accepted, may be made to householders hotels, restaurants, institutions, industrial users, or others who buy these commodities for consumption. Hotels, restaurants eating places and institutions which normally serve these commodities to their customers may continue to do so, but may not buy or accept delivery of supplies during the suspension period. If the city sales now permitted, under the Board statement, are those to wholesalers and retailers or other persons who buy for re-sale. In other words, sales to the consuming public are halted, but the normal flow of these commodities to the distributive trades will be permitted, pending the announcement of the new rationing plan which will control all sales.

Honey producers are specially notified that all sales of honey to consumer customers must cease during the period of suspension, and also that any orders they may have accepted for future delivery of honey may not be completed during that period. After September 2nd these sales will be governed by the new rationing plan.

New Ration Books Show Some Changes

New colors as well as new sets of coupons will face consumers when they open the No. 3 Ration Books which are now being distributed under the direction of the Local Ration Boards.

In addition to the familiar sheets of green, red, purple, brown blue and grey coupons which appear in the No. 2 book now in use, the No. 3 book will carry orange and light yellow coupons whose use has yet to be designated.

Another change that the consumer will remark will be the disappearance of the word "spare" as applied to certain sets of coupons. While tea or coffee, sugar, butter and meat coupons are so labelled, the remaining sets will be simply marked "C", "D", "E" and "F" without the prefix "spare" being found. Incidentally, the new series of grey coupons will be much smaller than any of the ration coupons previously in use and they will number 32 to a sheet, two sheets being provided. The new books will come into use for the purchase of rationed goods on September 2 and they are intended to last consumers for a period of eight months thus removing any necessity of a further distribution being made during the winter season.

Young Girl Died After Being Struck By Truck

Jean Brant, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brant, who reside just West of Deseronto on the Indian Reservation, died last Tuesday evening, August 17th, in Belleville General Hospital as the result of injuries sustained when she was struck by a truck on the Highway near her home.

The child, with several other children, was said to have been playing ball and ran out on the Highway behind a passing load of hay after the ball into the path of an oncoming truck driven by Ivan Barrager, of Toronto, formerly of Napanee.

Witnesses stated that no fault could be attributed to the driver of the truck and the Coroner's inquest held at Belleville on Thursday evening brought in a verdict of accidental death, and no blame attached to Mr. Barrager. The truck was said to have been brought to a stop within a few feet after the child was hit by the bumper. A passing motorist took the child to the Hospital where death followed in about two hours, from concussion of the brain.

Rental Appraisers To be Appointed Before Oct. 1st

Local rental committees, chiefly presided over by County Court Judges in this part of Ontario, will disappear when the new rentals order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board comes into effect on October 1st and functioning in place of them will be rentals appraisers appointed by the Board.

It will be one of the functions of these appraisers to receive applications for variation of maximum rentals, to conduct hearings if they so desire and upon the basis of such information reaching them and their knowledge of the general rentals situation to fix or vary the maximum rental of a housing accommodation. They will act independently in this connection by reason of the existence of certain circumstances described in the new order. The latter, however, provides that an appeal from the decision of a rentals appraiser may be taken to a Court of Rentals Appeals.

Announcement will be made before the new order becomes effective on October 1st of the identity of the rentals appraisers, several of whom, it is expected, will operate in the Eastern Ontario area.

Play Here Tonight

First Game of O.A.S.A. Play-Downs Here on Thursday

The Mohawk Flyers opened themselves one game closer to the league title on Monday night when they drubbed the Deseronto Redi-Heats 12 to 3 in a one-sided game.

A large crowd of airmen and civilian fans from the Airport, Deseronto and Napanee were on hand to see the game, which was slightly lopsided as far as runs were concerned.

For the first couple of frames both teams played spectacular ball, but towards the fifth the play slackened and the poor ability of getting seven innings in, looked remote.

The winners gathered twelve runs from twelve hits, while the losers garnered three from six safeties. Errors were five for the Redi-Heats and two for the Flyers.

The batteries were: for the Flyers, Phillips and Bargman; for the Redi-Heats, Maracle and Brant.

The next game will be played here to-night (Wednesday) at the Gilbard Park and there is a possibility the game might get under way a little before the usual seven o'clock.

The present standing of the playoffs gives the Flyers two wins, the Deseronto boys, one and if the Redi-Heats come through tonight, the fifth and final stanza will take place at Deseronto, on Friday night.

Premier George Drew is shown above surrounded by his nine cabinet ministers at their first cabinet meeting last Wednesday in the Cabinet Council room in the Parliament Building, at Queen's Park, Toronto. Standing, (left to right) are Hon. Dr. R. J. Vivian, Port Hope physician, who is Minister of Health and Public Welfare; Hon. Charles Daley, St. Catharines, mayor and retail grocer, Minister of Labor; Hon. Leslie E. Blackwell, Toronto lawyer, Attorney-General; Hon. G. H. Doucett, Carleton Place, insurance executive and farmer, Minister of Highways and Public Works; Hon. G. H. Challies, Morrisburg business executive, Minister without portfolio and vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission; Hon. G. H. Dunbar, Ottawa Business College head, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Municipal Affairs; Hon. W. G. Thompson, Renfrew soy-bean grower, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Minister of Game and Fisheries. Flanking Premier Drew are, (at left) Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Dixie farmer, Minister of Agriculture, and, (right), Hon. Leslie M. Frost, Lindsay lawyer, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Mines.

Following his announced policy of economy in the provincial government Premier George Drew has selected a cabinet of only ten men including himself, as compared with the 14-man Hepburn administration. Rearranging the cabinet positions to make this reduction possible the Premier himself has taken the portfolio of Education along with his other duties.

The office of Minister of Game and Fisheries, formerly administered by the provincial secretary, goes with Lands and Forests; Municipal Affairs, formerly combined with Welfare, goes to Labor, and the Portfolio of Mines, formerly a separate post, is under the Treasury. Public Welfare remains under the Health Department.

Mr. Drew also abolishes the post of Liquor Board chairman as a cabinet portfolio. A speaker for the legislature is yet to be appointed.

The Premier has announced his intention to appoint special committees to make surveys of the legislative needs of agriculture, labor, education, and the mining industry.

As Minister of Education, Mr. Drew is expected to personally direct his program to reduce municipal school taxation by 50 per cent. Social security and rehabilitation will also receive attention. Mr. Drew declaring this problem's solution is "long overdue."

A committee will study the administration of the mines. Mr. Drew has announced, "with the purpose of making adjustments in keeping with the great changes that have taken place in the mining industry in the past few years.

"The first step is to seek adjustment of the present system of taxation of mines and for this reason the portfolio has been placed temporarily under the treasurer," he continued.

Under present arrangements, the Dominion collects the heaviest taxes from the mines without regard to municipalities which perform the great service to them. Studies will be made of mines in other countries.

"The mining industry in Ontario is in an extremely serious situation," the Premier said. "Since the war more than half the mines have closed down. Unless steps are taken we may have many ghost towns in the north."

Mr. Drew foresaw a recrupping of departments after study is made on "the broad question of administration and organization."

The Premier reiterated his statement there will be no "wholesale dismissals" from the civil service as arose when the Hepburn government took office in 1934 but examination is likely of various offices and when changes are made they will be made in a different manner than under the Liberal administration.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT?

War does some strange things to people. Little people often assume a power and authority they never would have had under other circumstances. Little nations, because of their geographic positions, often have an importance out of all proportion to their size. Unscrupulous leaders take advantage of that, and demand a high price for their neutrality or sell out to the highest bidder. Spain is a case in point. Franco has been a co-worker with Hitler and Mussolini, for years He defeated the will of the people after a democratic election and seized power. He turned his country into a testing grounds for Italian and German air and military leaders, to experiment with. He posed as a friend to Britain while doublecrossing her at every turn. Spain has been kept neutral only by great concessions of one sort or another, and by even greater promises on the part of the United Nations. And now, Franco having done everything in his power to defeat the United Nations and after using every means at his disposal to betray them into the hands of the Axis, has the nerve to ask the United Nations to supply them with munitions.

"The price for sheer gall in this war goes to Gen. Francisco Franco, the Spanish Fascist dictator, who has asked the United States and Great Britain to furnish him with arms—presumably to put down a possible internal rebellion and save him from the fate of his guide, philosopher and friend, Benito Mussolini. Of all the cheap, tinhorn stooges that Fascism spawned in Europe even the "New Order" looked like a sure thing, Franco was outstanding. He was elevated to power over the bodies of the Spanish people and with the help of the Nazis and Italian Fascists in one of history's bloodiest civil wars. Five years after the end of the war Spain is still a land of desolation and poverty, while Franco and his strutting aides have until the latest turn of the war been openly espousing the Axis cause, stirring up anti-United States feeling in South America, immobilizing Allied troops in North Africa to watch the border of Spanish Morocco and generally acting like the enemy of democracy he admittedly is."

The situation is a delicate one, however, and the dispatches say that the United States and Great Britain are giving Franco's request serious consideration. It would be much more to the point if the United Nations were in a position to tell Franco just what they think of him. Someday they will be able to do that. In the meantime the request should be denied with whatever self-restraint the United Nations can command.

MOVING CAUTIOUSLY

The United Nations have been slow to recognize the French Committee of Liberation at Algiers. There has been a lot of personal bitterness between French leaders to overcome. There have been differences between the American and the British points of view, to resolve. But, bit by bit, the situation has cleared. The most difficult of all the hurdles to jump was surmounted when Generals de Gaulle and Giraud settled their personal differences. Gen. Giraud became the military leader, and Gen. de Gaulle the civil leader The Vichy appointees have all been eliminated, and now harmony prevails. A condition which seemed almost impossible of accomplishment has now been achieved.

The United Nations, however, did not grant recognition to this new group which, they themselves, were instrumental in establishing. It seemed a strange attitude and one which was hard to understand Now, however, it is rumored that the United Nations have come to a decision. They will recognize the committee of liberation as having authority for all French interests outside of France, but not within France. This, on first sight, seems an unfair position to take especially in the case of Gen de Gaulle. For de Gaulle has always contended that he spoke for the whole French people; and yet the other side must not be overlooked. Ever since the German occupation of France, the French people have been unable to express an opinion as to whom they should like to represent them. No election has been held, no voice in the affairs of the State has come from the common people. Opinions, no doubt, change with the passing years, and leaders who might have been acceptable to the French a few years ago, might not be so acceptable now. Premier Churchill, on July first, said that the only hope for the future of France is that "the broad and settled will of the masses of the French people, expressed under conditions of freedom, shall decide upon the future government of the people." This must be taken to mean that the United Nations do not intend to choose the men who shall lead France back to a position in the councils of the nations. The French people must choose their own leaders.

If Quebec decides, as is suggested, that the Committee of Liberation shall have jurisdiction over colonial France and that the future leaders of Metropolitan France should be chosen when conditions for a free expression of public opinion are possible, it would seem that a solution has been found for a very thorny problem. While it may not suit everybody, it will, at least, show to the world that the United Nations are not in any way, inclined to impose their will on liberated nations.

THE NEW DRUGS

The world was surprised and delighted a few years ago by the announcement of the sulfa drugs. They marked a new era in the treatment of certain diseases, conquering germs by interfering with their eating and digestion. Now a new drug, an improvement on the sulfas, has made its appearance and is meeting with astonishing success. It has all the potency of the sulfas with none of their after effects.

This new drug, "penicillin" by name, was accidentally discovered by Prof. Andrew Fleming an English scientist. He noticed in some of his work that a bit of green mold prevented the growth of some staphylicocci germs he was cultivating in his laboratory. Now it is being produced on a large scale, but not nearly enough can yet be made to supply the demand. A scientific writer thus describes the process of its manufacture :

"One gallon bottles are used. Each bottle is about half filled with a clean, watery liquid. A bit of the mold is inoculated into this liquid, and the top of the bottle sealed. The bottles, lying on their sides, are then stacked in high tiers, to remain about two weeks.

"In that period, a velvety-blue-green-white film, the mold penicillium notatus forms over the surface of the liquid. The precious drug is in the liquid.

"After two weeks ,the mold is skimmed off, the liquid poured out, and from it is extracted the penicillin. The final product is a yellow powder."

With the sulfa drugs giving way to this newer sort in such a short time, we are encouraged to hope that many of the diseases with which the human race has been scourged for generations, are on the way out.

V

MUFFING THE FIRST

The United Nations muffed the first ball when Mussolini fell. They were not ready for such a quick turn of affairs. Instead of taking advantage of the confusion and the opportunity to foment revolution in Italy, they-let the Italians "stew in their own juice." But instead of turning out the Fascists and putting in rulers freely chosen by the people, the Government put in Badoglio, who has stalled off long enough to let the Germans adjust their plans to the new situation.

That must not happen again. When the Fascist regime begins to totter and fall the United Nations must use every effort to stir up the common people to revolt and overthrow the self-appointed leaders.

The experience in Italy has certainly taught us a lesson which we should not be slow to profit by. We must be prepared, not only to prosecute the war with vigor, but to be ready to meet new situations politically at opportune times. It is safe to assume that from now on plans will be laid, not only of a military character but on the civil front, as well. If this is so, then as future dictators fall, no time will be lost in establishing governments more in keeping with the will of the people and more acceptable to Democratic Nations.

OUR HISTORY SHAPING ROLE

The war of arms in Italy is progressing. But the war of ideas is just beginning. For in warfare today, victory of our arms is only effective if it paves the way for victory of our ideas. The war is being fought not for territories but for men's ideas. In the final analysis we are fighting, not to preserve our way of life, but for the chance to recreate and spread it.

The first chance we will have to do this is in Italy, now back where she started twenty years ago. Then, too, there was a state of confusion approaching anarchy and the threat of a leftist coup opened the way for the Fascist revolution. Again, as then, the fate of Italy is in danger of being decided by coloured-shirted groups in the streets of Turin and the palaces of Milan.

Unless Democracy can evolve a divinely-inspired dynamic that grips the imagination and loyalty of every Italian, the choices will narrow down between Communism, Fascism or some other despotism. As William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, once said: "Men must be governed by God, or they will be ruled by tyrants."

To meet this need Canada is in a unique position. With her armies in the spearhead of the advance, and with her place on the home front linking Great Britain and the United States, she has a chance to give leadership out of all proportion to her numbers.

There is evidence of a spirit at work in Canada, which will enable her to fulfil this history-making role. Take, as an instance, the man who was duped into agitating for a despotism here in Canada, because he could not put democracy to work at home. For the last ten years he had had a tug of war with his wife and similar disunity in his industry. By honesty and frankness, admitting his own faults, with his wife and then with his employer, he built a sound home and unwrecked an industrial strike. With this tested experience he is now giving from line leadership in the war of ideas in his own community.

Armed with the news of this kind of experience at home, Canadians abroad will be armed with the proof that democracy works. They will be equipped to win the warfare of ideas in Turin and Milan and, on a larger scale, throughout the rest of Europe when it is liberated from the Axis yoke.

VICHY WHIPS UP NEW CAMPAIGN

BY ERIC HAWKINS

Vichy has intensified its campaign aimed at scaring the French people into believing that if they get out of the frying pan of Nazi occupation they will fall into the fire of Anglo "tyranny."

A report received in London from reliable sources says that Pierre Laval's "information" department is working overtime dressing up this new bogey, and whipping the press into a state of agitation over it. The report states an order to editors from the censorship department "to make the most of the Amgot organisation as a threat to install a new form of dictatorship, in France, and to attack the United States as the chief instigator of the idea."

How faithfully this order is being obeyed is indicated by an editorial in the widely read daily Petit Daughinois of Grenoble, which says the United States seeking to get its grip on France, with Britain and the French dissidents as anti-Vichy patriots looking askance at the procedure.

"The American, British and dissident press is discussing the regime to be adopted in France in the event of Anglo-American occupation," the Petit Daughinois editorial said: "The United States is ill at ease. It pointed out. It has instituted the Allied Military Governments of Occupied Territories, and, if France is occupied, the American Army will place the country under its tutelage and the occupation will be settled."

"Neither the British nor the dissidents are satisfied with this procedure, which crushes their ambitions, but Washington disregards them."

Pierre Laval's own newspaper, Le Moniteur, of Clermond-Ferrand in a new editorial on Amgot, accuses the Anglo-American specialists" of acting as dictators in Sicily, and proceeds ironically: "It must be observed that the choice of these officials from the personnel of the American military police school and from colonial administrators, some recently from Burma, clearly indicates the high opinion of our former Allies concerning the European peoples destined to suffer their tyranny."

"The 'dissident' leaders are united for once in protesting against the extension of Amgot to French territory, and the English and Americans are united for once in refusing to recognise the Algiers committee, supposedly formed to control this territory —further proof of how all 'dissidence' has been deceived."

Meanwhile the British press continues to show reserve regarding Amgot. William Towler, foreign editor of the Daily Herald, after putting a series of questions regarding its functions, said in an editorial: "During its testing time in Sicily Amgot will need watching very carefully."

THE FRANCE OF MARSHAL PETAIN'S NEW ORDER

Here is the story of the NEW France . . the France of Marshal Petain and of Pierre Laval . . . A France unknown to Frenchmen who have not been in their homeland since those terrifying days of mid-1940. The story is told by a Briton, for many years in business in France, who made his escape with great difficulty. He cannot be identified. Suffice to say he is qualified to speak on the subject. What is published here is from an informal memorandum he has circulated among associates.

France is gradually having most of its life-blood sucked away.

The revitalisation — this word covers many things—was distinctly felt in almost all places. 120 grammes of meat a week but you do not get it; an egg here and there, sometimes not one in three months; 250 grammes of noodles some months; in our particular town, 25 grammes of butter a month—and we did not get it! You realise what 25 grammes of butter is since an English pound is 450 grammes.

We sometimes got a little eating oil but not very good; fats, 15 grs. a day, divided into two coupons, 10 grs. lunch and five at night; cheese without any fatty content, 100 grs. a month, but that too frequently was not forthcoming. Jam we had, one pound for five winter months, and what a registration at a shop for very small quantities of green vegetables and so on.

Families mainly consisted of turnips, carrots and swedes and large ones at that. Those are the broad outlines of the food situation. To obtain those things queueing up was always for hours, often to be told that the supplies were out or were not coming.

There is nothing to be bought, whether it be kitchen utensils clothes, furniture, linen, pins, string etc. . . I had endeavored for two years to get any old pair of pyjamas and there were none to be had. Nor to buy any nor any other article of clothing.

Conditions of life have changed in both zones. Here are a few examples of the change of atmosphere. Prior to the police arriving in any new place even if in the same street, many places no change without authority. You could not go from one apartment to another, even to an adjoining house, without a permit. Perhaps one of the most difficult things to bear, because of their o'd, easy-going ways in the past, is the queue or rather the excess of zeal, of many officials. Formerly a probably a natural reaction from the past as everybody was trying to be efficient and so on. Now it is overdone and only adds to the easy ways of the past, were overdone.

Everywhere, too, with police surveillance day and night. Examples of all kinds have been made extremely severe and usually include imprisonment.

Among the things that went to fray people's nerves was the incessant talk of black markets, of which only a relatively small number were to their benefit. All kinds of measures were taken to fight the black market. Communist and underground movements, acts of hostilities, and enmity of persons against the Government.

These measures have brought about all kinds of police activities:—

Early morning raids on hotels with every room visited, everyone interrogated, baggage examined. Demands in the streets and cafes for identity papers, listening cafes for telephone calls, a general right of search, not only for forbidden articles, but even into concentration camps, prohibition of listening to certain radio stations. The daily flow of completely untrue war reports. The fear of air raids, and always the thought of when will the war end, what peace is France going to get, collaboration or non-collaboration.

Why enumerate more? And all these things added to the dearth of everything was making different people of us, people almost staring, anxious and irritable with anxiety day and night. This was my background and I had changed from my pre-war serene state of mind. All troubles loomed far greater than perhaps they were. Yet we lived and I was always ahead of the police.

During a trip in March, 1942, I was brought down with pneumonia. This was the first illness of my life. I recovered rapidly which was fortunate. Falling ill in France is tragic. One is not entitled to anything whatever — not a thimbleful of milk, no an extra gramme of meat, and medicine almost unprocurable. Saint-Etienne was destitute of food at that time and I lived mainly on swedes soup, with some small luxuries which some friends of mine in that town gave me, from their meagre store. In June of that same year I had a breakdown because of the many troubles that were accumulating. I had, for instance, been accused of being a Jew, a de Gaulle propagandist, a de Gaulle underground worker, and finally a British spy.

The new era which opened up with the invasion of North Africa by the United Nations precipitated things, and my immediate exclamation on hearing the news on the radio was: "This means I must leave almost immediately." I promptly cleaned up all my affairs.

I left home, or what I had come to call home, on November 12, 1942. Some friends came to the station to see me off and you can imagine how I must upset they were whilst we watched the Germans rigging up anti-aircraft guns on the station roof and saw German troops marching through the streets. The whole town was taken on a sullen air. It is quite sure that the indifference shown so long by the southern free zone population will turn every day to a fierce rage against the Germans. I sat around amongst the Germans for five days, with no one else but Germans in the restaurants. There was nothing aggressive about any of them and I have no doubt that they were glad to find themselves in pastures new. Everybody in all these places was worrying over the fact that they would now be subject to air-raids.

After forty-eight anxious hours, I escaped, empty-handed on Nov. 15, although the Germans had control over the whole mountain range. I successfully [illegible] the French police [illegible] down the mountain [illegible] nights, never on a road, [illegible] or over fifty miles [illegible] the woods in the day time [illegible] the unlikely [illegible] and up. I was later [illegible] frontier zone and [illegible] by the Spaniards. As soon [illegible] through a night I took [illegible] my wind blowing [illegible] over winding bumpy roads, [illegible] them over other mountains [illegible] open motor — truck [illegible] carpaulin and [illegible] of petrol cans [illegible] and [illegible] hid away a week in one [illegible] three weeks in another [illegible] away from Gibraltar to [illegible] a mine-layer, landing [illegible] Christmas, after [illegible] weeks. Apparently this [illegible] rapid passage. I was [illegible] first Englishman to reach [illegible] three years [illegible] shores after [illegible] 1940 [illegible] zone.

I feel that a very [illegible] been lifted from my [illegible] have always been in [illegible] order with the German [illegible] and on their black list. No [illegible] how hopes and [illegible] wife and children, and [illegible] were to see me again in [illegible] was dominate [illegible] were with their Christmas holidays.

Since I arrived here I have put on weight for a time [illegible] a pound. I had lost forty pounds or more [illegible] one time. My physical energy has come back every day. Everyone tells me that I look a different man.

I am over here otherwise than as a business trip or on [illegible] forced with the situation [illegible] a new life. I cannot say that I am a stranger in a strange land as many ways are different to those in France [illegible] from [illegible] formidable. Everyone is very nice to me, nothing and that would be [illegible] to my nature.

Now North Africa has been [illegible] ed, yet another chapter of the [illegible] about to begin. I feel [illegible] lief in victory never faltered [illegible] 1940 nor through the years that followed. Today on the threshold [illegible] more storming days. I [illegible] for the present and am full of [illegible] for the future.

Quebec—President Franklin Roosevelt and the Earl of Athlone, Canada's Governor General sat side by side on the front steps of the Governor General's summer residence in Quebec city today while reporters and cameramen photographed them.

ISRAEL'S SIN AND RESTORATION

Lesson Text: Exodus 32: 7-10; 34: 4-9, 27, 28

Moses and Joshua had withdrawn from the main group of the Israelites, and had gone up a mountain to pray and fast for them and the people, and to make plans for the future. While they were away, the crowd left to themselves, carved an image of a bull calf such as the Egyptians worshipped, averted it with gold and adopted it as their god.

Here was the first outbreak of idolatry. Primitive peoples, often accompany their ritual with excesses of one sort or another. The worship of the bull by the Egyptians was marked by sensuality and orgy. It is a fair assumption that it was in connection with licentious excess which accompanied the worship of the calf by the Israelites, that gave Moses so much concern.

Moses was a great leader, but in no area was he greater than in his lofty view of religion and his exalted view of God. He knew very well that the constant worship of idols would land the people back into the slavery they had left. It always works out that way. Make an idol of money and men become enslaved by it; make a god of success and success holds one within its sway. God—the spiritual religion, triumphed over the more gross and material concepts.

Of course, the struggle, in a sense, is a perpetual one. There are always those who, in danger and crisis, will turn to God, but when the danger is removed and the crisis passed, will revert to the former trust in themselves. It is not without significance that, in our own day, we have seen this happen. The Germans, with their reckoning with God, had gone up a mountain to pray and fast for them and the people, and to make plans for the future. While they were away, the crowd left to themselves, carved an image of a bull calf such as the Egyptians worshipped, averted it with gold and adopted it as their god.

REOPENING
Nap. Collegiate and Vocational Institute

This school will re-open Tuesday, September 7th, 1943 with a fully qualified staff of eleven teachers. The head of each department is a specialist.

Three courses are offered: Matriculation, for entrance to the Universities and for general professional, the General Course, and the Vocational Course.

Among the items of equipment of this modern school are Chemical, physical and Agricultural laboratories, fine gymnasium, a typewriting room, commercial office, special rooms for art and geography, camera room, radio, electric phonograph, language phonograph, movie projector, large projectoscope, etc.

Parents of neighboring communities are particularly reminded that a complete commercial course is available at this school under the charge of as good commercial teachers as may be found in the province. There is no individual fee as tuition is paid for by the municipality concerned. A much wider and more diversified course is offered than that given in business colleges. Students are prepared for civil service, private secretaryships and for general office work. Our graduates enjoy positions of responsibility in many walks of life and the demand is always exceeded by the supply.

It is unnecessary to consult the principal prior to the opening of school as according to the regulations of the Ontario Department of Education, all beginners must take the same course for the first year.

However, it is advisable that the parents should accompany the pupils on the opening day in order that they may be fully informed as to the courses.

WALLACE'S GOOD SPICES MAKE GOOD PICKLES !

The Sad Tale Of A Sprained Thumb

For the following story the R. C.A.F. news service vouches, but it's even worse if not true. It is still a good story and worth reading.
—Editor, Montreal Star.

London. (R.C.A.F. News Service)—The young pilot officer examined his patient. "What's the matter, old beg; thing to do about it doc?" he said to the medical officer, "just wait till it gets better?"

"That's about it," said the M.O. "Or you could, if you like, have treatment We might give it, but it would mean keeping the joint in complete rest for ten days."

"Oh, no," said the pilot. "I haven't got time for that."

It wasn't a very bad sprain, really; just a little sore now and then. But the M.O. of a fighter squadron keeps a very sharp eye on the health of his boys, because when a man climbs many thousands of feet into the air to hold them in line, he needs to be in perfect physical shape. Or else !

"You know, doc," the pilot continued, "old Doc So and So sprayed some stuff on my thumb the other day. Looked like snow; then it turned to water. And here I am! You know, that stuff shouldn't happen even to a service policeman."

He carefully examined the thumb again. "Still," he said, "I might be able to join up a bit when I go on leave. Might be useful for shooting a line. Someone might say, 'What happened?' and then I say, 'Oh, nothing; just flak'."

The doc — he is a medical officer of the R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadron overseas — stood with his back to the fire in the mess. He was young; but at that he was five or six years older than the oldest of the pilots around him. They lounged easily in the deep leather chairs, and sang slung over the arm.

"Say, doc," one of them said from behind a copy of Life, "Do you have to go to hospital with just an ordinary cold or couldn't you just stay in your room here and have it sent up?"

The doc looked suspiciously at him. This looked like an attempt to combat him in advance. "Well," he said carefully, "if it's just an ordinary cold, you might just as well stay in your room. In fact, for just an ordinary sniffling cold, when your ears and sinuses are clear, I might not even ground you."

Colds are prevalent in Britain in the spring. For the average individual, they are just a damned nuisance; for the fighter pilot who is called on to fly high they are something different. The man who flies with his sinuses blocked stands the chance of rupturing his ear-drums; for the least suspicion that any such trouble is present, the M.O. invariably grounds him. This usually means a long argument with the pilot; but M.O.'s of operational squadrons usually tend to being firm, and not even the most persuasive pilot using the most dreadful threats of personal violence can alter the M.O.'s decision.

"Odd Doc So and So used to be terrible," said one of the pilots cluttered around the fire. "If he smelled dispersal and caught anybody sneezing or even blowing their nose, he used to send them in hospital before they knew what was going on. He got to be scared, they were afraid to breathe. Nobody ever caught colds because they were scared of him."

The pilot didn't mean quite what he said. What he meant was that every pilot in the squadron did his best to feel fine and well; he wouldn't be taken off ops. Staying on the ground and watching the other boys go out over Germany does not suit them. So the M.O. usually got a little quiet cooperation on his own account. You'll see him sitting around playing knock rummy with the boys. "Accidentally" just in passing the time. Then, without warning, you find that somebody has been grounded for a couple of days while he gets rid of his cumulative cold.

As for old Doc So and So, who used to toss guys into hospital — according to them — without rhyme or reason, when he left the squadron they all turned out to cheer him off with a little while, they ceased arguing with him. He had been informed him, there was a rumor current that he was a pretty swell guy.

STRANGE FACTS ABOUT TREES

IN OTHER AGES AND OTHER LANDS

From the dawn of history, trees have played a tremendous part in the religious beliefs and superstitions of mankind. When modern psychiatrists in fancy costumes trip merrily around the Maypole a not often suspected significance is behind the ceremony.

Sacred groves were common among the ancient Germans, and the oak worship of the Druids in England is a familiar fact to religious historians, says Don Clark in the "Rotarian." At first the oak religious capital of Sweden, there was once a sacred grove in which every tree was regarded as divine. The heathen Slavs were worshippers of trees and groves. It was near the close of the fourteenth century before the Lithuanians were converted to Christianity, and up to that time they were ardent believers in the divinity of trees. Some of them maintained holy groves about their villages where even to break a twig was regarded as a mortal sin.

To the savage mind, trees and plants live, breathe and consume water and food the same as animals or humans. Therefore, if a human being has a soul, it naturally follows that a tree would have one also. This is not such ancient philosophy as you might think. Indians of the Upper Missouri Valley used to show a great respect for the giant cottonwoods that grew in their hunting grounds. Many Indians considered it utterly wrong to fell a tree. When they needed logs, they were procured by seeking trees which had been uprooted by the wind or by spring freshets, or that had fallen from other causes. The old men of the Iroquois always maintained that the malignities which befell their tribe were due to the younger generation's disregard for the rights of the living woods.

The Wanika tribe of savages in Eastern Africa to this day regards the destruction of a coconut tree as the equivalent of matricide because the tree gives them life and nourishment the same as a mother does her child.

In Dalmatia the great beeches and oaks were once thought to be endowed with spirits.

In West Africa the Ashcotton trees rear their enormous trunks to tremendous heights. They are especially revered by the savages. The felling of one of these trees demands a sacrifice of fowls and palm oil to purge the woodsman of his sacrilege. In another region of the dark Continent, explorers have told of the annual sacrifice of a young woman to an old cedar tree in the village of one tribe. Old Austrian peasants are said to have believed very recently that forest trees suffer pain when being cut down. In felling one they still have a quaint custom of begging its pardon.

In the East Indies the durian tree shoots up to a height of eighty or ninety feet without any sign of a branch. It bears fruit of the most delicious flavor — and the most disgusting stench ! The Malayans cultivate the tree for its fruit, and have a peculiar ceremony which they proposed to stimulate its fertility. On a certain propitious day they gather around a grove of trees and one of the local sorcerers thumps one of the trees several times with the butt end of an axe, at the same time delivering an ultimatum to all durian trees in general that if they don't bear well they will be cut down.

The Dieri tribe of Central Australia regards as very sacred certain trees which are supposed to be their fathers transformed. Some of the savage tribesmen in the wilds of the Philippines believe that the souls of their ancestors seek refuge in certain trees. If they are obliged to fell one of them, they blame it on their priest or medicine man. In China it is the custom to plant trees on graves to strengthen the souls of the deceased. In one tribe in the Celebes, before a tall tree is cut down, the natives put a bribe of food near the base of the tree to entice the spirit to leave before it is cut down.

Members of a superstitious tribe in Sumatra, who venerate trees, formerly blamed it all on the Dutch authorities when they felled a tree.

Somewhere in the wilds of many of the ancient and modern races of the world, the defying of the tree spirit's power and the belief in its influence on abundant rainfall and fruitfulness and the fertility of man, beast and vegetation is evident. It is the hand to understand why customs like the Paynes and Maypole have come down through the centuries. Many European peasants still celebrate the revival of vegetation in the spring with a festival on the first day of May.

While the peasants of Europe, at least before the present war started, still celebrate the Maypole festival, the vast majority of them are ignorant of the ancient origin of the ceremonies or the pagan superstitions which caused their inception — namely the belief that this propitious similar tree worshipping ritual would guarantee an abundance of everything from crops to good health, prosperity and happiness.

AMERICA NEEDS A MIGHTY ANSWER

"If we don't win the war on the home front we will lose it on the battle front", said a Detroit commentator. Fairly correct, but there is a first-class Cabinet row, race riots, and strikes, coal strikes, rubber strikes, a foremen's strike, resignation of the food chief, corn and cattle feed shortage on the home front.

We are fighting, for a new world. Is that what we are fighting for or just to be like America today ? Even if we win on the battle front, our heroes will come home to find things as they may be the only harvest we reap. Not until lives that are sacrificed unless America quickly finds a mighty answer.

We have tried new laws. We have tried new boards. We have tried new brains. Why not try a new spirit ? Not so much doing new things as a new spirit, in all the things we are now doing.

We find homes breaking up because we do so little for each other. But suppose we find the spirit of caring that binds us together when we are together. We have production problems because we cannot find more men to work. But suppose we find the spirit that makes more work per man. We find black markets because they cannot be controlled. But suppose we find the spirit of honesty that keeps us from buyirrr in the black market. We find there is friction because we pull to get our own way. But suppose we find the spirit where we all pull for America. Laws won't make us do the right thing. But we can find the spirit that makes us want to do the right thing. More Re-Armament is that spirit.

It is the fire that must burn in every heart. It is the carin' that can keep us pulling together. It is personality that increases our production. It is the honesty that will keep our economy stable. It is the flame by which Democracy lives. It must sweep the land and hall the returning alien philosophies that thrive upon our unrest. By this new spirit, freedom might live. And a new world be born.

SICILY MAY BE THE AMIENS OF THIS WAR

BY WARREN IRVIN

Just over twenty-five years ago the British Fourth Army, under General Sir Seymour Rawlinson and the French First Army under General Degoutte Debrency launched the attack that wrested from Ludendorff the initiative on the Western front and changed the whole complexion of the World War.

Spring in the Somme area and led by 450 tanks the attack took the Germans completely by surprise. To the Canadian Corps, commanded by Sir Arthur Currie, fell the honor of spearheading the attack east of Amiens. Advancing over a five-mile front, the Dominion's fighting men smashed through enemy defences a distance of eight miles the first day. In the week that followed they increased the penetration to 14 miles and captured 10,000 prisoners out of a total of 21,000 bagged by the Allied armies.

"August 8", Ludendorff later declared, "was the black day of the German army in the First World War . . . It put the decline of our fighting power beyond all doubt. The war must be ended." He notified the Kaiser accordingly.

Events moved swiftly after August 8. Marshal Perdinand Foch, having gained the initiative, pressed home to exploit it. Two days later the French 3rd Army struck, farther south and, after it came the 10th Army.

On August 21 it was the turn of the British 3rd Army; on August 26 of the British 1st Army. Then on September 15, Franchet d'Espery's forces advanced from Salonica. The Uskub the Bulgarian armies were cut in two, Bulgaria sought and obtained an armistice. The "handwriting on the wall" loomed large.

Meanwhile, at St. Mihiel, American and French forces had erased that salient, while at Spa a German crown council met to consider the situation. General Johan J. Pershing was for pushing on into the Briey coal fields. But, yielding to British pressure, he abandoned this plan in favor of the Argonne offensive, which he launched on October 14, after only a week or preparation.

The crown council's decisions were revealing. "We can no longer hope to break the war will of our enemies by military operations; the object of our strategy must be to paralyze the enemy's war will by a strategic defensive."

But the German lines in the west were being pounded incessantly and were showing signs of cracking under the strain. The German armies were to be saved from succumbing on the open field an armistice must be sought — quickly. Prince Max of Baden was called to be Chancellor. He asked for time to bargain effectively — ten days, a week, even two days. There was no time. On October 5 an armistice appeal was dispatched to President Wilson.

It was now Turkey's turn. Menaced by the advance of General Edmund Henry Hyman Allenby's victorious Army of Palestine, Prince Milne's army against Constantinople and Bulgaria, the Turks found that the same day the Austrians were cut in two at Vittorio Veneto. Austria made peace on November 4. That was the day revolution flared in Germany. By November 11 it had spread throughout the country.

August 8th, the 25th anniversary of the German Army's black day, finds history seemingly repeating itself. As in the last war, four years of brilliant German victories have been followed by a succession of deadlock that now apparently is on the point of breaking.

Once again submarine warfare" has failed to achieve its promised results. Tanks, guns, tanks and other war supplies are reaching the Allied armies in a steady stream. In the east, Russia is growing more powerful — more powerful than ever before. In the air, Germany has been virtually completed conquest of that element. Over Sicily and Italy the Allied force is poised to strike.

Air power — Hitler's "secret weapon" — was supposed to have been hoped to conquer the world — has shifted to the Allies. The blasted ened ruins of Hamburg, Co'ogne, Essen and three other cities in the Ruhr and Rhineland attest the fact that the Allies now possess superiority in the air.

On the ground the odds against Germany are similarly hopeless. Stalingrad proved that Hitler was not arrived at the limit of his reserves. The recent collapse of his summer offensive on the eastern front put the finishing touch on any doubt that may yet remain. The German army is beyond all doubt. The gigantic Nazi war machine has lost its punch.

It is estimated that the Nazi Government in Berlin has by this time drawn the same conclusions as the crown council; that the object of their strategy will be to paralyze the Allies' war will by a strategic defensive, and that henceforth the Nazis will make conciliatory gestures in the hope that the terrific financial burden Allied war will compel the Allies to make peace.

But their chances of prolonging the war appear no better than in 1918. With Italy on her knees, the Axis satellites beginning to see the light. There have been reports of uprisings in Bucharest, Budapest and Sofia. That some of the Allied Allied successes continue.

Rumanian, Hungary and Bulgaria all have been talking soundings. While Boris III is regarded as among the most astute politicians in the Balkans, has been striving to win for his country the good graces of "Mother Russia." Rumanian and Hungarian statesmen in both countries have been seeking to ascertain what advantages their countries might derive by withdrawing from the war.

Hungary, in fact, has all but withdrawn. Not only has her government embarked upon an openly announced policy of non-belligerency, but her newspapers, in flagrant defiance of the Nazis, are commenting on their front pages the hours scheduled for broadcasts by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

The bulk of the Hungarian and Rumanian divisions have been recalled from the eastern front. Several of the Hungarian divisions have been demobilized, and Premier Jan Antonescu of Rumania flatly refused to accede to Germany's demand for Rumanian participation in the summer offensive.

Rumanian industry is reported to have assured the Allies that her oilfields will not oppose an Allied occupation of the Danube basin. Hence if the Allied armies occupy Italy, Germany is self-defense, may well be compelled to take over Rumania by force.

But Germany has reached the limit of her man-power resources, and her armies, around Kiev, will soon have other fronts to think about. Already the enormous area she has had to garrison has drawn heavily upon her armed forces. Workers thus conscripted have been replaced by foreign labor. Still, no amount of money will tempt foreign workers to endure bombing such as was inflicted on Hamburg and 900,000 Hungarian laborers are said to have been ordered home.

There is yet another factor to be considered, a most important factor. "Pravda", the Communist party newspaper, reported last week that the Wehrmacht is now 75 per cent non-German. Of the 25 per cent German losses, three-quarters of the best line divisions in Russia include varying percentages of Poles, Czechs, Austrians, Alsatians and nationals of other subject countries.

It is worth remembering that these divisions also contain a high percentage of anti-Nazis. There were more than 6,000,000 foreign conscripts in Germany when Hitler came to power. Most of them were Social Democrats and Trade Unionists. They still are. Again, at least 1,000,000 Christian Socialists were brought into concentration camps, and hold for the Nazis an abiding hatred. Many of these likewise are in the army.

When the war started Hitler did not want to arm anti-Nazis. Arming them was a potential danger. He preferred to rely on the youth of the country that he had trained in the Hitler Jugend. But four years of war have thinned out the ranks of these young Nazis and others have lost their illusions. If will be a day far blacker than August 8th, 1918.

In Loving Memory

TOPPING — In loving memory of Charles C'inton Topping, wireless airgunner in R.C.A.F., who gave his life on active service, overseas, August 26th, 1941.

Age shall not weary him, nor the years condemn,
At the going down of the sun, and in the morning,
We will remember him.
Lovingly remembered by his PARENTS, SISTERS,

MUIR — In ever loving memory of a dear husband and father, Calvin Muir, who passed away August 16th, 1942.

What would we give to clasp his hand,
His hawny face to see;
To hear his voice and see his smile
Is more than words can be.
No one knows the silent heartache
Only those who have such can tell,
Of the grief that is borne in silence
For the one we loved so well.
Sadly missed by his

OBITUARIES

MRS. WM. R. HENWOOD
(Contributed)

On the night of August 20th, 1943, after an illness of seven weeks, there passed away at her home in Morven, Melinda J. Clark, daughter of the late Wilson Clark and Elida A. Perry, and widow of the late William R. Henwood. Mrs. Henwood, who was in her eighty-first year, had been confined to her bed for several months, suffering a broken limb which she sustained last fall. Throughout her illness she bore her suffering with Christian fortitude and patience as a result of a life spent in near-to-God. She was a Methodist and having lived her entire life in the Morven district, was well and favourably known as a faithful wife, a mother, loving mother, a kind neighbor and a sympathizing friend.

Her funeral service held on Sunday afternoon at her late residence, was in charge of Rev. R. W. Street, assisted by Mr. Wart Wartman, who sang, by request of the family, "My Heavenly Home is Bright and Fair."

She leaves to mourn her memory six children, Mrs. G. E. Fralick, of Toronto; Mrs. Harry Curran, Calgary, Alta., Will Henwood, Sandhurst, Mrs. J. N. Lovelace, Somerville, Mrs. Bessie, Oshawa, Mrs. C. Wilton, of Morven; and one brother, Herbert Clark, Fort Langley, B.C., thirteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, Billy and Linda Bashaw, of Sunderland. There predeceased her one sister, Mrs. M. N. Pollick, Creston, B.C., and one brother, Walter B. Clark, Switzerville.

She was buried in the family plot and was carried there by Messrs. Wm. Henwood, George Fralick, Bev. J. N. Lovelace, John Pennell, Robert Whish and Harold Braidon.

THE LATE THOS. ROBINSON
(Contributed)

Thomas Robinson passed peacefully away on Saturday afternoon, August 15th, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Kirkpatrick, at the age of 76 years. Deceased had been ailing for the past year and had been tenderly cared for by his daughter, to whose home he was removed some two months ago. He will be greatly missed by a large circle of neighbors and friends which was shown by the large attendance at his funeral held in St. Mathew's Church, on Tuesday afternoon, in charge of the Rector, Rev. Ware, who took for his text, Isaiah 38. first verse, "Set Thine House in order for Thou shalt die." The choir rendered "Shall We Gather at the River." The casket was covered with beautiful wreaths and sprays, showing the esteem in which he was held. His wife predeceased him seventeen years ago.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. W. Kirkpatrick of this village, and Mrs. Joe. Price, Niagara Falls, and several grandchildren and also an aged sister, Mrs. Pal. Egan, of Fermoy (only surviving member of a large family), who attended the funeral. Other friends from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett and Alex. Bennett, of Bedford; Mr. William Earl, and Stanley Robinson, Oshawa, nephews; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robinson, Actinolite; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hiller, Mrs. Frances Kirkpatrick, Mrs. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, all of Toronto. After the service the remains were conveyed to the Kimmett Burying Grounds.

The pall - bearers were Messrs. W. C. Marlin, J. F. York, W. Lasher, A. Whiteman, Nellis Allen, Francis Somerville.

W. E. Loyst Died in Toronto
BURIED AT NAPANEE

Wellington E. Loyst, a former well-known resident of Napanee, died early Saturday morning at his Toronto home and was buried at Riverside Cemetery in Napanee, on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Loyst, who was about eighty years of age, had been in failing health for the past several months, but his death was sudden, following a heart attack.

He was a member of a pioneer family of South Fredericksburgh Township, where he was born at the Loyst homestead and lived for some years until he removed to Napanee. He was appointed gaoler for the County of Lennox and Addington and resided in Napanee until his retirement, about twenty years ago, after which he and his wife moved to Toronto.

While in Napanee Mr. Loyst was a member of Trinity United Church and until the time of his death remained a trustee of the church. In Toronto, Mr. Loyst attended the High Park church, where he was one of the elders.

Mr. Loyst is survived by his wife, formerly Emma Armstrong, one daughter, Mrs. Harry Armstrong, and two granddaughters, Margaret and Alice Armstrong, of Toronto.

A funeral service was conducted at the York Funeral Home in Toronto on Sunday evening and on Monday Mr. Loyst's body was brought to the Wartman Funeral Home in Napanee, where another service was conducted in the afternoon, by Rev. C. D. McLellan.

Interment was made in Riverside Cemetery. The pall - bearers were Messrs. G. S. Reid, M. P. Gumbley, J. M. Graham, S. C. S. McKim, Dr. T. M. Galbraith and Harry L. Vanluven.

TOWING THE TROOP GLIDER

Most airmen transferred from bomber command to the pilot of towing glider don't realize at first the value of airborne troops in modern warfare.

Then, like Pilot Officer Valmonte Manzerolle, of Shippegan, N.B., they take part in a show like Sicily and change their minds. "We knew it was quite a responsible job," he said, "but we didn't realize the importance of these aircraft until Sicily came along."

This 22-year-old rear-gunner, son of a Spanish father and French-Canadian mother, chalked up 42 trips with Bomber Command before being posted to an air observer's course for two months. Months of intensive training with airborne troops in Britain followed.

His squadron was among the first to tow gliders over the Italian island in the night preceding the landing forces invasion.

"We released ours near Syracuse," Manzerolle said. "After landing, the airborne troops were to hold a bridge which, I hear, they did successfully. Three days later we dropped paratroops between Augusta and Catania. That time they were to capture a bridge and hitter further, and we did on as they dropped."

Pilot Officer Alan Westgate, Vancouver, was on both sorties as a wireless operator. "We were mighty glad to get a move on," said the 20-year-old airman. "We had been training for the British front and had our machines down pat."

He said "we were shot up badly on the second trip. The flak was not very accurate but so much 303 hit our plane it was far from pleasant. It was just like flying through a hailstorm.

"As we had to head straight for what we call the 'dropping zone' it was impossible for our pilot to do any evasive action. We had to take the peppering without a chance to hit back."

"Yeah," interjected Manzerolle, "and what a nice target we made in that moonlight."

Members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps will be taking their place with men behind anti-aircraft artillery as the result of a plan announced here, "plotter-telephonists" Women in England have been used on similar duty for some months.

WEDDING BELLS

MORROW - MELLOW

Amia a profusion of summer flowers, the Rev. Kenneth Crawford united in marriage Pauline Eleanor, younger daughter of Mrs. A. W. Mellow and the late Mr. Mellow, and William Kenneth, youngest son of Mrs. D. H. Morrow and the late Mr. Morrow at Conway United Church, on Saturday, July 31.

Given in marriage by her brother, Leslie W. Mellow, the bride entered the prettily decorated church to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin with Miss E. H. Patterson, Kingston, at the organ.

The bride wore a street-length frock of sky blue sheer with a deep yoked bodice of pin tucks and ruffles of lace. Her hat and accessories were white and she carried an arm bouquet of Dream roses and Baby's Breath. Her attendant, Miss Mary Mellow, wore a Queen's blue chiffonette crepe suit with white accessories and carried a bouquet of pink Gladdy's and Baby's Breath.

INCREASE IN COFFEE TEA RATIONS SLATED

GAIN OF ONE-THIRD SET FOR SEPT. 2

The Prices Board announced on Thursday that Canada's tea and coffee rations will be increased by one third September 2.

The announcement said the extra two weeks' supply would be given when the supply position permits, and it is felt that if ocean shipping conditions continue to enable the supply another increase in this ration will be made before the end of the year.

Present rations are one ounce of tea and four ounces of coffee weekly per person. An increase by one-third would mean one and one-third ounces of tea or five and one-third ounces of coffee weekly per person after September 2.

The increase becomes effective with the use of tea and coffee coupons from the new ration book being distributed next week.

There will be no change in the present value of these coupons, each being worth two ounces of tea or eight ounces of coffee, but the increased value will be accomplished by having two coupons become valid every three weeks instead of every four weeks, as at present.

Tea and Coffee coupons in ration book No. 3 will not show the valid dates, but these dates will be announced from time to time by the board. The first coupons of the new book become due Sept. 2.

Commenting on the announcement, R. T. Mohan, administrator of tea, coffee and spices, for the board said, "this increase in tea and coffee ration has been made possible by our assured improvement of our stock position as regards tea and coffee."

The Late Thomas Walmsley

Thomas Walmsley, a member of one of the pioneer families of North Fredericksburgh, died at his home about three miles from Napanee on the River Road last Wednesday, August 18th, after an illness of about three years. He was 71 years of the farm now occupied by Wm. Goodman on April 30th, 1872, and had lived at his late home since his marriage to Rachel Fleck.

He had been a farmer all his life time and was well-known and highly respected by a large number of friends in the district.

He is survived by his wife, one son Earl, of Kingston, and two daughters, Muriel, Mrs. Earl Penny and Marion, Mrs. Wm. McIntosh both of Napanee. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. A. B. Symmonds Adolphustown who is the last surviving member of the family.

Mr. Walmsley was a member of Gretna United Church.

His funeral was conducted Friday afternoon at his late home by Rev. A. C. McCallum, Minister of the Bay Circuit. Mrs. Herbert Mellow presided at the piano and favorite hymns of the deceased were sung during the service. Mrs. Mellow also sang a solo. Burial took place in Riverside Cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Percy Taverner, Robert Denison, Walter Harkin, Walter Sills, Elmer Ackerbrack and Herbert Mellow.

WEDDING BELLS

REEVES - AMEY

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the Bay Parsonage, Wednesday afternoon, August 18th, when Kathleen Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Amey of North Fredericksburgh, became the bride of William Arthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reeves, of Bellrock. Rev. A. C. McCallum officiated. The ceremony was witnessed by Keith Amey, brother of the bride and Miss Doris Hudgeon of Napanee.

After a short honeymoon the newly wedded couple will take up residence in Belleville.

THE MIXING BOWL

SMALL AMOUNTS INTO GENEROUS SERVINGS

Hello Homemakers! Strenuous work in hot summer weather often impairs the appetite. Mother will prepare the usual portions but leftovers will be found in the serving dishes. However, as a member of the Kitchen Army she must use all her ingenuity and turn every bit of left-over food into an appetizing dish of some kind — there must be no waste of edible foods.

Gelatine (the plain, unflavoured kind) often helps to make left-overs into good-to-eat salads, main dishes and desserts. It also extends small amounts into generous servings that are more attractive than re-heated foods. Keep a covered dish in the refrigerator and in it put vegetables and meats, etc. Don't keep them too long—even a cupful may be combined into a tasty dish.

Basic—Jellied Meat Salad

1 tablespoon plain gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup hot water, 5 tbsp. mild vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tbsp. sugar (optional), dash of pepper, 1 tbsp. minced onion, ½ cup left-over vegetable, 1 cup diced meat.

Soften gelatine in cold water and dissolve in hot water. Add vinegar, salt, sugar and pepper. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in vegetables. Turn into lightly greased mold and chill in electric refrigerator. When firm, unmold on salad greens and serve with dressing or whipped sour cream.

Basic Jellied Vegetables

In place of the 1 cup of diced meat, use 1½ cups of cooked vegetables.

Other suggestions: ½ cup each of cooked peas, diced celery and carrots. ½ cup each shredded raw carrots, chopped celery and cabbage; ½ cup each diced cooked beets, green pepper

Basic Jellied Fruits

1 envelope gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup hot water or fruit juice, ¼ cup sugar, 1½ cups diced mixed fruits

Follow directions for jellied meats.

TAKE A TIP :

1. Open the refrigerator door only when necessary, and close as quickly as possible.

2. Defrost the electric refrigerator regularly—when ¼ inch of frost has accumulated on the evaporator.

3. Operate the electric refrigerator at temperature adequate for preservation of food; do not operate too cold.

4. If leaving home for two or three days, turn control on refrigerator to lowest operating point, but not necessarily to defrosting.

5. Do not place hot foods in refrigerator; wait until they are cool.

6. Do not load refrigerator with packages, bottles or cans that may be stored on pantry shelves.

7. Clean condenser regularly

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. R. J asks: Recipe for economical chocolate ice cream.

Answer: Melt 2½ squares of unsweetened chocolate; add ½ cup of sugar and ½ cup of boiling water and stir until smooth and thick. Mix 3 cups of 18 per cent. cream, ½ cup evaporated milk and ½ cup of sugar, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Soften 1 level tablespoon of granulated gelatine in ½ cup cold milk. Place over hot water and stir until dissolved. Stir into cream mixture. Beat the cream mixture into chocolate mixture quickly. Strain if necessary. When cool, add 3 teaspoons vanilla extract and pour into freezing tray of electric refrigerator. Beat 2 or 3 times during freezing.

Mrs. S. W. asks: How can mildew be removed from a white cotton dress?

Answer: Surface mildew may be removed by soaking in Javelle water, rinsed in warm water and spread out in sun on green grass for several hours. Deeply grown mildew is difficult to remove.

Miss C. B. says: Save the good parts of old table oilcloth. Cut into table mats or bibs and bind with bias tape.

SALAD SUGGESTIONS

We should have at least one fresh, raw, vegetable each day. Salads are the answer.

In salad you can serve an endless variety of the fruits and vegetables which are so rich in minera's and vitamins. Because you can use almost any kind or combination of foods, in salads, they may solve the problem of using left-overs.

If you include generous proportions of meat, fish, poultry, cheese or egg in your salad, you may serve it as a main dish. Salads consisting mainly of fruits and vegetables may be served as an accompaniment to a meal or in the case of fruit salads as a dessert.

If you follow the simple rules advocated by the Women's Institute Branch, you will have an appetising salad.

1—Use clean, crisp tender greens.
2—Keep all salad materials dry and well chilled.
3—Cut the ingredients in attractive shapes and suitable sizes.
4—Use foods to make good flavor and color combinations.
5—Add sufficient dressing to season well but not enough to make the salad watery.
6—Add the dressing just before serving.
7—Use strong flavor such as onion sparingly.
8—Make an attractive arrangement, avoid flat effect.
9—Select a suitable garnish, preferably one that may be eaten

When combining the ingredients, use a spoon or a fork and toss them together lightly with the dressing. Almost any proportion of ingredients may be used.

To serve with your salad you may choose one of several things. Hot cheese biscuits, hard rolls, crisp crackers, toast fingers melba toast or cheese straws. You could spread crackers with butter and brown in the oven or add grated cheese. Toast fingers are made by cutting stale bread in slices one-third of an inch thick, spread the slices with butter and then cut into one-third of an inch wide strips. Bake in hot oven until browned.

Write to the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto Ontario for "Salads that are Different."

A POST CARD REQUEST TO THE HEALTH LEAGUE OF CANADA, 111 AVENUE ROAD, TORONTO, WILL BRING YOU A FREE COPY OF ITS AUTHORITATIVE VITAMIN CHART.

A. No. It applies to everyone, including farmers, who kills hogs, and it applies the year round.

A. Due to supply difficulties, the sale of protective rubber garments has been restricted to certain classes of "essential users", such as miners, loggers, sailors, fishermen, railway yard workers, outdoor construction and shipbuilding work and fire-fighting. Each protective rubber garment so sold carries an essentiality certificate which must be completed by the retailer.

Q. There is talk of our skating rink being re-opened next winter. Is a W.T.P.B. license needed in order to operate it ?

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Babe :—

I am feeling in fine fettle, having just won a battle with the quartermaster stores. Nothing like a successful battle to bung one up ! A girl learns to keep an eye on her own interests in the C.W.A.C. and I find that I am becoming very proficient in the art. After all, the way I look at it is, the laboured is worthy of her hire and why should I go around looking down at the heels when the Q.M. Stores were supplied with nice new summer uniforms ? I have been wearing frayed sleeves for some time now but the uniform was not actually in tatters, so it required a certain degree of adroitness to pave the way to a new one. In fact I had sent it to be condemned several times but it always came winging back like a homing pigeon. Finally I goaded myself to a high pitch of righteous fury and tolked to the powers that be in the Stores. Now I have a new uniform hanging in my cupboard. Oo, happy day !

This is a big day in C.W.A.C. annals and I expect that members of the Corps from Coast to Coast are wearing beaming faces. There is a very satisfactory explanation for those smiling faces. In the past C.W.A.C have had a small grievance on the score of pay, which lagged far behind that of the men, being only sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of their pay. All this was rectified, however, when it was announced from Ottawa that the rates of pay for women in the services had been raised to eighty per cent. of the men's pay. This means that where formerly a private in the C.W.A.C. drew ninety cents a day, she now will receive $1.05 per day. Moreover, married women in the services who have children serving with the armed forces are now eligible for dependents' allowance. Naturally the situation was widespread. I had a very hectic lunch hour crowing with the other sergeants over the good news. Already the girls are planning how to spend the extra money. Some are going to salt it away for a spending spree after the war, others are going to buy War Savings Certificates, and still others are planning to give a little extra help to their members of their families. The news has also given rise to a certain amount of whistling and I heard one blonde little C.W.A.C. good-naturedly speculating on whether her boy friend would still respect her to take him out with her increased earnings.

Switching to things more personal, I hear that you have cut that beguiling hair of yours. Is it a fact ? Ah, it could have been one of those actress-like bobs, — Or maybe it was espionage. As a matter of fact, my informant is in your confidence that it was entirely your own fault in the "junior service". Yes, Dave, I am greatly flattered to receive a letter from him and appreciated his thoughtfulness. I was much intrigued by the picture he painted of your fluted dandelion head. He also added that you bridle at the description. Churlish girl, scoffing these tired red hairs rising one by one. So you don't like being called a "dandelion", Bird ?

Today was marked by receiving a box of choice goodies from Aunt Mimsy. Bless her heart, she dearly loves little cakes herself, but she managed to squeeze a batch of cookies for me out of her slender rations. It makes me feel rather ashamed. On the other hand, I remind myself that it is more blessed to give than to receive. As far as Aunt Mimsy is concerned, that is literally true. Her old face lights up like a sixty-watt lamp whenever one of her little "surprises" comes off.

Well, my pet, I cannot put off the evil hour any longer. I must bring this to a close and wash my hair. I wish that I had the ambition of one of our girls, Cpl. Florence Shotter, of Bowmanville, who bought an ingredient guaranteed to permanently wave hair at home and proceeded to give herself a crop of permanent curls in the privacy of her dormitory. It worked too. Is not science wonderful ?

I am really going now.

Affectionately,
NICKEY.

Amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act

Notice to Interested Employers and Employees

AT ITS 1943 Session, the Parliament of Canada amended the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1940. The effect of these amendments is to require additional workers be covered under unemployment insurance.

On and after September 1st, 1943, employers must make contributions in respect of the following employees :

★ (1) ALL PERSONS engaged in employment hitherto insurable, regardless of the amount of earnings, who may be paid on an hourly rate, on a daily rate, on a weekly rate, or a piece rate (including a minimum age rate).

★ (2) ALL EMPLOYEES paid on a monthly or annual salary basis, whose salary, including any cost of living bonus which may be received, does not exceed $2,400 a year.

All employees, as above described, must pay their contributions as required by law.

The combined contribution for each employee earning $26 or more a week will be in Class 7—6c a week.

To Employers: Obtain unemployment insurance books from the nearest local office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission as soon as possible, for employees above described who will become insurable on September 1st, 1943.

To Employees: It is in your interest to see that your employer makes contributions on your behalf from September 1st, 1943, if you become insurable through the Amendment.

Simple Procedure For Distribution of No. 3 Ration Book

Consumers — and especially those who received ration books during the earlier distribution of this year — will find that arrangements made for the distribution of Ration Book No. 3 are simplicity itself.

The Local Ration Board, which has assumed responsibility for this distribution, said today that there is nothing at all complicated about this distribution providing those who apply for new ration books follow a few simple instructions.

The procedure adopted for this distribution is identical with that which prevailed for the earlier issue of ration books and will thus be familiar to all those who visited distributing stations at that time. It may be, however, that the whereabouts of these stations will differ, and consumers should, therefore, watch for newspaper advertising which will list them along with their hours.

As a preliminary to the distribution, holders of ration books should at their homes fill out in advance the application cards which are to be found in the current books as the first post card at the rear. All those of 16 years or over must sign these cards personally. Cards for those below 16 must be signed by parents or guardians. If a householder over 16 is unable to write, he may make his mark and have a sponsor sign for him. Applicants should give their permanent addresses.

Thus completed, the application card, still attached to the ration book, is to be taken to any distributing centre, where volunteer workers will detach it and provide the consumer with a new ration book. It is most important to remember that this application card is NOT to be mailed; it is to be taken, while still forming part of the ration book, to the distributing centre.

Because No. 2 ration book, at the time of the distribution of its successor, will still contain coupons that may be used for the purcase of meat, the old book along with the new one will be handed to the consumer. The latter is, accordingly, advised not to surrender destroy or damage his No. 2 ration book.

To facilitate family or household distribution of the new books, arrangements have been made whereby residents of rural areas may apply on behalf of their neighbors, providing ration book No. 2 with properly completed application cards are presented. Similarly, senior or responsible members of urban households may apply for new ration books on behalf of that household, again if book No. 2 and application cards personally signed by the applicants are presented. On no account, however, will children under 16 be allowed to apply for new ration books, either for themselves or for other members of their families.

Book-holders on vacation may, of course, apply for new ration books wherever they happen to be. But they should be careful to give their permanent, and not their temporary, addresses on their application cards.

Consumers Warned Not to Throw Away No. 2 Ration Books

Consumers are particularly cautioned by the Local Ration Board not to surrender their Ration Books No. 2 unless now in use) at the time of the issue of the No. 3 books, nor to damage or destroy the old books until the validity of all the coupons contained in them has expired.

The reason for this warning is that, even after the new books come into use on September 2nd, the old books will contain coupons which will be valid for the purchase of meat, and the meat coupons in the new books will not begin to possess validity until the others have expired.

In addition to this, other uncashed coupons in the old books will still be valid for the purchase of rationed goods for some considerable time after the new books have come into use, and this is particularly true of tea, coffee and sugar coupons, which remain valid until declared invalid.

Old ration books will, therefore, still have material value for the consumer after No. 3 books have been issued, and they should be kept as carefully guarded as the new books.

VICTORIA W. I.

Delightful hostesses for the August meeting of Victoria Institute were members and visitors, were Mrs. Frank McFarland and daughter - in - law, Mrs. Ivan McFarland. The president opened the meeting as customary by all standing and singing the ode and repeating the creed, in unison. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. McCracken was appointed protem. Nearly all responded to the roll call, which was: for the evening's program on topic for the evenings program on Historical Research, opened with a sing song of old favorites. Mrs. McCracken gave a paper on "Abbey Dawn," located near Kingston. Many interesting items of history including an altar of stone and a throne or chieftain's chair, were mentioned. Abbey Dawn possesses the finest collection of North American stone objects, north, of Mexico. The estate comprises five hundred acres and with its varied landscape and picturesque topography has probably the greatest habitat of any estate in Canada. Then, too, the owner of Abbey Dawn is one of Canada's poets and receives many, many welcome visitors to this delightful sanctuary. A quaint custom at Abbey Dawn is the daily ringing of the great bell. the Poet's Bell. Official Nagano, which can be heard over the countryside for a distance of seven miles. Mrs. McCracken was thanked for her able presentation of the paper. Three groups of ladies joined their voices in the singing of two rounds of "How Lovely is the Evening" and "Three Blind Mice." Mrs. A. M. Graham contributed a humorous reading after which Mrs. Fred McFarland exhibited a miniature chest of drawers and and a tray very beautifully modelled of birds-eye maple and finished with a satin finish, which were much admired and commented upon.

An interesting contest in keeping with the month's topic was an old fashioned dinner contest, Miss Vera McFarland winning the dainty prize. The meeting closed by all standing at attention and singing the National Anthem. A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses.

TYENDINAGA EAST W. I.

The Tyendinaga East Women's Institute met on August 19 at the home of Mrs. M. Schamerhorn, with eight members and four visitors present. The second vice-president, Mrs. R. Tucker presided in the absence of the president. The meeting opened with the ode and the Lord's Prayer. Roll call was answered with suggestions for overseas boxes. Minutes were read and the next meeting discussed. Current events were given by each member.

Miss Delma Kimmerly had charge of the topic, which was on education. She read the article "Par Avion" from the Educational Courier. This proved very interesting to all as it had been composed by Miss Ruth C. Schell, a former teacher of the community and now of Favourable Lake, Northwestern Ontario.

Mrs. C. Provins had charge of the programme which consisted of readings by Mrs. R. Harvey and Mrs. Preyita, and a poem by Mrs. R. Stafford. The meeting was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem, after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Mrs. D. Waddingham moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Schamerhorn for her hospitality.

WHOLE GRAINS CONTRIBUTE TO DAY'S MEALS

"There are more ways of killing a cat than drowning it in cream," says the old proverb. And similarly, there are more ways of getting that daily serving of whole grain cereal into the day's meals than serving it as porridge for breakfast.

Because they are such good sources of B vitamins and iron, Canada's Official Food Rules say that everyone should have one serving of whole grain cereal every day.

Oatmeal, cracked wheat, or one of the other whole grain cereals served as porridge is the ideal, but not the only way, of meeting this part of the day's food needs. Nutrition Services suggests other ways of including whole grain cereals every day.

Among the ready-to-eat cereals on the market, some are made from whole grains and these are the wise shopping choice, for they are better value.

Wheat germ, which is rich in B vitamins and iron can be used in baking, in soups, and casserole dishes as well as in prepared or cooked cereal.

Oatmeal bread and cookies are always favorites and this cereal makes many delicious additions. Some other ways of including whole grain cereals in the meals are to switch to whole grain bread might well be made when porridge is taken off the bill-of-fare, while bran or whole wheat muffins would doubtless be regarded by the family as a very fine substitute for the morning dish of porridge.

Opening of Ogoki Diversion Marked by Simple Ceremony

PROJECT IS ACCLAIMED AS OUTSTANDING HYDRO ACHIEVEMENT AND AS UNIQUE IN ANNALS OF ENGINEERING

A simple but historic ceremony took place recently in the wild and lonely wilderness of Ontario's northern hinterland, marking the official opening of the Ogoki diversion which has just been completed by The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

The ceremony was observed at the control dam which spans the channel, cut through the height of land between the James Bay and St. Lawrence watersheds.

There, in the presence of a small group of Hydro and Ontario Government officials, Otto Holden, chief hydraulic engineer of the H. E. P. C., smashed a bottle containing water from the Niagara river against an 1,800-lb. log that had been raised from one of the sluiceways. Those in attendance included W. B. Crombie, General Superintendent of the project; David Forgan, construction engineer, H. E. P. C., J. A. Brodie, chief of the Forest Protection Division, and Peter Addison, district forester, Port Arthur.

V

OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT

The act performed by Mr. Holden officially released the first flow from the Ogoki diversion, which is acclaimed as one of the Commission's outstanding achievements and the project which is recognized as unique in the annals of engineering.

Completion of this five-million-dollar undertaking, which was commenced early in December 1940, will result in the moving of a great body of water from one watershed to the other, a distance of approximately 2,000 miles from Wabosee Rapids on the shores of the Atlantic. Between Wabosee and the ocean this water flows through rippling chains of creeks, rivers and lakes including Lake Nipigon, the Nipigon river, the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence.

The Ogoki water and the flow from the Long Lac diversion—, sim lar but smaller project 120 miles to the east —unite in Lake Superior. Those two diversions, whose combined flow averages 5,000 c.f.s., make possible the development of 360,000 additional horsepower at developed and undeveloped sites between Lake Nipigon and mouth of the St. Lawrence.

WILL BENEFIT NAVIGATION

Over a period of time this diverted water will raise the levels of the lower Great Lakes about 2½ inches and thus benefit navigation. This benefit arises from the fact that the capacity of lake freighters is determined by the depth of shallow channels, some of which provide only a few inches clearance for the hulls of these boats. A higher water level will, therefore, eventually contribute to an increase in the tonnage which can be carried by these freighters in their many journeys over a period of a year.

Three of the key points involved in the creation of the Ogoki project are Wabosee Rapids, where a massive dam 80 feet high and 1,700 feet long will be thrown across the Ogoki river; South Summit Lake, at the height of land, where the control dam now stands, and Jackfish Creeping at which point a new railway bridge has been erected over a deepened channel that is designed to take care of the increased flow of water. To close points in the contour, two auxiliary dams have been constructed—one at the lake near Wabosee dam, while other auxiliary dams are located at Shake Creek and Chappals Lake.

SUPERVISION BY RADIO

Houses have been constructed at both widely separated points where permanent operators are stationed. Control and supervision of all operations involved in regulating the flow from this new diversion are maintained through a one-wave radio system which links the head office administration building in Toronto with the operating point at Wabosee.

Completion of this unique project is hailed as another important chapter in the annals of Hydro service to the people of Ontario.

TENSION MOUNTS IN NORWAY

Reports that Norway is high on the Anglo-American invasion list are growing more persistent in London. Mounting tension in Norway following strict new measures placing civilians under military law, has resulted in large concentrations of German troops at various parts of the country, says one report from Sweden.

The Royal Norwegian Government says that more islands along the invasion coast have been closed to the public, including Sotra, a large island off Bergen. Besides feverishly rushing final construction of a Norwegian "west wall" the Nazis are doing rehearsal after rehearsal of simulated invasion attempts, according to intelligence received by the government.

Dummy figures in landing barges are used to represent the Allied troops, the mock landings along the Southern Norwegian coast, and German soldiers from emplacements which overlook the mock open fire on them.

In reporting last Tuesday the new German troop concentrations in Norway, the Swedish paper Nya Dagligt Allehanda also said that the German guard along the Swedish-Norwegian frontier had been reinforced. The Stockholms-Tidningen of the same date says that recent "reinforcements" in Norway were due to the Nazis' increasing nervousness in connection with an expected Allied invasion. With this increase in tension, it was pointed out, morale of the German troops is deteriorating.

The newspaper, referring to the recent mass arrests of Norwegian officers, says: "It seems that the Germans dare not keep in Norway such persons as might become leaders when the signal is given for an open revolt against the occupying power."

The Dagens Nyhether of last Monday was even more emphatic. It said had started the evacuation of Norway were erroneous and that the Germans actually have never been stronger in Norway than they are at present." Also in connection with an expected Allied invasion, the newspaper, referring to the recent mass arrests of Norwegian officers, says: "It seems that the Germans dare not keep in Norway such persons as might become leaders when the signal is given for an open revolt against the occupying power."

PICTURE OF HOWARD O'CONNOR IN 'GLOBE AND MAIL'

In Saturday's copy of "The Globe and Mail" there appeared an excellent picture of Flight-Sergt. Howard J. O'Connor, of Napanee, which shows him wearing the ribbon of the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Howard was awarded the D. F. M. for his skill in bringing his damaged bomber back to England after a heavy raid on a German target. Returning from the target, his bomber was attacked by three enemy fighters, and one engine was damaged and both the front and rear turrets were put out of action, but he displayed "commendable courage and determination" in getting the aircraft safely home.

Allenbrack was listed as wounded and Martin, missing in action.

THREE ESCAPED NAZIS STILL AT LARGE

Kingston, (C.P.) — Search still was under way Tuesday for three German prisoners of war who escaped ith six-teen others by crawling through an unused sewer, at historic Fort Henry in, Kingston, last Thursday night.

More than 1,200 men from nearby Barriefield training camp, men from the Vimy Barracks, Royal Canadian Mounted Police from Ottawa, Ontario Provincial Police and Kingston police are combining to maintain close scrutiny of every road in the area.

The number of captures so far rose to sixteen Saturday night when Heinz Stoerly was taken into custody by soldiers from the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals training centre at Vimy. Four of the men were retaken the first night, eight were recaptured Friday and four more were picked up Saturday. Still at liberty are Willebrin Jiersting 41, 160 pounds, five feet 10 inches; Ernest Muench 24, 145 pounds, five feet six inches; and Heinz Wirtz 22, 140 pounds, five feet seven inches.

Five minutes after the first escape alarm was flashed from Fort Henry, the first of 1,200 soldiers, at present seeking the three escapees still uncaptured, were on special duty. An authentic behind-the-scenes glimpse of the military machine cleaning up Canada's second-largest war-prisoner break was given the Canadian Press Sunday night.

Captain Pyke Died While Eating Dinner

Captain Pyke of the Pyke Salvage Company, died suddenly on Monday evening in Kingston while eating his dinner with the crew of the Salvage Prince, at the docks in Napanee.

The boat came in during the week-end with coal for the Napanee Fuel & Supply Company. On Monday morning Captain Pyke was up town and was driven back to the boat by Harry Vine about 12:30. About 15 minutes later Captain Pyke was seized with a severe attack and died almost immediately. Dr. Galbraith was called but was unable to revive him.

Workmen Repair St. Patrick's Church Spire Covering

Two workmen were engaged during the past week in making repairs to the metal covering on the spire of St. Patrick's Church, in Napanee.

Seated on a narrow bench, suspended by ropes from the top of the spire, one workman was engaged in fastening the metal plates which form the covering of the spire, while another workman lowered and raised the bench by means of other ropes. Two ladders were used on one side of the spire to reach the top, to which the ropes were attached.

JAM RATIONING EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 2 DETAILS ANNOUNCED

Covers Jams, Jellies, Syrups and Honey

Ottawa, (C.P.) — The Prices Board on Sunday night announced ration allowances for jams, jellies, syrups, canned fruit and similar products. Sales of these goods are under suspension until September 2, when "D" coupons from the new No. 3 ration books become valid for sweetspreads, and other goods of this type.

Two "D" coupons will become good each month:

GOODS OBTAINABLE:

1 Six fluid ounces of jam, jelly, marmalade, extracted honey, apple butter, maple butter or honey butter, or:

2 Ten fluid ounces of molasses or maple syrup, or:

2 Ten fluid ounces of canned fruit, or:

4 Twelve fluid ounces of corn syrup, cane syrup or any blended table syrup, or:

5 One-half pound of maple sugar or comb honey in squares:

As an alternative to any of these commodities the consumer may obtain for his "D" coupon one-half pound of sugar.

The ration plan is similar to that used for meats since the consumer may spend a coupon for any one of the commodities rationed depending on his choice and upon what is available," the board's announcement said.

The "D" coupons will become good on the same dates as sugar coupons. The board said the plan will make for a more equitable distribution of commercially packed preserves and homemade preserves, as well as providing the alternative of the extra year "D" coupons. There will be no restriction on the use of sugar obtained in this way.

"It is possible to make more sugar available because of the substantial reduction in the commercial pack of jams, jellies and canned fruits occasioned by the short fruit crop and the consequent reduction in tins used for these purposes," the board said.

Announcement was also made of an increase in the quotas of other industrial users of sugar, except wine manufacturers from 70 to 80 per cent. of 1941 usage. This increase becomes effective October 1st.

FURTHER DETAILS

Other details of the new rationing plan announced are;

Hotels, institutions, restaurants, soda fountains and other similar users will also be rationed by quotas, but the industrial use of honey, maple syrup and corn syrup will be severely restricted or eliminated entirely in order to make more of those commodities available to housewives.

Infants who need more than the 24 fluid ounces of corn syrup per month provided under the ration will be issued extra "D" coupons against surrender of sugar coupons to local branches of the ration administration or to local ration boards.

When purchasing goods in containers it will not always be possible for the consumer to get the extra value shown on the chart for his coupon. However, he may purchase two or more containers if the total contents do not add up to more than the total value of the coupons presented.

Jelly powders, soya bean spreads and peanut butter are not included in the rationing plan.

35 COUNTY FARMERS GOING WEST TO HELP WITH HARVEST

Thirty-five farmers of the County of Lennox and Addington leave this week for Western Canada to assist in the harvesting of the Prairie Province's grain crop. The men will be away until about the middle of November.

Some time ago a letter was sent to all the farmers in the County, asking any who could to volunteer to go to the West. 70 replies were received and of these half have been allotted work and possibly the other 33 will be accepted at a little later date.

Considering the lack of farm help in the County the response is considered excellent. Eighty-five men, as son a number of Western Canada farmers came east to help harvest the crops, which mature much earlier than those in the West.

JOINT STATEMENT ISSUED BY Churchill - Roosevelt

Quebec, (B.U.P.) — The text of the joint statement by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, issued at the close of the Quebec Conference, last week, is as follows:

The Anglo-American war conference which opened at Quebec on August 11 under the hospitable auspices of the Canadian Government has now concluded its work.

The whole field of world operations has been surveyed in the light of the many gratifying events which have taken place since the meeting of the President and the Prime Minister in Washington at the end of May and the necessary decisions have been taken to provide for the forward actions of the Fleet, Army and Air Forces of the two nations.

Considering that the forces are intermingled in continuous action against the enemy in several quarters of the globe it is indispensable that entire unity of aim and method should be maintained at the summit of the war direction.

Further conferences will be needed, probably at shorter intervals than before as the war effort of the United States and the British Commonwealth and Empire against the enemy spreads and deepens.

It would not be helpful to the fighting troops to make any announcements of the decisions which have been reached. These can only emerge in action.

It may, however, be stated that the military discussions of the chiefs-of-staff turned very largely upon the war against Japan and the bringing of effective aid to China. Mr. T. V. Soong, representing Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, has a party to the discussions. In this field, as in the European, the President and the Prime Minister were able to receive and approve the unanimous recommendations of the combined chiefs-of-staff. Agreement was also reached upon the policy to be pursued during or arising out of the military operations.

It was resolved to hold another conference before the end of the year between the British and American authorities, in addition to any tripartite conference which may be possible to arrange with Soviet Russia. Full reports of the decisions so far as they affect the war against Germany and Italy will be furnished to the Soviet Government.

Consideration has been given during the conference to the question of relations with the French Committee of Liberation, and it is announced that an announcement by a number of government will be made in the latter part of the week.

Suspended Sentence Given Farm Hand Charged With Theft

A suspended sentence was given Jack Giles who was all set to go penitentiary for a year, in Magistrate Garratt, in Napanee Police Court, on Monday for the theft of two cows from the Modole Hardware Co.

Giles pleaded not guilty to the charge but the Magistrate pronounced him guilty after hearing the evidence of O. S. Reddick, manager of the Modole Hardware Company.

Mr. Reddick stated that Giles came in the store approximately under the influence of liquor. He talked with Mr. Reddick about a steer and later Mr. Reddick went to the back of the store leaving Giles alone. Sometime later it was learned the two cows were missing and they were recovered by Chief Clute. Giles claimed he paid for them, which Mr. Reddick said was not the case.

Mr. Reddick asked that leniency be shown Giles because he was confident that had he been in a normal condition he would not have taken the cows.

Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C. acting Crown Attorney, also asked that the Magistrate be as lenient as possible, as Giles is a farm worker and has a family of six children.

Beautiful Flower On Night-Blooming Cereus

GROWN BY
MR. AND MRS. W. THOMPSON

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thompson, Ward Street, had many visitors at their home on Thursday evening and early Friday morning, the occasion when a night-blooming Cereus was in flower. The plant which is about a year old, had only one flower, but it was a beautiful specimen and was well worth seeing.

The night-blooming cereus, which grow to its home known only at night, bears a beautiful waxy-like flower, similar in formation to a water-lily, but is more delicate in petals and has no other color except on the outside petals, which are about a magenta shade. The leaves of the petal are long and narrow like a lily and of the flower grows from the side of the leaf on a narrow stalk.

Mr. Bernard Reid, who lived day the flower stayed fresh part of the morning, which is unusual because ordinarily it would fade with the first bright hint of day.

Mr. Frank Babcock, who resides on Union Street, between Mill and Dundas Streets, has a potato patch in his garden of which he is justly proud. From one hill he dug, last week, two Irish Cobblers which weighed about one pound and a half each. The potatoes were grown from certified seed and the yield has been good and of excellent quality.

"NOT ALWAYS TO THE SWIFT . . ."

"The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong" is an old proverb from Holy Writ. In the race the swift may stub his toe and fall, any one of a dozen accidents may happen. And in war there are errors of judgments, mistakes in strategy, which can easily enough spoil the strong's dream of conquest. Four years ago, Germany bestrode the earth like a colossus. Her political intrigue had succeeded in winning satellite states to her side. Her six years' programme of preparation had produced a war machine the like of which the world had never seen. Like a steam-roller, it smashed its way relentlessly across a continent. Those not conquered by political intrigue and traitorous Quislings, were subdued by force or fear. The tradition of an invincible Germany had become a settled conviction with many peoples.

To-day, the situation is different. Britain, standing alone in the grim, dark days of 1940, held the fort while preparing slowly but surely to challenge the Teutonic might. Russia, doublecrossed by Germany, having had time to prepare, met the foe with an unconquerable spirit, with a magnificent army and with a productive capacity which amazed the world. Russia has paid a staggering price in lives lost, in men and women wounded and in territory razed more than once as the battles have swayed this way and that. The swift, which might have won the race, was not swift enough. The strong which might have overpowered all peoples and forced their surrender, had not been strong enough.

There are great imponderables in life, which cannot be calculated. There are forces which cannot be measured. The Germans, with all their thoroughness, scientific painstaking care, were not able to measure the force of will power, of courage, of faith, which Great Britain and the Allies have displayed. And now the nemesis is not too far distant. One after another nations, once subjected to Nazi rule, are taking heart—Soon the day will dawn when they will assert their own will and strike for freedom and liberty. Bulgaria is going through a serious experience; her people are crying for peace. Denmark, unable to lift a little finger at the start of the war, has chafed under the Nazi overlordship until the situation became unbearable. Casting care and discretion to the winds, the Government defied the Nazis; the people rioted; the sailors scuttled their ships, and the whole nation rose in revolt.

Italy has all but caved in. Her beautiful cities are now a pile of rubble, her people are only kept in the war by the most iron discipline. Their railroads are but a shadow of their former efficiency. Food, fuel, clothing and all the necessities of life are scarce. In more than one city demonstrations clamoring for peace have been held. Poor, deluded Italy led by a comic opera show man, into dreams of world conquest, lies almost a helpless victim to the armed might of the United Nations. Hanging on for dear life, the Government refuses to heed the cry of her people and the appeals of our leaders, their friends.

Even every side the handwriting is on the wall. The struggle may yet be a long one, but the corner has been turned—the race is not to the swift in this case, nor the battle to the strong. In spite of all men's weakness and wilful evil, there is a moral order in the universe, which in the last analysis asserts itself.

GETTING TOGETHER

The Quebec Conference threw wide open a question which had been kept rather quiet. What are the United Nations to do in the Europe of to-morrow. Now, to be sure, we do not know all that the question implies. But we know enough to know that Russia is none too happy over the way she has been treated in the plans of the Allies. Russia was not at Casablanca. Russia was not at Quebec. It will be remembered that Russia was not at Prague, either, when Czhecho-Slovakia was sold down the river.

Russia does not like this. Stalin showed his resentment by withdrawing Litvinoff from the United States and, and Maisky from London. At once, it was promised that a new conference would be held at which Russia would be present, and the picture changed. Maisky was sent back as Ambassador to the Court of St. James. Russia has won the right to be on any post-war plans. Russia makes it clear, by her actions, that she intends to have a share in them.. In spite of the way in which Russia has staved off the Nazi hordes, in spite of her sacrifices of men and property, there are still many who do not trust her, who are afraid of her way of life, afraid of her economic set-up. There are those who would even prefer a rebuilt Germany so long as the methods by which business and economics were conducted did not lean too far to the left.

The war will not be over when the bugles sound cease fire. The struggle for markets, the struggle for control of industry and business will be as intense as ever. Russia knows that. Russia has some very definite ideas about these things. Now, to be sure, the Russian way is not our way—but that is not the point. Russia has a right to sit in on any discussion of the future of Europe, and Russia intends so to do.

Rather than that there should be a bitter struggle between two ideologies, after the war, the most sensible plan would be for each to recognize the rights of the other and to proceed from there. Surely it should not be impossible for two groups, even though they do not see eye to eye on economic matters, to agree to differ, and to agree to do business each with the other. The Red menace is still a bogey that frightens certain people in the Democratic countries, who apparently have been able to make their influence felt to the extent of keeping Russia out of some of the post-war plans. Perhaps when we learn to work with Russia in peace, as closely as we have worked with her in war, the bogey will evaporate into thin air. Mutual understanding and trust are the only basis of a just and durable peace.

LOOKING AHEAD

Napanee can be a pretty cold place in winter. It is not too early to be thinking about that now. The Ontario climate can be as beautiful and lovely as anywhere in the world but in winter it can be as forbidding and as terrifying as that of any other country. Fortunately, through the years, we have developed a technique for combatting the cold weather as central heating, double windows, banking, insulating, are but a few.

This year, however, it will be different. The unprecedented demand for coal by the war industries, coupled with the labor disputes in the mining areas, has created a shortage of fuel. The Town Council has moved wisely and fast in laying up a store of wood against a fuel shortage. The citizens will not appreciate to the full this foresight until the need becomes acute. In the meantime, it is essential that every possible precaution be taken to prevent leakages in doorways and window sashes. Furnaces should be cleaned now, and new pipes placed where needed. Of recent years, we have learned much about insulation. If it is possible householders should undertake a measure of insulation. The hardware stores can give expert information and advice on the subject. In every way precautions should be taken now to make sure that the maximum heat is received from the fuel available.

When the cold weather really sets in, we may have to accustom ourselves to lower temperatures in the homes, wear heavier clothing, and instead of sleeping with the window open all night, simply open all the doors twice a day to air the house.

These may seem irksome. But we must remember we are at war. We are not being bombed. Inconvenience to which we may have to submit, at most, will only interfere with our comfort. At all events, no time should be lost in making preparations for the weather which we are bound to face for four or five months of the year—the first of which months is not too very far distant.

V

IF —

If the war were to end tomorrow or the day after, the rejoicing and the thanksgiving would be matched only by the haunting fear on the part of thousands of men and women as to the future. President Roosevelt never tires of reiterating the four freedoms for which we are at war and to which, by nature, every man and every woman, is entitled. Perhaps of all these, freedom from fear is the one most devoutly to be wished. As early as 1927, after a study trip to Europe, we reported that every nation seemed to fear every othe rnation, and that every border in Europe seemed to be bristling with bayonets. It is this fear of one nation for another which, played upon by unscrupulous leaders and self-seeking politicians, has been a determining factor in precipitating the Second Great War.

Millions of men and women in the years between the two wars, suffered from the fear of the future, not only in Europe, but in our own land; old age, sickness, unemployment, hung over the heads of countless thousands, like the sword of Damocles. The war, while it has brought the fear of sorrow and death to almost every home, has, nevertheless, provided full employment and by so doing has relieved workers of the fears contingent upon loss of work, and loss of pay.

If the war were to end tomorrow or the next day, would these fears be restored. Would men and women now enjoying the security which an assured income provides, be once again subject to the bread line, and the dole? These are questions which dare not be evaded. Certainly there would be untold dislocation among employers as the effort was made to go back to a peace basis, rather than a war basis. It is those transitional days which would be the critical ones. For those, every effort should be made to provide work, man made work, even useless work, if necessary, so that the spectre of want should not haunt our people. On the government devolves the obligation to make plans now, not vague plans, but definite, concrete plans, plans with a clear-cut objective, plans with work mapped out and projects ready.

Extension of Compulsory Employment Transfers.

To Employers and Employees:

THE 6th Compulsory Employment Transfer Order, issued under authority of National Selective Service Civilian Regulations, requires compliance not later than September 8th, 1943. After that date no employer may continue to employ any man covered by this Order, unless under special permit.

The first five Compulsory Transfer Orders listed occupations, and required compliance by all male employees in those occupations if (a) in an age and marital class designated under the Military Call-up, or if (b) 16, 17 or 18 years of age. The Sixth Order repeats all occupations given in the five earlier Orders, and requires all other men from 16 to 40 years of age (both ages inclusive) to become available for transfer to higher priority jobs, by registering at the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

Details of the Sixth Order were advertised in daily newspapers at the end of August. Copies of the Order may be secured from any Employment and Selective Service Office.

If in doubt as to the coverage of this Order, or the procedure under it, ask your nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

All men, married or single, employed in designated occupations, aged 16 to 40, are now covered by the Orders. To avoid penalties, those who have not yet registered must do so by September 8th, 1943.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, SEPTEMBER 5TH, 1943

Lesson Text: Leviticus 19: 1-4, 11-18, 32-34

"ISRAEL CALLED TO BE A HOLY PEOPLE"

The children of Israel were called of God to be a holy people. That was not just a matter of keeping some laws and avoiding certain forms of conduct. Holiness meant that the Hebrew people were conscious of a relationship to God which demanded consecration to His way of life. We have to be on our guard here, when we talk about chosen people. As soon as a people begin to think they are a chosen people, a specially privileged people, they are heading for a fall. That is what has happened to the Nazis. They are quite sure they are a superior race, a privileged people, specially gifted and endowed. They are born, not to serve, but to rule. It will be recalled that the Hebrew people at one time in their history, so interpreted their call. It will be remembered, too, with what biting sarcasm Amos challenged that view. Chosen they were, but not chosen to bask in the sunshine of God's favor, save as they deserved that privilege because of their service. A people who are a holy people conscious of a living relationship with God, a relationship which demands purity of motive and unremitting devotion to His demands, are the only group deserving of God's favor and God's blessing.

The rest of the passage has to do with the moral precepts by which a nation is to be governed. They are more or less a reiteration of the Ten Commandments. There is to be no stealing, no dealing falsely, no lying, no swearing. There are prohibitions against the grossest sins. Perhaps they need to be underlined and emphasized a bit to-day. The war has but a false standard on morals. Indeed it always does. Stealing is justified if it is done from the enemy; lying is justified in war if it helps the war effort; false dealing is not unknown. If it manages to get results. Of course, we do not always use these words to characterize our actions — we have nice phrases for them. All the same, in war-time, mostly everything goes that will help the cause. That is one of the difficulties which face the post-war world.

Another code of ethics has to be applied in peace time. That generations to recapture the last ground of a great secular movement. We are going to need our children to pay for the failure to apply the religion of Jesus to our own personal national conduct through the generation. One sign of the failure was visited upon the children of the third generation and fourth generation. That is as true to-day as when it was first uttered.

Not only must we enter into self-abstinence from the grosser sins, but we demands taht certain social reformation should be undertaken. All good people are not to oppress their neighbors. The hired man is to be paid promptly. The physically handicapped are not to be penalized because of their weakness. Comfort at the time so far distant from our own these injustices are rather reprehensible. They suggest that right at the beginning of their organized life as a nation the Hebrew people were enjoined to maintain a kindly, generous and sympathetic life with one another—the weak, the blind and the deaf. And they were to exhibit that kindness, not merely because of humanitarian consideration. They were to exhibit it because of their attitudes were to stem from their relation to God. Social service with a religious passion and motive behind it, is apt to become a cold, hard impersonal thing. Only when it is the shall rise up before the lowly Jesus. What about that age in which we live? Have we honored unless it deserves to be honored? Are we yet the cry to-day is for youth, experience. Judgment, are thrown aside by precipitous, perilous, impetuous youth. All we lenience, all we limits. A bit of reverence and humility, deference to those of experience and judgment. Men can still learn from the Book of Leviticus.

COAL WILL BE SCARCE NEXT WINTER !!!

Prepare your home now for adequate warmth with smaller fuel consumption

TO SAVE COAL CHECK THESE POINTS

HOW TO GET MORE HEAT

Pipes and furnaces must be clean, and grates in good order. If one or two rooms are hard to heat, you are wasting fuel. A minor adjustment can probably remedy this. Have a competent man check your heating system, and make necessary repairs. Insulate your furnace and pipes when necessary.

HOW TO AVOID HEAT LOSSES

Storm windows and doors must fit snugly and be weatherstripped. Lack of storm windows can cause as much as 20% heat loss. Caulking should be done around windows, doors and in cracks in brick work (some hardware stores have caulking guns for rent). Broken glass should be replaced, and loose panes puttied. Small expenditures on such work will save much fuel.

HOW TO SAVE STILL MORE

You can save fuel and money by having your home properly insulated. It is a proven fact that in many homes lack of adequate insulation (including storm windows) results in unnecessary consumption of fuel—up to as much as 50%. Watch for later instructions on how to fire your furnace properly.

HAVE YOUR HOME INSPECTED FOR HEATING AND INSULATION DEFECTS

Get advice now! Skilled workmen and supplies are scarce. If you delay in getting your home ready for winter you may not be able to get the services you need.

● A recent independent, nation-wide poll amongst Canadian motorists shows that more than one-half of them prefer Goodyears.

Now that motorists have found it necessary to get every last mile out of their tires; they're finding out for themselves just how much extra mileage and how many "lasting qualities" Goodyears have.

Of course, it has always been true that Goodyears could deliver a plus in mileage and service; it's true, because Goodyear has always built extra stamina, quality and value into Goodyear tires.

That's going to be true, too, when you can buy your next set of Goodyears. It may be some time before those new Goodyears will be available . . . maybe not until after the war . . . but, you can bank on this; they'll still be Canada's "first choice" tire.

Here is the PREFERENCE VOTE!

GOODYEAR	50.5%
Second Tire	17.2%
Third Tire	8.9%
Fourth Tire	8.3%
Fifth Tire	5.6%
Sixth Tire	4.9%
All Others	5.7%

Canadian Facts Reg'd, an impartial and national research organization compiled the facts from a recently concluded "tire popularity" survey.

Until new tires are again available; your nearby Goodyear Dealer can keep your present tires "rolling along". See him regularly.

GOOD NEWS FOR TEA DRINKERS

So many people in Canada drink tea that there will be a genuine feeling of satisfaction that more of it will be available for home rations after September 2nd. The Ration Board has decided this can be done because the safety of the sea route from Ceylon has so vastly improved. The millions of 'SALADA' lovers have just cause for rejoicing.

FORTIFY AGAINST SPOILAGE IN STORAGE OF HARVEST

Hello Homemakers! Many vegetables and fruits may be preserved in their natural state for winter use without canning or dehydrating. For this, properly constructed storage space is necessary. Two favourite methods are: the use of a cold room in the basement of the house, and storage pits made outdoors.

The storage cellar must be cool, well ventilated and dark. An adequate room may be built in the corner of the cellar with 2 x 4 studding and boarded both sides. Waterproof building paper should be tacked horizontally from the top down over the studding. This will stop insulating material from sifting down. The space between the studding is filled with sawdust or other insulating material. A window is necessary for ventilation but it should be shaded to keep out the light. Make a chute to cover one-half the window, extending it to within eight inches from the floor. This allows the cold air to come in at the bottom and warm air to escape from the other half of the window. Slats or shelves should be used to keep food off the floor and permit air circulation. If the floor is concrete part of it may be covered with damp sand or peat moss to furnish needed humidity. Sprinkle some water on each day. Use a thermometer and adjust the window each day to maintain a temperature of 32 to 40 degrees.

Outdoors pits keep vegetables very well, but it is sometimes difficult to get them out in cold weather. Several pits are preferable to one large one, so that all the vegetables may be removed when it is opened. Storage places should be left moist to prevent wilting.

Covering a barrel with straw and earth provides an outdoor storage space. Leaves will work instead of straw. The stave barrel is placed on its side, filled with trimmed (but not washed) vegetables such as carrots, salsify and potatoes. The lid is put on and then successive layers of earth and leaves are added to prevent freezing. You may need to cover to a depth of four feet.

One victory gardener recommends the following method for storing cabbages. Pull and ret the roots in a shallow trench. Cover the roots with earth. Erect a frame about two feet high around them. Bank the sides and top with earth. Cover well with leaves.

RECIPES

Dixie Relish — (2 quarts)

One cup chopped red peppers, one cup chopped green peppers, one cup chopped onion, one cup chopped cabbage, two tablespoons mustard seer, one tablespoon of celery seed, one-quarter cup of sugar, two cups vinegar, two and one-half tablespoons salt.

Soak peppers in medium brine for 24 hours. Freshen in cold water one or two hours. Chop and chop. Mix chopped vegetables and let stand in cool overnight. Pack into jars. Cover with vinegar and seasonings. Partially seal. Process in a hot water bath for ten minutes. Remove and seal.

Cabbage and Green Apple Salad

Half a head or cabbage, one carrot, one green apple, three radishes, lettuce, one - quarter teaspoon salt, salad dressing or mayonnaise.

Shred cabbage and carrot, chop apple and radishes. Season and mix with salad dressing or mayonnaise. Serve in lettuce cups. This makes a good stuffing for raw tomato salad.

Spinach en Casserole

Two tablespoons of butter, one tablespoon flour, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, half-teaspoon of salt, three-quarters cup of milk, two cups cooked spinach, three hard-cooked eggs, bread crumbs, grated cheese.

Make white sauce by melting butter, adding flour, salt, pepper, and paprika and mixing well. Add milk slowly and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Add one-quarter cup of grated cheese. Put a layer of spinach in the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Add a layer of sliced eggs. Pour some sauce over layers of spinach and eggs. Add more spinach, egg, sauce and top with crumbs mixed with a little grated cheese. This can be prepared several hours before meal time, covered and placed in electric refrigerator until ready to serve.

Braised Celery Hearts

Three or four celery hearts, one tablespoon chopped onion, two tablespoons butter, salt, pepper and bird fish.

Trim off outer stalks and leaves of celery and split the hearts in halves. Cook onion in butter for a few minutes, arrange celery on top, season with salt and pepper and then moisten with beer broth. Cover and simmer over low heat for about twenty minutes or until tender. Place pan in electric oven at 350 deg. F. and cook until celery has absorbed most of the liquid, basting occasionally.

TAKE A TIP :

Use parsley while its fresh. It not only enhances the appearance but lends flavor as well. Eaten frequently it steps up the vitamin value of your meals. Use sprigs of it in the soup pot, chop it and add it to meat and fish dishes, sprinkle it over salads, add handful of it to a dish of boiled potatoes, over beaver, carrots, celery or turnips. Add green specks of it to fish. It is especially appealing served in potato, cabbage or celery salad. Add some just before the peas or wax beans are cooked. Finally, tiny branches are served on the salad plates, sandwich plates and meat platters.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. F. asks for Supper Plate suggestions.

Answer :

1 Hard - cooked egg slices in tomato jelly, macaroni and parsley salad, celery sticks and lettuce.
2 Sardines with lemon, potato salad, cucumber slices, celery hearts, cream tomato slices.
3 Green beans cooked green beans, tomatoes stuffed with cottage cheese.
4 Jellied pork hocks, cauliflower flowerets, raw carrot strips and shredded cabbage with mayonnaise dressing.
5 Pike and veal jellied, currant jelly, mixed vegetable salad and nasturtium leaves.
6 Cold ham slices, potato salad, cabbage and chard salad, and radishes.
7 Cold meat loaf, tomatoes cut out with rolls, bread or tea biscuits, fruit salmon and milk, buttermilk or tea. Strenuous workers would end with a bowl of hot soup to begin their supper.

Mrs. N. M. asks: How can strawberry ice cream stain be removed from a white pique ?

Answer : Soak in warm clear water, and launder. If colour remains, bleach with hydrogen peroxide or javelle water.

LETTERS FROM NICKEY

THE STORY OF LIFE IN THE C.W.A.C.

Dear Bubs :—

This seems as good a time as any to pry myself loose from "the daily round, the common task," long enough to say "hello" to my old school friend. Yes, I am busy, but my mind has not failed and you have always been a source of inspiration to me (or what passes for inspiration with yours truly.) I feel the stirring of ambition under my tunic and harder to something arresting that will catapult me into the upper brackets of news reporters. Let somebody else wield the scissors in the clipping department. I am girding my loins for better things. So here I sit, my mind dry as a bone, waiting for a brainstorm to creep up and bite me. What I need is some of your fresh, young enthusiasm and a few superlatives, then I scramble same, and toss off a "scoop" on my typewriter. Why don't you throw me out a lifeline, pal ?

My personal life, as of to-day, is very bleak. My pay slides through my fingers like so much quicksilver, so now I am in that familiar state known as "all in." Around me girls are "stony." I spilled ink on my khaki uniform which, of course, brought down the wrath of the orderly officer on my bowed head, and that's not all. The crowning misfortune appeared in Part I Orders this morning . . . all passes for the weekend cancelled. Oh my cherished weekend! Incidentally, during Friday, the thirteenth a black cat crossed my path. This may be the key to my misfortunes. Next time the thirteenth rolls around, I will not make the fatal mistake of getting up.

Have you been reading the papers recently ? If so, you cannot fail to have heard about the celebrations for the second anniversary of the C.W.A.C. which are being held this week in Military District No. 2, to honor this occasion. The C.W.A.C. Brass Band from Calgary has travelled to the east to join them and the Pipe Band for a program of concerts.

Appearances in Ottawa on Saturday, August 21st, were followed on Sunday by a Garrison Parade on Parliament Hill which was attended by all the companies of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, stationed in the Capitol. Guests of the other women's services were invited.

In Kingston there will be a track and field meet on Saturday the 28th of August at Richardson Stadium. The three women's services will participate and that evening a street dance on the paved parade square at Barriefield Camp will be held at Macdonald Park in the morning and in the afternoon, tea will be served in the beautiful gardens of Swinton Barracks. All in all the C.W.A.C. in Military District No. 2 is preparing for a dizzy whirl of birthday festivities, and I do not hear any complaining.

Our girls are practising feverishly for the track and field meet and disturb my sleep frequently by rising before the clock, dashing into their shorts and trotting off for a workout. I maintain that the sweetest sleep of the night is that evanescent period before the rising whistle, and I resent any intrusions, but our hour is prepared, I suppose, to sacrifice for such a cause. There is a grand spirit of esprit de corps evident in No. 39 Company these days, and it may be heard good. I heard Pte. E. Radbury of Cornwall, Corpl. I. James of Brockville, and Pte. MacLeod of Kingston, speculating on the company's chances in the meet, and accepting them it is the best company in the best unit in the Canadian Army.

The time has come the sergeant said . . . Infringing on the immortal Lewis Carroll with apologies . . . to say 'au revoir.

Ever,
NICKEY.

ARDEN COURNEYA OST TO FRIENDS T BANQUET

Over 100 Entertained at Tamworth

One of the most outstanding social events of the year in the County of Lennox and Addington took place in the Village of Tamworth, when E. J. Courneya, Warden of the County was honored at a dinner attended by about 100 representative citizens of the county.

The members of the Tamworth Women's Institute prepared and served the dinner which was served at 6:30 o'clock in the tables laid with white linens and decorated with silver bowls of petunias and pansies. The guests were seated their places by Mr. T. J. Ashton and Mr. T. Courneya. After the singing of the National Anthem grace was said by Rev. Mr. Hopkins, rector of Christ Church, Tamworth.

Following the dinner, the Master of Ceremonies, W. S. Wilson, the Township Clerk, started the programme by calling on the Sheffield Township Reeve, Mr. M. J. Hopkins, Erinsville, for a few words. Mr. Hopkins paid a tribute to Mr. Courneya, and compared him for the business-like way in which he conducted the business of the municipality. Other addresses were given by Ex-Reeve W. A. McLeod and T. D. Ashton; Henry Ward, Reeve of Portland; G. F. Smith, the County Solicitor; C. C. Cobb, the County Clerk and Engineer; Edgar Drew, Reeve of Camden; Harvey Smaile, District Road Engineer; J. A. Pringle, M.L.A. for Lennox-Addington; Dr. T. M. Parker; Yarker; T. S. Graham, of Napanee, and C. W. Buchanan, Napanee County Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Mr. Buchanan congratulated members of the Women's Institute for the excellent dinner they were serving in the restrictions of rationing. Two solos were sung by Mr. John Killorin, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Arthur McKeown, of Centreville. A duet solo was also rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Scanlin.

Mr. Edgar Drew and Mrs. Henry Ward presented the wife of the Warden, Mrs. Courneya, with two beautiful bouquets, for which Mrs. Courneya expressed her thanks.

TWO MOTORISTS DIE AFTER CAR CRASH NEAR ERINSVILLE

Injured Men Found by Workman

Two young men from Westport, James Edward Renaud, aged 19, and Patrick J. Jordin, aged 22 years, died in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, during the week end as the result of injuries sustained early Saturday morning, when the car in which they were driving left the road and struck a hydro pole about three miles south of Erinsville, on Highway No. 41.

The car in which the two young men were found was discovered at 6:40 a.m. on Saturday, by Douglas York of Tamworth, who was on his way to work in Marlbank. Mr. York pulled one of the men out of the car and then went for assistance to residence of Mr. Gordon, who was pinned under the car. With the help of Ambrose Way and Arthur McGrath the car was lifted and the second man was released. Both were unconscious when found, and Dr. Hunt of Marlbank was called and ordered them removed to the hospital.

Jordan died about 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, and Renaud passed away at 3:00 a.m., on Sunday.

Provincial Officer R. L. Taylor of the Provincial Police is investigating. There were no witnesses to the accident but it appeared that the driver of the car, which was going south, had been unable to make the turn at the sharp corner, known as Crawford's corner. The car must have struck the Hydro pole with terrific force because the car was practically wrapped around the pole and was completely wrecked.

Both Renaud and Jordan were em-

SEPTEMBER WAR SAVINGS STAMP CAMPAIGN

Dear Mr. Editor :—

May I, through your valuable paper, appeal to the Citizens of Napanee and the County of Lennox and Addington for their whole-hearted support during the month of September, by purchasing War Savings Stamps and Certificates.

All the money realized by the September sales of War Savings Stamps and Certificates will be used entirely for the purchase of Surgical and Medical supplies for our Armed Forces. Canada needs $300,000 for this purpose and Ontario's share is $120,000. The Druggists of Canada are sponsoring this Special Drive and are offering valuable prizes. Our local druggists are putting forth special efforts to make this Drive a success.

I need not point out to our Citizens the great need for such equipment, as injuries and casualties are bound to be numerous. Our men in uniform are now entering the active phase which will culminate in the unconditional surrender of our enemies, and total victory for freedom-loving people throughout the world.

Let it not be said that we at home failed to provide our boys with ample Surgical and Medical supplies. They are doing the job for us and are prepared to sacrifice all, that our way of life may prevail.

We are not asked to give anything but to lend our earnings to our country at a good rate of interest. Surely we can deny ourselves to accomplish this.

May every man, woman and child give serious and material support to this campaign.

Thanking you,

DUANE R. HALL, M.D.
Chairman.

County of Lennox and Addington.

EYEWITNESS DESCRIBES INVASION PROCEDURE IN ITALIAN CAMPAIGN

Large Number of Boats Used by Invaders

BY ALAN MOORHEAD
Representing the Combined British Press

An Invasion Port Sicily, Sept. 3— (U.P.) — Many hundreds of Allied ships and barges set out for the Italian coast last night with only the light of the stars to guide them to the enemy beaches.

There was no moon to betray them and the sea had been consistently calm for more than a week. Extraordinary scenes led up to the movement when the first wave of the expedition set sail. For the past ten days, vast numbers of men and vehicles have been feeding down to the invasion ports. If you can imagine a prewar London traffic jam magnified 100 times, then you can guess what the roads have been like.

Once I watched a battery of heavy guns being driven foot by foot with winches across the sheer face of a precipice.

One night an unseasonable and violent storm swept the beach embarkation area. In the night, bridges were washed away and where there had been heavy dust, bulldozers struggled through mud to make new roads and detours.

It was hot by day. Perched half-naked on top of their guns and tanks, the men kept sucking grapes and melons bought from Italian peasants along the way. Sometimes traffic halted for an hour and infantry jumped down and brewed sticky tea in the verges.

ROADS MARKED

New and complete road signs sprang up all over the country to guide the columns down to their right coves and beaches. Meanwhile, invasion barges— that same mosquito fleet that made the landing in Sicily — crept to the coast to take the army on board.

The enemy seemed to have been aware that something was going on. High speed reconnaissance planes came over at dawn and evening.

I watched one enemy raid on a strip of coast just south of here. It was all over in a half hour. Anti-aircraft guns put up such a barrage that there was a continuous path of light in the sky.

Everything was pretty well set by then. Those stores and vehicles which were not already embarked were waiting in long lines on the lava plains ready to go down to the shore. It looked like a huge motor car park.

In the darkness you could hear the rattle of equipment, the thunder of treads on the docks and the shouted orders of officers calling to their men to come forward.

Practically every man had made at least one landing before. Though they had not yet been told their exact destinations, the troops knew they were bound on their biggest adventure yet and the atmosphere was tense. They either talked about something else or nothing at all. Two weeks of rest and quiet had given them great confidence.

UNDER ENEMY EYES

A great deal of all this intense organization had been carried out in full view of the Italian mainland, but there never was any real sign of movement on the mainland beyond the lobbing of occasional shells over the straits from the Calabrian hills.

From this distance, the mainland looks like an uninhabited rock and at times the silence there has been uncanny.

Just before the invasion, General Dwight D. Eisenhower flew here for a final check-up with Gens. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander and Sir Bernard L. Montgomery. Eisenhower fashioned the strategy.

The same veteran battle planners — unnamed Major Generals and Brigadiers — who designed the Sicilian campaign are at work on this job.

Lieut. Geo. Atkinson Died of Wounds In Sicily

Mrs. Norman Galt Hawley, received word last Thursday that her son-in-law, Lieut. Geo. Atkinson, had died in Sicily as result of wounds received during the invasion. Lieut. Atkinson's wife, formerly Edna Galt, and baby boy, two years old, reside in Port Rowan. Mrs. Galt left on Thursday afternoon to be with her daughter.

Lieut. Galt was a member of the Royal Canadian Engineers.

Mohawk Flyers Eliminated From Air Command Play-offs

The Mohawk Flyers playing in the Eastern Air Command play-offs were eliminated when they were defeated in Belleville, last week, by a score of 6 to 4. Failure to hit in the pinches was given as the reason for their elimination. No less than twelve runners were stranded on the bases during the game.

The Air Force team has had a busy season, playing in no less than three sets of play-offs. They captured the Bayshore laurels, lost the Eastern Air Command chances and are now engaged in the O.A.S.A. series. The possibility of the local fans being able to enjoy a few more softball games is still good and a splendid attendance is expected when they meet the various teams in the O.A.S.A. set-up.

MARY CHURCHILL DONATES BLOOD

Quebec.—Subaltern Mary Churchill, daughter of the British Prime Minister, gave her blood at the local Red Cross donors' clinic. Miss Churchill, who visited the clinic a few days ago, had expressed a desire to see it in operation. She was taken on a tour of the clinic and expressed a wish to donate her blood to the bank.

She took the routine examination, was found to be fit for blood donation, was checked as a universal blood type and gave the regular allotment of her blood.

After her donation she finished a careful survey of the clinic, spending an hour and a half at the Red Cross centre. She asked questions on routine and procedure and was shown every detail of the centre.

The doctor in charge of the clinic was Dr. Andre Simard.

TAKE FIRST GAME O. A. S. A. SERIES

On Tuesday, August 31st, at Kingston, the Mohawk Flyers won the first game of the O.A.S.A. Intermediate "B" play-offs, when they trounced the Kingston Aluminum entry to the tune of 16 to 2.

"Red" Philips, ace hurler for the Flyers had the Kingston outfit handcuffed for the entire game.

In the first three innings "Red" fanned the "weeks" and struck out sixteen batters in seven innings. His teammates played stellar ball behind him, collecting no less than sixteen runs and allowed only two runs for the losers.

The results of the return game scheduled for last night (Tuesday) here, will be found in another column.

In an effort to alleviate the hardships suffered by prisoners of war, the Canadian Red Cross is sending 20-000 food parcels per month to Poland. Belgian prisoners receive 34,000 monthly, whilst 210,000 more parcels per month are distributed amongst other Allied prisoners in Europe.

CHURCHES ASKED TO MAKE PLANS TO SAVE FUEL

Coal Controller for Churches Met Church Officials Last Week

Russell T. Kelley, Hamilton, recently appointed by the Department of Munitions and Supply to regulate the churches across Canada, for coal conservation during the winter months, met representatives of the Napanee churches on Tuesday evening of last week and made some suggestions which might lead to the desired fuel saving.

Mr. Kelley suggested :—

1 That all week-day meetings be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and that the churches be not heated on the other week days.

2 That choir practises be held in smaller rooms rather than in the church proper.

3 That services be combined as far as possible.

4 That a temperature not exceeding 68 degrees be maintained in the buildings.

5 That as many as possible small meetings be held in homes in place of the church.

6 That fires be banked or allowed to go out as soon as possible after church services are finished.

7 That all heating equipment be inspected and placed in good order.

8 That the most suitable type of coal be used for the heating plants in use.

TEN-POINT PROGRAMME

Mr. Kelley stated that a ten-point programme for fuel conservation in churches has been approved by the government department and a copy of the programme will be sent to each church in the county. He asked that the chairman of the Ministerial Association, Rev. G. M. Chidley, call a meeting as soon as possible of the ministers of the town, a lay representation and the caretaker of each church to discuss ways and means of saving coal.

Mr. Kelley urged the churches to take the lead, in effecting a saving of coal and suggested that restrictions may be later imposed on the use of coal in other public buildings.

Representatives of churches outside of Napanee said that every little coal is used in the rural churches, so the problem of coal conservation really affects the town churches to a large extent.

Magistrate's Court

Archie Mouck, Napanee, was dealt with very leniently by Magistrate Garvin, in Napanee Police Court last Thursday, when he was found guilty of assaulting his wife and was given a suspended sentence of three years.

Evidence given by Mouck's wife and sister-in-law, Mrs. Pringle, indicated that Mouck over a long period, had been battering his wife and had also mistreated his young child. The child, still a baby in arms, which was brought into court showed visible marks of mistreatment.

The suspended sentence was imposed by the Magistrate as a result of the accused's wife's plea that her husband be not sent to gaol, and also because of the fact that there are three small children in the family.

The Magistrate warned Mouck that any further ill-treatment of his family would result in a gaol term. Mouck was bound over not to strike his wife or children and not to touch liquor.

All personnel of the Canadian Army are being reboarded under the recently inaugurated "Pulhems" system.

CONTINUING THE ATTACK

On the anniversary of the outbreak of war British and Canadian troops crossed the Straits of Messina and landed on the toe of Italy. To these groups goes the honor of being the first in this war to reach the mainland of Europe. It has been a long, hard road from Dunkirk to Reggio Calabria, but now that the landing has been achieved, we may conclude that a totally new phase in the war has opened up.

It is difficult to estimate at this stage of the advance just what resistance will be offered by the Italians. Quite probably the Italians would not offer too much objection to the landing of the United Forces, were it not for the presence in Italy of eight or ten divisions of German troops. They will quite likely protest every step of the way. The Germans are always willing that their wars should be fought on the other fellow's territory. A large portion of the German troops are in Northern Italy and are massed at the Po River, where the Nazis hope to make a stand which will prevent the United Nations from getting into Europe proper by the south door. So that the extent of the opposition in the south will only be determined as the campaign unfolds.

The strategy of the United Nations comes to light in the bombing of the Brenner Pass. This pass is the only way in which men and supplies can get from Germany to Italy and the only route by which the Germans now in Italy can withdraw when that course become necessary. The Brenner Pass has been bombed, railroad communications cut, so that the German forces now in Italy will have difficulty in getting reinforcements or supplies. Nor will they be able, in the meantime, to get out of the country. They will, therefore, in all probability elect to fight it out at every foot of the way.

There are, however, psychological factors that will probably become operative. It is well known that Northern Italy is rebellious. There have been demonstrations for peace. It may be that, as the campaign proceeds, the situation in Northern Italy will get out of hand; and the people will demand a capitulation. The United Nations can be expected to take advantage of this situation. It would not be improbable to find that once the United Nations are firmly established in Southern Italy, that a landing would be made somewhere in the north. In that event they would receive much more help, much more encouragement and assistance than they can hope for in the south, where the Rome influence is the strongest.

WATCHING THE WIND

Dispatches from Ottawa tell that the Liberal Party has called a caucus; that members from all across Canada will be brought to Ottawa in the near future, for consultation. This has probably been decided upon because of the trend in political events of the past few weeks. There can be no doubt but that the Dominion Government is faced with a shift in public opinion, which cannot be ignored. It is the assumption that the Ontario election was to be used as a means of testing this opinion. The Dominion Liberal Organization was generally believed to be behind Mr. Nixon's candidature. The swing against Mr. Nixon's Party can be interpreted, therefore, to some extent at least, as a condemnation of the Dominion Government.

That is one matter; the other and perhaps more serious matter with which the Liberal Party will have to deal, is the swing of public opinion away from the older parties towards those of leftist tendencies. There can be no doubt but that a contributing factor to the election of Mr. Drew was the progressive advanced policy embodied in his twenty-two point programme. Had it not been that the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party had been wise enough to sense the trends of political thinking, the C. C. F. might very well have been returned to power.

The Liberal Party, if it is to represent the thought of the day; if it is to hold its place of leadership, cannot ignore the political thinking of the rank and file of Canadians. The day when the average man could be frightened by name-calling, is passing rapidly. To call those who disagreed with "things as they are" Red or Bolshevik, once sent shivers up and down the spine of the ordinary man. But he is not so terrified by these names now, especially since the "Reds" and the "Bolsheviks" have done so much for Democracy by holding the Nazi Forces on the Russian Front, while the United Nations were making preparations for the final overthrow of Hitler.

We are living in a new day; the world of ideas is in a state of ferment. Old things are passing away. It is the part of wisdom for statesmen to watch the way the wind blows and if they wish to remain in power, go along with it, or by opposing it be swept aside by the tornado.

FROM THE WEST

These lines are being written from Saskatoon, where we are looking over the conditions in North Saskatchewan. The crop conditions are good in this part of the Province. The Spring was late, but the return which will be somewhat lower than last year, will nevertheless, be good. There is a note of optimism in the air, business is good, rail traffic at an all high, and the camps of soldiers, airmen and women, add to the general atmospere of confidence.

The country seems almost like a hunter's paradise. Driving through, there are to be seen more wild ducks than most of our local hunters would see in a life time in our area. With the shortage of ammunition, this year, it is expected that most of these will survive and that the wild game population will be greatly increased. It might be well, for some of our duck hunters, to start planning now for a trip to the West.

All week long there has been a convention here on adult and visible education. The West is giving the rest of Canada leadership in this new and growing branch of education. Strange as it may seem to those of us in the East who have only heard one side of the Social Credit Government's work in Alberta, much of the leadership in Education is coming from that province. Speaking at a luncheon on Thursday, Dr. H. C. Newland, Supervisor of Schools in the Alberta Department of Education, said: "We have not asked if it is possible to win this war—we say we must and shall win it, and we will find the money to pay for it. We must approach education with the same attitude, with the same complete realization that the kind of person required in a country school to put across an up-to-date programme of education, cannot be attracted to the job for less than $2,000 a year." To talk that way in Ontario would throw a scarce into the average school board.

Dr. Newland, however, went further. He said that the Province of Alberta was considering setting up a few modern schools equipped with films, radios and all kinds of books and magazines with highly qualified teachers to be paid from $2,000 to $3,000 a year to teach boys and girls how better to work for the community. "I fear this generation is carrying on a lot of ideas either obsolescent or obsolete," Dr. Newland said. "The people must be taught the forces at work in society, or we will have Fascism."

Well, these are great words. They give us in the East, a real challenge. Maybe, some day, we will catch up to the West and have a department of adult education in our government, too.

A GREAT CONTRIBUTION

A contribution to the war effort which is often overlooked or taken for granted, is that played by the Railways. The unprecedented strain placed on the Canadian transportation system has been met with efficiency and dispatch. The Canadian National Railways has recently published a little folder which, in a modest way, indicates somewhat, the contribution this great national organization is making to war effort. In 1942, we are told, the Canadian National Railways moved over 72,000,000 tons of munitions of war and other products. This required 2,500 locomotives and 80,000 freight cars. At the same time that this amount of freight was being handled, the passenger trains went 2,650 million passenger miles. Altogether, the C. N. R. locomotives, last year, operated an aggregate of 81,000,000 miles.

All the troop trains, we are told, operate on a prearranged schedule. "The seventeen C. N. R. trains required to move the first contingent to an Eastern Canadian port, and the eighteen trains required to move the second, were scheduled to arrive at the ships' sides in two-hour intervals. But the actuation for detraining and embarking on shipboard was fifty minutes, so train operation was speeded up and this without hindrance to other trains."

The International Limited, which operates between Toronto and Montreal, frequently has as many as six sections. On one holiday weekend, the Canadian National dispatched nine regular and second section trains out of the Toronto Station, in 32 minutes. They carried 5,041 passengers, almost twice the population of our town.

This is a tremendous achievement, so when we are apt to grumble at the almost continuous roar of the trains through Napanee, the knowledge of the war service they are rendering should temper our annoyance.

Officers' Training Centres Concentrated At Brockville

Ottawa. — The Minister of National Defence has announced changes of policy regarding the granting of commissions in the Canadian Army. These call for reduction in the number of officers to be trained in Canada, and concentration at Brockville Ont., of Officers' Training Centres and Officers' Selection and Appeal Boards and Centres now operating at Toronto, Ont., Three Rivers, Que., and Chilliwack, B.C. These three centres will be closed on September 30th. The school of Army Instruction at St. Jerome, Que., will continue but with reduced enrolments.

The Minister stated:

Rapid expansion of the Canadian Army caused an acute shortage of officers and it was necessary to set up extensive facilities for the selection and training of junior officers to meet the urgent requirements. As many officers as possible had to be trained in as short a time as possible in order to meet the demands both for Units serving Overseas or designated to proceed Overseas, and to build up a reinforcement pool. The emergency mobilization of Canadian defence during the past two years also made heavy demands for trained officers.

The Army is now well supplied with officers. It has passed the expansion stage. Requirements for defence in Canada have substantially decreased. Therefore, officer requirements from now on will be principally to replace casualties and wastage with consequently curtailment in officer training facilities.

In future a greater proportion of officers will come from candidates with Overseas service, some of whom will be trained in England and some in Canada.

Total enrolments at Brockville will be based on reinforcement needs as estimated from time to time. In addition, vacancies at Brockville general preference will be given to cadets from Overseas but a limited quota from Canada will be allotted from month to month. This quota will alter with variation in numbers returning from Overseas.

To supply the Canadian quota it is proposed that each month a certain number of other ranks from the Army Overseas Army will be recommended to go before the Officers' Selection and Appraisal Board. They will there be appraised and if recommended to their Units. Those approved by the Board may be called for training at the O.T.C. at Brockville, if vacancies occur. They will remain as reinforcements. But if they proceed Overseas before being called for O. T.C. the Overseas Army will be informed that they have been appraised and potential officer candidates so that based on their work Overseas, they can be considered for a commission.

V

WORLD FACES FOOD CRISIS

Brantford, (CP.)— Premier Drew, last week, warned that even though the war is progressing in Allied favor, the world is threatened by the greatest period of horror in all history unless it is averted by expanded food production of farmers in Canada, the United States and some other countries.

The warning was sounded in an address to a large gathering of Brant County farmers at a picnic under the auspices of the County Federation of Agriculture and the Junior Farmers Association.

Farmers of Canada, Col. Drew said, must think not only of themselves and their fellow-countrymen but must regard it as a challenge and duty to raise crops and animals to feed the peoples of Europe and Asia, "the moment the war ends."

KING'S ESTATE IS SHOWING HEAVY YIELDS

London, (C.P.) The King's "Victory Garden" is being harvested after a successful season.

The "garden" is on his estate at Sandringham, Norfolk, where as all the British, every available spot has been converted to farmland. The golf course, for instance, is plowed up for a crop of oats; six acres of lawn in front of the house itself have produced crops of rye; and where brightly-coloured flowers once filled ornamental beds, beets and parsnips now grow.

Thanks to comprehensive planning carried out with the help of the Norfolk Agricultural Committee, the King's estate is showing heavy yields.

Most impressive section of the new-ploughed land is the 476 acres which have been reclaimed from the Sandringham marshes. Reclamation has involved extensive ditching and draining operations, but the land now produces potatoes, peas, beans, mustard, wheat and oats. Land not given over to crops is being used to pasture a new dairy herd, milk production of which has showed a fine increase this year.

The King's farm is highly mechanized; grain crops are harvested by a combination harvester and mechanized baler, driven by a Land Army girl.

V

U. S. Synthetic Rubber Programme To Be Exceeded

Washington. — The rubber director, William M. Jeffers, forecast increased production of synthetic rubber tires for civilian passenger cars above the announced goals of 5,000,000 tires this year and 30,000,000 next — after a meeting with tire and tube manufacturers and representatives of the United Rubber Workers and affiliated unions.

"It was the consensus of the meeting that it would be possible to increase the output of tires with the present existing equipment and facilities through better co-operation and more attention to details on the part of both men and machines," Mr. Jeffers said. "The net result of the meeting could be an immediate upward step-up in production and a substantial reduction in the proposed tire construction programme. It is hoped that the rubber companies can meet the goals set for the designated expansion programme, which may now be modified.

Mr. Jeffers declared that the all-synthetic tire being made for civilian consumption "is even as good as the tires in use ten years ago. The new tire can be safely driven above 35 miles an hour and will last 25,000 miles under ordinary conditions, he said. Reports to the contrary are "horsefeathers," he reiterated.

Heavy duty tires for military trucks and mobile weapons present another problem which the synthetic rubber chemists have not yet entirely licked, Mr. Jeffers reports. Synthetic rubber tires wear out in 18,000 miles or less when the tires are overloaded and driven at high speeds on rough, hot terrain, and that is the sort of test truck tires are given to truck tires, he said.

Consumers Advised To Check Coupons In New Ration Books

The Local Ration Board recommended today that consumers should check the contents of their new ration books the moment they have been received from distributing centres and if they should contain fewer or more sheets of coupons than specified to notify the Board at once.

The new ration books should contain one sheet of green A coupons, one sheet of red sugar coupons, two sheets of purple butter coupons, three sheets of brown meat coupons, one sheet of grey C coupons, one sheet of orange D coupons, one sheet of yellow E coupons, and one sheet of blue F coupons, as well as three cards at the back of the book. It is further recommended by the Board that book-holders should write their name and address on the front and with the serial number on all coupons. Coupons are not valid for the purchase of rationed goods unless the sheet to which they are attached is so endorsed. The cards at the back should not be removed, be filled out by book-holders until directions to that effect are given.

GENERAL FRANCO'S LATEST MOVE

BY WAVERLEY ROOT

There's nothing like interpretation in international affairs. It is a branch of the art of diplomacy is dressing up actions so they look like the opposite, and the wolf in lamb's clothing is almost a standard description of the statements of some diplomats.

This observation is prompted by the form in which the latest developments in Spain are being reported. The story is that Sir Samuel Hoare, the British Ambassador to Madrid, has been instructed to tell General Franco in the sternest fashion that it is time for him to change his attitude.

Change it how, you may ask? In the direction away from Fascism, and towards the establishment of democracy in Spain? Not at all. He must abandon non-belligerency, and become a neutral.

All that is demanded is acceptance of a form of words. No tangible action is called for. Yet presumably, in exchange for that form of words, tangible benefits are to be tendered. In short, Franco is being assured of the support of the democracies for his Fascist Government in exchange for the promise to remain neutral at the very moment when whatever possibilities he may have had in the past for quitting his neutrality have completely disappeared.

What more could France himself ask? This apparently stern ultimatum is actually his safeguard. At a moment when a democratic military victory is about to imperil dictatorships everywhere, at the very time when he foresees the inevitable popular uprising which will overthrow his regime when its foreign Fascist support disappears he is offered a chance to escape for the support of Italy and Germany that of Britain and the United States. He can hope, once more, that there is a future for him.

When one considers how closely the actions of Petain and Franco have paralleled one another for several years, when one knows that the two have often consulted on joint actions, it begins to seem more than a coincidence that at the very time when Petain, glimpsing the imminent end of his rule in France, stretches out his hand to the democracies promising co-operation with them, Franco also is involved in negotiations with the only powers which will be able, perhaps, to save him from similar overthrow, at least temporarily. Perhaps they suggest their tactics to one another?

But, you will say, in Petain's case, the feelers were put out by him. In Franco's, the initiative came from the other side.

Here again, the report is deceptive. The diaries from London make it appear that Britain started the course of events that sent Sir Samuel Hoare to Cordova, after the return of Petain; but as a matter of fact, Spanish negotiations with the Allies have been going on for at least two months. They have been along economic rather than political lines. But they were the background and the starting point for the Cornana conversations, for they implied a political shift of front — or, more exactly, a job of camouflage intended to look like a shift of front.

For one thing, Spain has bought out the German ownership of the Iberia air line, and is now asking Britain and America to give her aviation and transport planes to maintain communications with Portugal, Tangiers and Chile slipped in casually almost as an afterthought control for essential supplies — in other words, Germany.

Spain is the bald situation, stripped of its explanation! That German may cannot afford the gasoline or the transport planes to keep her service with Spain running; and that Spain fears confiscation if it is still German-owned when the Allies come into Europe. So the Spaniards will take it over, save it for her, and in the meantime get the democracies to provide what is necessary to keep it operating.

Spain has also had the temerity to ask for Lend-Lease aid from the United States. Her reason is that Germany is no longer able to supply her with materials she has been giving her in the past. It is indicated that Madrid should feel that she can turn to the Axis as long as the Axis is able to pay for her services, but that when that is no longer possible, she should turn around and ask payment from the Allies for being helped out of her predicament.

Finally, Spain is also asking for fighter planes and guns. Why she thinks the Allied governments should give her this equipment, at a time when they need it vitally themselves, particularly in view of her past re-tals.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, SEPTEMBER 12TH, 1943

"ISRAEL MARCHES TOWARD CANAAN"

Lesson Text: Numbers 10: 11, 12, 29-36.

The birth of a nation is unfolded before our eyes as we study these chapters in which a group of people, it is a group of people bound together by common ties, directed and motivated by common ideals and purposes. The birth and growth of a nation are usually the result of historic forces which play upon a group, and frequently these are hid in obscurity. But always there are leaders who in themselves seem to embody the ideals and purposes of the group, and are strong enough and gifted enough to direct the nation's destiny.

The Israelites were not a nation when they lived in Egypt. They were a slave race. They had a slave complex. They felt their servility; they accepted it; they labored on almost like dumb-driven cattle. It was not the most difficult task which Moses faced when he got the people out of Egypt. The future looked bright. The picture Moses painted looked rosy. The people were thrilled with the prospect of getting away from their taskmasters. As has been said, it was one thing to get them out of slavery, but a much more difficult matter to get slavery out of them. This latter task was the most trying and exacting one which Moses faced. They still had the slave complex after they got away from Egypt. Moses had to get that out of their mentality before they were ready to accept the full responsibility of nationhood.

The longer route to Canaan had been decided on by Moses. It seemed like a strange decision to make. But the wisdom of it was shown by subsequent events. In the years' stay at Sinai the lot had been accomplished. They had been organized, they had received from God the decalogue—their nation was to be built. They had made mistakes, these had been corrected. Like the armies of to-day, which for years have been preparing for the supreme test at Sicily, Italy, the years in Sinai were years of intensive preparation. Now organized, well disciplined, they were ready to go forward.

Moses was also quite realistic. Having more was essential if the people were to be successful. They were unacquainted with the terrain between the location of mount Sinai and the location of Canaan. Moses' father-in-law, Hobab, was familiar with the region. Moses had to persuade him to be their guide. Hobab was persuaded to do so. It is recorded: "they set out from the Mount of Jehovah three days' journey, to seek out a resting place for them." The problem of finding a resting place was a problem which the question of "the Cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night" solved before them." The problem of where they waited until cloudy symbols indicated a good "time to move" was solved by the guidance of God in the form of weather plays in our modern translations. The Hebrews had no meteorological reports to guide them, but they probably possessed the equivalent knowledge of weather conditions which long years in the open country brings. The phrase of the text does give no concern either. It was not a common belief that God was confined to certain areas, and that he was associated with certain places. Perhaps we have not departed much, from that even to-day. We have a special reverence for places where we have had a special sense of God when in the memory of them—the place where we have prayed most regularly and specifically, Hebrews took the ark along with them during the presence of God in the great enterprise.

This story is full of points for discussion. The necessity for organization, the necessity for the disciplines of the slave mind. The need of God with us.

NEW MAN-POWER CHECK CONSIDERED

Ottawa, (C.P.) — Regulations requiring employers to satisfy themselves that all male employees of age and marital classes designated under mobilization regulations are in possession of papers showing they have been rejected by the army discharged from the forces or have otherwise complied with mobilization regulations are under "active consideration," Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, announced on Wednesday.

"While it may be same little time before an order to this effect is actually issued," Mr. MacNamara said in a statement, "the delay will be due largely to the necessity of giving the men an opportunity of securing the necessary documents, if they do not already possess them."

Mr. MacNamara said several types of documents are involved. Men who tried to enlist voluntarily in the army but were rejected because of medical unfitness, should apply to the district military headquarters where they had applied for enlistment in order to obtain a rejection form if they do not already possess one.

Men discharged from the navy, the army or the R.C.A.F. who have lost their discharge certificates should make application to the district officer commanding in the district where they were discharged.

Unless men have been granted a postponement of military training, men who are medically examined as a result of a notice or order — medical examination from a division-al- registrar of mobilization board, and who do not hold a medical unfitness certificate, should immediately apply for such a certificate to the registrar for the division in which they now live.

"In any events," Mr. MacNamara said," under the employment permit system most men require sooner or later to go to an employment and Selective Service office. Before being dealt with at one of these offices, a man requires to have his documents."

HOPE TO HEAR FURTHER NEWS OF MISSING AIRMAN

Relatives of Alex. Grange, of Oriawa, who was recently reported missing and believed killed in aerial action over Northern Italy, feel that it is possible the young man may have escaped into France, and are not willing to accept, as yet, the fact of his death. It is believed his plane came down over Milan.

The family hopes to hear word from him that he has escaped.

The Salvation Army To Make Appeal For Home Front Funds

Morale is a lot of little things . . . mail from home when you're a thousand miles away . . . the memory of a pleasant leave for a serviceman . . . the knowledge that "home" will always be there, when his job is done . . . and a thousand other things.

For the boys at the Front, morale means that folks back home are bending every effort to make his job easier for him; to send what he needs to keep out the cold and to cheer him up. Morale means the knowledge that his family is safe and happy.

What about the father of a motherless child, who hears the call to arms? He is torn between his devotion to his child and his loyalty to his country. What about the veteran of the last war who is still young enough for active service now? He is loathe to leave his aging Mother and Dad because they depend on him to provide the necessities of life. What about the woman war worker whose husband has made the supreme sacrifice to keep his country free? She wants to do a job of work, but has no place for her children to stay?

These are but a few of the needy who find their answer in The Salvation Army. The Army mothers the motherless child, giving her a home and friendly, loving care; The Army provides haven for the aging father and mother of a warrior son, whose reply to his country's need has been whole-hearted and instantaneous because of the help he has received. The Army gives back to the widowed mother the right to do her share in the country's war effort, by opening its doors to her children; by looking after their spiritual and physical growth while she reaches top production figures on the assembly line.

The soldier, who bids farewell to his new wife at the station, knows that even though he won't be on hand for the important event, his child will be born in the pleasant surroundings and secure atmosphere of a Salvation Army Hospital.

Morale is a lot of little things, that in the end add up to life itself.

The Home Front Appeal of The Salvation Army is reaching out to Canadians from coast to coast, asking them to make their response a generous one. By making a contribution, you are adding a cornerstone to the pillar of confidence and courage which every boy away from home carries in his heart.

You are helping to care for his loved ones back home.

"The Blood That Once Was Mine"

The following poem was printed in The Cleveland Plain Dealer and may be interesting to some of your many blood donors. —Willet P. Casey, of Boston, Mass.)

BLOOD DONOR

My blood flows now through other veins than mine
To other heart and muscle, skin and bone.
Flows the dark liquid — life's own crimson wine.
The blood that once was mine—my very own.
I know not in whose veins my blood may flow
Yet glad am I that it was mine to give.
And somehow life seems richer since I know
He knows me not; our paths may never meet,
Yet each has made the other one complete.
—May Winkler Goodman.
